Effective in June

Brennan Resigns

On Tenure Case

Sitting with Ned Brennan in his office in the Counseling Center a few days back was a different experience. He had just emptied his files, he said, and was presently busy looking for a job for the coming year. At ease behind his desk he mentioned a few interesting but not important points about his years at Providence.

Brennan, the central figure in a controversy precipitated by the refusal of the Committee on Rank and Tenure to recommend him for tenure, announced his resignation from the faculty staff at PC on January 9. An assistant professor of psychology, Brennan was notified on October 31 that he would not be recommended for tenure at the College. Upon learning of this decision, Brennan appealed his case to the Faculty Senate’s Committee on Rank and Tenure, which was upheld by the Senate, and the case submitted to the Committee on Rank and Tenure for reconsideration. The subsequent denial of his case by the Tenure committee, by the same margin as in the initial consideration, prompted Brennan to resign from the College.

After five years as an instructor in psychology and director of the Counseling Center, Brennan admitted that recent events surrounding his rank and tenure on the faculty warranted his resignation. The primary factor, he added was the seeming conflict in the Faculty Senate’s 22-1 result favoring the extension of tenure to him, while the Rank and Tenure Committee, chaired by very Rev. William Paul Haas, O.P., president of the College, stated that Brennan had already felt sufficient reason, “the best thing” as he put it, to resign effective in June. He thanked the faculty and center post as well.

Mr. Edward Brennan

Federal Cutbacks

Cited by Fr. Haas

For Tuition Raise

Providence College will raise tuition for incoming freshmen by $250 to a total of $1950, effective next September, it was announced last Friday by the Very Rev. William Paul Haas, O.P., president of the College.

The increase for present students will be limited to $150. Their tuition fee for the coming year will be $1850.

This increase, Vice President Mr. Edward Brennan said, is the result of severe cutbacks in academic programs and construction, affecting research, academic programs and construction; the normal rise in the cost of board for these students.

Tuition for incoming freshmen was set at $150.

Ralph Pagliero and other congressmen look on as Dr. DiNunzio answers questions on his proposal.

Congressmen Divided

Over Parietal Issue

By BILL MILLER

In perhaps what was the most confusing, disorderly turn of events in the history of the Student Congress, the Monday night meeting ended with a severely divided student body.

It all began on Monday night, January 26, when action on the long-awaited parietal bill was finally discussed. It was voted by the Congress that a two-week deadline would be given to the administration for the final answer on parietals. If no answer was received by February 9, the Congress would consider the answer to have been negative and will declare parietals in effect. The Congress voted to take the leadership role in the situation, and, for the first time all year, seemed to be united.

Whatever happened between last week’s meeting and this week’s is amazing. Because last night the Congress’ once hard-core, firm-stance mentality on the parietal issue proved to be dead in favor of a “watered down” compromise proposal as suggested by Dr. Mario DiNunzio, who spoke at the meeting.

Dr. DiNunzio’s plan calls for the setting up of visiting rooms in the dormitories where female guests might be entertained in private, and yet be away from the dormitory. Dr. DiNunzio felt that this compromise would undercut the administration’s position on its belief that the bedroom at night is the springboard to overt sexual activity. He also felt that in this proposal the students accepted the compromise, since it entails only an appeal to Corporation and does not allow action by the Senate in making a bill operative.

College Corporation Rejects New

Bills Proposed by Faculty Senate

By JIM CRAWFORD

Two Faculty Senate bills aimed at increasing the Senate voice in administrative affairs were formally rejected by the Corporation.

The proposals requested that the Faculty Senate be given a consultative voice in the selection of future presidents at the College and also set a time limit on presidential action regarding bills sent to the president by the Senate.

Meeting on December 7, the Corporation expressed its acceptance of the principle that the Faculty Senate should have a role in the selection of a president, but rejected this particular re-quest “in view of the fact that the Corporation is currently working on a corporate structure and methods to be used for the selection of officers.” The Corporation affirmed the Senate’s voice in presidential action, saying “with the consequent that the Faculty Senate upon a two-thirds vote may appeal directly to the Corporation.”

The Corporation did recommend, however, that the Senate consider amending the bill to read that if a bill is not acted upon within twenty-one days, it can be assumed to be vetoed “with the consequent that the Faculty Senate upon a two-thirds vote may appeal directly to the Corporation.”

Senate President, Dr. Mario DiNunzio, will introduce this amendment to the Senate and further discussion will take place. It is doubtful, however, that the Faculty Senate will accept the compromise, since it entails only an appeal to Corporation and does not allow action by the Senate in making a bill operative.

Human Rights Day

Feb. 5 Observance

Rhode Island Governor Frank Licht and the Very Rev. William Paul Haas, O.P., president of Providence College, will be among the speakers on Providence College’s Human Rights Day, Thursday, Feb. 5, beginning at 7:00 p.m. in Aquinas Hall on the campus.

This will be Providence College’s formal observance of Human Rights Month, conducted by the students of the College. The observance will pay tribute to the late Rev. Martin Luther King and other martyrs to the civil rights movement and to Roy Peter Clark, a senior at Providence College and editor of the literary magazine, the Alembic.
Fr. Haas’ Position on Parietals

(Ed. Note: The following is a statement by Father William P. Haas, O.P., President of Providence College, on the parietal question.)

Last year I stated that I would not ever, as President, approve of co-ed visitation in dormitory rooms in late evening hours. I did approve of an Open House program that welcomes both male and female guests to dormitories. My decision was based upon my personal experiences of fifteen years in colleges and universities of all kinds as a professor, counselor and administrator.

I maintain that many students, not all nor necessarily a majority, are likely to be harmed in their personal lives by an institutional policy which favors unrestricted encounters with young women in an inappropriate place. I am not judging any individuals so much as I am judging an institutional environment which affects especially those students who are least mature and who are most easily influenced by group behavior.

This year’s proposal for co-ed visitation has an added dimension of profound significance. It is directly linked with the proposal that students have complete autonomy in dormitory rooms. Every student should read this proposal. It is unilaterally decided by the Student Congress as a “non-compromise” proposal without any prior discussion with or representation of any other concerned element of the College, notwithstanding student membership on many committees.

The proposal for dormitory autonomy, linked with the co-ed visitation proposal, makes the issue one of basic educational philosophy and ideology of the College. It is not a move to force any student to live with. It was a simple recognition of my right not to arrive at a compromise. The intention was to present all reasons pro and con so that when a decision was made it would be made with a full awareness of our totally different views. Since my own position was already known, I hoped that we might, as rational human beings, who respected each other, know why we differed so radically. The discussion also offered an opportunity for each side to substantiate its case with whatever evidence it wanted to bring forth. The authority to resolve a matter such as this which touches basic policy, especially on the autonomy issue, clearly rests with the governing body, the Corporation.

I ask that you will try to understand my refusal to serve as President of this institution if co-ed visitation in dormitory rooms, and more importantly, the total autonomy for dormitory students, were adopted. It was not a move to force anyone to accept anything he could not live with. It was a simple assertion of my right not to spend important years of my life pressing over a situation the consequences of which are against everything I believe in.

Every member of the College community has the same option.

Some office jobs are more interesting than others.

In the old days if a man wanted to be an executive and clapped adventure too, he could skipper a clipper ship.

Today...the clippers are gone...and the supersons are here. And swashbuckling executives still get their chance.

That’s maybe a million bucks worth of plane. And when you fly it the responsibility’s all yours.

If you’d like to pull that over every time you bank or roll at 1,400+ mph, try for Officer Training. If you graduate in your last year, you’ll do a lot better. If you graduate after you get your commission, you will receive the nice service of the Air Force pilot, captain of all you command, getting to visit foreign ports like the clipper captain of yore.

An Air Force officer’s life is a great life! Why just be skipper of a desk?

Even conservative pros rebel against smear tactics on term papers. You’re always better off with erasable Corrasable® Bond.

An ordinary pencil eraser lets you erase without a trace on Eaton’s Corrasable type writer paper. At college bookstores and stationery stores.

Smudge-ins are out!
Parietal Talks Deal With Morality and Individual

By WILLIAM M. BUCKLEY

There were thirty-five total of nine meetings of the committee to study parietals to this date. The committee, in its last meeting, was basically an organizational meeting. The next meetings have dealt with every substantial matter relating to the question of women's visiting privileges.

One of the most important topics discussed was the relationship between increased opportunity for encouners with the opposite sex and the moral values and judgments of students.

Concerning this point, Richard Zarelli, Student Congress secretary and author of the original coed hours bill, stated that an increase in the freedom to go to certain rooms in dormitory rooms would not in any way produce a moral atmosphere of values and judgments. The contention was that if any stud-et agreed to the application of parietals, he would continue to be so inclined with or without the opportunities to fulfill his inclinations on the campus.

Fr. John Lennon, V.P., for Community Affairs, contended that he felt that this question was related to the traditional teachings of the Church containing occasions of sin.

He feels that certain environments are conducive to certain kinds of activity and to place certain restrictions, where it might be difficult to preserve virtues could be hadvorous.

All of the committee agreed that a distinction according to game be made in regard to parietals so that there would be a graduated system of freedom given to a student according to his ability to shoulder the responsibility commen-surate with his maturity.

In response to Fr. Lennon's remarks, the committee agreed that dormitory rooms should not be considered solely as a bedroom, but rather as an all-purpose room. To overemphasize one use of a room would be to dis-gard its other possible uses, he said.

Fr. James Mooney, a member of the committee, said that since the college had a system of Christian principles, it should not abrogate the responsibility of determining whether certain places, certain times, and certain socular activities were suitable. Fr. Lennon's position was in accord with those of the committee.

Another very important topic of discussion for the committee was the distinction of the student as an individual and as a member of the institution.

Concerning this point, Fr. Haas said that he thought that there was a distinction to be made here.

He said that a student commits himself to the objectives and rules and confirms his support of them in his application form. He also feels that it is incorrect to say that one surmndered or waived his freedom in doing this, but that the student amplified his freedom by realizing it in a more fruitful, not in a less, application than he could himself.

Relating this concept to the parietals, Fr. Lennon argued that when a student feels that it is necessary for his development that he live in a more private en-virenment in which he can extend his experience, the student has alternatives, such as to simply withdraw from that institution.

Thus, he feels that simply becoming a rallying point for discontent.

Concerning this, Ralph Paglieri, Student Congress president, said that he could understanding this argument if it were only a few students who were concerned about the parietal issue. But, in his opinion, the students could not reaffirm this type of environment, and most of them are not freely partici-ating in it.

The question why they do not choose the alternative of transferring to another college is that, when they change their credits would not be accepted and that financial aid is usually denied to a transfer student, he said.

Paglieri also noted that many parents force their sons to live on campus. They return to the campus, thus exercising "frustrating choice." Because they exercise this choice, it does not mean that they are accepting it, he said, for feels that students are not enthusiastic about living on campus.

Fr. Haas also said that to think that problems would be solved by evening cool hours is to overlook a great deal and without much foundation. He feels that the creation of the dorm council could create a dynamic educational program as a better answer to the students problems rather than just having a girl in his residence hall.

In reply to this point, Pag-lieri and Zarelli both agreed that parietals were offered as a panacea for all of the problems concerned that such irresponsible behavior did not mean that it was a poor attitude of students attending the College and became to live in a frustrating environment.

Paglieri said that the dorm council could provide the vehicle of positive and creative measures as Fr. Haas had suggested, but he feels that to point the blame here would be ineffective because they are not autonomous enough to be so. Concerning the parietal isue as a whole, Fr. Haas has felt that this was the most important issue to the students and so far as they consider the lack of parietals to be indicative of an essential moral defect in the student body. He feels that this has to be proven by some point no factual evidence has been offered to substantiate this position.

Fr. Lennon, on the other hand, explained that when he refused to grant the parietals, he was saying that no one could have parietals, nor was he saying that the dorm council was ineffective because he felt he wanted something evil, but that the student council was responsible for that decision.

He said that for him it was a personal decision and since he was a free agent, he would not be the director of an institution of which its students claim that they cannot assume the responsibility of an absolute autonomy particularly dorm council. It was his belief that the student council was a good thing which and creative, and up to this point no factual evidence had been offered to substantiate this position.

It was Fr. Haas' opinion that in those institutions where parietals have been implemented on an experimental basis, the experiment has proceeded from one stage to another without having built it into it from the beginning the possibility of testing its results, because part of the reason for the consequences, he said.

He also stated that every institution offers an option of a way of life in which people can move from one choice to another depending on their education. Fr. Haas said that he found it would be a good thing to continue this expert because, he said, that could be reabsorbed in terms of its success or its failure.

Duke Ellington and his Band will appear at PC on Feb. 24.

Duke Ellington Concert Feb. 24

By THOMAS COAKLEY

America's most famous black jazz musician and composer, Duke Ellington, together with his world famous band will be at Alumni Hall on Tuesday, February 24 at 8:00 p.m.

Though appearing as the third celebrity in the College's Fifteenth Anniversary Lecture Series, Ellington will present not only a lecture but also a concert.

He will offer his audience a history of jazz as he knows it, demonstrating specific motifs with the versatile talent and the inexhaustible repertore he has attained over his forty-six year career.

This career, after several formatory years, began to move at New York's Cotton Club during the late 1920's. "We came in with a new style," says Ellington about his first engagement. "Our playing was stark and wild and tense. We put Negro feeling and spirit into our music."

His popularity at the Cotton Club led him to the recording studio where he produced many tunes which sold in enormous numbers. "Mood Indigo," "Soph-esticated Lady," and "Solitude" are only a few of his many popular songs.

Besides hit tunes he has also composed and arranged the music for two musicals: "Jump for Joy," and "Beggar's Hol-day," a number of movies including "Anatomy of a Murder" and the television series entitled "The Asphalt Jungle."

In 1933, however, Ellington, together with his son master-Jazz, the international jazz form, was the name of his first triumphant European tour.

Since then the Duke and his hand have traveled to almost every corner of the world, stoping at some of the more famous spots more than once.

Wherever he goes his experienced and mature talent, highly charged personality, and mastery of a sagacious humor captivates audiences.

This uniquely memorable occurrence was his first appearance before Queen Elizabeth of England at Buckingham Palace. "When," asked the Queen, "were you born?"

"I think it was before you were born," answered Ellington softly, to which the Queen responded, "I don't know where I'm going, but you know I'm going like this.

Duke Ellington and his Band will appear at PC on Feb. 24.

Duke Ellington Concert Feb. 24

By THOMAS COAKLEY

America's most famous black jazz musician and composer, Duke Ellington, together with his world famous band will be at Alumni Hall on Tuesday, February 24 at 8:00 p.m.

Though appearing as the third celebrity in the College's Fifteenth Anniversary Lecture Series, Ellington will present not only a lecture but also a concert.

He will offer his audience a history of jazz as he knows it, demonstrating specific motifs with the versatile talent and the inexhaustible repertore he has attained over his forty-six year career.

This career, after several for-
matory years, began to move at New York's Cotton Club during the late 1920's. "We came in with a new style," says Ellington about his first engagement. "Our playing was stark and wild and tense. We put Negro feeling and spirit into our music."

His popularity at the Cotton Club led him to the recording studio where he produced many tunes which sold in enormous numbers. "Mood Indigo," "Soph-esticated Lady," and "Solitude" are only a few of his many popular songs.

Besides hit tunes he has also composed and arranged the music for two musicals: "Jump for Joy," and "Beggar's Hol-
day," a number of movies including "Anatomy of a Murder" and the television series entitled "The Asphalt Jungle."

In 1933, however, Ellington, together with his son master-
Jazz, the international jazz form, was the name of his first triumphant European tour.

Since then the Duke and his hand have traveled to almost every corner of the world, stoping at some of the more famous spots more than once.

Wherever he goes his experienced and mature talent, highly charged personality, and mastery of a sagacious humor captivates audiences.

This uniquely memorable occurrence was his first appearance before Queen Elizabeth of England at Buckingham Palace. "When," asked the Queen, "were you born?"

"I think it was before you were born," answered Ellington softly, to which the Queen responded, "I don't know where I'm going, but you know I'm going like this.

Duke Ellington and his Band will appear at PC on Feb. 24.
Back in October when anniversary convocations and World Series celebrations were fashionable, a small segment of PC's more comic element proposed that "50 years is long enough for any institution and especially so for PC. Let's make this year PC's last."

This attitude has been cropping up recently from within the President's complex. Veiled threats are being voiced by College officials that if the students do attempt to force evening coed hours in the dorms, it may be necessary to close down the school.

Corporation Meeting

Within the next couple of weeks, Student Congress president Ralph Paglieri is scheduled to address a meeting of the Providence College Corporation in support of the Congress proposal for evening coed hours. The Corporation members last convened early in December, at which time they rejected two Faculty Senate bills aimed at increasing the role of Senate in College affairs. The bills had proposed that the Faculty Senate be given a role in the selection of a President of the College and also that a Senate proposal not acted upon by the Corporation within 21 calendar days of the date of the Senate action be considered operative.

Indications are that the Congress proposal for coed hours will at best be politely ignored. For 50 years the college trustees have had their corporate fingers tightly in control; it is inconceivable that they would permit well-established traditions to be eclipsed in one grand swoop.

While adamantly refusing to concede this point of evening coed hours, the officials in the past have attempted to install a mandatory on-campus residence clause. PC students can expect to hear more about required campus residence in the future. When asked if evening coed hours would be sufficient to appease student opposition to mandatory campus residence, Paglieri replied that coed hours would little more than a promising beginning. For despite recent concessions to the demands for increased student participation in the affairs of the College, the prevailing, domineering atmosphere of paternalism remains an institution at PC.

Nowhere is this attitude more evident than in the very fact that the Corporation has refused to grant to the Faculty Senate those powers which would enable the Senate to function as a more influential body in the structure of the College. As pointed out by Fr. Fallon when the two senate bills were originally proposed, the very fact that the Corporation saw fit to legislate for the establishment of the Faculty Senate represents an "endorsement" of faculty participation in the governing of the College. Apparently, however, the Corporation only endorses such faculty participation which does not enter into the domain of the Corporation's powers. Thus, the Corporation seeks to deny the major trend in the administration of academic institutions today — the principle that the subordinate bodies be allowed some voice in determining the manner in which they are to be governed.

The Corporation has attempted to appease the Faculty Senate with the promise that it is "anxious to establish a procedure which assures the fullest possible choice of any future president of the College." But thisploy would seem to be merely another instance of the Corporation accepting change, but only that change which the Corporation itself dictates. If the trustees are sincerely intent in their efforts to insure "the widest choice of any future president," then one is hard pressed to explain why the corporation in fact rejected the senate bill.

Dictatorial Displays

The time has passed when PC's student body will be content with merely coed hours. Students today who are willing to pay $1900 per year for an education received at a small second-rate male institution are indeed in the minority. It is sheer folly to assume that those who are willing to pay the $1950 will submit to future dictatorial displays of Corporate power.

Perhaps Fr. Haas' intimation that the coed hours issue may cause the school to close down does warrant some consideration, though certainly not for the same reasons which he has suggested. It seems clear that if PC is to survive as an academic institution, amid the rising costs of education and the increased emphasis on individual participation, it must begin to accommodate the desires of the students. PC can no longer point to the proverbial "substantial savings" afforded by the selfless contribution of the Dominican faculty as an enticement to prospective students.

The attraction of a Catholic College in the present decade is virtually negligible; the attraction of an all male college is in fact nonexistent. PC must offer distinct and compelling advantages to today's high school graduates if it is to draw a significant amount of the student population in the future.

The rigidly authoritarian stance taken by the Corporation in recent years, a stance manifested most vividly in the perfunctory dismissal of demands for Corporation restructure and most recently in the rejection of the Faculty Senate proposals, seems totally inimical to the changes that must be made.
Students Suffer With Loss of Brennan

By FREDERICK DAY

Since the records of the College's history are confidential and since Mr. Brennan chooses to remain silent, the details surrounding the Brennan case may never be published.

That which has been revealed is precisely little: on October 23, Mr. Brennan was informed that the Committee on Tenure and Rank would not be given tenure at the College. On December 12, the President formally reported an appeal lodged by Brennan. On January 16, the Committee on Rank and Tenure subsequently voted again not to recommend Brennan for tenure; and on January 9 Mr. Brennan announced his resignation from the College.

announced his resignation from the College.

Students Suffer With Loss of Brennan

By GAREY J. KIERNAN

Autonomy is something that the College can bestow, but it knows as a mere concept: an idea, which, if and when realized, would be the property of some outside world who do have a sense of respect about them. A Kantian term, described as the "right of the individual to govern himself according to his own reason," autonomy is treated at Providence College as if it were a personal picture or medicine in the cabinet.

It seems that thisextreme "responsibility" that the administration is taking is perhaps a traditional one: certainly a negative approach to life. It is conceivable that to make such a radical change in the dormitory set-up would demand a shift in the outlook of the corpsa. After all, however, even Pope John himself decided that the idea of the negative church should disappear, and outlooks should change. It is incumbent, therefore, as this discipline we are experiencing is outgrowth for our good, it is, in fact, an extreme detriment to our well-being. If any reform or reinforces immaturity, critical talent, and capacities for integrity or growth, we have been given opportunity for development." (From the USNSA) Immaturity, disinterest — does it sound familiar?

The situation here is analogous to a child who cannot cross the street simply because he is kept in the house. What of when he goes off by himself? Is it not likely that he will run with no idea of responsibility? What is there to inhibit any of us from acting?

I think that the time has come for the administration to realize the importance of the man at Providence College who is, in fact, somewhat of a necessity to the institution. Consequently, the dorm rector bill which includes self-government for dorm students, elimination of the rectors as disciplinary personnel, and elimination of purely freshman dormitories is a must for the modern student. Providence College is a school of liberal arts, an institution whose interest is to prepare people for the world, to condition them to expect the worst and to not look forward to their being. We need trust desperately.

The Principle Involved

BY BERNARD MCKAY

The issue of parliaments here at Providence College is a serious one. Not because that other colleges may do it, but because of the principle: cannot students have any real say over their own lives for these four years? The words "student power" have, as Dick Gregory said of "black power," been polluted and twisted to represent something totally inaccurate: in today's "Silent Majority" world the word student has become almost as evil as the word Communist, even worse is the word power, supposedly meaning nothing short of tyrannical dictatorship or total anarchy. Not being one who likes dictators, communists, or anarchists, I feel I can use the words student power and not be considered as a militant or armed revolutionary. I know then attempt to make clear my convictions on student power, what it is and what it is or should be, what it is or should be able to do. Call for student power come when we seek change, but have an incredible difficulty in coming to a choice. The choice is to drop out, by becom­ ing part of the system we de­ plore, or to continue in the struggle.

The first task of true leadership is not to condemn or castigate; to do so is merely to search out the reasons for disillusionment and aliena­ tion, the rationale of dissident and protest — perhaps even to learn from it.

The problems which we feel strongly about can never be traced to any individual, to any one issue, to any administrative action, or to any political out­ look; the challenge is deeper and broader.

We are told by some that we have failed to use legitimate channels, but those channels have been often closed to us. One thing which has developed as a result of the usual channe­ lings being close is our genuine protest of individuality against the university as a corporate bureauacracy.

Therefore, it is not enough for us to be told that under­ stands, or merely sees clearly. Whatever the degree of distance, whatever the depth of discount it is essential for both the "es­ tablishment" as well as young people, that change be possible, that we be heard.

Indeed, parliaments represent an answer to a question, but the question which I raise here is on the principle of the thing.

Senator Edward Kennedy wrote in Decisions for a Decade: "... (various) successes have brought with the right to be lis­ tened to, and the right to be taken seriously. Hopefully this will be the result of a genuine belief that our system cannot change itself, and that this is only a beginning. It can — it must — it needs them to survive. "It may be political­ ly helpful for public officials to strike a heroic pose against a dissident minority, but it will not help restore the dialogue we so badly need in America."

Call it student power, call it possibility for change, call it genuine involvement, in any event, the lack of a superior teacher is not more than a superior teacher. One is led to question exactly where the College's priorities lie when it can arbitrarily dismiss a man of Mr. Brennan's caliber with little regard for the welfare of the students or his own. Mr. Brennan's case this year, as well as a whole, does not mean that we have been stripped of an excellent teacher. It would seem that the need for new blood in our system of education, ostensibly the very essence of change, has been conveniently relegated to a secondary importance.

In any case, one thing is cer­ tain. PC is losing, and in fact, has already lost an excellent in­ structor. Brennan's reputation established during his five years of residence at the Col­ lege was that of a teacher with considerable knowledge and the ability to present it clearly and interestingly. It is common knowledge, however, that since the matter of tenure first de­ veloped into an issue, Brennan's classes have lost much of their former popularity. Many students admit that their own interest in the class has dwindled; one student states that since Brennan was discrete in re­ sponse to an appeal, he felt that his subsequent resignation was now reduced to the role of per­ functorily filling out his obli­ gation to the students and the College.

Students who have had Mr. Brennan in class will never ad­ mit that this man, even minus his teaching ability, was no better than a superior teacher. One is led to question exactly where the College's priorities lie when it can arbitrarily dismiss a man of Mr. Brennan's caliber with little regard for the welfare of the students or his own. Mr. Brennan's case this year, as well as a whole, does not mean that we have been stripped of an excellent teacher. It would seem that the need for new blood in our system of education, ostensibly the very essence of change, has been conveniently relegated to a secondary importance.
To the Editor:

On January 9, 1970, a procedural meeting of the Committee on Admissions was held.

Mr. Nicholas DiGirolamo, a senior Chemistry major from Thompsonville, Connecticut, and member of the Committee. His presentation on this Committee will help to develop an awareness among the many problems associated with admissions and help valent at other private male institutions comparable to Providence.

Admissions standards in recent years have not decreased as dramatically as many claim. This is evident in reviewing Freshman Class Profiles. Many of these profiles have an absolutely no basis in fact.

It must become more evident to students and faculty that they have a much greater role in admissions decisions. There are members of the "P.C. family" who could prove valuable in helping to shape the image of the College than they are.

Perhaps the finest representative any admissions office can have is the confirmed student attending the college. It seems ridiculous to say in P.C.'s history to turn our efforts toward developing more positive spokesmen. We are addorsers of making Providence College an open and tolerant place. Let us combine our efforts in a constructive manner in order to accomplish these goals.

Sincerely,

Robert M. Purich
Director of Admissions

To the Editor:

Chuck Borkoski,

Assistant Director of Admissions

The team needs strong student support in order to win at least half of these tough games. Providence has never enjoyed strong student backing. They need pep rallies, full houses and loud cheers.

Very truly yours,

Leonard F. Clarkin
Director of Athletics

THE COWL, FEBRUARY 5, 1970

Indianas, Jews, academics, architects, and writers all work toward the goals and objectives of the day.

Sincerely,

Stephen H. Foster
Secretary, class of 1973

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to comment on what I consider to be a well-targeted living conditions at the Fairly, many of the demands will stop if nobody will try.

Fred this.

Richard A. Lambe

To the Editor:

I consider to be unjust and another test of the students.

If we don't make continued to feel it differently.

Would thes

Sincerely,

Francis Jacob '70

To the Editor:

Upon returning to Providence College after semester break I noticed that the bimonthly bureaucratic also seems highly selective.

I am referring to the consternation caused by the boarding of the book store.

Maybe I am being optimistic in hoping that this new management will effect any change in the systems, but if protest will not do it then what are the alternatives? Perhaps it is too much to expect that these matters should be handled for in proportion to the need.

Recent years have shown that this establishment has no desire for integration of the student body to deserve a better future.

I hope that this new management would be the best possible solution to the problem of job insecurity (which does not now exist) might be sufficient to motivate the personalities involved to

to the hearts of the sopho-

To the student body who participated in the senior year.

They were led by a brilliant, terest toward those with whom accounts as Wilkens, is still being debated. How can this classes, and they are

For those students, alumni and general public who do not make good neighbors.

indeed charismatic coach.

spirit of football. It was the

the students and that the stu-

To the students who participated in the final survey warranted insistence is not

I consider that the evaluation

If they don't, such a protest

indicts the idle, the students and that the stu-

fairness, open-mindedness and general competence of a particular professor he might wish to

To the Editor:

A. LaBri,

Director of Admissions

To the Editor:

Larry Borkoski, '70 believes that

He would say that.

They hope to see a improve-and that the stu-

like children and telling us how we must act. Such is the case of dormitory life. Priests should be present in the dormitories as the rightful tenants of the dormitories, and accept the dem-

When completed, the results of the evaluation will be published in the spring issue of the Cowl.

they do it from religious con-

the future.

they do it from religious con-

I consider to be unjust and another test of the students.

I am referring to the consternation caused by the

boarding of the book store.

Maybe I am being optimistic in hoping that this new management will effect any change in the systems, but if protest will not do it then what are the alternatives? Perhaps it is too much to expect that these matters should be handled for

in proportion to the need.

Recent years have shown that this establishment has no desire for integration of the student body to deserve a better future.

I hope that this new management would be the best possible solution to the problem of job insecurity (which does not now exist) might be sufficient to motivate the personalities involved to

to the hearts of the sopho-

To the student body who participated in the final survey warranted insistence is not

I consider that the evaluation

If they don't, such a protest

indicts the idle, the Chaplin—Man With A Message

"A picture with a smile — perhaps a tear," thus Charlie Chaplin describes his film, The Kid. This very simple opening line on the film, I feel, not only describes the character Chaplin creates on the screen, but Chaplin was probably the finest master of the art of comedy America has produced, but he also gave expression to something more than just comedy.

His was not the simple face of a Ten Turpin, or a Charlie Chase, in the characters and adventures Chaplin portrayed, which we see not only comedy, but also deep paths. His whole character evokes both a laugh and a tear.

The whimsical little tramp, Chaplin was so attracted to the The Kid. The evil in the world is everywhere, and it first finds Charlie and the kid, and then steals little Jackie's only toy. But innocence proves to have a power which he did not expect. The charity can be vanquished by a greedy house owner. He returns home to his apartment and falls into an exhausted sleep. As he sleeps he dreams of an ideal world. And even in the dream world, evil creeps in and Charlie loses.

While this is not a tragedy, although Charlie cannot win in an ideal world, or so he thinks, innocence proves to have a power which he did not expect. The movie needed no words to express it. It makes clear what film art, (with or without sound) can be. Thank you for making this film.

Next Sunday, the Providence College Film Society will present a fanta­ tic anti-war film directed by Jean-Luc Godard.

Would You Like To Be a M I N I S T E R ?

ORDINATION is without question and for life. LEGAL IN all 50 states and most foreign countries. Perform legal and ecclesiastical duties, be the church official who helps solve some of the problems plaguing the nation.

The program, scheduled for April 5th will be administrated by the Ecological Action Committee, stated that the teach-in will consider five main topics: the air pollution, health problems, over­ population, ecology, and the general ethics of the situation facing the nation. "By sharing organization, ideas, and activi­ ties," Belloni stated, "the coal­ tion formed between PC, Providence University and URI will doc­ ument what years of apathy have done. In the end the teach-in committee will be established to help solve some of the problems plaguing the nation by all forms of pollu­ tion.

Henry Ford and former Sec­ retary of the Interior, Stewart Udall, have been mentioned as possible donors to the provi­ dence area teach-in. Movies will be shown emphasizing the hazards of air pollution and its implications for the national level.

TheEcology Action Commit­ tee has yet to fully organize PC. An organizational meeting will be held on Tuesday, February 10 in the conference room of the Providence Research Laboratory. Interested students should contact Belloni or Dr. Donahue of the Biology Depart­ ment.

New Student Club Aims
At Better Social Life

Providence's answer to Fuscoc's "New Student Club" is the form of the "21 Club," open to all members of the Providence College, to thirty-one-year-olds of age or older. Basically, this is a student organization designed to simplify communication between students, faculty, and administra­ tion. To further enhance the informality of this environment, all beer will be available for all members. This club will be permanently set up in the fac­ tory dining room in the rear of Alumni Hall Cafeteria and will be open on a nightly basis from 6 p.m. to 12 p.m.

A membership card is sold at the price of five dollars, entil­ ing the member to 25 mugs of beer. Broken down to base cost, a 10 oz. mug of beer is actually costing the members $.20. When all 25 numbers on the membership card are punched out, the member will be required to purchase another card for another 25 mugs of beer.

The "21 Club" is entirely student run and depends exclu­ sively on the support of the College Community. Since no fi­ nancial assistance is being given, working capital is needed to open the club. The sooner the funds are in, the sooner the club can begin. All interested and eligible students who would like to see a beer hall on cam­ pus are encouraged to join the club, which is open to qualified PLC's who will be available to qualified PLC's upon graduation from college.

Another aspect of the offi­ cers will outline their individual job responsibilities, the availability of positions in data processing, supply, motor transport, engineering and research for qualified applicants. Those positions will be guaranteed before enrollment.

Friers Formal

The annual Friar's Formal, sponsored by the Friar's Club of Providence College, will be held Friday, April 5th at the Venet De Milo in Swanes, Mass. This year's formal will feature a smorgasbord style d nner which will be served from 8:30 to 9:00 p.m. Music will be by the "Twin Tones." Ticket will be $.8 per couple and ticket sales will begin Feb­ ruary 1st. The proceeds from the Friar's Club sale will be donated to Alumni Hall Cafeteria from 8:30 to 2:30 p.m. daily and in Raymond Hall during the dinner hours.

USMC on Campus Mon.

Two U.S. Marine officers will be on campus next week to dis­ cuss various officer training programs with qualified stu­ dents.

The two officers, Major John Hubbard and Captain David McClellan, are from the Marine Officers Institute located in the New England Area and will be on campus Feb. 9 and 10.

In their discussions, the offi­ cers will inform students of the Platoon Leaders Class Pro­ gram which is available to col­ lege undergraduates in the ground and aviation fields. This program is for a commission as second lieutenant in the Ma­ rine Corps Reserve upon gradu­ ation.

Also, the officers will explain the policy on law and graduate school deferments which may be available to qualified PLC's upon graduation.

The PC joins with Area Schools To Sponsor Ecology Teach-In

In support of the National Ecological Day scheduled to be observed on April 23, Provi­ dence College will join Brown University and URI in a three­ day teach-in on the implications of air pollution, water pollution, and the crisis of over popula­ tion. The program, scheduled for April 23, is designed to in­ form and move people and set the stage for the National Ecological Day.
Tenure Comm. Decision Faulted by DiNunzio

"The case is closed, but the shock of its impact is still felt. I believe the decision has been damaging to the Senate. Together with other administratives in Senate action, it could and perhaps should shaken the confidence of the faculty in the Senate. We must acknowledge that possibility and beware that the Senate is not reduced to a showcase debating club. As such it would not be worth my effort to attend the chair, nor could I continue to ask you to do the work that must be done by a Senate which happens to be ineffective."

This comment was made at the last Faculty Senate meeting by President Dr. Mario DiNunzio in reference to the Committee on Rank and Tenure's second refusal to recommend Mr. Edward C. Brennan for tenure.

On Dec. 12, the Senate held a special closed meeting to hear arguments in the Brennan Appeal case and then voted 20-1 to adopt a resolution in support of Brennan. The resolution had little affect on the Rank and Tenure Committee, however.

The Senate's resolution noted Brennan's high teaching competence and performance in his contribution to PC. Fr. Haus's assurance that he could seek other employment, and an improper procedure of the Committee as reasons for sustaining Brennan's appeal.

According to a letter from Dr. Paul K. Thomson, Chairman of the Committee on Rank and Tenure, the Committee "took cognizance of the Senate's resolution at a special meeting on Dec. 19. At this meeting, the Committee again rejected a motion to make a preliminary recommendation that Brennan be granted tenure. The vote of the Committee was 8-1."

Although Haus, not the Committee on Rank and Tenure, would have final says on grants and promotions, the psychology professor decided to resign from the faculty as of June but thus ended the controversy.

DiNunzio's remarks were prompted by the fact that the Senate's will has so little influence on the Committee. In the prepared statement he read to the Senate on Jan. 15, DiNunzio pointed out that the Senate was the only body of appeal that Brennan could turn to and said that "while the Senate's resolution was only advisory, it is more than disturbing that its advice, under the circumstances of this appeal, had so little influence."

The Senate president called the Committee's persistence in denying the recommendation of tenure "irrational." "The clear difference of judgment between the Committee and the Senate testifies that the points raised against a grant of tenure were at least debatable, there was no question of competence raised," DiNunzio said.

Also, at this meeting, Mr. George Cote, the Senate's representative to the Budget Committee, told the body that the Senate was undergoing trying times." He noted that his data concerning budget figures, rather than actual figures, for 1970-71, but he said that he was informed that the two figures were close.

Wysocki's going into reasons for the situation, Cote said that "the expenditures will be greater than the revenue or income by some million dollars." Commenting on an enrollment for next year, Cote reported that tuition enrollment is supposed to drop and 600 freshmen are projected for September. Based on a figure of 2,000 full-time day students and a "very optimistic figure" of 1,200 dorm students, he said, it is possible that the two will counteract each other.

The total projected deficit for the academic year 1970-71 will be $1.8 million. In summary, Cote commenting on the rumors around campus that the college is hurting financially and said "... it eminently is not pure gossip. It is hurting."

Following Cote's report, Business Manager Joseph Byron answered questions from the Senate in a closed session.

During the Committee reports, Dr. Rene Fortin, head of the Academic Affairs Committee, reported on the calendar change proposal. He noted that the Committee voted 4-1 to adopt a resolution calling for an academic calendar which would begin after Labor Day with the first semester ending before Christmas, followed by a 21 day break before the beginning of the second semester. This resolution was passed by the Senate with a 19-1-0 vote.

Fortin also reported that the Committee voted in favor of a resolution to acquire the adjustment of Incomplete and Absent grades recorded at the end of the academic year be completed by July 1 of that same year. The bill, passed 19-1-0, also provided that the Dean could grant an extension of this period for "a very serious reason."

It was also reported at the meeting that Fr. Charles Quirk of the Economics Dept. has resigned as a Senator because of his health. Mr. William O'Brien has been elected as a replacement.

Also, Fr. Paul James was elected to replace Edward Brennan as Secretary.

Student Unity Group To Serve as Liaison

The Committee for Student Body Unity has been established for the purpose of communicating to students issues which directly concern their Congressman.

Ted Wysocki '71, Committee chairman, feels that his Committee serves the function of liaisons between the Student Congress and the student body. Wysocki maintains that all too often in the past students have been uninformed on issues which student support is needed.

He further states that if students were more informed and consequently, unified that legislation passed by the Student Congress would in more serious consideration by the Administration.

In order to facilitate the communication process, floor captains have been appointed in each dormitory. Their function is to keep students on their floor informed on current issues and to help serve as representatives of student opinion. Presently, the committee is being made to organize a group of commuter students who would help provide a similar service.

Duke Ellington Tickets

$2.00 for Students until February 10th

As the man who makes fireproof toys about Etna.

A birthday toy. A burst of flames.

At Etna our engineering people help prevent a tragedy like this from happening. They point out tens of thousands of potential hazards each year.

Everything from wax used on supermarket floors to faulty wiring in a factory.

Helping people is something we do every day. That's what made us one of the leading companies in the world handling all kinds of insurance.

It's the kind of place where you can do good and make good, too.
Send a LoveBundle for Valentine’s Week.

Why squeeze a lot of Love into just one day?

Order a LoveBundle to arrive early.

It’s a unique arrangement designed to stretch Valentine’s Day into a week. Because the flowers will last.

Special Valentine, Only at FTD florists. At a special price.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Send a LoveBundle for Valentine’s Week.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Why squeeze a lot of Love into just one day?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Order a LoveBundle to arrive early.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It’s a unique arrangement designed to stretch Valentine’s Day into a week. Because the flowers will last.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Special Valentine, Only at FTD florists. At a special price.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Box 6575 Hollywood Florida 33021

New Library System Begun

Library books will circulate for four weeks under a new system introduced on Jan. 30. Joan Donohue, Director of the Library, announced that this new policy will be a “define improvement” for the students because of the additional two weeks allowed to renew books, and the reduced likelihood of incurring fines (for overdue books).

Commenting on the action, Donohue said, “Students’ awareness of our circulation policy may make it more difficult for some students to get the material they need, if it is already in circulation.”

“A student will now have to wait four weeks for the return of a book that has been borrowed. To avoid this problem, I ask that you to cooperate by returning material as soon as you have finished using it, rather than waiting until it is due. In this way, the resources of the library may be more effectively used by the whole college community.”

Civic Chorale Concert

The Bach Festival Chamber Orchestra and Singers of the Rhode Island Civic Chorale and Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Louis Pichieri, will present two concerts on Monday, Feb. 9, in Harkins Hall Auditorium at Providence College.

The program includes, in order, "The Cowl, February 5, 1970"
Junior Year Abroad: Candidates Sought

By DANIEL FOLEY

Providence College offers to its students each year an opportunity to grow in recognition of the world's college life styles. The College challenges its students approaching their Junior year to explore another country, another culture, and a different people. Fribourg, Switzerland, a unusually located town in Central Europe, is an adventurer's base of operations. Some of the finest minds of Europe reside in this Dominican University and thus, it is the most scenic countries in the world. It is a nurturing ground of intellectual stimulation. This setting is an example of "par excellence" of the old and the New Europe. Fribourg, Switzerland, the haven of uncluttered intellectualism, serves as Providence College's counterpart in educational exploration.

Thus, "Providence in Fribourg" is again recruiting students for the Junior Year Abroad Program. This program, in the manner of a persuasive recognition of the advantages of travel, can be of service in the order to accommodate such a recognition, Providence College is offering to present Sophomore students the opportunity to spend their academic year in Fribourg.

The University of Fribourg, situated in the valley of the Sarthe, north of the Alps, is viewed as one of the most impressive cities in one of the most beautiful countries in the world. Its elegant flavor rests in an old renaissance as one of "the only medieval towns left" in Europe. The city in which the University is located, itself, has a population of forty thousand, which accommodates both urban and rural characteristics.

The University of Fribourg is located in the center of the city and has been described as a "ville d'art et d'histoire." It attracts students from Asia and Africa, as well as from the United States. Its architectural surroundings and uniquely modern bi-lingual course offerings pose it as a leader among European universities. Its progressive curriculum lies in a rich heritage of scholarly undertakings.

The counterpart, the Junior Year Abroad Program at Providence College, runs in conjunction with two other American colleges — LaSalle and Rosary. The three schools comprise a loose-knit organization called "American College Program of the University of Fribourg." Under one program of similar intention, the ACP enjoys official recognition by the University of Fribourg and thus has become an integral part of the educational system. This means, among other things, that American students in the program are given no limitations. The entire program is under the supervision of the Resident-Director of the Providence College Modern Language Department.

To further initiate American students into the life style of the Swiss people, they are housed in private homes and apartments located near the University. This unique aspect of the program has proven most successful in the integration and understanding of another culture.

This year, twenty-seven students from Providence College are resuming their education at the University of Fribourg. From the letters that have been received from them, the reaction has been nothing less than ecstatic. The positive response on the part of the students serves as encouragement for those Sophomores who are entertaining the idea of spending a year abroad.

The twenty-seven, accompanied by thirty-seven lovelies from Rosary College, left from New York City on September 9th, sailing across the Atlantic Ocean and arriving at Le Havre, France, on September 18th. After a reception at the port, the group departed for a scenic tour around the port to Bouen where they remained for the day. The afternoon tour took them to various places of interest, among them, the famous Cathedral of Notre Dame.

The next day, they visited the Castle of Vigny on their way to Paris. While in the "City of Lights," the students, as a group, toured all of the famous sights, enjoyed a walk with dinner stop at the Eiffel Tower. The following three days found the adventures in such places as Versailles, Fontainebleau, the Magic Opera, Palace de Chaillot, Champ-Elysees, la Bastille and Concerde. After these times of exhaustive entertainment, the group departed for their destination — Fribourg. They arrived there Tuesday, September 23rd.

After their arrival at the town, individual students were taken to the homes in which they would reside for the remainder of the academic year. They were then introduced to their new "families" and given a basic introduction to their new surroundings. Following this a three week language orientation was their sole academic encounter. Yet, October was not allowed to pass without a trip to the October Beer Festival in Munich, Germany. Facts are not available as to the amount of time the students spent there.

In late October they began their school year. It will run until mid-July, the returning time for all who wish to leave Europe.

For those students who are interested in such a program, Mr. Stanley Galek of the French Department at Providence College, will serve as co-ordinator on campus. Students should make an appointment to see Mr. Galek by contacting Mrs. Lynch, secretary of the Modern Language Department, Meagher 101. The opportunity for such adventure is open to all who have the willingness to evolve into a deeper understanding of world culture.
There are so many great athletes playing organized sports these days, that you may wonder why any one or more team can dominate a particular league. The mark of a team worthy of any respectable tangible asset of teamwork and organization.
The Friar basketball team was hit by one of the basketballs and has displayed this attribute only a few times and this is why a pretty far Eastern basketball squad is only 9-7 presently.

The basketball team has been off and on all year, but perhaps we take too much for granted. How much can we expect from a team that, when Ray Johnson is on, we have four guards and one forward named Chuck Jones as against one. Dave Gavitt has done quite well with the incredible shortage of height he inherited, yet there are times the Friars have been taken less shots and becoming less of a dominant figure down the stretch.

In Sports

Tough Races Are Assured In 2 Leagues

Intramural and dorm league play resumed last week after the winter break and it appears the resident student athletes have the more intriguing finish.

The intramural race will undoubtedly be a tight battle off the two undefeated teams, the freshmen and B. A. Both are undefeated in four outings, and an ultimate showdown is expected on March 10 between the leading New Jersey in scoring and the leading New England in point making. The game will be played greatly by Dave Millonowitz and the playmaking of Emil Mininar. The Mets have been sparked by the clutch scoring of Ernie Costello and inside work of John Barrett and Denny Gorman.

The Dorm League finds the Mystics and Knights on top with 5-0 marks but they are closely followed by the Mystic Knights and Ruggens, both with 4-1 records. The Mystics and Gappo at 3-2. Brown, Millonowitz, Charlie Crandell, Frank Ursone, Dave Gavitt and John Barrett will be the Friars in prime contention.

Probably the most exciting game, the Friars vs. the Mystics took on Gappo. Joe Gartlan, who led the Friars during the first half, Bill Mullin and Marty Roach of the Knights and Bob Hull of Gappo kept the score tied through much of the second half and Gappo forged out in front by a point with seconds remaining. With a second chance to tie the score, Gartlan took an inbound pass and fired for the tie but the shot was off and the game for the Knights by one.

B-Ball

To make matters worse, the Friars took on a formidable team in the University of Rhode Island and were defeated 93-73. The Friars had already lost the two previous games against Providence and St. John's but the Friars had another big game.

The Providence College freshmen hoosiers have improved the team and have given us hope for a禀 121. All around good performances by the entire starting five and Marty was a strong force even with some key injuries. The Friars were unable to maintain a lead against URI for so long but the Friars appeared a bit flat, and played very methodically without too many big scoring outbursts. When their backs were to the wall, they kept the Friars in the game, they couldn't completely capitalize on their size and they missed an abundance of short range shots.

If the hoop team is to avoid future races of defeats, they must get Larranaga back into the center of action. Jimmy had been playing a bit carelessly, and now he is taking less shots and becoming less of a dominant figure on offense. I think the type of game he is able to play is not notably shown in the UMass opener. In the first half this year, he scored 17 points, and was a capable floor leader. We will need a sound, all-around Larranaga for victories down the stretch.

A few small complaints may be in order. First the referee system in college ball may undergo a thorough investigation if the current trend of criticism continues. It seems everyone is disappointed with the judgment calls given by the referees. Second and I believe, an excuse for any road loss by our team, but it is evident that officials are making some strange calls this year.

The hockey team has been on the road an awful lot this season. Despite their success how about balancing off the淞 at home. They have a nearly equal amount of home and away games.

Praise: Quite a few hearty students have been traveling to upstate New York, Amherst, Mass., and Phildelphia to support our teams. Anyone who wants official recognition in the paper for any upcoming ventures should notify the Sportsdesk.

Robb Sets Record To Highlight Meet

Team captain Marty Robb thrust himself into national headlines after winning the 880 yard run, by placing second in the Billing 2-Mile Run at the Boston University Track Classic last Saturday.

The heralded senior from Syosset, N.Y., took custody of second place with a lap and a half remaining and galloped home to the finish line in 1:53.34. It was the second time in his career that he has established a new school record.

Last week, at the Philadelphia University Invitational, he placed second about the exceptionally small Convention Hall board track and captured first place in 8:56.6 which was set in 1965. John McClaren, a student at the UD lost with just 12 seconds the winner of Saturday night's race.

Brown, somewhat acting as a catalyst for Marty's incredible overall year, set a new school record in the race after a mile of the race had been completed on the track. The Friar senior clocked at 4:21 for the first mile of the race. As the battle continued to develop, Robb seemed to manage in keeping in contact with the leading pack as the field of 15, including Robb, was split with five.

With one quarter of a mile to go in the race, Robb strode past his competitors and catapulted himself to the finish in a stirring off.

Undoubtedly the time establishes Marty as the No. 1 two mile runner in the East and certainly will aid him in gaining admission to the Boston University Track Classic in late June in Detroit next month. Saturday's record setting effort by Marty was a feat that even the monumental feats of Providence College standout Frank Ursone will have difficulty matching this year.

The two-mile relay team, comprised of Tommy Malloy, Mark Ambrose, Ray LaBonte, and Rich Umzone snared a fourth position in the R.A.A. Meet after a time of 7:48.46. Running in clutch from in the Handicap Two Mile Relay, the team was unable to overcome three other extremely fast teams. The Friar squad scurried home first in a time of 7:52.02. Wednesday this talented team traveled to Boston's M.I.T. to participate in the New England A.A.U. Championships. The team will try to give Brown some first title and certainly has the material to be successful in their efforts.
Amazing Pucksters in High Gear

Despite Persistent Injuries, Skaters Rank High In Area

Hockey is now back in swing for the Friars after the exam break. Such an extended break is always hard for any team, but the Friars have been able to stay sharp and have been playing well. The team has been working hard to get back into form and is looking to build on the strong performance against Bowling Green.

The Friars won the third game of the series against Bowling Green and dominated the game, showing all of Providence and the Atlantic Hockey Conference a glimpse of what the team is capable of. The win came on the backs of two goals from sophomores Jerry Leschyshyn and Chris Ciceri, who have been performing exceptionally well this season.

For a while the Friar baskets have been a bit thin, but the team has been able to score in a game that was high-scoring. The Friars are starting to find their rhythm and are looking like a team that can compete for the conference championship. The team is currently ranked third in Atlantic Hockey and is looking to continue their winning streak.

The Friars are also looking to make a statement in the ECAC East Division, and with two games against Colgate and RPI in the next few weeks, they have the opportunity to prove themselves. The team is currently second in the conference and is looking to move up to first.

The Friars have also been able to practice their defense, which has been a concern for the team in the past. The team is looking to improve their defense and keep their opponents off the board.

For the Friars, the season is only halfway over, and they have the opportunity to prove themselves as a team that can compete at the highest level. The team is looking to make a statement in the conference and is looking to build on their strong performances to date.

Amazing Pucksters in High Gear

Despite Persistent Injuries, Skaters Rank High In Area

The Friars have been playing well despite injuries to key players. The team has been able to compensate for the losses and has been performing exceptionally well. The team is currently second in Atlantic Hockey and is looking to continue their winning streak.

The Friars have also been able to practice their defense, which has been a concern for the team in the past. The team is looking to improve their defense and keep their opponents off the board.

For the Friars, the season is only halfway over, and they have the opportunity to prove themselves as a team that can compete at the highest level. The team is looking to make a statement in the conference and is looking to build on their strong performances to date.

Half the season has passed for the Friar sextet without the lineup which has its ups and downs. Assistant coach Brian Smiley. With these two players out of action the line-up, Violand shocked off the cobwebs which grew on him from his two months on the bench, hit six of nine from the field, and scored a team high 15 points. But Violand will be remembered for one play in that game in which he didn't score, but nonetheless, a play which won the ballgame.

The Friars and Redmen went into a five minute overtime stanza, tied at 2, after the Johnnies' Jim Smyth missed a last second shot by a few inches. With St. John's leading 57-56, Coach Dave Gavitt decided to play the game in overtime. Lewis and Violand trapped Mike Kielty in his own back- court, and Mike Kielty ran into a well-positioned Violand for an offensive foul. Callen subsequently made a hero out of Violand and himself by putting in an offensive rebound off Ralph Abraham and scoring the game winner with 8 seconds showing on the clock. This was no fluke for Callen who scored 8 points and snared the identical amount of rebounds.

Lewis played an outstanding defensive game, although his shooting was off (3-10). At 5'11" Lewis was completely shut off the Redmen's leading scor- er, 6'4" Joe DePre. It wasn't that the star forward was suf- fering from an off night in his shooting; the Johnnies just couldn't get the ball to him for the easy layup.

Providence College began the Christmas break by defeating then unbeaten DePaul, 79-78 at Chicago. The Charlotte Invita- tional was a disaster. Syracuse and Holy Cross topped the Friars in the four team turnney, ultimately won by Davidson.

PC dumped Fairfield, 76-56 on Jan. 3, and then came a close 63-62 victory over the BC Eagles. The Eagles came into that game with a 4-6 mark and showed all of Providence and a