Biographical Information

John E. Fogarty served in the United States House of Representatives for twenty-two years (1941-1967) representing Rhode Island's Second Congressional District. His distinguished career was highlighted by a tireless promotion of program to improve and safeguard the nation's health.

As Chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare, Mr. Fogarty actively encouraged the Federal Government to support and initiate health programs.

During his tenure on the Appropriations Committee the budget of the National Institutes of Health increased from approximately 3 million to 1.4 billion dollars. Fogarty's name was associated with virtually every important piece of health legislation that passed through Congress between 1949 and 1966.

The Congressman also championed the rights of labor, increased aid to education and library services, and the expansion of programs in the arts and humanities.

In other legislative efforts, Fogarty worked with Senator Lister Hill (D-Alabama) to establish the Library Services Act (1956). The history of this effort is highlighted in James Healey's monograph: John E. Fogarty: Political Leadership for Library Development. According to Healey, it was the work of Rhode Island state librarian, Elizabeth Myer that inspired Congressman Fogarty to champion library services.

Specific bills Fogarty sponsored or worked on, in conjunction with Senator Hill, included the Hill-Fogarty "Health for Peace" Bill, which opened up opportunities for research and training on an international basis. In addition, Fogarty was responsible for the enactment of authorizing legislation and the appropriation of funds for construction of the National Institute of Dental Research.

Other bills introduced by Fogarty to provide for the expansion of teaching and research for mentally retarded citizens were enacted, as were his bills to authorize distribution of books and special instruction materials for the blind, and to provide teachers for the deaf and educational films for the deaf.

The White House Conference on Aging was the result of legislation successfully sponsored by Mr. Fogarty and led to the enactment of his bill to establish an Administration of Aging in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He was the original sponsor of legislation that established the Older Americans Act of 1965.

Other legislation sponsored by Fogarty included legislation for the National Technical Institute for the Deaf, Control of Drug Abuse, Community Mental Health Centers Act Amendments, Community Health Service Amendments, Health Research Facilities Amendments, Water Pollution Control Act, Medical Complex Centers for Heart Disease, Cancer and Stroke, Medical Library Assistance Act, Library Services Act Amendments, The Model Secondary School for the Deaf Act, and the Vocational Rehabilitation Act.

Fogarty was also the original sponsor of the legislation providing for the National Foundation on Arts and Humanities and was instrumental in the enactment of the Manpower Act of 1965, the Economic Opportunity Amendments of 1965, as well as numerous other acts to improve health services for Americans.

John Fogarty was awarded distinguished service citations by many national health organizations, veterans groups, educational associations and business chambers. He was appointed by the President of the United States as Congressional Advisor to the U.S. Delegation to the World Health Assembly on seven different occasions, and was honored by the Italian Government by a decree from the President conferring the title "Commedatore al Merito della Repubblica Italiana."

Four health and educational facilities have been dedicated in Mr. Fogarty's name in the State of Rhode Island – The John E. Fogarty Occupational Training Center for the Mentally Retarded – the John E. Fogarty Medical and Rehabilitation Unit at the Joseph H. Ladd School for the Mentally Retarded – the John E. Fogarty Health Science Building at the University of Rhode Island Colleges of Pharmacy and Nursing – and the John E. Fogarty School in Foster, Rhode Island. His legislative leadership and humanitarianism earned him the title "Mr. Public Health."

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of personal and constituent correspondence, photographs, public documents and memorabilia of John E. Fogarty (1913-1967), a Rhode Islander with national influence on the role of government in health and education. The 500,000 pieces pertain to legislation, Rhode Island affairs, constituent requests and, most significantly, various aspects of the health field.

Correspondents include most of the major political figures prominent in national affairs during his service in the U.S. House of Representatives. As Chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare, he was involved with virtually all important federal health legislation from 1949 to 1966.

Arrangement

The collection was divided into eight major categories (series) representing original staff classifications. Because the same classifications and topic heading were often used year after year, there was much duplication of folders on the topics or individuals. These identical subject and individual folders were consolidated and then reordered, usually alphabetically, in their respective categories.

The arrangement of the Departmental, General and Legislation Correspondence, Position Files, Special Files, and Subject Files are primary examples of this procedure. For the Fogarty Legislation and Speeches series, little reorganization was required. The major challenge of the categories was one of selection, due to the preponderance of health subjects.

Series descriptions:

Departmental Files - contains correspondence Fogarty had with various governmental agencies. Arranged according to the alphabetical listing found in the Congressional Directory. Departments that underwent reorganization and renaming have been listed with their counterparts. (War Department folders, for example, are integrated with Defense Department files.)

General Correspondence - contains correspondence not classifiable under existing file categories. Arranged alphabetically, subjects discussed vary from personal letters sent to the Congressman to routine office correspondence.

Fogarty Legislation - provides a listing of legislative proposals by Fogarty. The series is arranged into seventeen subseries according to Congressional Session.

Legislation Correspondence - contains constituent correspondence on legislation before the various Congresses on which Congressman Fogarty served. The series is arranged into thirteen subseries according to Congressional Session.

Position Files - contains restricted constituent correspondence relating to various situations in which Fogarty's aid was requested.

Special Files - contains subjects Fogarty considered to be of immediate importance during his Congressional career. As a result of this immediacy his staff created a set of "Special" files. The series is arranged into two subseries.

Speeches - contains speeches and public statements made by Fogarty during the course of his twenty-six years as a Congressman from Rhode Island.

Subject Files -

In addition to the inventory, an index of approximately ten thousand cards has been prepared to facilitate scholarly research in the collection. This index provides not only a subject guide, but also a detailed listing of the Congressman's major correspondence. Each correspondent's communication was summarized and received an appropriate symbol to facilitate its retrieval. Particular emphasis was placed upon correspondence pertaining to health subjects.

Scope and Content Note

This series contains subjects Fogarty considered to be of immediate importance during his Congressional career. As a result of this immediacy his staff created a set of "Special" files. These special files deal with topics or individuals on the National, State, or local level.

Several special files refer to specific Federal programs and their operation. Among them are public works and the Peace Corps, while others relate to Rhode Island agencies for Federal programs, such as Progress for Providence, Neighborhood Youth Corps, and Housing and Urban Development. Fogarty's relationship with Rhode Island's cities and towns, educational institutions, and state agencies are chronicled by this series under the appropriate topic headings.

Arrangement

This series is divided into two sections determined primarily by the significant break in Fogarty's career - his appointment to the House Appropriations Committee. The first section encompasses roughly the years 1940-1949 with topics arranged alphabetically. The second section covers the years 1950-1967 and is arranged in the same manner.

Section One (Boxes 1-16) pertains primarily to individuals and companies seeking Fogarty's aid and to Rhode Island topics, with a small amount relating to National issues. Files pertaining to individual constituents have been grouped together and are listed as "Private."

Section Two (Boxes 17-92) contains the more important "Specials" of Fogarty's career. They refer to health fields, Rhode Island politics and various national programs. Material on politics and Rhode Island political personalities are contained in folders such as Fogarty for Senator, Democratic State Committee, etc. Also included are files containing correspondence with the Presidents and their cabinet members.

Because there are over a thousand topic headings in this series, detailed description of each is prohibitive. Therefore, a general description of major areas is provided along with a listing of the original folder headings used by Fogarty's staff. (Some of the headings have been expanded from the original for the sake of clarity.)
