ANNOUNCING TDF'S SECOND ANNUAL

CREATIVE WRITERS FESTIVAL

FRIDAY 1 MAY AT 7:00 PM

SMITH CENTER FOR THE ARTS
GREEN ROOM, LOWER LEVEL

STUDENT WRITTEN, DIRECTED AND ACTED
CURATED BY DAVE RABINOW

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE DEPARTMENT OF THEATRE, DANCE & FILM
FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: 401.865.2084 OR DRABINOW@PROVIDENCE.EDU

This work you will see this evening is the result of several challenges. The first was issued to student writers (poets, playwrights, authors): please submit work that you would like to see performed in some fashion, and be prepared (if selected) to work collaboratively within a rehearsal process. The second challenge was issued to our student directors: examine your piece, and find a creative way to stage it in or around the Smith Center. And, by the way, you can't use either of our two dedicated theater spaces. The third challenge was to our student actors: commit to and personalize work that is new and fluid, and push yourself to listen to new voices. I remain humbled by the fervor, grace, and good humor with which our students (many of whom are wearing multiple hats within the Festival) accepted and rose to these challenges. This evening is the result of their intensely collaborative and supportive work; I hope you enjoy it as much as I enjoyed working alongside them.

Dave Rabinow, Curator for the Creative Writers Festival

Special Thanks To...

John Garrity (who muscled this festival into existence last year), Jimmy Calitri (who continues to flex on our behalf), and everyone within the TDF Department for their support and flexibility, and to the students who took ownership of the festival.

Particular thanks to all the writers who submitted their work; keep putting yourself and your ideas out into the world.
