THE FRIAR'S CELL

It was 1936. Franklin Roosevelt had just been elected to a second term defeating Alred M. Landon and winning all but Landon's home state of Kansas. The biggest crowd in the history of collegiate rivalries saw Navy defeat Army at Soldiers' Field. Arrow Shirts began at $2. 50 and Oldsmobiles at an exorbitant $785.

In the world of entertainment, Mae West was writing her own scripts and earning a pittance of $1, 500 per week. Galli-Curci made an unsuccessful attempt at a return to her singing career. Deanna Durbin was the darling of the nation. And right around the corner from Columbia University lived the Sycamore family with assorted friends.

For those of you who remember those times, we hope we have captured some of their charm and simplicity. For the younger members of the audience, we hope that we have recaptured a slice of a world that was. We shall not see its like again.

GOOD LUCK WITH THE SHOW!
