McMahon Named Union Director

By J. Nowakowski

When I was first assigned the task of doing a story about ROTC going co-ed, I was under the impression that it had already done so. An article in the Evening Bulletin (8-6-73) stated that the P.C. ROTC program was going co-ed in September. So far the program has gone co-ed in name only. It seemed as though no girls were interested in the program, and when I talked to Lt. Col. Larocelle, professor of military science and tactics, he said it's not a question of no girls wanting to join the program, but it's a question of where one or two will be the first to join. "The first are always the most reluctant to join." said the Colonel knowingly. The Colonel and I talked further on the subject and he seemed delighted that I was doing a story about the new girls. He was very friendly and helpful, and explained to me that the only duties that the female cadets would do were fire a gun in the field exercises. "They will partake in the leadership program and they will drill with the other cadets," he said. I asked him if he knew the names of any potential candidates and he told me he knew of three, but he couldn't give their names because he was under some kind of obligation not to. He did say that he was able to help toward the end of the semester, because he was expecting some new girls to join them. I took his hand and thanked him very much, and as I made my way to the door, he stepped me aside and told me he had a mimeographed copy of the Bulletin's article and he said it may be of some help to me and my story. Because of the lack of new information, I was thinking of scrapping the assignment and finding another, but he said one more thing as I left. "The Sunday edition of the Providence Journal was planning to do a more detailed report in the weeks to come, and if The Cowl wanted to get the first crack at this story I should at least write something," he said.

I asked around for other information on the topic and finally found a name, someone who could give me a little more than the facts, someone who could tell me about the actual experience that she had had in the army. I called her up and asked if I could talk with her for a few minutes about the program. She was very friendly and said that she would be willing to help in any way that she could.

Katie Carroll and I had an interesting talk about the army. She was president of the cadet sponsor group last year, and is currently in the WAC's. She explained to me what the cadet sponsor group was and told me that for the most part the girls in ROTC would be taking on many of their functions, and that's why that organization has been started. Out of those functions included mainly social activities such as helping out at military balls, lending a hand to the military wives at Quonset point, and assisting at the turkeys shoots and other such related military affairs. She said that she thought the college ROTC program would be a good thing for the program.

Effective September 13, a series of events, changes will go into effect at Providence College.

Due to recent events perpetrated off campus by traffic, the Student Congress in union with the administration will begin a student security program. Some of the patrols will patrol the entire campus and its facilities. A trio will be assigned in places where students or personnel who are not recognized by the spot checked for identification. For this and other reasons, it is recommended that students carry their IDs at all times. The security goes into effect around 7 p.m., and continues into the early morning. The patrols will cover on foot all the student parking areas, dorm areas, as well as Harkins, the union and library.

B.O.G. Creates Film Committee

Sandy Espollo

Effective Tuesday, September 18, the B.O.G. of Slavin Center will have created a Film V.T.N. (video tape network) committee. This committee will be directly responsible to the B.O.G. and shall also be subject to the By-Laws concerning amendment. The committee will lack of available funds, a film program was not included in this current semester. Films were poorly attended during the past two years; however, the B.O.G. believes that the student response to the lack of a film program warrants a program for the second semester.

Scheduling of films will not follow the previous format of the Film Society. Evidence suggests there were too many movies and not enough interest on the part of the students. Currently the student-bi-monthly basis may be the answer. Adder idea is the showing of foreign and avant-garde movies with the admission included to the films to be the major offering.

The scheduling of the V.T.N. programs will be another duty of this committee. The B.O.G. subscribes to an average of one program per semester. These range from pure entertainment to political issues to educational subjects. They are shown in the lower level of the Center by means of T.V. monitors. Instituted on an experimental basis, this program will continue if students express enough interest.

A chairman and an assistant chairman will head the Film/V.T.N. committee. Applications may be obtained at the Information Desk of Slavin Center. If you are interested in joining, please apply immediately since films must be scheduled far in advance. Applications will be accepted until the end of the semester. In case of conflict with other programs scheduled by the Film/V.T.N. committee shall be directly subject to the By-Laws. Also be included, the popular films and experimental movies, foreign and avant-garde movies will be subject to the By-Laws.

Our first event was a mixer in the Multi-Purpose Room of the Slavin Center. All members of the class of '76 are urged to attend this mixer to contact any members of the Ring Committee or your elected officers and representatives for any questions you might have or ideas you wish to share.

Rathskeller Acquires Experienced Manager: Angelo D'agostino

by Hank Goleński

As most students know, the Rathskeller is probably one of the most widely used activities at Providence College. Whether dropping in for a pre-dinner drink or a post library brew, the Rathskeller is always found to have more than an ample share of good spirit.

This year, contributing to the atmospheres, will be the new club manager Angelo D'agostino. Angelo, who was passed to be called Angie, isn't what one would call a newcomer to the business of operating a club. Twenty-eight years ago, Angie quit his job as a dishwasher for a take-out customer. Stopping into Guester's tap, he was offered a temporary job tending bar while the regular bartender was in the hospital. As one thing led to another, (including marriage) Angie found himself in the tavern and virtual business.

During the past summer, Angie decided to retire and sell Guester's. When some of the newcomers regulars from the Treasurer's Office and the English Department were due to sell, they contacted Dr. Duffy about Angie becoming the new manager.

While not planning any radical changes in the basic operation of the club, Angie will be planning minor revisions in the menu and entertainment. Dark beers are already being served and as soon as the necessary equipment is installed, grinders and saus will be added to the menu.

The Class of '73 will hold ring fittings and orders will be taken on Wednesday and Thursday, September 25 and 26. Those who did not order rings in May can do so at this time. There is a possibility that the rings ordered on these dates will arrive in time for Junior Weekend, scheduled for the 9, 10, and 11 of November. Those juniors who placed orders in May can stop by and try on their rings to make sure they are the right size. The rings they ordered are the RINGS THEY WANTED. Those on these dates must make a $10 deposit. All seniors who have purchased rings at either fitting date are required to pay in full. The balance due must be paid if they are going to receive their rings the night of the November 10 Dinner Dance.
At a cost of $25 per person, approximately 700 members of the 1977 class arrived at P.C. for Freshman Orientation this summer. As Assistant Dean Sally T. Czachor stated, "unlike the en mass orientation of their 1976 predecessors, this year's freshmen were divided into six groups according to their intended major." Further, the Monday and Tuesday of each week of the six-week period spanning from June 26 to July 31 was devoted exclusively to the particular intended major group. In this way the freshmen were able to meet with their department's faculty and ask the essential questions about courses, prerequisites, etc. which James McGovern (assistant dean) says "the upperclassman now takes for granted."

The two day orientation was comprised of seminars such as, Student Congress, Student Affairs; tours of the campus; and seemingly overfilled with testing. The entertainment varied from week to week- beer and chips, coke and chips, movies, and a folk singer.

Of different backgrounds, of different philosophies, the freshman interviewed for this article were all in agreement that the upperclassmen- Mark Granato, Patty Rafferty, Mary McKee, Kurt Foerster, and Barbara Jackson- made it a worthwhile experience.

Common comments were: "they told you what P.C. was really like," or "they really wanted to help you- they were always there!" These upperclassmen, too, found the orientation a worthwhile experience. "Kids really wanted to come to me with their problems and I'm able to help!"

Mr. McGovern and Mrs. Czachor considered this Freshman Orientation a "tremendous success" bringing the students closer to the Dean's Office. "They know we are here to help...accessible to their problems." Results of the freshman survey have proven valuable for future orientations. Questionnaire number 18, "If a friend of yours was accepted as a member of the Providence College Class of 1979, and was offered an opportunity to attend a voluntary summer orientation program at a cost of $25 would you recommend that he or she: (a) pay the $25 and attend the session, (b) simply talk to you about what P.C. is like, (c) attend a free orientation session with 900 students at once over a two-day period in September." The Percentage of students agreeing with (a) was 81.4, (b) was 4.2 and (c) was 7.3.

In general, the purpose of the program is to acquaint the student with life at Providence College and help prepare him for the academic year. The program began each week on Monday morning. Students living far away came for two days and one overnight. The program was not held last year, as Sophomores remember that bizarre first week of school when there were no classes. However, the program is not altogether new. Present Juniors remember the summer orientation period held for them when they were entering the school.

In general, the purpose of the program is to acquaint the student with life at Providence College and help prepare him for the academic year. When it was held, the program was a success and should be continued in the future. In summation Pat emphasized, "Freshmen are a breath of new life to this school. They bring enthusiasm, vigor, and new perspective, and that shouldn't go to waste. Therefore, I enjoyed working with the Freshmen and feel that the program was beneficial not only to them, but to the whole school as well."
MEMO FROM THE EDITOR

For the second time this year, we take pen to paper to address the College from this column. In the weeks that the Cowl has been the first day of classes, we have worked long and hard on a foundation which, we hope, will carry us successfully toward the completion of our task. The staff has contributed many more hours than usual in pulling our organization into shape. We thank the staff for their efforts and now present confidently to fulfill our responsibilities as the Providence College newspaper.

If we can draw two parallels to The Cowl, we might, in the same frame of mind, look at the Student Council and Congress. While we trust that when the Senate meets for the first time, they too will devote much and serious attention to their responsibilities, our observation of the Congress has brought increased admiration and praise.

Ideally, the Student Congress should be the center of the student government. It should represent the students and should gravitate toward that center. In the effort to bring such groups as the Resident’s Committee, the Board of Governors, and the Athletic Committee to the power of the Congress, we praise unity. Let us then continue in these efforts, and increase our proficiency in working in cooperation with one another. Seek out the Congress and help them in their efforts to reach their goals.

This edition of The Cowl contains our first real coverage of the Faculty Senate (see page 1). We will continue this coverage, in more, as the Senate begins to meet and become more organized. We suggest more people work on the Senate, and the Senate and Congress will each benefit from complementing the other. Again, in anticipation of this goal, we praise unity.

Finally, we direct your attention to page 1, in regards to Fr. John McMahon, the new Assistant Vice-President for Student Relations. Fr. McMahon has succeeded Fr. McKeen as the Director of the Slavin Center. Building upon the foundation that Fr. McKeen laid, Fr. McMahon pledges that the Slavin Center will be the common meeting ground for the College. In Harmony with Fr. McMahon, we invite all to come and meet each other in friendship at the Center.

Purposeful Consolidation

In the last issue of the Cowl, the watchword or theme would have to have been community. The spirit of the issue, from the standpoint of the student, seems to be taking hold. The case in point is the Student Mobilization Committee. It failed because of a lack of initiative, rather it is due to a lack of footing and a lack of community. In the past, the Carolan Club had made the progress that the resident student saw possible. Yet, this is not the end of the story.

The student congress will initiate this change. The congress will for the first time co-opt into its own body the duties of the Carolan Club. The resident student will have the congress as their sole bargaining agent. From the standpoint of credibility a great stride has been made. Providence College is the ‘new world’ and the modern day Christopher Columbus!! This new world is filled with strangers-fellow explorers and natives. Some will become foes, others will become lasting friends. For the coed this is her private heaven! She is the fresh face on the campus. With the knowledge of others whose age and experience — soon you’ll have the feeling that what is happening now, happened before. Welcome to the sophomore year! You have left your freshman year behind.

The sophomore’s new world no longer contains the excitement of a new adventure. (S)he’s been through it all and thus, has become cynical. Graduation, slowly appearing in the distance, looms above like a Mount Everest of reality, that must be climbed. For the sophomore, college has become an experience of real success and real failure. They feel threatened with success and fear their inability to rise to the occasion.

This week the student congress will initiate this change. The congress will for the first time co-opt into its own body the duties of the Carolan Club. The resident student will have the congress as their sole bargaining agent. From the standpoint of organization an even greater stride is in the offing. Now one organization holds the reigns. Each resident student on this campus should decide to lend active support to the congress. Not only is the congress in line with those of the now outdated Carolan Club. In the past, the Carolan Club had not made the progress that the resident student saw possible. Yet, this is not due to lack of initiative, rather it is due to a lack of footing and a lack of credibility regarding the administration.

Pick Yourself a corner — Providence College is the ‘new world’ and the modern day Christopher Columbus!! This new world is filled with strangers-fellow explorers and natives. Some will become foes, others will become lasting friends. For the coed this is her private heaven! She is the fresh face on the campus. With the knowledge of others whose age and experience — soon you’ll have the feeling that what is happening now, happened before. Welcome to the sophomore year! Ethyl is Not a Lady

The Rathskeller is open again. For how long is not certain. Already someone has attempted to close it down by a foolish, destructive, act of vandalism. Whether or not it was intentional is not the question. The problem remains that it is being done.

How can these actions be stopped? This question is vague and almost too open to answer. It is hoped that the people who frequent the Rathskeller and enjoy it facilities will demand an attitude of respect for their right to enjoy a good time. In the attempt to keep the Rathskeller open all year, we ask you to drink defensively and to watch out for the other drunk.

Students and the Arts

Thanks to the Rhode Island State Council on the Arts, college students in Providence can obtain theatre, philharmonic and opera season tickets at half price. The deadline for this special offer is October 13 until May 18, with all performances at Veteran’s Memorial Auditorium at 8:30. This week the student congress will initiate this change. The congress will for the first time co-opt into its own body the duties of the Carolan Club. The resident student will have the congress as their sole bargaining agent. From the standpoint of organization an even greater stride is in the offing. Now one organization holds the reigns.

The resident student has been represented by a resident student, yet, this is not the end of the story.

Pick Yourself a corner — preferably one from which the tide of people can be viewed; watch and muse. Unconsciously you will find yourself capable of separating the freshman from the sophomore, the junior from the senior. But how? There are certain identifiable characteristics of each class, of course.

The freshman has that gleaming and helpless look of a new world; Providence College is the ‘new world’ and the modern day Christopher Columbus!! This new world is filled with strangers-fellow explorers and natives. Some will become foes, others will become lasting friends. For the coed this is her private heaven! Letter to the Editor

Dear Brethren:

I recently received a letter dated August 17 from Hy Putz in Pakistan. He describes conditions resulting from the flood:

"Loreto itself is untouched since it is right in the middle of the sand dunes. However, the low-lying lands along the Indus and the Chenab are all under water. Rangpur City is in the middle of the flood. Canals have been breached. The dikes along the river banks have been washed away. So there is nothing to stop the water from entering the cities. Chak 5 (village) has been levelled and our medical dispensary along with it. Our people near Rangpur have lost everything, homes, crops, animals, food, clothing. If they have survived they will need help of every kind. It will be a huge job of reconstruction. No one, not even the oldest people, ever remember floods of this size in the Punjab. We've tried every way to get to the Christians near Rangpur or to find out what has happened to them. Getting to them is impossible and the only thing we know is that their villages are finished. There are about 120 families there. So that's the situation as it stands. As soon as we know more we'll let you know."

The Pakistan Mission to the United Nations has announced that 20,000 square miles are inundated and eight million people in 10,000 villages are affected, that a million homes have been damaged or destroyed, and that a million tons of stored grain have been washed away. We know that stores of processed sugar have been melted in the flood waters and that cotton growing in the fields has been swept away. Consequently, this foreign mission office has begun to organize a drive to obtain money and warm winter clothing and blankets for our stricken people. YOU WILL BE KEPT INFORMED!

Fraternally yours in St. Dominic,

Linus Walker, O.P.

Why, the fame of Providence College is spreading fast! Unfortunately, in one instance we could wish it to be less famous. We learn that some students have been "winning" for our community is one of drunken indiscretion.

Homeworkers on the Alumni Hall side of campus are harassed by complaints against Providence College students. They have WAACs because it would raise the intelligence of the corps. She explained to me that when she went for her sophomore year McClellan, the majority of girls did not attend college and consequently one of the duties of the training program was to make sure everyone was reading at a tenth grade level. This caused some trouble for Ms. Carroll because she was reading at the level of a junior in college. Furthermore, it's not only the reading program that is geared to a tenth grade level, it's the entire program itself. Orders are given to be followed and not questioned, and the analytical mind of a college student is not at all conducive to this kind of thing.

Ms. Carroll has only praise for what the army can do for a girl who does not have the same background as her own. She said the graduate of the ROTC program is assured of a job in her field and a career effective immediately upon graduation. Positions and education are unrelated to work excluding combat duty. Among the various pursuits a girl can choose that are not geared to the military, there are as many as five-ty-two copies of the same form made for different files. There is never just one copy made of anything, everything is done in a rather cumbersome manner. The extreme bureaucracy of the army wants recruits who will be militarily oriented. The new army is currently testing out a new corps that will be more than that.

"Everyone, I suppose, who has been in the army has a gruesome story to tell about army life," said Ms. Carroll. "One such story told me was that during a drill a group of army officers were standing in the street and unknow to the D.I., one of the girls was bitten by a dog. They were immediately forbidden to move, and when she finally did her legs were all bitten, which of course actually bleeded. She recovered several weeks later but she was never in the army again."

Despite all this Ms. Carroll still sees the army as a good thing. She says that it is a good discipline for many students, especially those who are misunderstood and unjustly criticized. "Army girls are basically a peace-oriented organization that helps peoples all over the world. "While I could never have enjoyed the Viet Nam be if it wasn't for the U.S. Army!" she contends. She said that during the TET offensive the VC killed 20,000 civilians and they would have killed millions more if it wasn't for the army.

All in all, she said that she is proud to be a woman in the army, and she sees the woman's role as being point of the army in defending this country. "It's a patriotic duty," she said, "to be marching in a parade and to be a part of this country. I'm proud of the army and proud to have served in it."

The benefits of army career in life such as making out wills and medical assistance. There are also no obligations to permanently sit that person straight. Any additional costs are other than those mentioned in the last paragraph.

That is not at all conducive to this kind of thing.

The security of the Providence College community could even positively reflect upon you in any interaction with the surrounding Providence community.

The students for this service were selected by the Executive Board of the Student Congress, who will then hold them responsible for the program. The names of the students selected from the At-Large slate will be announced at once.

The students working will be safeguarding students and campus property; they will be more vigilant in their duties. Even though they are well paid, it will easily be worthwhile if they can manage to reduce the amount of vandalism that plagued Providence College in the last few years. Also, we can have more students working at less cost than it would be to increase the somewhat in effective Colbert service.

The students working will be trained under Mr. William Pinto of the Providence Police Department and work under his direction and that of Sargent Gilbert of Colberts.

The whole Faculty would like to receive any suggestions you have. Please submit your suggestions to Mr. William Pinto in the Student Services building, or call him at 411-9000.
The primary function of the Intramural Office is to promote, organize and administer a broad program of competitive and recreational activities which may voluntarily participate in the program, either individually or in teams, both men and women.

The intramural program includes, but is not limited to, recreational and, outdoor activities. We would like to encourage you to sample a sufficient number of sports to discover those which you are really interested in and capable of participating in, with satisfaction and confidence for the future in later life. Regular and wise participation in these activities permits the individual to maintain muscular, coordination and toning to become proficient in the game, and to participate with a physical and social recreational sports as well as social events. To relieve the emotional and nervous tensions developed in the daily work and study activities on campus; to realize that women can be skilled and enthusiastic partners in physical recreational activities; to make friends and last friends; to have the experience of becoming a member of different teams and organizations you are involved; to take the tough breaks as well as the good breaks, to go along and to be loved; but most important to have fun. This program is now being reconstructed. In the past the intramural program had been run on an inconsistent basis with different groups on campus. It is felt that by regular promotion and establishment of activities under one body, we may provide for a better opportunity for all students to enjoy and participate in recreation. The intramural program is sponsored by the Providence Student Council and is funded by the Athletic Department of Providence College. It is felt that one of the most economical opportunities you will ever have is to join an activity, for you will improve your recreational knowledge and skill. You are invited to participate and to make a habit of participating in some phase of the program.

To all participants, have fun, play safe, make a new friend and remember that any group is better for each player to be a good sport and to find his or her own sport.

Two years ago, the Providence College soccer team experienced a most disappointing 3-9 season. As a result, Coach Doyle let out fall to build a tough, competitive outfit. His formula of "attitude, conditioning and teamwork" proved to be very successful, for the 1973 Friar booted all the strong and deepest team ever.

The Friars opened the scoring on about 15 minutes of the first half, Larry Tirone, an enormous effect on the outcome.

The Friars have played Dean Jr. College a dozen injuries, it's been tough to last year's co-captains Jim Madden. Mike Madden. Wally Felag and Larry Tirone backed up Maddens last year and both have the ability to fill the goalie position expertly. But what both are lacking in is what makes a good goalie—game experience. Coach Doyle commented: "Due to the fact that Madden never got hurt and because we were in so many close games, Wally Felag played less than 30 minutes last year. Larry Tirone was our manager, two years ago and he didn't have any soccer experience prior to last season. But Wally has the ability and he has worked very hard. All he needs is some game experience. Wally is going to do a fine job for us."

Looking over this year's squad, Doyle realizes that his team has its work cut out for them. "With the addition of Dublin, Holy Cross and Connecticut, our schedule is 30 stronger. Our opponents this year are Merrick, RIC, Assumption, Northeastern, Radford, Northeastern (Colby Guard and Furrington) have strong teams this year, but we have to get better for our good year last year. Also, because of a late cut and half a dozen injuries, it's been tough to get the full squad together. So we have usually have three weeks to ready for our opener, this year we only have nine days."

In an effort to make up for that difference, the team has been conducting all scrimmages and it has been involved in some pre-season action. On Thursday, September 13, the Friars scrimmaged an excellent Southeastern Massachusetts University team at Hendricken Field. Although the Friar booters came out on the short end of a 3-2 score, Coach Doyle was able to experiment with different player combinations which will benefit the inexperienced freshmen in the team. In the second half, the Friars played with much of an offensive attack as a team, the Friars scored on fine individual efforts by Mike Suf-teletto and Dan Denaut. Captains X Mateansantz observed that "the team is really starting to develop teamwork this year. We've made a lot of progress and we will soon. We'll be ready for Thursdays comeback game an annual affair, saw his the backing the team gets has an enormous effect on the outcome.

The highlight of the Friar pre-season training came on Saturday, September 15, with the first Alumni Soccer Game. Every Friar soccer team was represented as 14 BC games. The highlight of the SCC was the game on Sunday, September 16, with the Friars up by 1-0. The Friars won the opening of soccer practice at Hendricken Field recently.
