Local Committees Plan Projects
For Moratorium March on Capital

By GARRY KIERNAN

A staunch challenge awaits the colleges of the nation next week as thousands take part in the March. Monday, November 13 marks the commencement of a symbolic March Against Death, paying tribute to those who have died in Vietnam.

Beginning at Arlington National Cemetery, approximately 500 people will begin a three-day pilgrimage honoring those who have died in Vietnam. The event is expected to draw a large crowd of people from various parts of the country.

In support of the SMC (Student Mobilization Committee), P.C. faculty and students are expected to join the march, stopping at various places to boycott classes. Friday, November 14. This is not presently official, but will be made clear nearer the Moratorium date. Finally, it appears that the major outcome of this enormous project may be a petition calling upon the governor of each state to pass legislation calling for immediate withdrawal, reallocation of war expenditures, and repeal of the draft.

The effects of this Moratorium are potentially far-reaching. It seems that the outcome may rely on many things, the views of Messers. Nixon and Agnew, for example.

Anniversary Lecture Series
Features Prominent Figures

By Michael Moreno

Captain Terence O'Neill, former Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, will discuss: "Northern Ireland — Can There Be Peace?" as the first speaker in the 50th Anniversary Series on Tuesday, November 13, at 8 p.m. in Harkins Hall Auditorium.

Captain O'Neill served as Prime Minister of Northern Ireland for six years before retiring in April. He emerged as the one politician concerned and able to lead the nation of 1,500,000 people from the horror of Civil War into an age of harmony and understanding. His efforts on behalf of the Catholic minority, however, put him in disfavor among the extreme Protestant factions.

Other speakers and tentative dates are: United States Senator Hugh Scott (R-Pa.), now Senate Majority leader, December 1st; Dr. Bill Goodwin, president of the North Carolina State Medical Association, December 12th; and Black leader, January 7; Duke Ellington in Concert, the famous jazz musician will perform February 24; Dr. Werner von Braun, Director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), March 5.

Tickets are $1.00 each, with the exception of the Duke Ellington concert for which tickets are $2.00 cach. The tickets are $2.00. The tickets for (Continued on Page 7)

Congress Polls
Reset For Thurs.

Only 37% of the student body participated in the calendar and coeducational polls conducted by the Student Congress on Monday.

The disappointing turnout of students at the polls has forced the Congress to reschedule its sampling of student opinion on coeducation and the various proposals for calendar change for tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Members of the Student Congress Coeducation Committee found Monday's results particularly disappointing. Robert Weinschull, cochairman of the committee, feels that the lack of student concern demonstrated at the polls leaves the coeducation committee in a very precarious position. "Unless a more substantial response is received at the polls," he stated, "the bargaining position of the committee will be dangerously undercut."

Polling on the alumni and faculty reactions to coeducation was initiated last month. According to Dr. Paul van K. Thompson, vice president for academic affairs, a report on the alumni, faculty, and student polls on coeducation will be submitted to the trustees of the College in February.

For the matter of the calendar change, the effects of another dismal showing at the polls on Thursday are expected to be more immediate. The poll had offered students the choice of retaining the present calendar system or selecting one of the various programs: the trimester calendar, the four-one-four calendar, or one of the two variations on the traditional calendar. A poor voter response spread over each of the five options offered would in effect serve to cancel out all of the proposed calendar systems, the result being that the academic calendar would likely remain unaltered.

Homes Sees Role as Counselor

By STEVE FISCHER

My assignment for the past week was to feature Mr. Malcolm Holmes as moderator of the Afro-American Society and the Afro-American Committee. He agreed to sit down with me and talk about his experience so far.

Yet his interest seemed to be aroused. He shifted in his seat and began to unravel a tale of how a soft-spoken teacher pursuing his own interests was being meshed in by a web of bureaucracy just because he was black.

Homes came here primarily to teach, he said. Yet, what was asked by the administration to counsel black students on one-to-one ratio, he gladly accepted. But being the only black teacher on this campus, he was forced to become almost the representative for the black community at P. C. A popular request for him is to be moderator of the Afro-American Society. Even those interested in the tutoring projects came to him for help.

This is not his bag. He did not come here to fill in a much needed spot as leader of the black community. Along with this job comes an unlimited supply of paperwork which tends to pull him away from his real interests. Every man desires his freedom, so why not give him some liberation from the bonds which the administration has imposed upon him as P.C.'s answer to the blacks problems? An interesting aspect has appeared in Holmes' case. It seems that many people think (Continued on Page 8)

United Fund Drive Surpasses Goal; P.C. Sets Pace Among Area Schools

Providence College surpassed its goal in the United Fund Drive by collecting over $8,000, Mr. Raymond Thibeault announced.

Thibeault, who serves as the Placement Director here, is the co-ordinator of the UF drive on campus and he noted that "it is very important that this is the first time all segments of the community were pulling in the same direction to show that they are concerned with the community around them."

All of the various divisions of the College, faculty, administration, secretarial staff and maintenance men, and students contributed to the drive. A total of $8,000 was collected while the goal had been set at $8,500.

Thibeault noted that although those who work as secretaries and maintenance men did not contribute a high percentage money-wise, those areas did have the highest number of people participating.

The student body, participating in the drive for the first year, contributed over $250.

PC was the first of all the local colleges to complete its campaign, the first to reach its goal, and the first to exceed its goal. The only other school to make its quota is Johnson and Wales.

Commenting on the drive, Mr. Haas said "a sincere thank you to all responsible for placing Providence College in this enviable position in the complete division of the United Fund Campaign. It is proof positive that we are supplying responsibility and leadership in a changing world. Well done!"

Thibeault also noted that a few more contributions may be forthcoming from the various elements of the college.

All College Mixer

An All College Mixer sponsored by the Class of '72 of Mt. St. Joseph College will be held on Friday, Nov. 7 at Johnson's Hummocks, Al-lens Ave., Providence. Music by "The Reign." Cost of admission is $1.00. All are welcome.
Players Plan ‘Fantasticks’
For December Weekends

The Genevan Players of Providence College have announced their final production for the current year, the long running musical comedy, The Fantasticks. To be performed in their newby 1120 in Stephen Hall, the play will open the evenings of December 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 12, 13, and 16, 1969. P. Belkington, O.P., a new addition to the Carillon Club, serves as director for the group. Principal players in the musical are Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones, freshmen Mark Needham, Austin Galin, Leo Delofo, Maurice Plourde, Edwin Kelly, Joseph Handly and James Haag. Nan Ziegler will appear as The Girl.

This will be the first production completed by the Genevan since their spring of 1968 Time of Your Life. The group was inspired in part by the success of the New York production of internal problems. The little theater in Stephen has been converted into a stunning showplace, not only for the Fantasticks but for small concerts as well. Seating capacity will not exceed more than one hundred persons.

The Fantasticks is the holder of the record for the longest running play off Broadway, currently in its tenth year. The plot is the basic Romeo and Juliet motif and varies the fathers of the boy and girl. Love wins out in the end, of course. The score containing standards such as Barbra Streisand included the memorable “I Can’t Help Myself,” and “Try, Try, To Remember.”

This will be Father Belkington’s first creation of P.C. Having recently studied at Tulane University, he will continue to direct the Genevans and teach drama related courses next semester in the day school.

Graduate Testing

Eduational Testing Service has announced that undergraduates who expect to be eligible to graduate before December 1, 1969 can complete and send their Graduate Record Examination scores to Providence College so that the scores will arrive in time to be admitted. The Graduate Record Examination test is for students who expect to major in mathematics, science, and engineering. Scores are received by the Graduate Record Examination office at Providence College. The amount of $5.00, in the form of a check or money order, should be sent with the score report indicating the name of the student and the college to which the scores are to be sent.

PEACE CORPS VOLUNTEERS

The Peace Corps and the State University of New York at Brockport announced completion of arrangements for admitting the Peace Corps Volunteers and extending the unique Peace Corps/College Degree Program to a second group of candidates in June, 1970. The members of the first contingent completing the fifteen-month program which combines the upper division undergraduate education with Peace Corps preparation are now serving on a national educational development team in the Dominican Republic; the second group is now serving similar assignments in the American South and Central America.

The candidates will be selected from the ranks of students in graduate and professional schools who have completed their senior year prior to December 1, 1970. Those selected will be able to earn an A.B. or B.S. degree and be eligible for a Peace Corps assignment. The Peace Corps training will be extended by two summers of full-time subsidized and integrated academic work and Peace Corps training. They are expected to complete their Peace Corps or the sciences, those who have completed their junior year prior to December 1, 1970. The candidates have the opportunity for a degree after completing the Peace Corps training.

At the end of the second summer, the degree, a teaching license, in-depth cross-cultural preparation and diamoncy in Spanish the graduates as Peace Corps Volunteers will be off on their Latin American assignment. As members of the staff training institute, Peace Corps Volunteers are now serving on a national educational development team in the Dominican Republic; the second group is now serving similar assignments in the American South and Central America.

This integrated program is based on our two-fold conviction that (1) to combine the college and Peace Corps experience is more relevant and meaningful and the personal product more valuable, and (2) the college can develop skilled specialists—mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology, engineering, etc.—for Peace Corps Volunteers in Latin America is to make a significant contribution in all concerned—said President Albert Warren Brown, of the State University College at Brockport in announcing the extension of this unique partnership.
Where Are the Students?

The student body has added another unorthodox twist to the state of affairs at PC with its enthusiastic response to the poll held Monday on coeducation. The poll, envisioned as an effective argument in behalf of the cause of coeducation at the College, may in fact serve to enhance the position of those who favor retaining “the healthy all male atmosphere.” The dismal showing at the polls received thus far can only be interpreted as a negative student vote.

Less than 40% of the student body turned out at the polls on Monday. Particularly disappointing were the responses of the senior and freshman classes, who fell far below that figure. The lethargic stance of the seniors can perhaps be explained by the fact that they will not reap any apparent benefit from coeducation. The freshman response, however, is at once both puzzling and discouraging. If PC is to become coed within the next few years (and the year 1971-72 is not unrealistic as a starting point), then it will be the freshman class which has the most to gain.

Perhaps indicative of the lackadaisical approach assumed by the majority of the student body toward the issues at stake is the fact that the long list of non-voters included the names of two Student Congressmen, who, at least in title, are student leaders.

Hopefully, these Congressmen and the rest of the student body will find the time to participate in the poll tomorrow.

A Question of Priority

President Nixon’s address Monday on U.S. policy in Vietnam was good in the sense that it helped to clear the air and gave the people of this country an opportunity to learn first hand the present state of affairs concerning the war. The President, however, did not enunciate anything new and it seems that the possibility of peace is as bleak as ever.

There was one theme in his speech which is particularly disturbing. Several times Mr. Nixon mentioned that he believed that an immediate withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam “would result in a collapse of confidence in American leadership, not only in Asia, but throughout the world.” He also said that immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops would be dangerous because “... we would lose confidence in ourselves. The immediate reaction would be a sense of relief as our men come home. But as we saw the consequences of what we had done, inevitable remorse would follow.”

This seems to be an intolerable situation, yet it is a very realistic one and it is one which will continue as long as the leaders of our government fail to realize that fighting South Vietnam’s war for them is doing more harm than good to American society. A withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam cannot “scar” our people’s spirit any more than can the frustration which will grow more intense as the war drags on.

The Vietnam question is one of priorities. Should our government’s first priority be concerned with the other nations of the world, or should it be with the society which it is supposed to uphold and protect? Mr. Nixon should take another look at this question.

Veto on Who’s Who

Who’s Who is a program which attempts to choose for distinction a certain number of Seniors in each college. The distinction is based on academic achievement and service to the school and each participating school is given a quota to fill.

We believe that any attempt to choose a minimal number of the graduating class and to distinguish them by naming them to Who’s Who is a wasted effort. The people who will be named to Who’s Who have already distinguished themselves through their academic achievements and leadership roles within this college. Therefore, we feel that the great amount of time and effort which must be given by the members of the committee who will choose the nominees for Who’s Who from the entire list of graduating Seniors is a meaningless task in regard to Who’s Who.

Who’s Who merely allows student leaders one last bow before they graduate. Because of the quota system, it is quite possible that several students who may have the qualifications for Who’s Who will be omitted. Therefore, it can be seen that the possibility of the situation in which students who are already acclaimed for their achievements merely receive another pat on the back, and at the same time some students who should receive such recognition do not receive it.

For these reasons, we do not support PC’s participation in Who’s Who and we relinquish our position on the nominating committee for Who’s Who.
Humphrey Takes Lead on Civil Rights

By Bernard F. McKay

If Hubert Humphrey has fallen short on Vietnam, as he fell short on the Chicago violence of 1968, there are areas in which he has been very strong positions. The most outstanding of these are the nuclear arms race, and Civil Rights.

In his conversation with me, Humphrey seemed pre-occupied with the deployment of the ABM, specifically the MIRV system, and I believe rightly so. HHII said that the ABM is "the greatest single factor in the arms race," and this therefore, "along with ending the war," must become a great focal point of student discussion, debate, and dissent. If the ABM reaches such a position, as it is now heading towards, of being able to increase and multiply at the whim and fancy of the military-industrial complex, all chances of peace and world stability are being put on the end of a nose-cone of a missile. Clearly, Mr. Humphrey is leading a valiant struggle which we all must join, to stem the arms race now, before it is too late.

In Civil Rights Humphrey has always been a leader. In 1948 he put his career on the line for Civil Rights when it was not yet fashionable to do so. Before and since the 1940 Democratic National Convention Humphrey fought long and hard for equal rights for every American. Regrettably, the question has not yet been resolved. However, surely the recent Burger decision for immediate desegregation of the nation's schools is crucially important as a positive score for the Civil Rights fight. The active policies of the Nixon-Agnew Administration to decelerate integration in order to please Sen. Thurmond and other racismists is the most outstanding of all that has occurred in recent times in order to allow for more rapid participation in the affairs of the Congress by the freshman class representatives.

On pollution, the vote at 18, revision of the Electoral College, the subjects I've discussed here, and in a good many other areas, Hubert Humphrey has been outstanding as a leader. HHII still has the flab abilities that made him famous before Johnson became his lead in 1964. But the whole of the Administration, however, can he sort out his views on Vietnam and on young people? I believe firmly that he will be able to take an excellent Senator, and pursue equal rights for all.

In his first article on Humphrey, published last week, I examined the practical shortcomings of the man as a national leader. This week I have tried to show what I believe to be his significant pluses, for I greatly respect his talents and abilities, and I believe that he can become a very great President: I also, believe, that Richard Nixon can be defeated.

Nixon's Policy crumbling

BY WILLIAM M. BUCKLEY

Last week's Supreme Court decision ordering the end of dual school systems in the South "at once" dealt a crippling blow to President Nixon's integration policy. Nixon, along with his Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Robert Finch, hoped to delay enforced desegregation of public schools in the South until such time as more careful plans for desegregation could be presented. If this "delay" was intended as a political move to court southern support, as many professional observers claim, the first major decision of the Burger Court check it.

The decision must be classified as a defeat for the President, but it will be received by many as not only just, but as a step in the right direction. For instance, this decision ordering the end of segregation in the pattern. We've got to get rid of the discrimination which is in the South until such segregation is accomplished. But segregation is still one white, one black; one rich, another poor; one free, another tied. One child can't afford the book fees, another can. We've got to get rid of these.

The decision must be classified as a defeat for the President, but it will be received by many as not only just, but as a step in the right direction.

As he stated in his recent Look magazine interview, the Administration must consider how to avoid making segregationism indivisible, with liberty and justice for all. But for the Negro, there's neither liberty nor justice.

"I'm worried about this nation breaking apart. As the Korean War is over, we're heading toward two Americas: one white, one black; one rich, one poor; one monolingual, one bilingual; one educated, one uneducated. Look, 18 years have gone by since we said the Constitution guaranteed black children the right to go to school alongside white children. But segregation is still rampant. When will we get tough on compliance . . . ?"

Get tough is exactly what the Supreme Court told the Nixon Administration last week. No more delays would be tolerated. Because of a very unique decision, not even an appeal will be considered until after integration is accomplished. But this is still only one facet of the problem. It is we who are infecting our country, and it will be up to Fr. Hesburgh and his U.S. Commission on Civil Rights and the Nixon Administration that more action and less delay is needed in this area.

"Our moral blindness has given us a divided America, and we are facing it with black ghettos. We can spend billions of dollars on the moon where no life exists, and yet we continue to condemn millions of good people to substandard, unsanitary and dilapidated housing. We allow children to grow up in city jungles, to attend disgraceful schools, to be surrounded with every kind of physical and moral ugliness, and then we are surprised if they are low in aspiration and accomplishment.'
Membership Sought
For Dominican Laity

The Rev. John C. Rubba, O.P., moderator of the local fraternity of the Dominican laity, invites all students of Providence College to consider membership in the society.

The Dominican laity, known as the Third Order of St. Dominic, is a branch of the Dominican family composed of lay men and women, single or married, who embrace a rule of life formulated by the Order and approved by the Church.

The purpose of the Order is to create an ardent spirit of apostleship in accordance with the decrees of Vatican II. It promotes Christian witness in all walks of secular life and fosters a program of good works for the benefit of society, such as visiting hospitals, helping the poor at home and abroad, rendering various kinds of assistance to local and foreign missions. Fr. Rubba states that the Order "is in active contact with leper colonies in the Philippines, with needy families in India, with missions in Pakistan and South America."

Spiritual benefits are derived through collective participation in the liturgy, through sharing in the Masses, prayers and apostolic labors of the Dominican Order everywhere throughout the world. Meetings of the fraternity are conducted regularly in Aquinas chapel on Friday evenings and once monthly on Sunday afternoons during the academic year.

General information may be obtained from folders now in circulation in the college, and more detailed information from Fr. Rubba.

Letters to Descend On D.C. In Protest of Vietnam War

(Ed. Note: The following proposal for a Moratorium Letter-In was conceived by a committee at Tulane University, New Orleans, Louisiana, which wishes to make the Letter-In a national movement.)

The mourning demonstration, "Moratorium," emphasizes an old saying: "Power is mightier than the sword." America is engaged in a war in which she has not yet won the goodwill of our personal and national beliefs. We have discovered new political situations, new involvements, and they have expanded into social movements protesting race relations, poverty and war.

We have sat, picketed, marched, hoped and prayed for peace between all breeds of men and this we have clearly conducted with the underlying belief that the pen will become mightier than the sword. Americans have not yet learned that the pen will become mightier than the sword. Americans have not yet learned that the pen will become mightier than the sword. Americans have not yet learned that the pen will become mightier than the sword. Americans have not yet learned that the pen will become mightier than the sword. side the increasingly complex and diffuse problems that the university has become.

"To find itself for more effective performance of (those) essential roles, the Board should be in concert with each member of the University, re-examine its own policies and procedures in order to make substantial, explicit delegations of operating responsibility."

The SES recommends that all board meetings be held on campus, that the sessions be reduced . . . diversification in its membership. "The average age of trustees now is 57 and should be lowered if a range of generational viewpoints is to be represented," it notes. The Board should seek to increase the diversity of its membership with respect to such factors as age, occupation, cultural and racial background, and place of residence. This effort should give a high priority to adding members who are actively engaged in teaching and scholarship at other universities and colleges.

The Indiana survey showed that 874 people wrote letters to their representatives in Congress, 398 wrote to federal agencies, and 410 wrote to the White House. that just because a person is black, he desires power. This also is not Holmes’ bag. He likes his job as personal counselor to students, but wishes it to go no further than that. He urges the college to procure a paid counselor who would greatly simplify matters. Commenting on this, he said, "If the college must have a make-shift recruitment policy, then it should not expect more than a make-shift attitude from me. Just because I happen to be black does not mean I know everything about blacks."

He is proud of his intellectual endeavors in the language field and readily admits that he is an "intellectual snob." He continued: "I am not particularly interested in a black studies program. I am only interested in the happiness and well-being of black students and would like to meld into oblivion and do my own thing.”

He would like to know "why the whites do their own thing and the blacks must be committed." Mr. Holmes is trying his best, but this is obviously not enough for some.

The camera zooms in on Holmes as he does get to do his thing every Sunday evening. He holds that the trend is "away from theater towards cinema. The novel is destroyed. The cinema may well be one of the few art forms that survives this century."

Holmes hopes to see P.C. remain in the nineteenth century. "If P.C. is to remain isolated, at least within that framework, get it out via movies and music, not by the traditional use of books."

Next semester, films from the twenties and thirties will be shown as well as any shorts by P.C. students which run under thirty minutes. So far, the showings at the Sunday night flicks have been excellent.

Holmes hopes to take his individuality to help all students. "I use my blackness to help the blacks but not to have others assume their consciousness. I would like to use my own hobby in helping to develop the intellectual needs of Providence College. If every faculty member would take his own hobby and apply it to the college, then P.C. would have a much healthier atmosphere."
Victoryless Streak Continues
For Injured Friar Booters

The Providence College soccer team in their second year of existence has been up and down throughout this campaign and last week's games were a prime example. On Friday afternoon the Friars took on one of their toughest opponents in the Harvard "B" team. With the varsity holding down the number three spot in the nation every one knew the Crimson "B" team had to be ruffled. After it was all over, however, it was 1-0 Harvard, with their winning tally coming in the closing thirty seconds of the game.

The most disheartening aspect of the game was the fact that the Friar booters outplayed their visitors for most of the contest. As has been the case recently, Providence was unable to find the net and the lack of offense again crippled the Friar hopes for victory.

With defense and offense being held by the Crimson, the Friars displayed some of the spirit they showed in their last few games. Pressure was constant on the Harvard goalie while Mark Dereisenki had it fairly easy in the Friar goal. The winning shot by Harvard was on a fairly short shot that was perfectly placed out of Dereisenki's reach in the corner of the net. This was a crushing defeat for the Friars who showed signs of regaining some of their early season desire.

The Boston College game on Sunday was a different story, however. Possibly let down by their tough loss to Harvard, the Friars absorbed an 8-1 defeat at the hands of the Eagles.

B.C. obviously was a superior team but their drubbing of the Friars was not indicative of the caliber of play the Friars are capable of. Injuries to Mike Hastings, Mike Flood, Ron Plaska and Bobie Thomas had a telling effect on the Friars. It seemed, however, that the Friars were more interested in the Patriots' game, which was only a short distance away.

BOSTON COLLEGE dominated every facet of the game and only some great goalkeeping by the tough little Friar goalie kept the Eagles from hitting double figures. The Friars were outmatched the entire game. A slight injury to defensive stalwart Walt Smie-tana, obviously hurt the ailing Friars in protecting Dereisenki. The painful fact is that a replacement should have been made but to the lack of a healthy bench, Smietana was forced to complicate the till.

The booter's last game is on Thursday afternoon at home against U.R.I. It will be one of the stiffest tests of the season with a few men off the injury list and a return of their early season desire. The Friars should spring an upset. A little support from the student body would increase those chances greatly. BE THERE!

Football Forecasts

Alabama - L.S.U.: The Bayou Bengals were upset last week by Mississippi. They will be out for revenge this week, and Alabama does not have the team to stop them. L.S.U.

Florida - Georgia: Both teams lost last week so they will be up for this one. Florida, led by sophomore quarterback John Reaves should score enough points to win. Florida.

Missouri - Oklahoma: The winner of this game could win the Big 8. Oklahoma led by Steve Owens, springs an upset. Oklahoma.

Cleveland at Minnesota: Minnesota keeps ahead in the Central Division with a close win over the tough Bruins. Vikings.

Kansas City - San Diego: The Chiefs have Len Dawson back and this means they will be too tough for the Chargers to handle. Chiefs.

Auburn over Miss. State; Purdue over Michigan State; Notre Dame over Pittsburgh; Penn State over Maryland; Texas over Baylor; P.C. over New Haven.

FROM

By ED SKIBER

A group of students led by Tom Ryan beat me to the punch concerning the re-establishment of the basketball cheering section. I was all set to ask the Administration for a second chance, but now that Fr. Begley has temporarily agreed to student terms, I might now set the time opened in its last year of operation, 1967, this area was jokingly referred to as the "animal section" because that's exactly the type of inhabitants we had in those days. At least the Athletic Department viewed the situation in that manner, and they didn't like what they saw. It seems Providence fans had compiled a reputation for being near the top in conduct, and the animals were doing their best to lower that achievement.

So out went the animal section. The Athletic Department opened it to anybody who got in line first, and he could bring his date or grandmother along with him, which isn't exactly the right combination for an all out rooting effort. The absence of a cheering section placed a heavy burden on our illustrious male cheerleaders who found their efforts going unheeded. Desperate for something to stimulate the fans, the Friars decided to add females to the area the cheerleaders decided to add females, but this did not alter the situation greatly. Most of the students were busy with their own affairs and had their own Salve girls as our cheerleaders, and dreamed instead, during halftime, of the pom-pom girls of UCLA and the other golden coast schools.

The only alternative for the devoted Friar faithful was to petition Fr. Begley for getting the cheering section back in existence. Well it'll be a reality this year and let's hope that some good, honest cheering will be witnessed. But if some of our young men act up again, like harassing some obvious, shapely lovely, or yelling obscenities at opposing players (remember the Steve Adelman incident in '68), or just being a plain general nuisance, the cops will know where to look in order to eject the rowdies. And farewell, for good, to the reserved cheering section.
Big Eastern Victory Ticket, Harriers Run Toward Summit

Robby Runs To Daylight; Leads Harriers To Wins

Marty Robb captured his fourth straight title of the year and spearheaded a Friar team that won them the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Cross Country Meet at Franklin Park, Boston, last Friday.

Robby's astounding victory rewarded him with his second E.I.A.C. win in as many years, and the collective effort of the Friar harriers marked the sixth time in nine years that they had taken the E.I.A.C. title. The tightly knit team piled a mere 20 points and was a distant victor over the second place team from Connecticut State College, with 60 points. Bates College was the third place team finisher in the healthy field of 21 teams.

The Fighting Friars won the postponed race by employing a simple strategy that enabled them to compile an 8-2 record during the dual-meet season. At the bark of the starting gun, a dark pack of P.C. runners, somewhat resembling a "flat-black" bowling ball, missed all the pins and scurried out along the outside of the congested middle of the field.

Within a span of two minutes the team was totally out in front, and remained in strict command of the tempo of the race. As the scoring race progressed, a trinity of runners consisting of Robb, Jim Hall of Central Conn., and Bill Rogers of Wesleyan did the seemingly impossible and shot ahead of the field.

At their arrival to the three-mile finish line, the Frenchies were also swept by Robb. Over the course of last season, Tom Mulley, keeping in total record with his past spartan-like performance, was completely redeemed himself with a very commendable seventh position.

As far as Marty sees it the Friars have the look of another good one this year, and possibly six men, in front of the first five UConn. finisher if P.C. hopes to bring the laurels home. He believes this can be done. The Friars has not shown that much depth in previous meets. Their fifth man usually seems to be the weak link in the Stormhaven's romp.

Marty has previously defeated Hall but Dulong will undoubtedly be a formidable one to walk away with the individual title. Marty is definitely one of the top runners in the New
