Ring Standardization Bill Causes Some Controversy

Student Congressman James Uber presented at the Student Congress meeting. In presenting his bill, the student referred to a statement which was made by Rev. Francis Duffy, O.P. Administration. Mr. Uber’s bill would require someone over 21 to have the ring. By doing it this way, the class ring would only be sold to those who were already students at the college, and in doing so, said corporation will assume full financial responsibility for class rings. Under the sponsorship of the Daughters of Providence, a new guidance center has been established to meet the needs of students. This center was created through the generosity of a number of alumni who have donated funds to support the counseling center. The center provides professional guidance services to students, helping them to make decisions about their future career paths. The center's goal is to assist students in exploring their interests, strengths, and weaknesses, and to help them develop strategies for achieving their educational and career goals. The counseling center is staffed by specially trained counselors who are dedicated to providing students with the support they need to make informed decisions about their futures. Through individual counseling sessions and group workshops, the center helps students develop the skills and knowledge they need to succeed in their academic and professional pursuits. The center also serves as a resource for students who are considering various career options, providing information about different fields and helping students to explore their interests and talents. In addition, the center offers a range of other services, including academic advisement, career planning, and assistance with job placement. Overall, the counseling center plays a vital role in supporting students as they navigate the challenges of higher education and plan for their future.

Several awards were presented to members of the Military Science Department.

Recently, a Gallup Poll was taken on college campuses. According to the poll, reports of mass student drug use are dramatically higher than actual consumption of marijuana and LSD. The poll figures only apply to those who are currently enrolled. However, this theater is still upon support from the student body, especially in the area of student affairs. In keeping with this general purpose, the extent of the business courses more meaningful, a speakers program entitled, "Meet the Managers," has been initiated at the department. This program will feature talks by twelve leading business managers, each of whom is a former student. The reactions of former graduates to their educational experiences are being compiled. Both of these projects were felt to be very worthwhile by the advisory group.

On Saturday, November 4, Raymond Hall was the site of the Presbyterian Wives sponsored wine-tasting buffet. The faculty members left the confines of the classroom to become "Chevaliers et Demoiselles de la Fraternite Tastevin." The event was inspired by Reverend T. L. Fallon, O.P., a connoisseur of wines, and was carried "Under the direction to Mrs. E. Palumbo, President of the Faculty-Wives organization." For wines of the occasion were supplied by the Vintage Wines Division of Heublein, Incorporated of Hartford, Connecticut, through their local distributor, Costello Brothers. Two representatives, Mr. Josephson of Heublein and Mr. Perry of Costello Brothers, served as visiting lecturers in the art of wine-tasting. Included in their presentation was a discussion of the origins and uses of the various wines.

Those in attendance were asked to taste such wines as Chateau Flanley, Chateau Laour, Mercury, Pouilly-Fuisse, Liebfraumilch and Johannisberger-Riesling. The wine tasters also served hors d'oeuvres, including Blue and Silent cheese which enhance the taste of wines.

The program also included a wine-naming contest. Everyone present was asked to sample a mystery wine and then describe the origin and name of the wine. The three winners, Mr. George DeGeorge, Mrs. Joan Breen and Mr. Tosca Filippelli, were given a bottle of the wine they named.

The faculty members came away from the event with the knowledge of the intricate art of wine-tasting and a tremendously enjoyable evening.

French Club Plan Plays

Richard Marcoux, President of the French Club at Providence College, has announced that Les Foureliers de Scapin, by Moliere, will be presented during the second semester. Plans have been finalized with parts assigned; the production will be presented completely in French. The female roles will be portrayed by students from Rhode Island College. To ensure a successful presentation, they will observe a professional troupe from New York.

This year's French Club officers include: Richard Marcoux, president; Leo Leclerc, vice-president; Howard Koffler, secretary; Thomas Croteau, corresponding secretary; Emile Chevre, recording secretary; and James Errico, program chairman. Mr. Roger Desautels is serving moderator.

Remaining activities for the semester include: In December a play will be put on. "The new French movement of the 21st century. Also in December the annual Christmas party with Pembroke College and Brown University. Dates are to be announced.

Of major importance is the upcoming lecture on Jean-Paul Sartre to be given on November 15 in McDermott Lounge at 7:30 p.m. Refreshments and French pastries will be served during an informal discussion "en suite."

Membership is still open to cultural minded students and to all others interested in gaining a view into the French way of life.
College Radio Station
Hopes to Expand Area

Providence College’s radio station, WDOM, cannot be characterized by a single sound but possesses a unique many faceted format which defies any categorization. “Because of this distinctive mixture of programs,” Tim McBride, program director, said, “I feel at the present time the schedule of WDOM FM rivals that of any FM station in the state.

The programming day at WDOM FM is divided into four segments: a typically FM daytime sound from 2-6 P.M., an educational segment from 6-8 P.M., a music specialty show from 8-10, and a relaxed nighttime presentation of music from 10 to midnight. This format is flexible enough to provide the station with a great degree of versatility.

McBride said that the educational programming of the station is its strongest and most valuable asset, and will continue to improve due to the recent affiliation of the station with the National Educational Radio Network. In future weeks the station will air the Library of Congress Lecture Series, a study of the Russian Revolution, WDOM specials, and various other educational endeavors. The use of discussion-calls-in shows will be continued, touching upon such subjects as college counseling, civil rights, marijuana and politics in 1968.

The Program Director believes that if WDOM is to be an effective force of the college extending into the community, the station must expand its broadcasting area. At the present time, the FM operates on 10 watts, leaking throughout the metropolitan Providence area. The station is now planning to increase to 10,000 watts in several years, enough to cover the entire state.

When its coverage area catches up to the quality of its programming, then WDOM will achieve maturity, a major force of the influence of Providence College upon life in this state.

Attention, ‘68 College Graduates!

New York City’s trainee plan gives you a “clear path” to some of today’s best, most meaningful careers

Modern city government is far different from “the old days.” Now the trained expert and administrator is in high demand, to meet intricate, fast-changing problems. In New York City, these may be on a scale larger than in many entire countries. Newest information, planning systems and management methods are being used more and more intensively.

In few training positions can you take on responsibility in actual work problems and acquire so much direct exposure so fast . . . learn so much about your field . . . meet and work with so many distinguished people. The object of the program is to bring top talent into city government. That’s why it offers you a clear path to rapid advancement, and a solid future, that are hard to equal.

Opportunities with the City of New York. Please send coupon or call 212-566-8700.

IMPORTANT—Please do not delay making your inquiry, so that we will have time to advise you of application filing dates, which may be well in advance of actual hire.

What Counseling Center

The feature article in this week's Cowl concerning the Counseling Center was prompted by the expressed anxiety of members of the student body, somewhat heightened by the recent session of the student council. The counseling center is responsible for assisting the student body and the Center itself. Many of the students who are despairing for help have not taken the initiative to find it and have not visited the Counseling Center or the Placement Office. Those who do take the initiative usually take the help step first and later visit the Placement Office. Indeed it is not likely that an interview with a job recruiter would prove to be beneficial to a student who is not certain of what he wants or is suited for in the first place.

The Counseling Center staff must realize that it is trying to help students who are not informed "where" to go to "what" about guidance. Because it is relatively new on campus the Center must "sell" itself to the students and administration. The lesson of history in this matter, as in many other aspects of the war, are stubbornly ignored. In the political realm, what's good for the goose is not necessarily good for the gander. The United States attempts to impose representative democracy on a nation as undeveloped and politically troubled as South Vietnam, while this political ideology, as evidenced by our own trend toward democratic socialism, cannot realize its full potential in a country as advanced as the United States.

The possibility exists, of course, that with external influence socialism would evolve into communism. Despite this threat, socialism still stands as the best path to follow. Socialism would produce agrarian and industrial technological progress, which in turn would offset communism while an ideology as alien to South Vietnam as democracy would inevitably lead to communism.

Ring Controversy

The bill passed last week by the Student Congress "that the Corporation of Providence College be granted the power to contract the company offering the most attractive bid on Class rings" has been the subject of an outgrowth of resentment among many members of the Junior Class.

There has been the suspicion that this move was a ploy by the Administration to wrest control from the rings negotiations from the classes. It would be futile to speculate the reasons why such a maneuver should be made. The possibility is there to imagine that the Administration would have anything to gain other than headaches should they assume control of the ring dealings.

It is felt that the Administration perhaps has little faith in the students' ability to successfully handle the ring negotiations. The implication being that the Junior Class this year was just lucky that nothing went wrong with the vast myriad of intricacies and technicalities involved prior to delivery of Class rings. If lack of faith be the case, in the future, could not the Administration allow the classes to handle their own rings under some competent guidance? But no. The Administration insists that the negotiations be handled completely and solely by the College or by the class. All or nothing. Why? Can not some compromise be reached whereby interested classes might actually participate in the handling of their own rings?

So where is there any solid reason why the classes should not continue to handle their rings in the superlative tradition of the Class of 1969? No class in the history of the College has more right to be proud of their ring. Their own men handled the contracts. One of their classmen designed the ring in its entirety. And their class treasury was brought out of heavy debt in the bargain.

Socialism Cited As Cure For Vietnam

Tran Van Dinh, a former acting South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, asserted to an audience in Alumni Hall at Pembroke College last Monday night that his country needs to build its own unity on a foundation of socialism.

In regard to the influence of Communist China, Mr. Dinh said that it is impossible to accomplish and irrelevant to Vietnamese interests.

The former ambassador felt that after 30-50 years of tightly planned economy and collectively managed agricultural and industrial techniques would allow for a relaxing of controls and an opportunity for Vietnamese society to become more open.

Mr. Dinh expressed the fact that he is "very much for the Islamic kibbutz system as a starting point. Every communal farming, organization and self-sufficiency is essential to the people of Vietnam, who adopted it as early as the 10th century when they shocked Chinese domination.

The Vietnamese way of life is the traditional community discipline of the village, he said. "It is in the village that most Vietnamese establish their cultural life, their sense of unity and their special demands," Mr. Dinh said.

Furthermore, Mr. Dinh insisted that the only way the United States could bring its brand of democracy to Vietnam is by force, "by colonization."

The United States pacification program there has failed, he said, "because it is being forced upon a foreigner and this means colonization. The United States is intervening where it is not wanted."

On its own and without American interference, he said, Vietnam must submit itself to three basic phases of organization to achieve independence again.

1. Develop a village system, like an Israeli kibbutz.
2. Develop a national organization of city workers to build industries and develop new technologies.
3. Establish a socialist economy in which citizens would receive such services as free health care, transportation and education.

Before this can be done, however, the Vietnamese in the south must be allowed to negotiate by themselves to end the war, he said.

In declaring socialism as the cure for Vietnam, Tran Van Dinh, former acting South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, touched upon one of the basic, yet little discussed issues of the problem in Southeast Asia.

Among the many dubious policies being pursued in the Vietnamese War is that based in the fallacy of Americanization. The lesson of history in this matter, as in many other aspects of the war, are stubbornly ignored. In the political realm, what's good for the goose is not necessarily good for the gander. The United States attempts to impose representative democracy on a nation as undeveloped and politically troubled as South Vietnam, while this political ideology, as evidenced by our own trend toward democratic socialism, cannot realize its full potential in a country as advanced as the United States.

The possibility exists, of course, that with external influence socialism would evolve into communism. Despite this threat, socialism still stands as the best path to follow. Socialism would produce agrarian and industrial technological progress, which in turn would ease off communism while an ideology as alien to South Vietnam as democracy would inevitably lead to communism.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine."
Letters to the Editor

Fr. Reid Again . . .

Editor:

I am grateful to Messrs. Waters, Borges, and Lord for their letter on behalf of P.C.S.F. and in my reply to my letter. I feel now that I wrote in too great haste and without due discrimination. With the clarification of the aims and character of the P.C.S.F., I am certain that I can support the group and am happy to have my doubts dissipated. My own positive views on Vietnam are, in fact, much closer to theirs, as spelled out in these two letters, than it must have seemed from my letter.

May I comment briefly on the other letters? Mr. Torres makes several points, from deep personal anguish, with which I sympathize, but I find his letter conclusive. Mr. Lamers: How, I think, strikes me to the sort of professionalism I would anticipate. I am surprised that one who is apparently a poor historian (this of course is a modesty is touching) would pack so many logical fallacies into three paragraphs; perhaps Mr. Lamers—How as he gotten into religious studies?—identifies non sequi tors with historical facts. Those who disagree with me do not necessarily advocate endless war; what they advocate logically threatens to issue in war without end. I don't believe, by the same token, that Mr. Lamers advocates discount; sans titre, he simply practices it. Tom Bourke talks good sense but ineloquently—and B. Russeil is still with us, for our sins. Mr. McIntyre would rather be monumentally irrelevant than right.

I find that I stand somewhere between Negotiation Now and the Citizens' Committee mentioned in last week's Time. I am, of course, chagrined by the many messages of congratulations I've received from hawks and near-hawks.

Sincerely,
Patrick Reid, O.P.

A Clarification . . .

Editor:

On May 17 of this year, a letter appeared in your newspaper defending the policy of the present Administration on Vietnam. It was signed by 36 members of the faculty and administration, to 30 of whom I sent a lengthy and fairly detailed reply. The bulk of my letter was concerned with responses to statements made by the Administration supporters. The final page, however, consisted of a single, positive proposal. Nothing that has happened in the intervening five months has caused me to modify the judgments that underlie that proposal; indeed, the contrary.

For use at your discretion, therefore, I offer the following paragraphs, which are quoted directly from my letter of last June.

"I propose a first step toward: 1) reducing the level of violence, 2) stabilizing the conflict and insulating its localities, and 3) hopefully, leading to meaningful negotiations through some international forum. That first step consists in an unconditional cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam.

"The various justifications offered for the bombing policy can be reduced to four, three more or less "official," and the last unofficial. Allow me to review these positions and to comment on my merits.

"1) The bombing is necessary to reduce the level of infiltration of men and material from North to South Vietnam. In fact, as Secretary McNamara recently admitted in testimony before the Senate Armed Service Committee, the bombing, while it may make the movement south more difficult, has not succeeded in reducing that movement at all. Indeed, Department of Defense estimates indicate that, through 1960, infiltration progressively increased. In other words, control of this aspect of the war continues to remain in the control of North Vietnam, and is not essentially vulnerable to American air power.

"2) The bombing is ordered toward forcing North Vietnam to negotiate. If such is a purpose of the bombing policy, it has not only proved a patent failure, it has indeed been (and remains) clearly counter-productive. Many observers, most recently and notably Harrison Salisbury, have strongly maintained that the continued bombing has only succeeded in vitalizing North Vietnam to resist. And this is really not surprising in the light of the British experience in World War II.

"3) "The bombing raises the cost of aggression." As mentioned in last week's Time, this is probably true; however, when placed in its proper context, it is also fatuous. North Vietnam may indeed be losing a few truckloads of rice from a handful of electric generating stations, and some extremely unnecessary votes on the United States, on the other hand, has literally hundreds of million-dollar allotments in so-called aid that might probably have ended up in the Yangtze.

"4) Aside from these "official" pronouncements, those "high-ranking but unidentified military leaders" which are frequently quoted as defending the bombing policy, are sustaining the morale of the South Vietnamese government. To sacrifice American and Vietnamese lives in order to produce a warm glow in the heart of a petty dictator like Premier Ky is a position so transparently specious that I need not argue its character. I would only submit that the Government has shown unusual tact in keeping this assertion a secret.

The only addition I would make to these remarks would be in regard to the "elections" of last month. Those elections were a demonstrable fraud, demonstrable primarily in terms of the following uncontestable facts: the votes of the military vote; the elimination from the contest of any who would be candidates in a free and open election; the fraud of over 40 per cent of the civilian population; the fact that fewer than 40 per cent of the civilian population was eligible to vote; the control of Thieu and Ky; the control of transportation. Such facts make the pretended results of election-day fraud practically superfluous: the election was made meaningless long before a single vote was cast.

A Novel Plan . . .

Editor:

There is a plan of action which would radically change the course of world events, but which, I regret to say has not been considered seriously by the United States. I refer to our relations with the new immigrants from the British and German experience. These would provide opportunities, and indeed challenges, worthy of the talents of our planners and those who would be displaced from armaments production. Attempt on All-Male Sanctuary Of Raymond Hall Dining Room

By RICHARD PEARSON

Brown University is extending its parietals, Boston College is about to experiment with parietals on a limited basis, Holy Cross just had a co-ed day, at P.C., a girl can't even get a meal on a Saturday afternoon in Raymond Hall.

We have slowly been realizing just how backward we are since the infamous front page article last January in the Providence Journal. A pathetic little scene here at P.C., however, struck this writer with the particular absurdity of our semi-monasticism.

The scene was Raymond Hall. The time was 5:45 p.m. It was Saturday, October 29, after the Carolon Club boathide and three P.C. fans were hit by a car. It had returned a half hour earlier from the Bristol Medical Center. They had brought with them four P.C. students who after the boathide had been struck by a car. Left, however, were their own resources while their dates were free of all the attention their own resources would have received. A misfortune to the intramural schedule, for the girls, the accident occurred in Raymond Hall. After the accident the girls were invited into dinner. From Emmanuel College, where guests of either sex are welcome, the girls didn't find anything peculiar about the invitation and decided to take the gentleman upon his offer. Entering the dining room, the girls received a somewhat rousing welcome from all but running welcome from all of the fronted with the novel situation, our ticket-puncher replied, "Sorry ladies, but you'll have to wait in the lobby." In all innocence, the girls asked, "Why?" At loss for an answer, our friend, the ticket-puncher replied, "We don't know what to do. We've never had females in here before.

To the best of his knowledge, there was no particular rule against female guests in the dining hall outside of the fact that they didn't have a meal at Raymond Hall.

After being directed to the Raymond Hall Snack Bar, the somewhat surprised and female guests asked their dates and after a good meal in another restaurant, an other happy day ended in the life of a P.C. student.

Where and with whom does the embarrassing situation lie? After he was discovered from the offices of the Rev. John Cunningham, O.P., Director of Student Affairs, Mr. Andrew Del Corso, Assistant Director of Residence Services, and Mr. Donald Conlin, the next step was to write a letter of request to the Dean of Men, and arrangements could be immediately made to accommodate not only male, but also female guests in Raymond Hall.
If your major is listed here, IBM would like to talk with you November 14th

Sign up for an interview at your placement office—even if you're headed for graduate school or military service. Why is IBM interested in so many different people?

The basic reason is growth. Information processing is the fastest growing, fastest changing major industry in the world. IBM products are being used to solve problems in government, business, law, education, medicine, science, the humanities—just about any area you can name. We need people with almost every kind of background to help our customers solve their problems. That's why we'd like to talk with you.

What you can do at IBM

Whatever your major, you can do a lot of good things at IBM. Change the world (maybe). Make money (certainly).

Continue your education (through any of several plans, including a Tuition Refund Program). And have a wide choice of places to work (we have over 300 locations throughout the United States).

What to do next

We'll be on campus to interview for careers in Marketing, Computer Applications, Programming, Research, Design and Development, Manufacturing, and Finance and Administration. If you can't make a campus interview, send an outline of your interests and educational background to J.E. Bull, IBM Corporation, 425 Park Avenue, New York, New York 10022. We're an equal opportunity employer.
Fr. Haas has explained that his office has actively encouraged involvement in these areas (following Title I of the Higher Education Act), provided, of course, that these activities do not interfere with the College's primary goal of higher education. He referred to instances where these activities were carried out in a superficial manner or where total involvement of some professors has resulted in a situation whereby less experienced faculty members or teaching assistants have had to take their places to the detriment of the student.

Title I of the Higher Education Act has, through the encouragement of Federal funds, encouraged many schools to get involved in various social problems. In this way, the skills and organization of educational institutes is contributing in no small measure to the cause of improving the lot of the poor and materially deprived, as well as awakening the public to the existing social ills. Likewise, it is hoped that the students of these colleges will become aware of the acute conditions existing in blighted areas of the cities. To those students who are participating in Providence College's efforts for the city of Providence, it is proving to be both a rewarding and educating experience.
Counseling . . .

(Continued from Page 1) considerably lowered either, while at other colleges it has been reduced an average of 35% through the efforts of Counseling Center, of a hundred P.C. students dropped out. If our Counseling Center could have prevented any of them from doing so it would have aided the college the loss of over thirty thousand dollars in revenue over the years, and increasing the number of drop outs alone would prevent the college the loss of over thirty thousand dollars in revenue over the years, and increasing the number of drop outs alone would have early detected the students who had decided to let the student's dropping out.

Guidance Program at Holy Cross and other colleges are meeting the needs of the students because the results of the tests are given to each freshgins his freshman year. During orientation period a batteries of tests are given to each fresh- man in order to determine academic weaknesses, study habits, problems, potential problems, and basic skills.

The Counseling Center at Holy Cross offers the Cowl, a program extending for five weeks, which in basic college skills. The program at Providence College, which actualY is not a definitive plan, cannot be compared to the program at Holy Cross but must draw ideas from the Cowl. Our program is designed to make our young Counseling Center an ef- cient and useful service unit on the campus.

On the basis of interviews with members of the student faculty and from the observations the Cove offers these sug- gestions for improving the ef- fectiveness of the Counseling Center:

1. Reorganize the present orientation procedure to include testing in order to determine academic deficiencies and potential problems.
2. Reorganize the present system of consultation into regularly scheduled series of consultations.
3. Integrate the Counseling Center and Placement Office into a comprehensive unit.
4. Exclusively instruct each student about the guidance serv- ices at his disposal.

Discussion on Morality

"Love and Sex" was the topic of a panel discussion held Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 7:30 p.m. in room 101, Aquinas Hall. Panel members were Mr. Lacey Corbett, chairman of the Psychology department; Mr. Eugene Donahue of the Biology department and Mr. James Flanagan of the Sociology de- partment. Fr. William Gannon of the Religious Studies department was moderator.

Two other lectures are as yet tentative. As of now, on Nov. 27, a lecture by someone in favor of the war in Southeast Asia, fol- lowing Monday a lecture by someone who is opposed to the war.

Paul Phaneuf, Vice-President of the P.C. Students Union states that "the purpose of this lecture series is to familiarize students with the controversial topics as possible of the war."

All the lectures will be held on the dates specified in the Guild Room of Alumni Hall be- tween the hours of 3:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Let's... (Continued from Page 7) effects of this plan would be felt world-wide. The other white nations (e.g., Canada and Australia) would follow the lead, if only from our encour-aging them to continue to make their adversaries, responding to world opinion and the decline in our own position in the international order. They find plenty to occupy their peoples. In our country, our highways—road rails and shipyards would be used to capacity, and thus, efficiently.

Let us assume we adopt this plan with the right spirit, i.e., that we are not interested in the enemy stricken country which will be used to capacity, and thus, efficiently. Student surveys, are required to be interviewed by a member of the Counseling Center. These interviews and an analysis of background information on file in the counseling office identify what motivated the students to choose the courses. The counselors determine some course of action which might be helpful to the student in college or into a worthwhile pursuit.

In addition to these functions the Counseling Center serves in psychology. Counseling Center offers the Cowl, a program extending for five weeks, which in basic college skills. Political Union—Sponsors

The Political Union has an- nounced a series of lectures on Vietnam to be held over the next four weeks.

The dates these lectures will be held on Monday, Nov. 13, with Mr. Richard Deasy speaking on "The United States and its Political Scene at Home and Abroad: The Vietnam Experience.''

Another lecture to be held on the 17th will feature "The Vietnam Experience." The speaker will be Mr. Robert C. Tannahill, former member of the Peace Corps in Vietnam.
The end of a successful venture is in sight and will be climaxed on the Fairfield University campus this coming Saturday. The Providence College Footbal Club, triumphant in its gigantic undertaking of outfitting, fielding and maintaining a team which will have performed admirably over a six game schedule upon completion of the Fairfield contest whether it is win, lose or draw, has made a name for PC in its brief existence.

Opposing players and coaches have singled out the names of George McMahon, the Robey twins, Mike Egan, Paul Simon, Jim Murray, Dickie Martin and many more as being extremely talented and fierce competitors. These players have delivered the name of Friars out onto the gridiron where their efforts were rewarded with public acclaim. However, there are others in the organization whom I feel should be singled out also for a job well done.

Indisputably the first and foremost to be mentioned here is Club President John Champeau, an untiring worker, an active player, a morale booster, John has gathered the willing workers for Club Football and molded them into a smooth, cohesive outfit. Coordination, anticipation, dedication and a never-say-die attitude have been the traits of these men under the inspired leadership of John Champeau. His graduation will leave a tremendous gap to be filled, but standing in the wings are men who are both capable and willing to do the necessary long hours of hard labor which accompany the position of Club Football president.

Steve Cronon, Joe Montecalvo, Terry Simpson, Neil Michaels and others too numerous to mention have converted time and effort into this venture, and their reward is the current success which the club has been enjoying. The efforts of Father Driscoll, the Administrators and the Kickers have been the factors that have done the majority of these men under the inspired leadership of John Champeau. His graduation will leave a tremendous gap to be filled, but standing in the wings are men who are both capable and willing to do the necessary long hours of hard labor which accompany the position of Club Football president.

The Providence College Rifle team will participate in the Brown Christmas Tournament on December 29 and 30. Other guest teams will be the University of Alabama and the Royal Military College of Canada. The traditional home and home series with Boston College, Merrimack University and Merrimack, and single games against St. Lawrence, Clarkson, West Point, Colgate are some of the highlights of this year's schedule.

The executive board of the Providence College Hockey League has been formulating plans for the forthcoming season. This is the fourth year of operation for the league and it is under the leadership of President Leo MacNamara. Other officers are: Harry MacLellon, vice president; Art McDonald, treasurer; and Bill Tillburg, secretary.

Last season the league consisted of eight teams with six teams from the Providence College and two representing the Dillon Club. The top four teams competed in the playoffs at the conclusion of the regular schedule. It is expected that this same format will again be used, but it will depend on the number of applications received.

Applications are now available from board members. These should be picked up and returned as soon as possible. The teams will be drafted from these applications by each team captain.

Upon completion of the draft, a regular season will be drawn up. League play is slated to commence the week following Thanksgiving.

The first Mariot touchdown was disputed by the Friars as the line judges called it a Friar ball while the backfield judge signaled that the plunge by Quarterback Cronay was good. . . . Game films from the Seton Hall game left quite a bit of doubt in observers minds over the pass interference call on Dickie Martin. . . But as they say, those are the breaks of the game. . . . Phil Robey is the COWL Player of the Week but he was not the only outstanding performer. Other winners included: Bob Niles, Dave Hood, Wally Weeks, Mike Egan, Phil Robey, Brian Maher did, and has since turned to the relaxing pastime of full time coach in the under-producing PCIAA touch football league.

It has been a very successful year in every phase of the football game. The student body has experienced a photo essay which was presented in the November 1st issue for the excellent work they have done and for the cooperation which I have received. Pete Smith is particularly noteworthy as he is responsible for the majority of the pictures supplied to the sports page, and is the photographer who was soley responsible for the excellent photo essay which was presented in the November 1st issue.

To get involved is essential in our modern world of immense competition, and each one of us should in some form or another. There is one last chance for each student to get involved in Club Football for 1967, and this is the Fairlaid game this coming Saturday afternoon. Support the team, enjoy a football game with its spontaneous excitement, but most of all, GET INVOLVED.
Marist Halts Late Rally; Hands Friars Second Lost

The Vikings of Marist College managed to stop an attempted Friar comeback just 20 yards short of the end zone on the final play of the fourth quarter and handed the Friar eleven their second defeat in a row.

For the Friars it was another frustrating loss as they could not recover from the usual fumble on the two point conversion.

The Vikings took the first seven points on the scoreboard as the Marist defense took the ball over on a fourth and goal situation from the four yard line and Jim O’Reilly’s kick was good for the conversion.

The drive began on the Friar 49 yard line following a 12 yard punt return. Bill Dour and Mike Dourdis fullback, carried the ball four times for 28 yards in that march, which was also aided by a 15 yard personal foul penalty.

That was all the scoring in the first half, as both defensive teams refused to yield any ground. The Friar offense was unable to move consistently against the Vikings and fumbles by Wally Weeks and Mike O’Connor staled drives.

The Friars came out in the second half with the best of intentions of evening the score. This was a T formation with scrummer Jack Mordente at the helm. After a set of plays PC was forced out of this due to a head injury to center Phil Hickey. His back up man, Steve McCartney, had an injured hand which hampered the timing needed on the snap from center.

Marist was able to put in another score on the board as they rambled 43 yards in seven plays for six points and a PAT. Again the big men in the drive were fullback Dourdis and left end Andy Herzing.

Early in the fourth quarter Paul McCartney began to click with his blockers and managed to put six points on the board with his arm. Paul moved his charges from the Friar 45 to the TD in four plays as he connected with George McMahon, Dick Martin and Tom Bresnahan. The last aerial to Tom was a beautiful 39 yard pass play George McMahon then faked the kick and McGuire threw to Bresnahan in the end zone for the two point conversion.

The final quarter of play proved to be a typical performance for a team coming from an institution noted for its part in assisting the team. The Friars took a punt on their own 38 and eight plays later swept into the end zone aided again by Dourdis who accounted for 24 yards via the air. Not to be outdone, Dick Martin, the fleet footed Friar halfback, came up with the big play as he has done all year. Dick gathered in the kick off on the 20 yard line and, avoiding the crowd on the right side of the field, picked his way down the left side for a six pointer. The conversion was good and the Friars were jump ing.

Minutes later Tom Bresnan, an exuberant, and some Friar fans went wild.

Coach Lynch kept in Jack Mordente with the split T offense and the Friars began to move, much to the dismay of Marist fans. Martin gathered in a 12 yard punt and later a Mordente aerial intended for Dick was incomplete. However there was a pass interference call on the play, and the Friars were down to the 26 yard line of the Vikings. Dick played to McMahon and Martin netted six yards forward and that was it as two passes fell short of their mark. Marist took over and four plays later time ran out.

New Haven Elms Lead As Season Nears End

The Intramural Football League season was in its second week resulting in conclusion with but two weeks remaining. It is rather apparent by review of the team standings that unless someone can pull off an upset victory over the Elms to the Haven Club, the Elms will have first place sewed up followed by a crop of also-rans.

Actually the surprising and unheralded Blackstone Valley Club is coming up against the Elms for a team coming from an institution noted for its part in assisting the team. The glory however may be reserved for the Elms and the Friar’s will have to be content with second place.

The New Bedford Swampfoxes gave the Elms a fierce battle before losing in the last minute of the first half by a score of 21-12. The New Bedford pass rush problem by throwing short screen passes. Leckman’s 15 yard pass to Tom Green was the only score of the first half.

Neither team revealed much of an attack in the second half due to the brisk weather. The Swampfoxes received a big break late in the game by intercepting a pass deep in New Haven territory. Vis Tracy then threw 10 yards to Bill Dourdis for a 74 lead. New Bedford struggled to protect the lead, but a short Bill Synnott punt gave the Elms one final chance and they rose brilliantly to the occasion for a first place tie in the end zone gave New Haven the last minute victory.

Earlier in the week Western Mass. A and Blackstone Valley took advantage of Met A mistakes to take a victory each. The Met-Blackstone game was a real thriller. Down 15-18, Willy Anderson hooked up with Bill Dourdis to put the Mets out in front with a mere 33 seconds remaining. Bill Fitzgerald then ruined the Met upset bid by running the ensuing kickoff back for a touchdown and a 21-19 win. Then the Mets took it on the chin from Western Mass., being run over by a 24-9 margin.

The New Haven Aemons, a dark horse last year and a good side, lost their record to 4-1 by topping Albertus Magnus, 25-12. Dennis Funaro dented the Albertus secondary throwing primarily to John Robinson and Joe Copola. Albertus, led by the roll out passing of Jay Fallion and the receiving of Greg Stevens, stayed close until the second half.

Pershing Rifles Win PCIAA Run

The Pershing Rifles captured top honors in the Intramural Cross Country meet held last Saturday. The Pershing Rifles, a team dominated the field from start to finish, placing numerous men in the top 20 finishes. Second place went to the Met Club with a combined score of 78, as the Pershing Club was handily with a low score of 51. Individual honors in the meet, which covered a course of 2.5 miles, went to Tim Smith, a sophomore from Norwalk, Connecticut. Smith crossed the line in first. Tim Reardon, a freshman from Poughkeepsie, the place went to Dave Somers, a freshman hailing from Providence. Carmen Castan, a sophomore who also comes from Providence, finished fourth. Bob White, a sophomore from Lynn, Massachusetts, rounded out the top five.

Crusader’s Art-Dulong Sets New Course Record

As Holy Cross Hands Friars Fourth Set Back, 22-34

Last Wednesday afternoon, the Providence College Crusaders of the Marist College football team met with the season to Holy Cross College. The Crusaders handed the Friars their second loss in a row by the score of 22-34.

Art Dulong of Holy Cross was the meet’s individual winner in a new course record of 24:37.8. This year’s course record holder by Bob Crooke by two full minutes. Dulong passed the one minute mark in 1:21 and was never in any trouble the rest of the way. Again the Friars defense was not up to the mark this time moving the early pace, and at the end, with the Crusaders as the top five runners. But once again, as has been characteristic in their last few races, they failed to hold their positions and began to drop off the pace. Except for Bob Crooke who finished second, the rest of the Friar team was methodically chopped down by the Crusader trio of Walsh, Mar lin, and Quinn. By the end of three miles Holy Cross had the race in hand, despite somewhat futilite and belated drive by PC’s Tom Malloy in the closing miles. Leading the way for the Friars, as he has done most of the year, was Bob Crooke in second place. But there was then a big gap as Tom Malloy in sixth place was the next PC runner to cross the line. Rounding out the scoring for Providence were Larry Olsen, Peter Brown, and Marty Robb in 7th, 8th, and 11th places respectively. Other runners for Providence were Larry Olsen, Ray LaBonte, John Grange, Tom Dunn, Bob Haile, and Kevin Minervini.

This was the poorest effort by the Friar runners to date as even their consistent point-getters Olsen Grange, and Robb all had races way below their true capabilities. The only bright spot of the meet was the race run by co-captain Dan Gaven. In his finest showing of the year, Gaven finished third to indicate that he has finally rounded into shape and is ready to contribute in the upcoming championship meets.

The Friars next outing is in defense of their New England Cross Country crown this coming Monday, November 13th, at Franklin Park in Boston. It has been a long season to date, but all can be forgiven should the Friars come up with excellent showings in the New Englands and the ECIA championships.

THE MARIST fans openly prugnulate their "affection for Fairfield" by having their ex-constable for the Club Football team, who was engaged in football activity at Marist before coming to Providence.

THE FRIARS are down after their second straight loss but have vowed to comeback against the Stags from Fairfield University this Saturday afternoon. Be there!
