Stresses "Planning"

TO: The Cowl
FROM: Thomas R. Peterson, O.P.
DATE: September 10, 1973

Progress is the best link between the present and the future. Progress demands planning and planning requires the mature thought of many people. If a college is to plan for its future it must know and evaluate its heritage in order that its curriculum, flexible enough to provide for the needs of the present, may assure that the proven best of the past will perdure. It must provide an atmosphere of concern for the entire academic community and stress the obligation to serve these needs. Providence College must rely in its planning process of its faculty, its administration and its alumni. It needs also the insight and enthusiasm of its students as it helps them to plan for their future and to plan for its own. The seriousness of this commitment is demonstrated rather strongly by the fact that a student now serves on the Committee on Administration and students will shortly be added to the Providence College Corporation.

A successful future requires that serious planning constantly take place. By their cooperation, students can have an effective and significant part in this progress at Providence College.

Student Participation

GREETINGS

The summer vacation has gone, and now September brings us all together again to start a new academic year. Welcome back to P.C.!

As you know well, college is a place to learn and to grow. The seriousness with which you devote yourselves to your courses and studies will constitute your main concern in your learning process. But learning and growing will not be confined to the classroom and the library alone. Learning and growing are a part of a total process.

There are many opportunities for students to make college life more than a book and classroom experience. Through participation in the Student Congress, the Board of Governors, and the Dormitory Councils, students will have the opportunity to cooperate with the administration and faculty in forming policies which govern their academic and social life. Clubs and organizations, as varied as the talents found in a college of over two thousand students, invite your active participation. The newly reorganized intramural program offers an excellent opportunity for men and women.

I urge every undergraduate to participate in some form in the extra-curricular activities which are intended to supplement and to fulfill the learning and growing process while at Providence College.

Granato's Opening Address

After meeting with Fr. Peterson on several occasions in the past week, I am struck by the fact that a unity of ideas exists between the Congress and the President of the College. It seems that an atmosphere of co-operation is no longer a student "pipe dream", but a reality.

At our first meeting, Father and I agreed upon immediate action in several very important areas. For one, a committee to discuss the revision of the Counseling Center. This Committee will hopefully explore new programs which would make the Counseling center much more than a placement and clinical counseling office. We agreed that the counseling center has many possibilities other than the latter which could be very beneficial to the student body. Details on this Committee will be worked out in the near future.

Father Peterson also discussed his plans for a report concerning the direction and future goals of the College. This again would involve student participation in the actual mapping out of these projections. Discussion also has centered around the problems confronting Raymond Hall cafeteria, the acquisition of recreational facilities for the student, the institution of various new security changes on Campus, the possibility of a student security operation in Slavin Center, and last but not least, the possibilities of a Faculty evaluation in the area of Rank and Tenure.

On Thursday of last week, an informal gathering of the Student Congress, Board of Governors and the Cowl Staff was held at the President's house. Father Peterson opened the meeting with an announcement of the new policy changes enacted over the summer. His first remarks centered around the new parietal hours and the approval, by the Corporation, of a proposal to seat a student representative on the Corporation. For the first time, a student of Providence College will be allowed to sit with full membership privileges on this body. Provisions were also made to seat a junior member or apprentice member on the Corporation. The apprentice would have the power of voice but would not be able to vote. Details of the method of election and succession will be forthcoming in future editions of the Cowl. I might add however, that I feel this step to be of great importance in the area of Student representation, and I wish to thank Fr. Peterson and all those involved in the work to attain this position.

Discussion with Fr. Peterson on these matters along with the announcements he's made have given me cause to look to the coming year with great optimism. As long as this spirit of working together exists I am sure that great strides will be made in all areas of concern.

Student Increase Crowds Dorms

As many students have probably already noticed, the number of residents on campus has considerably increased this year. In fact, the 1335 dorm students occupy all but 10 of the available 1345 spaces. There is an increase of 270 in comparison to last year.

In anticipation of the increased enrollment, the Administration left the housing situation in the hands of the Director of Residence's Office, giving them the option of exercising a cut-off point. According to Col. Andrew Del Corso, Assistant Director of Residence, everyone who requested a room, including transfer students, was accommodated, and applications were still being accepted as late as August 26. Temporary housing was needed for 13 of the residents, but as of last Friday only 2 remained in such, and they are expected to be permanently housed by the end of this week.

One of the problems of having so many on campus is the lack of flexibility, especially with male residents. Incompatible roommates may find it harder procuring better living conditions.

Repairs were undertaken on a large scale in Joseph Hall. Roughly over $20,000 was spent (N.C.A.A. returns if you will recall) putting in new floors, refurbishing bathrooms, and painting the walls. Other dorms painted were McVinney, Chapin, Meagher, Guzman, and Raymond Halls. Chapin will soon be furnished with fireproof doors also.

Col. DelCorso also stated that an improvement is being sought in the services rendered by Scientific Cleaning. If this doesn't happen in the near future, a recommendation will be sent to the Administration to seek another bid.

Student Administrator On Campus

A very important personal achievement has been laying fallow since last March. I speak of Larry Tirone who is presently the student representative on the committee on administration. Larry is a member of the class of '74. He has served the student body in many ways. For two years Tirone has been a class representative. Presently, he is chairman of the student bill of rights committee as well as a student administrator.

Providence College is one of the few institutions in the country with a student administrator. The committee on administration is the major advisory board to the

As far as Security is concerned, last year's policy will be continued in Women's dormitories, and a guard has been assigned to Chapin Hall between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. In addition to this, Raymond Hall will have new combination locks, hopefully by December. This will be an experimentation which will be recommended for all the dormitories if successful. The combination locks will reduce theft and loss of keys.

Last Thursday evening, the President held an informal gathering for the student congress and he discussed the role of a student administrator. Fr. Peterson stressed the importance of the student input and how well Tirone fills the capacity. Larry's contributions add the vitality that only a student can.

A student administrator has long been sought by the college community at large. It is now very much a working reality. For those interested, further information is available at the student congress office.

Rising Costs Effect Meals

by Stephen Silvestri

"No one will go hungry at Providence College." In this manner, Mr. Murphy, food services director, promised the student body at Providence College meals with abundant portions.

Recent beef shortages and high food prices have affected many consumers this summer. Providence College, regrettably, is also one of many institutions greatly affected by skyrocketing prices and dwindling supplies.

Many commuter students who eat regularly at Alumni cafeteria have noticed an increase in prices. For example, last year a regular meal at Alumni cafeteria cost eighty cents, but this year, the price has risen to ninety-five cents.

Resident students at P.C. are not as greatly affected as students at some of the other colleges in this area. At the University of Rhode Island, for example, students must live without seconds on main courses.

According to the food services department, serving cheaper meals and limiting the choice of main course meals to one will provide for the shortage and high price of meat. Mr. Murphy emphasized, "the food is of the same high quality that it has always been."

Unfortunately, the worst is not over. When the price freeze lifts on September 12, no one is sure to what extent the prices will increase, but one thing is certain: they will increase. The general effect this will have on the College is that both cafeterias will operate at a deficit this year. According to

Faculty Elects Senators

Amidst the excitement of post-season basketball play and the insanity of final exams, one seemingly minor event the faculty senate elections, slipped passed campus attention virtually unnoticed last semester. A slate of candidates led by the then incumbent senate president, Dr. Miner, was resoundingly routed by a slate of liberal independents led by such notables as John F. Henedy of the English department and Mario DiNunzio of the History department. All of the fourteen at large seats were captured by the independent candidates. Others on the newly elected slate included: Brian M. Barbour, English; Richard Grace, History; Charles F. Duffy, English; Neil T. Romans, Political Sci.; Arthur Jackson, Philosophy; Richard A. Lambe, Psychology; Francis P. McKay, Chemistry; Stephen J. Mecca, Physics; Norman R. Noel, Economics; James J. Tattersall, Math.; Thomas L. Fallon, O.P. Relig. Studies; and Laurant Gousie. Presently a petition is being drawn up to convene a meeting. The most likely date of the first meeting will be October 3.

Heavy Thunderstorms Inflict Water Damage

by J. Nowakowski

An explosive afternoon thunderstorm caused extensive flooding Thursday in and around the Providence area. The storm was triggered off when the leading edge of a cold front collided with the hot humid air that had kept most of New England in the worst heat wave of the summer. According to the Providence Journal, the storm had caused some of the worst flooding in Providence and Pawtucket since the hurricane of 1954, dumping 2.09 inches of rain in two hours.

The storm also caused a power failure when lightning struck power lines and an electric company substation in North Providence. Nearly 3,000 people, including Providence College, were without power for more than an hour. The extent of the damage inflicted on Providence College was negligible. Slight flooding occurred in Harkins Hall and Slavin Center, but according to Mr. Cardillo, the head of the maintenance department, the storm was really nothing to worry about. It's just that the storm sewers backed up under the turgid run-off that the storm produced. What the flooding really meant was a few extra hours of mopping up.

Effective as of September 7, 1973, Henry Golembeski has resigned as President of the Board of Governors. Consequently, as Vice-President of Programming, I have decided to take office as President, effective September 9. With the experience of my position behind me, I feel I can give the leadership and direction that is needed. The B.O.G. has strong potential for interpreting the needs of the campus and expressing them in a balanced program which will be appealing but varied. I plan to implement the needed changes that are necessary to realize this goal.

In future issues of The Cowl I will state B.O.G. policies and goals.

Chaplains Welcome Freshman Class

The Cowl has generously offered me the opportunity to welcome back the classes of '74, '75 and '76 and to welcome for the first time the class of '77. On behalf of myself and the other chaplains, Fr. Di Noia and Fr. Quigley, I do so. It is good to have you all here.

Copies of the religious activities schedule have been placed in your mail boxes and on various bulletin boards around the campus. In addition to what is listed there, the Charismatic Prayer Group meets on Thursday evenings at 7:30 p.m. in Aquinas Chapel.

We do need people to help with the liturgy: singers, musicians, readers. If you can help, please come to a short meeting on Thursday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. in the Slavin Center, Room 217.

Fr. Di Noia, Fr. Quigley and myself are available in our offices or rooms for counselling, advice, listening. So, if we can be of assistance, don't hesitate to call or stop by. Have a good year!

Women's Liason Committee Established

To a request made by President Thomas R. Peterson O.P. last January, the Women's Liaison Committee has been established in order that a direct line of communication between the Office of the President and the women on campus may exist. The five members of the committee elected by the faculty and the administration are Mrs. Helen Bert, Mrs. Sally Czachor, Ms. Jane Lunin, Ms. Donna Mc Caffrey, and Sr. Leslie Straub. The two students who were selected and have agreed to serve on the committee are Cynthia Kranich '76, and Elaine Ward '75.

Student Congress NSA Member

This year, the PC Student Congress will be a member of the National Student Association, the national organization for student governments in the US. Through the NSA, PC students have been offered a life insurance program with low rates plus coverage can continue through age 33. While the SC doesn't handle the program, like the CNA accident and health plan, we do feel, that all students should have some type of insurance coverage while they are in school.

The NSA sent out information this summer, with the approval of the SC, to most of the student body, but if you did not get their brochure and are interested, please contact anyone in the SC office. They will give you the phone number and address of the NSA, who will help you. If any students are interested in the CNA accident and health plan, please see Student Affairs or Fr. Duffy's office, as the SC no longer handles the plan per se.

We received a stipend from the NSA this summer, which we used to pay our initiation fee. As a member, we are able to make use of their computer and research facilities, as well as attend any and all conferences, conventions, and of course, the student lobby.

The Committee's statement of purpose is as follows: "In this transitional phase of the co-educational development of the college, we are a temporary committee whose function is to keep the administration aware of the many dimensions of the role of women at Providence College. We have been elected by the Women Faculty and Women Administrators in response to request made by Rev. Thomas R. Peterson for a liaison committee to the president. Our concerted efforts will be directed ultimately to the well-being of the entire college community."

The first project on the Women's Liaison Committee's agenda is a get-acquainted gathering for all campus women. This will be held on Wednesday, September 19, in Aquinas Lounge between 3:00 and 5:00 p.m. This meeting will hopefully let students know that the women faculty and administrative members are interested in the problems of students, realizing that they share a number of mutual ones. The afternoon will serve as a sounding board which will give direction to subcommittees which will immediately begin work on the most pressing issues. These committees will report directly to the President. All further notices concerning the Women's Liaison Committee will be placed in the mailboxes.

PCYGC Seeks New Members

Is it possible for one to know where he is at present and still be lost? If the person wasn't sure of where he was going then, yes, he would be lost. Lost in a sense, not knowing his abilities or his limitations. He may not know how to use the former to overcome the latter.

Surely many of us at Providence College have at one time wondered about our futures in this way. What can I do to help myself, to help others? What will I do in the future? What type of career will I enter?

Answers to questions like these certainly could tell a person a lot about himself. Sometimes these answers can be found in our relations with others more easily than alone by ourselves. There are many opportunities around for forming such relationships.

One such opportunity, right here on campus, is the Big Brothers and Sisters Organization, formally known as the Providence College Youth Guidance Club. The aim of the Big Brothers-Sisters is to provide friendship, and through this friendship, guidance to the children of the O'Rourke Children Center. These children are in desperate need of help. Their situations are almost always sad and difficult to say the least. The greatest danger they face is that of living in a state institution from day to day. They are in danger of not caring even for themselves. Many already are close to this.

Aid Resources Appear Low

In an interview with Fr. John Peterson, o.p., Director of Financial Aid at P.C., the colors of a cautioned optimism painted the future for Financial aid to needy Providence College students.

Without a doubt, the amount of resources available for Fr. Peterson's office's use in help to needy students has received serious challenges from the Nation's fiscal situation. Indications are that education will remain low on the present Administration's priority list for allocation of federal money.

Fr. Peterson's optimism stems from his trust that many PC students will not necessarily be affected by aid reductions, if his office can analyze each student's case early in the year. With an accurate analysis can come sharp planning for the student's rescue from a possible premature termination of matriculation at P.C.

In the near future a more detailed account of the financial aid situation will appear in this newspaper.

What each of these children needs is an older individual they can talk to, be friends with. They need to know somebody cares. All of them need good example and guidance, something they couldn't find in their family situation. A big brother-sister doesn't need to be there all the time, maybe one hour a week. To know that someone isn't being paid to be your friend or to care about you is very important to these kids.

If you are interested in finding out a few things about yourself, about others or about wrongs that need righting in the world, then you ought to join Big Brothers and Sisters. Anyone who cares can join, the first general meeting will be Tuesday, September 18, at 6:30 p.m., in room 203 Slavin Center.

MEMO FROM THE EDITOR

"Welcome Home"

Just a week ago, Providence College awoke from its annual summer siesta. With sun-tanned spirits and renewed energies, we return now to our offices, our dorms, our classrooms, our home.

For many, summer is a time for rest, for reflection, for growth. We have prepared ourselves with the strength necessary for chores of the year. Long before summer, deep in the heart of last semester, we pledged that this year's Cowl would fulfill its responsibility as the bearer of information and analysis about our community. A vehicle, which perhaps alone, can reach, affect and direct every facet of Providence College. The Cowl this year will realize its responsibilities. We have the internal structure with which to reach this goal. We need, however, manpower. The task is a hard one. It will require much serious, tedious and hard work before we can term our job successful. Every individual at Providence College will be called upon to participate. We trust that our call to action will be heeded.

To many, the term "Home" does not, and could never, be used for Providence College. Before its fullest potentials are actualized as an institution of higher learning, though, and, more, as a community, Providence College has to become the Home of all affiliated with it.

Anticipating our goal in full confidence, we offer to all: "Welcome Home."

Sincerely,
Denis Kelly

Farewell

The Editorial Board and staff of The Cowl join with all of Providence College in wishing those participating in this year's Junior-Year-Aboard program a warm Bon Voyage. We all hope that your year in Europe will be educational, but more, enjoyable and fulfilling. We look forward to frequent correspondence with you until your return, and more, sharing in your growth upon your return.

Cooperation

A unified student voice is a necessary condition for the implementation of student goals. It is in this spirit that the Cowl will be directing its efforts this year. This issue and hopefully all forthcoming issues will be closely related to the progress that has been made in policy areas of the college. The key word is progress.

This year the Cowl will work closely with the administration, the student congress, and the faculty senate not only to promote student interests but also to bring the problems to the reader as they arise. The Cowl should and will be the active voice of the college community. Each of the three bodies have been assigned a liaison to facilitate good journalistic investigation. I feel that a far greater degree of credibility will be established with this type of organization. The Cowl's goal is to become not only a student voice but a college newspaper.

The first area of concern is the student congress. This edition is the result of a collaborative effort between Cowl reporters and student government people. I hope that many questions are answered.

The second area of concern deals with the administration. Editors of the Cowl have already met with the President. He has expressed his willingness to be of service to the college community in any way he can. He assured the editors that his office and his mind will be open and ready to cooperate. It is with good faith that this statement was made; I only hope that faith in this instance becomes a reality.

The faculty senate is our third area of concern. In the past, the senate has been less helpful as a community sponsor. Hopefully this year an honest attempt will be made to respond to the students' right to know. Every student on this campus realizes the faculty members' role as one-third of the college community. It is now time for the faculty senate to realize the students' potential as a constructive element which may be called upon at any time to render their ideas in a cooperative way.

Locked In

As an unfortunate consequence of the new perimeter security fence in front of Alumni Hall, leaving campus is as difficult as entering. People leaving campus after locking-up time and intending to go toward Admiral Street must walk to the Power Plant pedestrian gate which may or may not be open. If closed the detour for those who cannot or do not want to jump the low fence there continues to the Huxley Avenue exit. If this situation is unintended as The Cowl presumes some accommodation seems in order. A later closing time or a "subway exit-only" door would alleviate this situation in front of Alumni Hall and simply leaving the Power Plant pedestrian gate open at all times would not reduce campus security significantly.

Let's Bring Back

Several years ago there was a publication on campus known as the Student Directory containing both home and local addresses and telephone numbers of all day school undergraduates. The Cowl feels that it would be a good idea to revive this directory. With increasing enrollment and wider geographical representation coupled with the demise of regional clubs it has become increasingly less likely for people who come from the same area to meet one another.

BOG to Present Broadway Musical

by Barbara Quinn

On September 20th at 8 p.m. the Providence College Board of Governors will present "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" performed by the Alive Company. You may ask who is Jacques Brel, and how it came to be that a group of people made a musical based on his music.

Born a little more than thirty years ago, he has been for the past ten years establishing his career not only as the most popular singer-composer in France, but as the conscience of his people as well. Evident in all his songs are his savage humor, integrity, humanism and his revulsion of hypocrisy. The themes of his songs are concerned with war and death and degradation and disease and dirt. Brel also sings about love; not the love of starry nights and goodnight kisses, but about love that is also hate, as well as love in the shadows. Above all, he sings about his love for and of the people and his deep respect and love for life. Jacques Brel is an entertainer who happens to be a poet. In his apolitical way he prefers to write of the human condition of the human comedy, rather than romanticize.

"Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" opened in New York on January 22nd, 1968. Within a few weeks it grew steadily into a monumental hit — with smashing reviews. The thunderous four-year success of the shows New York run is history, proving itself to be — in the words of the Village Voice — "The most influential and innovative musical of many years."

With the presentation of "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" in New York and around the country, American audiences have had their first exposure to Brel's work in English. Brel's intense belief in the human spirit and his talent to translate this into songs whose images are sharp, precise and frighteningly beautiful is appropriately transmitted through the English translations. For those who can not recall ever hearing Brel's work, one of his more famous songs is "If We Only Have Love."

The Alive Company's production is now in its second tour year to the college and university communities of the United States and Canada. This close-knit unit of beings numbering ten, of which The Alive Company is comprised is referred to from within (and, more often than not, from without) as The Alive People. They are all involved in the production by choice, wishing to share Brel with you — to celebrate the joy of life as it is.

The Board of Governors hopes that students will enjoy this production of pure entertainment. Tickets are $1.00 with Providence College I.D. and $2.00 for others.

The following is a statement released to the Cowl by the Student Congress Executive Board on Friday, September 7, 1973.

"We wish to publicly thank and commend Father Peterson for his actions concerning student representation on the Committee on Administration and the Corporation, security revisions, and the changes in the parietal structure.

These are progressive strides for Providence College, allowing greater student representation and participation in policy making and expanding the individual student's freedom.

It is our sincere hope that the good will now existing between the Administration and the Student Congress will continue."

Ring Committee Announces Plans for Weekend in Nov.

To the Class of 1975,

Junior Ring Weekend, the annual and traditional social event for Providence College juniors, is slated for November 9, 10 and 11. Bids will be on sale in Slavin Center by the Rathskellar from October 1 until November 1. Price for the bids, which will gain you admittance to all Junior Ring Weekend events, will be $25. A $10 deposit can be placed during this same period with the balance to be paid before noon on November 9. This deposit, we regret to inform you, has to be non-refundable since we have to give the Chateau de Ville an accurate head count of those attending at least ten days before the dinner-dance.

The weekend activities will include:

Friday, November 9:

Gay 90's Party sponsored by Class of '76. Members of '75 and their guests gain free admittance.

Saturday, November 10:

Afternoon — Football at Hendricken Field. P.C. vs. Westchester.

Evening — Dinner-Dance at the Chateau de Ville, Warwick Mall, Warwick, R.I. Class rings distributed at 7:45 p.m. Dinner will be served at 8:30 p.m. (will include roast round of beef, as many servings as you please, oven roast potato, French string beans almondine, tossed salad, ambrosia, rainbow fudge fantasy, and champagne toast.) Open bar and dancing will follow and continue until 12:30 a.m.

After the dinner-dance: Tentatively scheduled is some type of get together on campus after Chateau.

Sunday, November 11:

Mass and Brunch for juniors.

The rings will be distributed the night of the dinner-dance at the Chateau-de-Ville. Final payment on the rings, however, must be made at any time before Ring Weekend at the College Bookstore in Harkins Hall. If your ring is not paid for in full before November 9, you will not receive your ring at the dinner-dance. Rings not paid for before the weekend will be held at the bookstore and picked up at any time thereafter.

The Ring Committee has worked many long hours in planning Ring Weekend. The success of the weekend is totally dependent on your attendance.

Any questions concerning class rings or the Ring Weekend activities can be answered by either of the Ring Committee co-chairmen, Pete Cincogrono or Jack Rudnick. Any of the class officers or Ring Committee members will also be available to answer questions during the sale of bids.

Additional signs, flyers, and Cowl articles will follow with reminders and additional information. A class meeting is also tentatively scheduled for early October. Thank you.

Free Student Book Co-op Successful

by Mary McKee

Apathy at P.C.? Possibly. But what would you say if I told you about a small group of people who, for no personal gain, devoted their time to a student service.

The Student Book Co-op was their project to buy used books for a course. You have to scan the lists scattered around campus until you find what you want. Then you have to track down the owner of the books and complete the transaction. It's been my idea for some time that a book co-op could organize this process and make things a lot easier for both buyer and seller. Finally, with the financial backing of the Student Congress, the idea became a reality.

While you were enjoying those last few weeks of summer Barbara Jackson and myself were sticking address labels, stuffing envelopes and sorting by zip code the 2,000 letters that were sent to all upperclassmen.

This semester we had planned to just test the co-op. The response we received truly amazed us. Last Thursday we set up a table in Slavin Center. The volume of sales was TREMENDOUS.

We are so encouraged by the success that next semester we would like to have a "book fair" in which we would have one day when anyone with books to sell can set up their own table in the multipurpose room. It would probably be more efficient and more fun.

Anyone who would like help plan for such an event should look for notice of our meeting around mid-semester.

What appears to me to be the most significant aspect of the co-op was the cynical attitude of some students. I suppose that after you've competed to get into college where you'll learn to adjust and prosper in a competitive society, it's impossible to believe that anyone will go to a lot of trouble for no monetary gain. Well it happened here. When all the bookkeeping has been completed it's for certain that the Book Co-op will not make a profit. But I do have something to show for my efforts for through the co-op I've met some very fine people — Richard, Kevin, Linda, Steve, and many more like them.

If you would like to join our book co-op, you'll be more than welcome. And if we've helped you with no demands of reciprocity — then pass it on.

Rising Costs (con't.)

Mr. Murphy, Alumni cafeteria operated at a deficit also last year. The only unknown factor is how much money will be lost.

Other difficulties are hindering the smooth operation of the food services department. Because the wholesaler is holding back on big orders for fear prices will rise in transit, Mr. Murphy has been forced to cut his normal stock of nine months of supplies to just a scant three weeks. Now, instead of buying huge quantities of food, Mr. Murphy must buy by the month and in some cases by the week.

In addition to this problem, there is the problem of employee wages. This year, according to Mr. Murphy, every employee in the food services department received a raise and additional fringe benefits. Also every student employed by the food services department is receiving $1.80 per hour instead of the minimum $1.60.

It was learned that students could get undesirable items off the menu simply by discussing them with officials of the food services department. Mr. Murphy stated that the best way to do this is through a food committee. A food committee of elected students sponsored by the Carolan Club, had been in operation until last May, but it is now defunct. Mr. Murphy commented that he would change any unwanted item on the menu after discussion with a food committee and after another item in the same price range as that of the undesirable item is agreed upon.

It was noted that a food committee would not only benefit students, but also benefit officials of the food services department in that there would be less waste and subsequently less money lost.

This is the year the Cowl becomes . . .

A Freshman Viewpoint

Summer Orientation

by David Plamondon

The basic concept of a Freshman Orientation, especially a summer orientation, is a good one. It shows foresight on the part of those who conceived the idea, as well as sympathy for the incoming class. The main thing that the program managed to do was provide an atmosphere where conversation and interaction of feelings and ideas reduced the anxiety and fear of the totally new college environment. The orientation occurring at the beginning of the summer rather than during the first few days of school saved many freshmen a good deal of worry as well as making the first few days of school a little saner.

A sensitivity on the part of those in charge of the program (especially the students) and the involvement of the freshmen themselves, not the actual planned activities, are what made the program a useful working venture. In the end it was the trip to Brad's, the conversation in the Pit, and especially the talks with upper classmen that did more for the freshmen than the more mundane discussions with the Chaplain or Father Heath.

There is little that could be done to either help or hurt the scope of the program as a whole. A campus tour is only a campus tour and there is nothing that will make one particularly exciting, but by the same token a tour remains a necessary part of becoming acquainted with the campus. Even activities that seemed barely useful or downright boring gave the student some insight to campus life.

Supposing that everyone in this world will object to something it follows that it is impossible to please everyone at once. Out of a class of approximately 800 students there must have been those who hated, as well as loved the orientation program. There was, however, a decided flow of opinion against the "testing" program. Whether or not these psychological and aptitude tests are truly necessary is a debatable subject, but the question that comes to mind a little more readily is, "Are the tests functional?" When some of the students ignore them completely, some rush through them giving small consideration to the questions, and still others write down the most ridiculous answers possible just to be funny — the functioning ability of these questionnaires must be severely impaired. Even the nature of the questions themselves was at least slightly offensive to one and all, making these "tests" the lowspot of an enjoyable two days.

Closing on a lighter note: It seemed that what finally emerged from two days of orientation was a functional working knowledge of life at Providence College, and something that goes a little deeper—a general feeling of what P.C. is all about.

Frosh Elections Scheduled

The first meeting of the class of '77 will convene on Wednesday, September 13th, at 2:30 in the '64 Hall. At that time Kurt Foerster, vice president of the freshman class will lead the discussion of upcoming class elections.

Student officers play an important role in the college community. Besides their duties in determining class goals and direction, the president, vice president, secretary treasurer, and five class representatives are seated on the Student government with the leaders of the other three classes. The position of social chairman is one devoted exclusively to class activities.

During the week of Sept. 17th and 21st freshmen will be asked to nominate for office those individuals they judge to best suited for the task of class leadership. Each candidate must submit a nomination sheet with a minimum of fifty and maximum of sixty signatures to show classmates' support of his candidacy.

The official campaign period is restricted to two days September 24th and 25th. During that time each person can hang five signs and two banners, but any flyers or mass produced materials are not allowed. The campus media are also available for publicity. Members of The Cowl and WDOM staffs are available to discuss their own guide lines for campaign advertising. In addition each presidential and vice presidential candidate is allotted five minutes to speak to the assemble and class. All other candidates are allotted three minutes each.

Election date is scheduled for Wednesday, September 26th from 9:30 to 3 p.m. in the lower level of the Slavin Center.

To serve your class can be a personal growth experience but all student involvement is essential to a vital campus community. No matter what your own talents may be in leading or being lead. Support your class!

91.3 FM A New Look

WDOM, Providence College's FM radio station, will begin its broadcasting schedule for the 1973-74 school year on Sunday, September 16, it was announced this week by Acting General Manager Gregory Varian.

Varian presented a list of widely varied programming in the works, explaining that "we've got to have something for everybody if we want people to listen, especially since we're a non-commercial station." In the works for WDOM is a full slate of educational programming, some of which will be presented in coordination with certain courses offered by the College. Music will also form a principal part of the station's daily schedule. Student-produced news broadcasts will continue on a daily basis, with the help of facilities provided by the Mutual Broadcasting System and United Press International. WDOM will expand its coverage of P.C. sports this year, adding Friars football to the roster along with hockey and girls' basketball.

Varian also noted that a meeting will be held on Thursday, September 13 at 8:00 p.m. for potential new staff members in Room 203 of the Slavin Center: "I'd like to see a big turnout. We're always looking for new talent, and just about any kind of skill can help us in some way."

WDOM remained on the air throughout the summer, operated by staff members who live in the Providence area. Despite the loss of its principal audience — the Providence College community — the station gained a considerable following among residents of the Providence area.

Granato (con't.)

Within the Congress itself, we are instituting various new house cleaning projects. As the College is in a period of change, so also are the needs of the Student Body and its representative organizations. Because of this then, I find that we must reconstruct various segments of the Congress. The major area of my concern is the Board of Governors. While remaining independent from the Congress, I feel that unless more organization and responsibility are constructed, the B.O.G. will worsen it's already chaotic situation. Therefore, as I have said, I wish to see the Board of Governors remain independent from the Congress as a segment of the Union Council, but not become oblivious to student interest. A meeting of the Advisory Board has already taken place and decisions are forthcoming which would make the B.O.G. more responsible to the Congress. Areas including expenditures, elections, recall procedures, financial reports, in short, general organizational revision. For the time being, while the Advisory Board and the Board of Governors reorganize themselves, the Congress has taken steps which I believe will insure a continued operation. For one, the budget of the Board of Governors has been frozen. The Congress will assume its constitutional rights as the guiding force behind the organization. I sight Article Four, section B, of the Board of Governors shall report to the Student Congress any expenditure in excess of $25 which expenditure is subject to the advice and consent of the Student Congress.

The Congress has also expanded this year to include an Athletic Council. As a sub-committee of the Congress, it is hoped that this council will be able to unify every athletic segment of the school in the area of policy making. A clearer explanation can be found elsewhere in The Cowl.

To replace the now defunct Carolan Club, the Congress is instituting a Resident Committee. As in the Athletic Council a chairman will be elected from the Student Body, and will be seated in the Congress with full membership privileges. The major concern of this committee shall be to organize and construct the dormitory councils. Once the dormitory councils are organized, it will be the duty of this committee to insure that they are working properly. I believe that the possibilities within good councils are limitless. A detailed outline of the workings of this committee will be issued by the Congress in the very near future.

In future issues of The Cowl we hope to provide detailed explanations of the working operations of the student organizations on campus. Any questions you may have regarding anything published will gladly be answered by a simple visit to the Congress office. So in short, here's to a good year!

Social Committee Plans Semester

At this time the Social Committee of the B.O.G. is busy making plans for upcoming events this semester. An attempt is being made to schedule a number of diversified activities that will be of interest to the students.

The co-chairpersons of the Social Committee would like to take this opportunity to sincerely apologize for not having shown the movies scheduled for last Saturday night. Due to circumstances beyond our control, the films did not arrive in time for showing.

Because of the debt incurred in the past by the Film Society and our very limited budget, it is not financially feasible to show films on a weekly basis. Instead they will be shown as THE MOVIE OF THE MONTH.

This Friday, September 14th, the Social Committee will present its first selection, LOVERS AND OTHER STRANGERS, at 8:00 p.m. in the '64 Hall of Slavin Center. The film deals with a comic chain-reaction, started when two college students decide to get married after a year of living together. The reaction of their parents is hilarious!

If the response to this film is favorable, two showings of the films will be held in the future.

For the other months we have scheduled SACCO AND VINZETTI, and the FOX. Edgar Allen Poe's shockers, THE HOUSE OF USHER and THE TERROR, will be featured at a pre-Halloween special on October 27th.

Throughout this semester there will also be several free video tape programs presented at times during the day and evening in the lower level of Slavin Center. These will include conversations with such well known personalities as William F. Buckley and Daniel Ellsberg, Lenny Bruce Without Tears, and the Chicken Little Comedy Show. The latter being shown several times throughout this week.

Among the activities tentatively planned is the organizing of a car pool for apple picking in Northern R. I. late in October.

Once again the student body will have the opportunity to participate in the P.C. annual tour of Narragansett Brewery. The narrative of the host, John English, and the free beer afterwards are treats not to be missed.

In December, a bus trip will be organized to New York City. It is planned that students will have the opportunity to do Christmas shopping, ice skate at Rockefeller Center, dine and see a Broadway show.

Anyone with any ideas or suggestions for the Social Committee please contact Barbara Quinn or Bruce Vealey at the Board of Governor's Office, Rm. 212, Slavin Center.

Resolution Concerning Student Membership on the Corporation

Resolution concerning student membership on the Corporation of Providence College, passed June 24, 1973

The Corporation shall propose annually, for a one-year term, a student member from the incoming Senior Class of the College with voice and vote and a student observer from the incoming Junior Class of the College without voice and vote, but with preferred status for succession to membership position, from among candidates previously nominated by the student body. The manner of nominating such students shall be determined by the administration of the College, after having first consulted the Student Congress. Should for any reason the student member or the student observer cease to be a student of the College in good standing, he or she would automatically cease to be a member of the Corporation. The unexpired term would then be filled through nominations in the manner specified above.

The Board of Governors presents the movie of the month — LOVERS AND OTHER STRANGERS.

We invited a few friends for dinner and they helped clean up the Genesee River.

With the aid of a few thousand pounds of microorganisms, we're helping to solve the water pollution problem in Rochester. Maybe the solution can help others.

What we did was to combine two processes in a way that gives us one of the most efficient water-purifying systems private industry has ever developed.

One process is called "activated sludge," developed by man to accelerate nature's microorganism adsorption. What this means is that for the majority of wastes man can produce, there is an organism waiting somewhere that will happily assimilate it. And thrive on it.

The breakthrough came when Kodak scientists found a way to combine the activated sludge process with a trickling filter process and optimized the combination.

We tested our system in a pilot plant for five years.

(At Kodak, we were working on environmental improvement long before it made headlines.) And the pilot project worked so well, we built a ten-million-dollar plant that can purify 36-million gallons of water a day.

Governor Rockefeller called this "the biggest voluntary project undertaken by private industry in support of New York State's pure-water program."

Why did we do it? Partly because we're in business to make a profit—and clean water is vital to our business. But in furthering our own needs, we have helped further society's. And our business depends on society.

We hope our efforts to cope with water pollution will inspire others to do the same. And, we'd be happy to share our water-purifying information with them. We all need clean water. So we all have to work together.

Kodak
More than a business.

Letter to the Editor

Dear P.C.,

Remember last fall. A team with an 11-2 record. A team that out-drew both hockey and baseball in attendance. A team without one player on an athletic scholarship of any amount. Just a group of hard working, devoted people. Well, if you haven't guessed, I'm talking about the Providence College Soccer Team.

Last year, the soccer team, under the fine direction of coach Bill Doyle, compiled a record of 11 wins and 2 losses. A young team, it competed against teams much older and more established and won, due to a lot of hardwork and desire. This year, once again a strong team is sure to develop. Led by tri-captains Tim Gilbride, "X" Mantesanz, and Kev Haverty, the team is sure to hold all the strength, talent, and desire it held last year.

One thing it greatly needs is the support the college can give. When there is a friendly, home crowd cheering the team on, the ego and desire of that team is boosted greatly. Last year, that boost was given to the team, and it would be great to see it again.

As a Freshman last year, I came in as a very nervous person. What would school be like? The greatest help was being a member of the soccer team. The guys on the team were the greatest help I could have found. When I started my freshman year, I came in with a field of Business Administration but, as many freshman do, I changed my major. The one problem was that Providence College did not have the field of study I desired. So I am off to another college, and of P.C., all I have is memories. Not of the "food" I lived on for a year, nor of the cracks in the wall, floors and ceilings of Joes Dorm, not of the good times in the Rat, and of the hangovers the next day. My memories are of the soccer Team, an the great times I enjoyed while being a member of the team. It's something I will always be proud of. And as a college, you the students, should also be proud of this team. Although I won't be attending P.C. this coming year, I'll be down to see some of the soccer games, and I hope to see the same crowds I saw last year.

I do hope there will be more members from the faculty and administration out to see the games. Those that saw the games last year have no regrets, I'm sure. It would be nice to see some of the "big whigs" of the Athletic department out there cheering on the soccer team. After they saw the team, the desire, skill, and coaching they have, then maybe, if luck is with the soccer team if it isn't too much of a hassle, then maybe the team would be able to get a bus for a day trip to Fordam, N.Y. Last year we lost to them 1-0, and this year the team isn't allowed to go up to Fordam to win, because the department will not grant them a bus for the day. It's only the Soccer team. Only a group of hard working, devoted players. Only a coach who has worked harder and got less recognition than any other coach. Only a group of guys with no scholarships, who are only out there playing because they love the sport. Only a group of fantastically great guys, directed by one of the best coaches I've known. Only a team that deserves every bit of credit it gets. Only the Providence College Soccer Team.

I hope I'll see the support I saw last year, when I come down to see more games. As a player, it was a great feeling to hear and see all those people. This year I hope the crowd is larger, because the team deserves it.

And to the Soccer team itself, good luck in the coming season, and keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
Mike Madden

Editors Note: Mike Madden earned his varsity letter as the Freshman goalie. He is now enrolled in the University of Massachusetts.

Women's Fall Athletic Schedule Announced

by Cindy Kranich

The PC Women's Athletic Center in Alumni Hall is now beginning its third season of operation, and this year promises to be the busiest and most eventful. Mrs. Helen Bert, director of the center, welcomes all new coeds and hopes that a large number of upperclassmen will return and participate in programs once again.

As the number of coeds increases so will the programs offered as in the case of the past two years. Student participation and interest will also affect programs available. The center is off to an early start, offering a sauna, exercise machines, and gym equipment to interested persons. The facilities are open Monday through Friday 2:30 to 9:00 p.m. Weekend hours will be announced shortly.

During the next two weeks there will be try-outs for four major sports. For those girls interested in becoming football cheerleaders, there will be a general meeting and tryouts Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Women's Athletic Center. All former ice hockey cheerleaders and those interested in tryouts are asked to attend a meeting on Wednesday Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. The ice hockey cheerleaders are in need of two male students to add to the squad. Students interested should contact Gayle Sciarillo through the Athletic Center. On Tuesday, Sept. 18 at either 3:30 p.m. or 6:30 p.m., there will be a practice session for all candidates for basketball cheerleading. Mickey McGuire, the squad's new coach, will conduct these practice sessions. The first tryout will be on Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. Any girls with previous background in baton twirling have the opportunity to try out for a position on the PC Twirling Squad. A meeting for all interested girls will be held Monday, September 17 at 3:00 p.m.

Future events are now in the planning stages, and will be announced as soon as more information is available. There will once again be a girls' Varsity basketball team, a volleyball program and several series of slimnastics classes for the enjoyment of the young women of PC; these programs for example will get underway in the next few weeks. Special events will be announced via flyers through the mail boxes and the bulletin board at the center. Mrs. Bert is also available at the center to answer any questions students may have.

Swimming at the Boy's Club on Ranch Avenue, Providence will resume Tuesday, September 18. Transportation will once again be provided by the Center to and from the club. The girls will meet at 2:45 p.m. at Mrs. Bert's office and be returned at approximately 5:00 p.m. Any interested girls may contact Mrs. Bert for more information.

Dear Students,

Soon you will be issued your Student Athletic Discount Cards for the 1973-74 Basketball and Hockey Season. This card will afford you the opportunity to purchase your tickets at the rate of $1.50 for a regularly priced $3.00 seat.

STUDENT TICKET PROCEDURE:

— Each student must present his own (Student Athletic Discount Card (SADC)) when purchasing tickets.

— Only one student ticket may be purchased for each game, but as many extra tickets as desired may be purchased at the regular $4.00 or $3.00 price.

— Students must purchase their own student ticket with their own SADC. Buying tickets for a friend with your friend's SADC will not be permitted.

— Each student must present his College ID together with his SADC when purchasing tickets.

— The SADC is good only at the PC Ticket Office. It will not be honored at the Civic Center or the PC Hockey Box Office on the night of the games.

STUDENT SEASON TICKET PLAN:

— Student Season Tickets will be available for both hockey and basketball.

— This plan guarantees you the same seat every game at a reduced rate.

— Student season tickets will be $23.00 for 17 home basketball games, and $17.00 for 14 hockey games.

— Student season tickets will go on sale at the Ticket Office, 2nd floor, Alumni Hall in October.

If there are any questions or there is an error on your SADC, see me at the ticket office.

Veteran Friar Gridders Eager for Season Opener

by Cindy Kranich

The future of Club Football on the PC campus was in great jeopardy not many months ago. Positive action by the members of the team, the Athletic Department, Maintenance at the college and Student Congress has given Friar Football another chance. The team was in dire need of financial assistance to cover the most minimum of expenses for the coming season. As a club football team they were not eligible for any assistance from the college's funds. Faced with a problem of this sort, the team asked for help. Plans for a referendum were drawn up, eventually passed, allocating $3 of every student activity fee to the team's fund. This was passed by an unusually large turnout of students, yet the money is barely more than half of the necessary funds. But the referendum has kept football at Providence. Advertising in program books and contributions from private donors will take care of only a fraction of the remaining balance. The team themselves will sacrifice, as done in the past, to remain together as a playing unit. An advantage for the group, one the team is "most graciously happy for", is the fact that after playing for so many years on an "away" field, they are finally coming "home" to Hendricken Field, on the PC campus.

Every September before the regular season, a team begins to reorganize and tallies losses from graduation. Those not returning this year to the squad are Steve Casinelli, Dave Lamberton, Frank McMorrow, and Jay Sinatro. When a team loses so many fine players, they must regroup. Add to that the disappointing loss last season to the University of Hartford that kept the '72-'73 squad out of the playoffs.

There is a great deal of optimism for this season however with a number of key starters returning for another season. A battle for the position of starting quarterback between a much improved Aury "Joe" Licata and three year starting veteran Brian Carey will highlight the season. John Tavalone, Sal Gulino and Sal Gaiello are three other lettermen returning to boost the Friar offense. Key players for the defense include John "Butkus" Brady, Ted Fitzgerald, Paul Brown and Paul Carrol, to name a few. Richy Kless, John Tavalone and John Brady are the tri-captains for the 73-74 season.

The coaching staff of this team is one that deserves a great deal of recognition. Though there is the evident lack of equipment and money, Friar teams have placed nationally in rankings for Club football teams. These men, Head coach Chet Hanewich and his staff, spark an enthusiasm that cannot be beat. Rounding out the coaching staff are Cliff Sherman, Oscar Chilebato and Kevin Harding. Mr. Bagley and Father Driscoll also donate hours of time and energy to the cause. Andy Baines, long time trainer for the football team, among other duties, had to resign this year to devote his full attention to the new skating facility. Club president Gene Harding is responsible for all paper work and programs throughout the season.

Admission to all home games will be free to all PC students, a result of the referendum. The games will be played on Hendricken Field adjacent to the baseball diamond. Every year attendance at games has been understandably low due to transportation problems. It is hoped that this year games on campus will attract more of a showing of student support and ignite a winning spirit in the team.

Athletic Committee Report

September 9, 1973

In years past there has been a high level of confusion upon entering each school year as to programs being offered at Providence College. This article is concerned with setting straight the activities offered in the intramural program and the progress being made on our Athletic council.

In regards to intramurals, this years program shall concentrate on involvement and team competition. For the first semester, the following schedule has been formulated.

Football	Sept. 17 thru Nov. 1
Basketball	Nov. 5 thru March 29
Hockey	Nov. 5 thru March 29

Also there shall be a program offered in swimming, table tennis and volleyball, under the direction of Mrs. Helen Bert Womens Athletic Director.

In reference to the Student Congress Athletic Council we have started proceedings in relation to its formation and overall function. Its members shall include an Athletic Committee Chairman elected by the student body, who will sit on the Congress with full membership privileges; a board appointed by the committee chairman and a representative from each recognized athletic team and club on campus. This council will have a Student Board whose duties will be to direct the council's activities and represent all its members before the Student Congress and Athletic Department. The purpose of this council will be:

- To act as official representative of all recognized athletic activities regardless of stature.
- To act as a communicative body between the Athletic Department, Providence College Athletic Council, and the Providence College Community providing information as to the needs and wants of the various athletics.
- To inform the students of the various outlets and recreational facilities provided by the college for the students use.

These are just a few areas we have concentrated on at this time, however there will be a follow up article in the next Cowl explaining other programs which will be instituted within the fall semester.

Among this season's opponents are NCAA member Bridgewater State, a varsity team and some of the top five ranked club football teams. This is a first for the Friars and should prove to be an exciting beginning for a new era of Friar Football.
NEXT WEEK: Friar Football and exclusive interviews.

The Friar Club football team prepares for the upcoming season.
