The Providence College Audio-Visual Center enters its second year under a new director, Mr. James E. Callanan. Mr. Callanan attended the Boston University School of Communication. Upon completion of his four-year course he will receive a M.S. degree in communication.

Mr. Callanan, a native of New Bedford, Mass., previously worked for Channel WGBH, an educational station in Boston. It is in this area of educational television that his prime concern lies.

Mr. Callanan hopes to continue the emphasis he placed on teacher presentations here via the center's video tape facilities. At present, the most pressing duty is to make the center more widely known among all members of the faculty. He suggests that there is a wealth of material for use, and it is only through use that the center is truly a part of the college.

At present, Joseph Hall has two large class rooms available with full audio and projection facilities. He says these rooms are being made to free these rooms so that they may be used essentially for film and slide presentations.

Student Unity is Key to Progress

As a member of the Class of '69 I have had the chance and the occasion to participate in students’ attempts to correct wrongs, create new policies, and pursue new avenues of study. All of these things were needed and in general to try to contribute something to our academic community.

When reflecting upon these past three years I am amazed at my inability to remember meaningful contributions the students have made — this is not meant as a criticism of any individual or organization and there is no intention to indict. Rather the purpose of this editorial is to pose to the student-body a question — What good work and even embarrassing (our own embarrassment might be our worst condemnation), yet an honest and thoughtful response to the question is needed. And that response is required now as we embark upon a new year of study — this is the time for renewal.

The question simply stated is: Have the students in the College made any significant contribution to this institution especially with regards to the student government which the College is now and what it will become?

I have, after some thought, reached a personal conclusion as the tone and drift of this Editorial easily indicates yet nothing is accomplished by deploring a question, perhaps it should be avoided the problem of writing the future.

Yet may I be afforded the luxury of pursuing a thought found in the past. Generally student organizations

Senate Action Most Significant

Father John Cunningham, in his office as President of the Faculty Senate, made an announcement to Monday morning’s academic convolution which should please all on this campus. Henceforth, upon the recommendation of the Faculty Senate and with the blessing of the Executive Committee of the Corporation, the members of a department will be allowed to elect their department’s Chairman.

A department Chairman should be representative of the people in his department. He should be in close communication with those people. He should be joined to those people in mutual respect. These, we feel, are self-evident necessities. The election of Department Chairmen, we feel, will insure the reality of these necessities in all of our academic departments.

Of note also is the fact that this positive stride toward academic strength was initiated by the faculty, the newest powers, the Faculty Senate. It is not only one of the most important steps taken by Father Cunningham, said, but also one of the most promising.

Our Salvation Lies in the Computer

Now that we have computerized schedules, computerized report cards, and computerized information sheets, all that we need is computerized students. This, we see as the only way to cope with the present registration system. A computerized student would automatically know which electives he wants and thus do away with the proliferation of paper work which occupies the college dean the entire month of September.

The Computerized Student would choose his field of concentration at the end of his sophomore year and feed this information together with his social security number into the computer. At the beginning of his junior year, he would receive his Computerized Form (I.F.) which would list his preferences of professors, course series, work, vacations and most important the money saved in pencils alone would more than pay for this system.

Thus, an enormous amount of paper work would be alleviated, students would be free to enjoy the summer vacations without the worries of which electives they really want, neither the carpet in the Dean Complex nor the nerves of the Deans would be worn so thin, and the money saved in pencils alone would more than pay for this system.

In conclusion, the Computerized Student would enable us to meet the inadequacies of the present system in which the student refuses to avail himself fully of the opportunities available by making a course, and also relieve the student of the tiresome burden of serious thinking every time he is required to choose a course he wishes to take the following year.

Lastly, there remains only one apparent source of confusion in this system. What about the Department Heads who during summer sessions are being informed as to what courses they will offer? This problem is readily met by the Computerized Department Head (C.D.H.).

Meet Barney Muggs, Non-conformist

The most obvious conclusion to be drawn from Monday’s Academic Convocation is that we desperately need a new Alma Mater song. The lyrics carry little of the emotive impact that one would expect of an Alma Mater song, and the melody is difficult. Perhaps this is one change about which all could easily agree.

Changes in other areas of the College seem less likely, however, despite the unanimous agreement among Dan Ryan, Father Haas, and Father Cunningham that change is needed at many levels. Ryan probably came closer to the cold facts of reality when he used the derailment of what he called “not be overly concerned with the popular image P.C. generates,” Father Haas has said that it is most important, in soliciting financial contributions from persons not presently associated with the College, that he be able to approach them with the mutual awareness that he represents a college populated with Christian gentlemen. It is unfortunate that many people upon whom the College must depend for the financial support of the Building Program judge on outward appearances.

Liberalizing the policies on student drinking, on curfews, and on women’s visiting in the dormitories, it could perhaps be honestly argued, might affect the “good name” of Providence College as an institution dedicated to molding respectable Christian gentlemen. Here we have at least a partial justification for Galvin’s movement toward change. When the entire future of Providence College may rest upon what the outside world thinks of us, then careful, it is certainly in order.

However, much can yet be done that is strictly intra-collegiate, without danger of causing repercussions outside the college community. The new policy for electing department chairmen, as announced by Father Cunningham, for instance, is a fine example of a significant change for the betterment of all who are now or will be associated with the College without affecting, except for the good, our public image. Ryan’s proposal that students be given still greater control over their own disciplinary matters, likewise, could be enacted with no bad effects off the campus. And there are others: increased and improved student participation on faculty and administrative committees, improved handling of the areas of the management of the College Bookstore that directly affect the academic situation and the graded dropping of that effusive something called academic freedom, just to mention a few.

Probably the greatest obstacle to the changes that most of the aware people from all the segments of the college community know are needed is the lack of “wisdom and maturity” that, as Father Haas almost suggested, lies, again, at the heart of the College without affecting, except for the good, our public image. Ryan’s proposal that students be given still greater control over their own disciplinary matters, likewise, could be enacted with no bad effects off the campus. And there are others: increased and improved student participation on faculty and administrative committees, improved handling of the areas of the management of the College Bookstore that directly affect the academic situation and the graded dropping of that effusive something called academic freedom, just to mention a few.

A Better Way

Reflecting upon the political situation in connection with the nomination process, one may easily feel out of place, out of touch, or perhaps just out of rage, disgust, shame, or despair. It is the American politics in Campaign '68. Certainly, there are many who would dispute the allegation that the candidates of Richard Nixon, Hubert Humphrey, and George Wallace represent an American political thought. Nevertheless, one cannot help but see a definite flicker of hope and anxiety, not for 1968, let's face it, this year is lost in regards to an actual change in the nature of these campaigns of the party, with its obvious disappointments, one can see a glimmer of hope. While, for example, we will never have another Robert Kennedy, perhaps we’ll see another Chicago as well.

While both Miami and Chicago, one cannot help for an end to the hypocrisy and idiocy. These venerable yet rotten institutions of democracy in America may have appeared more like a Sunday church meeting than what we know as a political convention. Chicago, was, in many ways, only because of the public, and so were more thoughtful in their actions. The action was more thorough (and audible) in their precautions than in their performances.

If the G.O.P. gathering in Miami illustrated the hypocrisy and idiocy, the Democratic gathering in Chicago demonstrated its own vulnerability as well. One should have thought that the recognition and the awards, say director Jerome Klein, “is the hope of encouraging voluntary participation in a variety of fields beneficial to the American community.”

Each year the Awards Committee is comprised of a group of distinguished Americans who have been recognized for their achievements. This year’s members include John Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey, John F. Kennedy, Margaret Mead, and Ralph Bunche.

The 1968 Awards Committee members are: William F. Buckley, President of the Conservative League; Robert F. Goheen, president of Princeton University; Daniel Bernheim, a speaker for the American Communist Party; Thomas Brunnock, a non-congressman, introduced a proposal asking the Congress to declare the candidates of Richard Nixon and Vice-presidential nominee George Wallace as non-candidates.

The Congress also passed two other resolutions in the second half of this session. One was Mr. Brunnock’s proposal that called in question the validity of the student-Faculty Committee on Student Activity. The other dealt with the legitimacy of the Student-Faculty Committee on the Student-Faculty Committee on Discipline.

The Congress also passed a bill declaring the election of Thomas Loughlin, a non-candidate, to be the only election that the Congress should hold for the year 1968.

PCMIP Enjoys Summer Success

Hopes to Expand Operations

This summer 15 students held jobs in connection with the newly initiated Providence College Management Intern Program.

According to Mr. Raymond Thibeault, director of the Placement Office, the students felt that both business and qualified undergraduates could benefit from the mutual cooperation. Under the guidance of Mr. Thibeault, the students performed the numerous tasks involved, including interviewing personnel directors, screening students, and performing other clerical duties.

The experience gained by these students will serve as a practical guide in decision making involving management. They were to ensure and develop the availability in their positions and use their knowledge. Moreover, the companies established important contacts since all the students are returning here for at least one more year.

PC Witness At Chicago

Sees Events As Symbolic

By JOHN V. KENNY

The 1968 Democratic National Convention marks the closest thing that anyone will find to a case-study in American politics. The public political culture in the second half of this century was the product of society took part in this battle. The campaign’s support, for the most part, was approximately 140 boys who want their help in the final award’s selections. They are sent to the Center for a variety of reasons.

This is the second time in three years that the Big Brother Foundation has presented the final awards. A similar citation was made by the University of Chicago in 1965.
Mr. Bernard Boyd of the P.C. Computer Center has outlined new procedures and methods for course registration which he would like implemented in the College.

In a recent interview, he stated that the list of the confusion and disorder in registering in past years has been caused often by students haphazardly selecting courses in May without any firm intention of taking the particular course or courses in the Fall term.

In addition, professors and departments have not always presented definite data concerning course offerings and in fact have waited until September to make changes or additions in some cases. In order to alleviate some of the problems, Mr. Boyd has suggested that the Dean's office publish a four-year master plan outlining the necessary program a student must take during his college career.

The ideal would be that a student select his major in his Junior year. Students in their Sophomore year would then propose electives they would take the following years. There would have to be some system or device that would discourage or prevent students from making imprudent choices.

Mr. Bartolemeo, also, of the Computer Center said, "The volume of errors must be reduced. By this we mean legitimate mistakes that occur in scheduling. On the other hand, if our proposals are accepted by the student who chooses his courses in May would be required to take those courses in September. Thus the responsibility would lie with the student. However, the student must have the correct data in May in order to make a wise choice. In this respect the various departments would have a serious responsibility."

Mr. Boyd has proposed that the catalogue contain explicitly the courses to be offered and the respective professors teaching the courses. Also, the bulletin would state which semester a particular course would be taught.

Another aspect of this four-year master plan would be the manner in which classes are filled. It has been suggested that the Student Congress have a role in determining who gets priority in course selection. This would probably be of a reward to a student for his services to the College. The whole object of the four-year plan according to Mr. Boyd is "to give the student 'lead time' in course selection."

Mr. Boyd concluded, "The ideal scheduling system doesn't exist a telephone talk back type system."

WDOM-FM Station Manager Timothy McBride explained the new Student Information Form which was used for the first time last week at registration. Its purpose is to eliminate the various cards that the student has had to fill out in the past. In effect, it will be a master file on the student. A copy will be given to the Dean, The Office of Student Affairs, and the Registrars' Office. The form has the advantage of being self-correcting. The feed-back feature of this method will notify the student of any error. He will be responsible for all the data on the form.

Mr. McBride also said that there will be a new type of report card this year. It is a "data mauler" which is a self-addressed, presealed form. This new process will eliminate envelopes and a great amount of handling as well. Also, those cards that are completed will be sent out immediately. No longer will report cards all be sent on the same day.

Mr. McBride concluded, "The ideal scheduling system doesn't have a computer in it at all. A student should be able to fill out a card knowing ahead of time all related information."

Mr. Boyd is hoping to expand the broadcast day later into the night, possibly signing-off at 1 a.m. From time-to-time there will be specials on the problems of the disadvantaged and underprivileged. They will deal with the physically, socially, and economically handicapped. These programs exemplify a new concern of WDOM to the problems of the community which they serve. WDOM will be carrying election coverage both on the local and national scenes. The local coverage will come from the station's news staff, which will give on the spot reports from the Sheridan-Biltmore throughout election night.

WDOM will definitely voice editorials throughout the year and in the words of Tim McBride they will be on "anything that's interesting and in good taste." With the addition of Centrex, the program Live Wire, heard Thursday nights from 8-10 p.m., will become a telephone talk back type program where the listening audience can call the station and ask questions of the prominent guests. This year Live Wire's schedule covers politics to flying saucers to the problems of the disadvantaged and underprivileged. Vin Tainten, station manager of WDOM-AM, reports that there has been a good audience response to the closed circuit station thus far and he believes that with Centrex there will exist a very close relationship between WDOM-AM and the dorm students that they serve. Vin says that the AM will continue to lead the way in the music world by featuring promising records with the kind of hit potential that was exemplified by "Sunshine of Your Love" by the Cream, which was number one on WDOM-AM for four weeks in January (four months before it reached the number one spot in the national surveys).

During the summer the transmitters in the dorms were overhauled and should work well for this year's broadcasts. The transmitter in Raymond Hall is still being worked on but will soon be in service again. This year WDOM-AM and FM has geared up for increased public relations and publicity. With an increased staff there is more diversification within the station of all the responsibility of running WDOM.

WDOM To Editorialize Programs To Undergo Minor Alterations

By FREDERICK LEGEND

Members of the Class of 72 were no doubt pleased and a bit surprised to find that they had their own radio station.

WDOM, 600 on the AM dial, began its broadcast year with the annual Welcome to College Festival on students on Sunday, Sept. 8.

WDOM-AM is part of the broadcast line of Student Union and Radio Providence College. The radio station is located in studios from the student Union Alumni Hall, studios which also contain facilities for WDOM-FM which began its broadcasts on Monday, September 16, at 8:13 on the FM band. WDOM-AM is a closed circuit outlet serving the P.C. campus, while WDOM-FM covers the Metropolitan Providence area.

The format of WDOM-AM is primarily music. When questioned about this format, Vin Talbot, station manager, said, "We pride ourselves on designing our concept of music for a student audience. It is a title radio phrase. WDOM is 'ahead of the hills.' We like to think that we have one of the largest playlists in the country, that we are on top of the wave available for a given time, certain in the choice of music, whether it be soft or rock, regardless of your age."

The station is available to any commercial station in this area. When a good record comes along we are immediately on the air and if it is a new record, we will not become afraid to play a record if it is not showing signs of being a hit. We do not feel that we will be able to play at a given time, certain in the choice of music, whether it be soft or rock, regardless of your age."

Following the customary breakfast of scrambled eggs, fried eggs, eggs on toast and any other uncreative way one can imagine to prepare eggs, following the morning routine might be a sweater loaded on "cattle cars," large vehicles constructed with benches down the sides and up the center, and transported to the training area.

On a given day, instruction might cover range firing the M-60 machine gun, introduction to the M-48 tank or even classes in Service."

He also reported that Father Haas has requested the Faculty Senate to assume the responsibility of allotting equitable distribution of office space in the new library.

Father Haas told the student body that he had urged the facility to "take as their first responsibility to understand you as individuals and to discover in you what power for good you possess." He closed the expression by giving his expectation for a very significant year here at the college, reminding the audience to "keep in communication open," that we might "learn to respond to each other.

Formal Agreement

Education majors and their department have entered into a "formal agreement" concerning general policies, rules and regulations which are designed to insure the success of the student teaching program.

The terms of the agreement were expressed in a booklet distributed to the education majors last week. At the end of the booklet was a treatise sheet which the student was to sign if he agreed to comply with the policies and the regulations of the Education Department. The formal agreement read:

"(Name) have read carefully the Orientation Data and the Rules and Regulations. I accept willingly the conditions they impose as a condition for admission to the Education Department. The Department assures me that with success in following Regulations, I will be recommended for a valid standard teaching certificate."

Among the policies and regulations which those in the department are asked to comply with are: a personal self-analysis which will become part of the student's file for recommendation, the maintenance of a 2.0 index, and regular attendance.

Concerning appearance and behavior, the booklet states: "As a member of society, you are expected to observe the normal appearance, dress and behavior of the group with which you wish to be identified. Your devotion to the teaching profession and the College community is the education workshop or training ground for you during these four years. You are developing, character and building a reputation. Difficulties on campus or with the law, drink, traffic, vandalism, anti-social behavior will affect or even prevent professional acceptance."

Fr. Robert G. Quinn, O.P., head of the Education Department, said that the purpose of this agreement was to try to indicate to the future student teachers "what they have to do when they go out teaching. It is being used on an experimental basis as part of student responsibility and contract responsibility."

Fr. Francis Nealy, O.P., a teacher in the department and moderator of the Education Association, said: one of the reasons for this agreement was the high standards which have to be met by the department. "The Education Department," he said, "has to verify the professional competence, the personal integrity, and the dedication to service of any of the student teachers. No other department, except Pre-Mod, has to certify and so our standards are higher."

Concerning job opportunities, the agreement stated: "Should you be denied a job in the slums, no department, including the Education Department has the authority to make judgments or recommendations in this regard."

Also mentioned in the agreement was the competition for student teaching positions. This is very keen in the greater Rhode Island and nearby Massachusetts areas. It is felt that if any of the student teachers from Providence College do wear long hair or beards while the student is teaching, then there is a possibility that not only will the student teacher be asked to leave his position, but that he may have great difficulty in placing a PC student, even in that same position, the following year."

Mike Dougherty, '70, President of the Education Association, said, in a meeting with Fr. Nealy, Fr. Quin, and Dr. McLaughlin on Monday afternoon, that he felt that many students had rejected primarily the way the agreement was presented. Mr. Dougherty also stated that students had no idea that the agreement would be presented to them and that they felt they were forced to sign it.

Dougherty also said that the Education Association has always had complete cooperation from the Education Department and that he feels that any education association which has discussed the agreement with anyone in the department would be able to do so.

Real problems which beset America today.

"We are standing in the streets of Chicago--with the Yippies, various groups, the police reacting inhumanely, is symbolic of the fact that the American has still not achieved equality with his white companion."

The fact that a college group--the Democratic delegates voted for a pullout from Vietnam is proof of the division that is in our society. Throughout the entire city there is a feeling that the atmosphere that was bred on mistrust and fear continues. This, too, is typical of the feeling in this country in this decade. A most pervasive problem was brought to the forefront in the question of authority in all sections of society. The demonstrations and violent frustrations of the nation were made public and made visible.

Chicago showed the nation just how deep the rifts in our society run. The police and the conservativism of the police versus the ugly realization of the progressivism of Mayor Daley and the equalization of the dean's office and the pestilence of the slum dwellers, all played a part in this Democratic convention. There are terrible and powerful divisions in American society: over the balance of liberty and order, of freedom and all of over values. The divisions are not reconcilable. What Chicago did for many was to magnify these splits in national perspective.

For me, Chicago was the most exciting week of my life and I am pleased that the Association encouraged me to attend."

Friar Football Team
Set For Home Opener

Last fall a club football team made its debut on the Providence College campus. Thanks to the generous contributions of students and friends, the Friars were able to meet the many financial obligations of a football team. Under the able direction of Head Coach Dick Lynch and his assistant, Chet Hanewich, the team fashioned a credible 3-2 record, despite the fact that they had the enviable task of overcoming a poor practice area and insufficient equipment.

For the past few weeks, 45 candidates have battled for positions under the watchful eyes of the coaches. This year things are a little different from last season. For one, the athletic department has been kind enough to allow the team to practice on a well-kept field on campus instead of the Elmhurst weed garden.

Another difference is the expanded eight-game schedule for this season which includes new foes, Manhattan and La Salle. Coach Lynch thought this year’s schedule would be tough, but he added that the team would be out to avenge last season’s defeat.

Last year’s seniors have departed from the ranks of the Black and Gold, but Lynch was quick to point out that this is the team. “We feel as though we will be more experienced and be a better team than we were last year.”

The team indeed has the experience to overcome graduation losses. Returning players from last year’s squad sure to see action include Tom Brenan, John McGregor and Kevin Smith, three sure-handed receivers; Joe Matta and Mike Crichton, a pair of running backs; Lee Sullivan and Don Chimielewski, guards; and Steve McCarthy at center.

According to Lynch the quarterback job is a two and possibly three way battle amongst veterans Paul McGuire and Jack Mordente, and a freshman from La Salle Academy, Tom Mazzinotti. All three candidates seem to be good ballhandlers, although Mordente seems to have an edge in the passing department.

Two veterans certain to bring a smile to the coaches are co-captains Mike Eagan and Dick Martin. Mike rotates between tackle and defensive linebacker and has amazing speed and agility for his size. Dick is a hustling halfback on both offense and defense. He has good moves and is a sure threat in passing situations.

The rest of the positions seem to be up for grabs, the most heated battles being for fullback and defensive secondary. Judging from practice sessions, picking starting units won’t be easy.

Chet Hanewich has built a hard hitting, aggressive defense that moves well laterally. The offense, under Coach Lynch, is hitting its stride and has amazing speed and agility as well. “I formation, is improving its timing steadily.”

When the Friars take to the gridiron against Assumption at Cronin Field this Friday, 40 players will be carrying on Friar tradition with a spirit well described by Lynch. “There’s no question about it. I’ve never seen anything like it, the spirit is tremendous.”

EVEN IN PRACTICE the Friars play for keeps.

Fall Sports Swing Into Action
Jr. Robb Paces Harriers In Early Season Meets

Early season workouts seem to paying dividends for Coach Ray Hanlon's harriers as the combined varsity and frosh squads have fared well in two area "open" meets since returning from vacation. The Friars thumbed their nose at Sept. 25th in preparation for the opening of competition in Boston on Saturday, where they oppose both Harvard and UMass.

Marty Robb, a junior from Syracuse, N.Y., has led the team in both efforts, winning the North Attleboro Jay-Cee 3-mile run, the harriers also put across a solid seven man effort as Malloy won the St. Paul's loop race of 4:09, L. I. University (3rd), with 24:34, Crooke 21st in 24:46, and Romano 28th in 25:07. Speck punctuated the varsity scoring once again by taking 25th in 24:59.

The Friars also took team honors at the Attleboro race as Robb was followed by Dunn 19th in 27:20, and Tom Crooke 12th in 26:32, Ron Ireland, and a graduate of Dublin, University, has played professional soccer and coached in Ireland. The newest Friar coach is a welcome addition to the Fall sports scene.

Coach Doyle goes into the season with an optimistic attitude and is pleased with the squad's spirit of enthusiasm and dedication. He does, however, realize the obstacles in the way of a winning season. Of the 26 candidates now at work for the season's opener, only five have strong soccer backgrounds, and Coach Doyle has been forced to teach fundamentals that more experienced clubs have had before the first workout. The relatively small turnout is forcing him to play many players out of position, but Road has already been hit hard by injuries.

Next Monday's opener against Bryant, to be played at 3 p.m. on the P.C. campus, is rated a tossup by Coach Doyle, since Bryant is also in its first year of varsity competition, but the first test of the Friars' soccer team will be an important one.

Despite the handicaps facing them in their first fall season, Coach Doyle believes the team will make a credible showing, and promises an exciting of not necessarily successful season. The Friar club football team in urging the student body to give soccer the support that will make this, the newest member of the Friar sports scene, a success.

National Club Football Movement Making Impressive Rise in Stature

In 1860 two re-stressed and rival institutions, Rutgers and Princeton, demanded extremely meager football equipment and engaged in the first intercollegiate game.

College football finally emerged as "big time" in the early '20s and developed rapidly. Innovations such as the forward pass, "the Rockne shift" and the famous Wing T offense, improved the electric appeal of college football's hottest rivalries.

Unfortunately, where most schools succeeded in their grid-iron endeavors, some schools, mainly for financial inadequacies, failed and dropped out. Others never even tried. The year 1965 was one of college football's hottest rivalries, the split in the 20's and 30's. In the '40's it was but a mere memory. Goalposts at various schools, including our own Providence, were either covered with cobwebs or dismantled.

In the fall of 1964 a simple but dramatically daring headline appeared in the Fordham student paper — FOOTBALL. The students at this football-rich Jesuit school figured their club was ready to receive a re- vival. In a virtually unprecedented move (ivy football in the west, east and south were student-undergraduates at Fordham, New York) each organized a football team and schedule, completely removed from administrative influence.

This precocious venture proved to be successful, for in the following year, twelve teams joined the club football bandwagon. NYU subsequent- ly won a berth in the conclusion of the '65 season due to an overall lack of support. This, however, was the only negative aspect of the increasingly expanding club football movement. The crowds came in droves and the players responded with stimulating efforts. Fordham has averaged 7000 fans per game, and along with Iona and Adelphi (L. I.) University will return to varsity status in 1969.

Providence College entered the club football ranks last year behind the stalwart efforts of students led by John Champagne and Edward Dunphy (68). The administration could not financially support the team, but allowed the campaign to organize itself. Said the top brass, "If you can raise funds, round up some coaches and players, and fill the stands with a general enthusiasm, clear-minded spectators, then club football can exist at Providence."

The Friar Football Club fared well in its inaugural season, averaging approximately 2500 fans in the 6600 seat Cronin Field.

This year Providence College has been designated a spot in District 1 of the nation's club football league. Joining P.C are Fairfield, St. Michael's, Hartford, New Haven and Assumption.

Yes, in just four short years, club football has organized itself on a national basis, headed by the National Club Football Services. NCFS, with headquarters in New York, will publish weekly ratings of the clubs, statistics and any other pertinent information coinciding with the 1968 season.

The daring NCFS prognosticators have predicted that the 1968 season will be an important one. The lower half of the Top 10 includes St. Mary's (Cal.) 9th, the Cal (La.) (28th), Catholic (25th) and Marquette (15th), Providence."

Marty Robb — No. 1 for the Harriers in Exhibitions

5 Mile Road race in 24:41, a new course record, and topping position in the 4:7 mile Northeastern Invitational Run at Franklin Park, Boston on Saturday in 25:13. The Friars also took team honors at the Attleboro race as Robb was followed by Dunn 4th in 25:46, Dunn 46th in 25:55, Schultz 5th in 26:16, and Pete Brown 32nd in 26:20. The combination of Marty Robb at Franklin with 175 starters; teammgr. Mr. Fratt, were second to St. Johns of New York with 45 points to the Redmen's 39.

But, if one looks at the official record book of the 4:7 mile Franklin Park loop, run, the harriers also put across a solid seven man effort as Malone won the race of 24:06, La- bolite 9th in 24:10, Grange 16th in 24:44, Loughlin 19th in 24:38, Crooke 21st in 24:46, and Romano 28th in 25:07. Speck punctuated the varsity scoring once again by taking 25th in 24:59.

The Friars faced a stiff test on Saturday in a race which could do much to tell how things will go in New England cross country this fall. Both Harvard and UMass have tough squads returning, the Crimson being led by Doug Harding and Royce Shaw, and the Redmen of Amherst with Al Lang and Peter Hoss at the front. The course is the 3.5 mile Franklin Park run. The Friars hope for a good showing, usually pointing to the New England's which are to be held there on November 11th.
