Mr. Raymond Thibeault
Interviewed by Cowl

Mr. Raymond Thibeault, Placement Director at Providence College, is a native of Providence and a graduate of La Salle Academy. He attended the University of Dayton and holds a Master's Degree in Education from Rhode Island College.

Mr. Thibeault retired from the Army in June of 1965 as a Lieutenant Colonel. His last military assignment was as an assistant professor of military science with the Providence College ROTC. After this, he taught at Nathanael Greene College, is a native of Providence, and a graduate of Rhode Island College.

When WDOM received a lite transmitter capable of transmitting throughout the building. Complex to install, difficult to maintain, the only advantage to such a system is that an FCC license is not required.

When the station's five-room complex in Albertus Magnus School, WDOM required relocation. Moved into Alumni Hall, sporadic operations plagued the station in its early years. By 1960, Friad radio was known as WDOM.

Gerald P. Feeley, a Junior English Education major, will be the editor of Providence College's student newspaper, The Cowl, for the 1967-68 academic year. The appointment was made by the Cowl's editorial executive board.

The board in making their announcement of Feeley's appointment stated that "It is the feeling of the executive board that Gerry Feeley will be an excellent editor. We feel that under Mr. Feeley the Cowl will have great strength and depth. He has shown exceptional ability in his handling of the Business Manager's position, which we feel will contribute substantially to the excellence of the paper."

Gerry, a resident of Warwick, R.I., joined the Cowl's staff as a sophomore and by second semester was named Assistant Business Manager. This last year he has served as Business Manager and succeeded in contracting a record number of advertisements for the paper.

Gerry, commenting on his new position and its role on the campus stated, "I believe that the student newspaper should serve as an effective means of communication between the students and the administration and that it should attempt to lend a sense of unity to the student body."

Asst. Business Manager. This position requires a heightened awareness of the student body's needs and concerns. In my position as Placement Director, Mr. Thibeault: For only a few years, although in truth, it seems far more than that, since I arrived in Providence, I've grown with the college and many alumni, who are my friends and acquaintances, were fellow classmates at La Salle Academy. Factually, I was assigned from Vietnam to Providence College in the fall of 1962 as an assistant professor of military science and continued in that capacity until my retirement in June, 1965.

In June, 1966, I was granted a leave of absence to pursue further graduate work at Boston University. I actually began work as of the end of July, 1966.

Cowl: What related background do you have? Mr. Thibeault: To have entered the labor market in the midst of the "Great Depression" was a sobering and educational experience. Fortunately, I evolved into what might have been a successful career in the sales field, had it not been for the outbreak of World War II and my call-up as a private in the U. S. Army. The experience of that war forced me to re-examine my purpose in life and as a result to determine upon two careers: one of twenty-plus years in the service and a subsequent one in the field of education, for both of these fields provided challenging opportunities of being of service to my fellow man. To that latter end, the University of Dayton awarded me a B.S. in education in 1961, and Rhode Island College a M.Ed. in guidance and counselling in 1965.

Cowl: To what extent has your military career aided you in your position as Placement Director? Mr. Thibeault: The experience and knowledge gained during my military career was as valuable, perhaps even more so, than the formal courses of instruction, at least insofar as concerns a heightened awareness of one's identity plus a developed insight into the strength and fragility of our humanity — in particular, of young men who have yet to discover their role in life. For additional information on the campus, see "The Cowl".
12 Point Plea

These past two weeks have seen the presentation of a major policy statement, backed by the unanimous consent of the proposing body (the Student Congress), which is intended to deal specifically with the issues which are, and have continuously been plaguing the student - administration relationship here at PC.

Indeed, this lack of decisive action by the administration which has prompted the Congress to propose the recommendations below is hoped to revive some of the issues which have been, for one reason or another, "shelved" or "committeed" to death.

If the proposal does little more than this, it is still to be commended.

Casting aside for the moment all of the niceties which must, of necessity, accompany any such formal proposal by a student organization, the resolution can be viewed as an exercise in futility; a collective balking together at all previously defeated (or ignored) student proposals to the administration.

If studied carefully, the proposals present a vivid picture of just how little we've achieved, particularly during the past few months of a supposedly "progressive" administration.

Our newly announced "cut-system" for instance, affords the student little in the way of objective mediation (barring appeal to the Dean, in which case hostility is almost assured from the professor involved), and even less in the line of any proposals of responsibility.

The Night Crippler!!

A virulent attack of some unknown form of intestinal disturbance wracked havoc through six dormitories last Wednesday evening here on campus. Reports indicate that, contrary to statistics alleged in the public press, at least two hundred students were seriously affected by the night crippler. College medical authorities, aware of the results of an investigation, are still silent concerning the nature and cause of the illness. There are suggestions from some quarters, however, that any further public discussion of the incident should be curtailed and that the findings of the medical college would be better left unpublished.

Now there is more reason to believe that the college's Student Health Service will be responsible enough to release the findings to the student body for the prevention of a possible recurrence of this illness on campus with even more serious effects is assuredly worth the difficulty.

There was one consoling factor in this confused situation and it was the singularly effective way in which the "epidemic" was handled by the Student Health personnel. The nurse was on duty long into the morning aided by the infirmary and doctors who responded to the call. A number of prefects, students and members of the faculty were on the spot. Thus the incident was a rather painful evening for over two hundred students; and the concern of all people involved at least provided some minimal comfort.

A Second Chance

By now the history of the entire "poll movement" at Providence is fairly well known. It remains to be seen, however, whether student antagonism expressed against the student questionnaire can be channeled constructively.

On Thursday, February 16, the Student Congress approved a proposal to have the Student Health Office in Alumni Hall open to both the entire student body and to the faculty as well. It is hoped that all members of the academic community will use this facility to express themselves in what is hoped to be a definitive and clear statement of opinion on matters of student concern.

The Cowl has often expressed criticism of the student body for its lack of interest in the affairs of the college; and the newspaper has been chastised in its turn for not recognizing student involvement in the recent poll controversy. Sophomore Albert Pepka and a group of his classmates did succeed in collecting the very respectable total of some 1,400 signatures in protest over the original questionnaire; but again, this was the main effort of only some students and seniors being treated on the personnel list. The Congress is seriously considering the possibility of participating in a federally sponsored program. Such a program would tie in with the College's "tries harder," or in fact, ... that it even tries at all. A visit to the bookstore frequently reveals a lack of awareness on the part of many of us that they have row upon row (literally) of texts placed behind, and on top of a previous row, our bookstore devotes much of its space to the displaying of some indispensable necessary objects as baby booties, toilet articles, and baby bitters. While it is admirable that there are those who have such concern for every facet of our existence, it would seem that many of our problems in this respect would be resolved by a more careful avoidance of this type of "garbage," for it is little more than this to an administrative official.

In this latter situation at least, there is absolutely no reason why a student committee should not be formed to investigate, together with the administration, the deplorable situation which now exists.

In all other points of the Congress' proposal, it is submitted that at least some interest be voiced, and concern shown over any acceptance or rejection by the administration.

To be frank ... if we don't, they won't!

Incidentally, considering Columbus' less, hackless, tugless, gougeless, scratchless, matchless, we Edge or Injector style and are made only by the makers that is! And if you haven't tried Personna's, poor devil, Rico it would be well for me to supply a bit of historical which means "Your llama is on my foot." which means "Good morning," "Buenos dias" which means "Thank you," and "Que sera sera" which means "Your llama is on my foot." In order to help you enjoy the fabled land of Puerto Rico it would be well for us to supply a bit of historical background. (It would also be well for me to say a few words about Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades because the makers of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades pay me to write this column and they are inclined to ask if I omit to mention their product. Of course, they don't stay gloomy long, for they are kindly, cheery men fond of Morris dancing, spelling bees, and temperance punch—fine, upright types, as true and gleaming and durable as the blades they make. And if you've tried Personna's, you know how true and practical and delicate that is! And if you haven't tried Personna's, poor devil, you'll soon know that the same is true and practical and delicate that is, and these blades make way. Much of the intern's day was audited. They were invited and encouraged to attend sessions of Care of the Horse, to watch the workings of committees and sub-committees. The present bearing on foreign relations, including a debate between former ambassadors to Japan Reichsauer and former ambassador to Russia Keenan, was among their agenda. The two were also privileged to attend a session of the Labor and Welfare Committee and heard Senator Rockefeller testify before the Intergovernmental Relations Committee. When not attending committee sessions the interns were busy in the affairs of Senator Pell's office, located in the old Senate Office Building. But I digress. Back to the history of Puerto Rico. The island was discovered by that popular discoverer Christopher Columbus. Incidentally, considering the Spanish population's popularity, it's odd we know so little about him. What do we really know? Only this: He was born in Genoa on August 25, 1451, the son of Ralph T. Columbus, a knee-cymbal vendor, and Eleanor (Galliard) Columbus. He was an only child except for his five brothers and eight sisters. From early childhood he was an avid reader and spent all his waking hours immersed in a book. Unfortunately, there was only one book in Genoa at the time—Care of the Horse by Aristotle—and after 18 years of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus grew restless. When rumor reached him there was another book in Madrid, he ran off he ran as fast as his little fat legs would carry him. Disappointment, alas, awaited him there. The only book in Madrid was Ausser die Cahabos, which proved to be nothing more than a Spanish translation of Care of the Horse. Then one day Columbus heard from a traveller that there were millions of books in India, and he was instantly a blaze to set sail. Off he ran on his little fat legs to third resort of Padricant and Isabella (Columbus, though more than six feet tall, was plagued with little fat legs all his life) and, as we all know, he persuaded the Spaniards to fund the Floyopy, the Moppy, and the Cotton Tail, and the rest is history!

Well air, now you know all about the origins of Puerto Rico. You're not thinking of leaving it! Stroll the beaches, swim the coves, breathe the fragrance of hibiscus and citrus, dip your toes in the tropical reefs of the Mona Passage, let the friendly Puerto Ricans be delighted to show you their customs, teach you their language. Why, I'll wager you'll still know "Hasta la vista" which means "See you later." "Per favor" which means "Here's a tip so easy to understand," "Como le ha salutado" which means "Your llama has eaten my passport." Cracios from the mothers of Personna for giving our blades such a cordial reception, and, of course, how about trying another of our luxury sharing products — Barma Shave, regular or menthol?

Political Science: Pell Internship

The political science department of Providence College has initiated an internship program with the Foreign Service Office of R. I. Senator Claiborne Pell.

Third-year students majoring in political science and maintaining an index of 3.0 or better in their major are eligible for the one-week program.

Two students have already taken part in the program. They are juniors James Bernier and Richard Lefebvre. The students were assigned to the week of January 30.

Both reported that the work was not so much a part of the program as it was participating and experiencing various aspects of the operations of our federal government.

They expressed a keen interest in the practical application of their classroom knowledge. They were impressed by the "great amount of informality" and "freedom from red tape" in our federal offices.

Much of the intern's day was audited. They were invited and encouraged to attend sessions of Care of the Horse, to watch the workings of committees and sub-committees. INTERVIEWS for:

Sales and Sales Management Training Program

This Program is designed to develop young college graduates for management in life insurance sales and management. It provides an initial training period of 3 months (including 2 weeks at a Home Office School) before moving into full sales work.

Those trainees who are interested in and who are found qualified for management responsibility will be assured of ample opportunity to move on to such work in either our field offices or in the Home Office after an initial period in sales.

Aggressive expansion plans provide unusual opportunities for those accepted.

Arrange with the placement office for an interview:

This is the best thing that has happened to Providence College since the publication of the library plans.

Well, that was one student's response to the concert of the Bach Festival Chamber Orches tra and Singers. Dr. Louis Pich terrs lead these fine ensembles in a superlative concert before a large and appreciative audience in Harkins Hall auditorium this past Monday evening.

The program was a very formidable and interesting one, but equally important—it was well executed, indeed. In works ranging from Vivaldi through Mozart and Bach to a contemporary, Persichetti, musician of the highest order was always present. The knowledge and talents of each musician were called upon and in each we heard a superb display of all in solo, accompaniment and ensemble form.

Especially pleasing was Barbara Barstow's violin solo in the F. E. major "La Primavera" from Le Quattro Stagioni of Antonio Vivaldi. Her rich, resonant tone and flawless technique made the execution of this be members of what is called the Ivy League. There are many more ideas which with the work and cooperation of the soon to be formed Placement Committee will be placed to the best next year.

Cowl: How large is your staff? What positions are these?

Mr. Thibeault: Our staff consists of myself, Miss Maria Togneri, secretary, plus the students who work a total of approximately nine hours per week.

Cowl: When should students begin to use these services to secure post graduation jobs?

Mr. Thibeault: Assuming a student has his academic, personal, and financial problems in hand, he may well initiate research into the several career fields opened to him. Thus, at any time is the best time. Some suggest that the second semester of the sophomore year is a logical point of departure. There is no one rule. However, for seniors the time is running short, as there are but thirty-six more recruiting on-campus days remaining. For them, the time is now.

Cowl: What does this office do to get students part-time or summer jobs?

Mr. Thibeault: This office does not represent students to the recruiter and help the student in any way we can.

Cowl: What do Providence College students using the services?

Mr. Thibeault: Yes indeed. Among these are undergraduates, seniors, graduate students, and the number of alumni who have heard of the professional services available to them. Unfortunately, only some 40% of the class of '67 have registered. Thirty percent is considered the norm at most similar institutions, yet this fact evokes a mixed reaction. On the one hand, this office is hard pressed to help all of the undergraduates, yet in terms of their self-interest we are actively trying to find outlets for the remaining 60% to face up to reality. Now is the time to plan and to act. Let us not allow alumni who fail to look ahead and to give serious thought to the selection of their career, will bear out this

Finally, as of January 31, 1967, 169 men have had one or more scheduled interviews, one requiring as many as six sessions.

Cowl: What is the meaning of fellowship, assistantship, etc., as it pertains to graduate study and does your office have anything to do with students getting these?

Mr. Thibeault: Rather than to attempt to define these terms, let me suggest that the same term may have a different meaning at other institutions.

After skiing, you'll enjoy the sweeping view and good food at the "Afterthought" in the Waterville Inn. It's free hand in formulating the method of their study. Any recommendations that the Committee might make to the Admin­istration "will be respected" ac­cording to Father Collins. The Committee has drawn up a questionnaire to be sent to all Alumni since the Class of 1961. This group, over 7,000 in number, comprises all those graduates of F.C. who have had a full series of courses in theology.

The Theology Department was instituted in 1947. Prior to that time only basic courses in re­ligion were offered. Until the middle 1950's, the Department required 24 hours and the only concentration was the Summa Theologica.

Under study at present are means by which the student body can learn their opinions about the present state of the Theology Department and the desirability of elective courses, and to gather suggestions for the improvement of the Depart­ment.

Letters have been sent to a number of theologians, both lay and clerical, from a number of institutions, Catholic and non­Catholic. Among those are Dr. Michael Novak from Stanford University, Dr. Ernest Wright of Harvard Di­vinity School, Professor David F. Friedman of the University of Rhode Island, and Professor Wendell Dietrich of Brown Uni­versity. At present, all that has been requested of these men to date is their expression of will­ingness to assist the Committee in its study. It is hoped that some of the theologians contacted will eventual­ly be able to meet with the Committee here on the campus to discuss openly their personal ideas as to what the Department might best be presented and what the object of a theology curriculum ought to be.

Father Collins reports that the Committee "will off the ground level in a serious effort to collect data." "We are go­ing to be led by the evidence," he said further. "We are not trying to justify anything, but we are seeking trends of opin­ion."

Among long range plans is an investigation of the feasibility of introducing a "major" in theology. Father Collins feels that the College has the poten­tial for a very fine theology department and that current trends in the Church as a whole further justify such an attempt. Such a possibility is presently being studied at Holy Cross in Worcester.

At present Providence Col­lege requires 18 hours of theo­logical study. This is high in comparison with the number of required hours at many Catholic institutions. The lowest commonly required number of hours is 12; but the average is 15.

Whether the number of hours required here will be changed in the immediate future is doubtful. Also in question is the desirability of elective courses, and to gather suggestions for the improvement of the Depart­ment.

Tickets may be purchased in the cafeteria from February 19 to $2.00 per couple or at the door for $2.50. The dance will be limited to 100 couples.

The Dillon Club will sponsor a recreational tutorial program to complement their newly re­ceived national award for a rock 'n' roll contest held recently at the Albee Theater in Providence.

Mr. Shea also issued the fol­lowing statement concerning the Heart Fund on Heart Sunday. "At present Providence Col­lege has a number of invita­tional drill meets this year during the months of March and April. The team, consisting of 18 PERSHING RIFLE officers and cadets, will represent Providence College in the meets at their school's official honor guard. The first of these meets will be the first meet for the team and will be held March 11. Tickets for this event will be the John J. Pershing meet on March 25, the Boston Bow drill meet April 7, and the Brooklyn Poly Technical Insti­tute meet April 14.

The team will conclude the year by hosting the Regimental Drill Meet to be held at the Cranston Street Armory in Providence on April 26th.

The Drill Team is command­ed by Cadet Maj. John P. Car­ney. Together with Maj. Car­ney, 2/Lt. Paul Benevelli and W/O Thomas Farley determine the routines to be used in the meets.

The routines last from 8:12 minutes and demonstrate regu­lar drill and trick drill. The officers and cadets who com­pose the team practice two eve­nings a week along with addi­tional preparation before every meet.

The faculty advisor to the team is Maj. Paul Fitzpatrick, Inf.

Last year the Drill Team re­ceived four trophies. The best performances were at St. Peter's (invitational), which was 1st, the team was 4th of 22, and at the AJP reg­ional, where the team placed 2nd of all the drill team companies in the 12th Regiment.

The new WDOM has its inception in the fall of 1964. Two undergraduate physics majors, Adrien Laboissionniere and Michael Mendillo, started a renaissance of the inactive radio station, and they figured that a good transmitter was the only problem preventing the station from effective broadcasting. Father Murtaugh acquired a transmitter in a few short weeks.

With the renewed possibility of an educational FM license, the financial backing became available. Mr. Laboissionniere assumed charge of engineering, and Mr. Mendillo labored to acquire a construction permit from the FCC. They both worked tirelessly during the summer laying the groundwork, and on June 18, 1965, the application for license was completed and submitted.

In September, 1965, WDOM was completely fitted out in new equipment and located in the modern studios in Alumni Hall. Permission to conduct programming tests was granted on March 1, 1966, the application for license was completed and submitted.

In September, 1966, WDOM-FM has developed a programming format designed to appeal to a large range of tastes. "Light and Easy" highlights the afternoon and the late night hours, and educational programming fills the early evening. Feature programming includes folk, jazz, classical, and "live wire," a discussion show which examines timely issues both off and on the campus.

On February 27, the new WDOM-AM will inaugurate separate broadcasting to the dorms via the closed-circuit transmitter. The format of contemporary music is designed to offer the on-campus listener a choice between the widely-varied style of FM, and the upbeat sound of AM.

With WDOM-FM completing its first full year of operation, and an ambitious AM staff embarking on independent programming to the dorms, the future for WDOM as a whole is very promising. With sufficient support from both students and administration, WDOM hopes to grow and assume even greater stature as the voice of the college.

Fr. Lennon Speaks on Clergy . . .

any event by neglecting the due weight to the arguments of those who honestly fear that too much clerical outspokenness of controversial temporal issues will overwhelm the church itself, and will harm the mission of the church, which is the salvation of souls. I am not suggesting, of course, that this fear of harming the apostolate is the only reason being advanced by those who are in favor of placing more or less stringent restrictions on clerical freedom in the temporal order. It is, however, one of the reasons, and it seems to me that it ought to be taken seriously. To dismiss it out of hand as a rationalization, or as a form of double talk, would be superficial, not to say ridiculous.

The priest, rabbi and minister have prestige, respect and authority in the community by reason of the very office they hold. He who assumes this office even temporarily has prestige, respect and authority in the reason of the very office they have obtained. Personally, I have never found the roman collar to be an obstacle to me in my work as an educator. Indeed, I have undoubtedly received a hearing on occasion when my remarks were superfluous and that, therefore, a clergyman speaks out on public issues he should be heard himself from his official position as a clergyman and not as a private individual, and that his remarks deserve a hearing only to the extent that he is talking about himself.

In this modern day when people are increasingly concerned with the prestige of the speaker rather than with the truth of what he says, it is difficult for us to examine well the credentials of all those who speak out on public issues, whether they be politicians, generals, authors, or experts in any field. As Lengo Thomas Aquinas warned students against cloaks that are not appropriate in the midst of divine infallibility. Statements or arguments should be weighed on their own merits, never on the merest of the persons who utter them. This objection has special pertinence today when respect for the expert is beginning to be translated into a blind trust in whatever he says, even about matters outside of the field of his special interest. This is the reason why, whether he is a politician, a general, an author or an expert in any field, we should listen to him only if he can prove himself to be an expert in the intracacies of Homoloussian doctrine, or the collar to be an expert in the Vatican II discussions. Jacques Barzun remarks somewhere that when Eisenhower and his friends published his non-scientific essays, his intellectual inadequacy, they helped to lesson the glory that was given to him by reason of his great scientific ac

Dear Editor:

In my poor efforts to improve a continuing dialogue at Providence College, I would like to focus on some of the matters discussed in today's issue of The Cowl.

I was very pleased to see the Council on Religion: If you will refer to your copy of the Cowl will you note that he said, "I challenge this faculty and administration to be more active in forming a council on religion." I am happy to say that this Council has been a student affair with the Chaplain as the only ex-officio member, with the students deciding who should attend and which faculty members should attend. As such, this is a unique and exciting development.

I must say that I am a bit disappointed in the view that the faculty or administration would assume the initiative in forming a council on religion. There are twenty of whom I know of the faculty invited so far by the administration which foots the bill. There is no assurance that any strict confidence will be kept. There is a feeling that it could best do its job if it were to spend the majority of its time on religion. Since the Council is not considering the possibility of a theology curriculum at the college. What is the role that the faculty or administration will play in this project?

There will be discussion in two impor- tant areas. The first is the one in which you are working. How are we progressing with the curriculum? The second is the one in which you are working. How are we progressing with the curriculum? The second is the one in which you are working. How are we progressing with the curriculum? The second is the one in which you are working. How are we progressing with the curriculum?

I am impressed with his sincerity, his ability to express himself clearly, and his wit. I am interested in hearing more from him on this subject.

Respectfully yours,

Henry David Pinkley

Special Forces Train Students

The Special Forces Group is one of the more select of the ROTC activities at P.C. Even though a cadet may join anytime after his first semester, only 40 of the approximately 700 men belong to the Special Forces Group.

The group is made up of cadets who are interested in taking part in practical exercises and field training.

Classes in "unconventional warfare," weapons, first aid, communications, and specialized tactics are conducted by senior officers and members of Co. "D" 169th Special Forces Group (Airborne) from Pawtucket. Each month the group conducts an all-day or overnight field maneuver.

Last Thursday the group was instructed in the use of Browning and M-60 machine guns, Thompson sub-machine gun, .45 pistol, M-1 carbine, and walkie-talkie in preparation for last week-end's field exercise in Arcadia State Forest.

The P.C. Special Forces Group started the year with a week-long training camp at Ft. Varnum, R. I. which was supported by Regular Army personnel from Ft. Devens, Mass.

Subjects covered in the classes of the first semester include patrolling, first aid, communications, and demolition.

Field exercises were conducted in the areas of ambush, counter-ambush, reconnaissance patrol and raid patrol.

One typical member of the Special Forces Group says that he hopes to be a career officer and feels that the group gives him an opportunity to put into practice the theories which he is learning in the classroom. He says that he gets a lot more out of ROTC than the average cadet.

Continued expansion of our military and commercial business provides openings for virtually every technical talent.

As you contemplate one of the most important decisions of your life, we suggest you consider career opportunities at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft. Like most everyone else, we offer all of the usual "fringe" benefits, including our Corporation-financed Graduate Education Program. But, far more important to you and your future, is the wide-open opportunity for professional growth with a company that enjoys an enviable record of stability in the dynamic atmosphere of aerospace technology.

And make no mistake about it...you'll get a solid feeling of satisfaction from your contribution to our nation's economic growth and to its national defense as well.

Your degree can be a B.S., M.S. or Ph.D. in: MECHANICAL, AERONAUTICAL, CHEMICAL, CIVIL (structures oriented), ELECTRICAL, MARINE, and METALLURGICAL ENGINEERING • ENGINEERING MECHANICS, APPLIED MATHEMATICS, CERAMICS, PHYSICS and ENGINEERING PHYSICS.

For further information concerning a career with Pratt & Whitney Aircraft, consult your college placement officer—or write Mr. William L. Stoner, Engineering Department, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft, East Hartford, Connecticut 06108.

To Open Season At St. Vincent

The Providence College Glee Club will begin the highlight of its concert season this week end with a tour of schools in the New York-New Jersey area.

The first scheduled concert will be at St. Vincent's College in up-state New York on February 17, after which the club will travel to King's College in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, for the 1967 Intercollegiate Glee Club Festival.

Nine other schools will be represented at the festival: St. Peter's College, Seton Hall University, Holy Cross, Mt. St. Mary's College, St. John Fisher College, Scranton University, King's College, and Immaculate Junior College.

Trophies will be awarded to the best groups at the festival. The competition will be held as part of two concerts to be held Saturday at 8:15 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m., Feb. 18 and 19.

There will be a joint concert featuring the glee clubs of Providence College and Albertus Magnus College at 3 p.m. in Alumni Hall on Sunday, February 26.

Last Sunday the glee club presented a concert for the Veridames of Providence College. Besides performances by the entire group there were solos by Thomas Sullivan, singing "The Shadow of Your Smile" and "If I Loved You," and by Nicholas Ushkevich, playing Rachmaninoff's "Prelude to C# Minor." Refreshments were served for the Veridames after the concert.

There are exactly 50 members in the Glee Club at this time. Officers for this year are William Mogensen, president; Anthony Imbruglio, vice-president; Karl Ellgen, secretary and business manager; Casimir Novak, treasurer; David Camillo and John O'Neill, librarians. The club moderator is Father Cangian, assisted by Father St. George.

Clobber the Eagles!!

With basketball and hockey sharing the spotlight the Friar Indoor Track Team usually goes pretty well unnoticed for the majority of its season. This year’s squad deserves its turn under the lights as it is once again wearing a commendable record in the face of youth and inexperience. The indoor squad’s most successful forte this season has been the two mile relay with the team not far behind. For the opening tap of the much long awaited battle, the Friars ran a 7:51.8 two mile relay to finish one second behind a tough Manhattan squad (7:50.8). Junior Bob Donnelly ran the first half mile in 1:58.8 with Dave Pollard picking up the last half mile in a fine 1:56.4. Pete Brown took the third half mile with a 1:59.3 clocking and John Grace wound it up with a 1:57.3. The squad came right back in Madison Square Garden and ran the relay in 7:48.0. This broke the old mark of 7:52.9 which was set a few years back.

In addition to the Knights of Columbus games in New York and Boston the indoor trackmen have participated in the annual Boston University Invitational Track Meet at Baltimore Feb. 23.

With the ICYA’s coming up this weekend in Allston, Mass., the Friars will move into the one mile in place of the graduated Riorand while Bob Cooke, a sophomore, will run the two mile. Pete Brown and John Grace will take up either the mile or the one thousand yard category. This meet, by the way, could close out the record books on another fabulous indoor track season, and how many of the Friars qualify for the ICYA’s to be held during the second week in March at Detroit.

Not to be overlooked is the mile relay which consists of Steve Hernandez, Kevin Malone, Ken Fazekas and Joe Adamec. In the Federation Games last week they set a new school record for the mile relay in 4:08.5.

The overall record of the team has been great in both the one and two mile relays. In the former, the Friar harriers have been consistently in third in each of the five outings thus far while the two mile team has established a lead in all their games thus far. Looking at the opposition faced thus far and that coming in the I.C.Y.A.’s, Coach Hanlon feels that in the New England area there are a number of schools which can give the Friars a tough time, notably those in the New York area which include Villanova, George-town, Manhattan and Fordham.

Frosh Lose Too

The Providence College hockey team suffered their eleventh loss of the season, tenth in suc­cessive games, when the Merrimack College sextet by a 9:1 score at Frost Arena in Lawrence, Mass. On Sunday afternoon the Friars found themselves behind at the second five mark when Dave Pollard took a center­ing pass and slapped the rubber disc past Trude from 15 feet outside the cage. The Merrimack Warriors never re­linquished this lead and pro­ceeded to put three more pucks in the net before the period came to a close. The second period was fairly evenly played with the only goal being scored by Merrimack’s wing Don Collins. The Friars had numerous opportu­nities to put the tying goal in the game but failed to see any of the attacks materialize into a score.

Providence finally broke into the scoring column when Fred Costello converted a pass from Chris Byrne and slapped a hlist­ring 15 foot shot past the War­riors’ goalie. The Friars’ mo­ment of glory was short lived as Merrimack scored four times before the final buzzer sounded.

Again the defense seemed to be the main fault of the Friars. Their inability to clear loose pucks in front of the cage and just simple mental errors have caused numerous scores for the opposition. The Friar offense finally seemed to be coming around with the P.C. sextet out shooting the Warriors 38 to 27.

The Friars had many good chances but outstanding goal­tending by Merrimack’s Su­checki foiled all but one of the Providence attempts.

The Friars face another rug­ged time this week meeting Clarkson, Boston College and Colby. Unless the defense tight­ens up and the offense starts putting the tying goal in the second period the Friars will start a continuation of their losing streak.
