Student Congress Impounds B.O.G. Funds

Re-evaluation Established B.O.G. Seeks Improvement

As Mark Granato decided to impound all B.O.G. Funds for the Fall Semester, last week, he set up a three point plan for the immediate and effective re-evaluation of the structure and policies of the B.O.G.

After discussing the B.O.G.'s difficulties, Mr. Granato decided to first impound the B.O.G. Funds. Second, he called for the B.O.G. to cease accepting applications for vacancies left from seven of the fifteen original B.O.G. members who have resigned over the past two months. Third, he established a committee, whose major function will be that of re-evaluating the B.O.G.

The impounding of funds means precisely that the B.O.G. will cease to function, as far as the running of activities other than those which are legally binding. The B.O.G. will continue to stage those activities which are already programmed for the remaining two months of the Fall semester. However, no further activities for this semester, and no activities for next semester will be legally negotiated. The monies which the B.O.G. works with is the student activity fee. The Student Congress receives this money, and turns some of it over to the B.O.G. as its allocations. Logically, they, the Congress reserves the right to withhold these funds when it deems that action necessary.

The second action taken by the Student Congress and the B.O.G. on this matter, was calling a halt to the interviews which the B.O.G. was running to select new members to fill vacancies to the B.O.G. Mr. Granato felt that there was no sense in bringing new members into the picture before all other problems involved in the operation of the B.O.G. were solved.

Third, Mr. Granato established a re-evaluation committee. This committee, chaired by Fr. McMahon, and tentatively, comprising the remaining members of the B.O.G., the chairpersons of the Resident Board and the Dillon Clubs and two

Last week, in a joint agreement between the Student Congress and the Board of Governors, the President of the Student Congress, Mark Granato, decided to impound all B.O.G. first semester funds. Mr. Granato's actions followed what he deemed: "Negligent and irresponsible action in certain areas on the part of the B.O.G."

Exercising a clause of the Student Congress by-laws, article two, section one, subsection D, which states that the President: "Shall have the right to exercise such other powers in extenuating circumstances as may be deemed necessary and proper for the performance of his duties." He also cited the fact that since the Student Activity fee comes to the Student Congress, to be then forwarded to the B.O.G., the Student Congress does have the right to withdraw that money when it seems such action necessary. Mr. Granato felt confident that this action would begin a movement to allow the B.O.G. to reorganize and strengthen itself.

Mr. Granato cited the history of events which have occurred over the past two months that deemed action of this nature necessary.

As of last month, he said, difficulties in the operations and structure of the B.O.G. brought all questions over the B.O.G.'s ineffectiveness to the forefront. He stated that all steps that had been taken by the Advisory Board of the Union Council and the Student Congress, short of the impounding of funds had been overlooked by the B.O.G. That is, the rules and regulations over how the Board of Governors should act, as found in the B.O.G. constitution and by-laws, had been overlooked.

The culmination of the difficulties of the past two months, then, was seen in the problem resulting from the attempt to stage the John McLaughlin concert. Mr. Granato said that, with regards to the McLaughlin concert, various legal situations arose which could be damaging to Providence College as well as other parties at

John McLaughlin Concert Cancellation Explained

(The events leading up to the cancellation of the John McLaughlin concert were announced last week to The Cowl. The following is a recount of those events.)

On Friday morning, October 12, an offer was made over the telephone for a concert featuring John McLaughlin and the Mahavishnu Orchestra. While this act would normally cost upwards of $9 to $10 thousand, the price offered over the phone was $6,500. The promoter had to know that afternoon whether P.C. wanted the concert. The concert was offered in hopes that the promoter would sponsor another concert at a future date at P.C.

After consulting with various members of the Student Congress and the B.O.G., Sandy Esposito, President of the B.O.G., and Paul Baeszler, Major Events Chairman of the B.O.G., decided to agree to the concert. It was their understanding that the agreement made was of verbal nature, and so not binding. While a Board approval was needed for the staging of the concert, they felt a meeting on the following Sunday could, if the rest of the Board were in dissention, cancel the concert. Mr. Baeszler and Ms. Esposito proceeded to agree to the concert, conditional upon speaking to Mr. Heskin, Comptroller of P.C. as well as other advisers, and after a referendum was run to poll student opinion on the success of the concert.

The following Monday, Ms. Esposito decided to call the concert off. On Tuesday, the promoter was informed of this decision, but replied that the concert could not be cancelled, and that if it were to be cancelled, there would be a law suit against Providence College. After consulting with Miss Loretta Ross, Assistant Director of the Slavin Center, and after being informed by the Promoter of the possibility of a law suit against P.C., Ms. Esposito called upon Fr. Duffy and Fr. McMahon. A meeting was set up for Wednesday morning, at which time, Fr. Duffy and Fr. McMahon, Mark Granato, Bill Mekrut, would join Mr. Baeszler and Ms. Esposito to decide on further action.

At the meeting, it was decided to consult with a lawyer, and to halt all promotion of the concert.

On Thursday, a lawyer representing P.C. was called into consultation, and it was decided that the agency for John McLaughlin would be called, and that no lawsuit would be pressed against P.C. The lawyer explained that legally neither Providence College nor the B.O.G., but the individuals involved in the B.O.G. were suspect to legal action. However, no problems were foreseen.

A meeting for all involved to talk with the promoter was then arranged for Thursday night. At that time, it was determined that the concert agency would not sue Providence College, but it would sue the promoter who, in turn, would sue P.C., the B.O.G. and Mr. Baeszler.

The decision to go on with the concert was then made by Fr. Duffy and Mr. Granato. They saw that if the concert was not staged, the school would reap the benefits of very bad publicity. They further advised to try to have the concert postponed.

On Friday morning, an emergency meeting of the B.O.G. was called to consider the alternatives of (1) cancelling the concert and suffering the repercussions, (2) postponing the concert, or (3) going ahead with the concert if the first two alternatives failed. As of that meeting, the decision was to go ahead with work full force on the concert over the weekend.

The following Tuesday, the promoter called announcing that the concert was cancelled because John McLaughlin had made other plans for the concert date. The agency, under the impression that the concert at P.C. was cancelled, had advised John McLaughlin to book another engagement.

Corporation Members: Rev. Robert A. Morris, Rev. Msgr. Daniel P. Reilly, and the Rev. James M. Murphy.

Corporation Includes Prominent Dominicans

by Stephen J. d'Oliveira

Rev. Robert A. Morris, O.P., is Vice President for Development, and had been Chaplain at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., previous to his appointment in February of 1967.

A native of Jersey City, New Jersey, Father Morris graduated from Providence College in 1944. He then entered the Dominican Order and was ordained as a priest in Washington, D.C. in 1950. From 1951 until 1952 Father Morris did graduate work in drama at Yale University, and upon receiving his degree, he became production director of the Blackfriars Theatre in New York, until 1957.

In September of 1957 he was assigned to Providence College as a professor in English. He remained at Providence until 1963, during which time he was director of the Pyramid Players at the College.

As Vice President for Institutional Development, Father Morris is responsible for Providence College's long-range planning.

Rev. Msgr. Daniel P. Reilly, Assistant Chancellor and Secretary to Bishop Chancellor, Diocese of Providence, was ordained to the priesthood in 1953.

He is a graduate of Our Lady of Providence Seminary, in Warwick, Rhode Island, and from 1948 to 1953 attended Grand Seminaire, in St. Briec, France. In 1955 he studied Business Administration, for a period of one year at Boston College's Graduate School.

Msgr. Reilly attended the Second Vatican Council, and is a recipient of Providence College's Honorary Degree. He is active in the United Fund, The Citizens Committee for Action on R. I. Courts, and the Knights of Columbus.

Rev. James M. Murphy, O.P. is the religious superior of the Dominican community of Providence College, and is a 1942 graduate. Ordained in Washington, D.C., in 1949, he holds the lectorate and licentiate in Sacred Theology from the Dominican Pontifical Institute, Washington, his M.A. from Notre Dame University and his Ph.D. from the Angelicum, Rome.

Function & Organization of College Corporation

The Corporation of Providence College is the legal governing body of this institution. By the Act of Incorporation passed by the State's General Assembly in 1917 it is the corporation which possesses the full power and authority of the College.

All power which this College possesses is legally in the hands of the Corporation. Any authority which the Faculty Senate or the Dean or any other College official exercises is only delegated authority from the Corporation, and that delegated power may be rescinded at anytime by the majority will of the corporate members.

Thus the importance of this body can hardly be minimized. It has among its powers: the election of the President, the choice of the faculty, the control of salaries and tenure, the care and development of the physical plant and the establishment of curriculum and degree requirements. The power of the Corporation can be further illustrated when we consider the important area of the contracts and status of the faculty. All new appointments, promotions, and grants of tenure, are made by the President according to norms and standards approved by the Corporation, in whose name the President acts. Although there is a faculty committee on Academic Rank and Tenure its recommendations, unlike the Corporation's, are not binding on the President. It is the Corporation which has the final decisive voice in the hiring and promotion of the faculty.

Presently Providence College's governing body is comprised of 31 members: 24 are Dominican Fathers, six are laymen and the final member is the Bishop of the Diocese.

The procedure for election to the Corporate body of Providence College is somewhat vague. After examining the By-Laws of the College and interviewing College officials it seems that no formal procedure has ever been established. However, it is traditional that a sub-committee of the Corporation be established to nominate individuals for election. There is no standard set of criteria established which a nominee for membership on the Corporation members of the Student Congress, will have as its sole purpose the re-evaluation, and possibly, the restructuring of the B.O.G. The activity board of the union council will also participate in this activity.

This committee will be looking closest at the definition of policies, regulations and procedures of the B.O.G., in an attempt to present future B.O.G. members with the best possible guidelines for action.

B.O.G. (Con't.)

P.C. who were involved in the negotiations for the concert.

At present, out of the fifteen members who comprised the present BOG at the end of last year, six remain. The other seven have, over the past two months, resigned. The BOG had begun to hold interviews for the vacancies, last month, but to this date, no appointments have been made.

In the action to impound the BOG funds, Mr. Granato saw three areas of action which will be taken. The first step is that of impounding of funds for the remainder of this semester. The second is that all interviews for vacant positions will be stopped. The third is the promotion of a committee whose purpose will be to re-evaluate, and possibly, reconstruct the BOG.

must meet, rather it is the discretion of the sub-committee as to whom they nominate.

Also the rules governing the tenure of office on this body are undefined. In the absence of any established term of office or required retirement age, the custom has developed in which members of the Corporation hold office for life or until they voluntarily retire. The corporate body may, however, remove any member from the corporation if in their judgment he shall be rendered incapable by age or if he neglects or refuses to perform his duties as a member.

The governing body must meet at least once a year during the latter part of May. Although meetings may be called by the President, Treasurer or any seven members at any time, the Corporation does not usually meet many times other than the annual May meeting.

In the absence of the entire corporate body the Executive Committee of the Corporation composed of Fr. Haas, Fr. Fennell and Mr. McGee, legal advisor to the college, possesses and may exercise all the corporate powers which the Corporation is not by the laws of this state or of the United States itself to exercise.

In practice the Executive Committee does much of the routine work which arises throughout the year. Even this Executive Committee is not required to handle many administrative decisions for the policy of delegated authority has established a decision-making arrangement whereby lesser administrative officials may handle many of the routine problems.

But any "major policy decision," requires the sanction of the entire corporate body. Thus the establishment of a Faculty Senate required the majority approval of the entire Corporation. Any significant change or modification of the objectives, policies or conduct of Providence College must meet with the approval of the Corporation. One administration official felt that if the College were to become co-educational or acquire the adjacent Chapin Hospital property that these would be major policy decisions and therefore require the approval of the Corporation.

Committee Hears Student Proposals

A special sub-committee of the Providence College Corporation, formed to study possible plans for revision of the present structures of the Corporation, met on campus during the weekend of May 2-4 to consider the subject of corporate reform.

The sub-committee consisted of the Very Rev. Vincent Dore, Chancellor of the College; Very Rev. William Wallace, head of the Dominican House of Studies; Rev. Thomas Gallagher, a papal legate specializing in Canon Law; Rev. Robert Morris, Vice President for Development, and Mr. Walter F. Gibbons, lawyer and member of the Corporation.

On Friday, May 2, the sub-committee met for over two hours with a student group from the Class of 1969. At the meeting, four student representatives, Joseph McAleer, Paul McGowan, Martin McNamara, and James Montague, presented their proposal for reform of the Corporation as it had appeared in the May 1 special edition of the Cowl. Cowl Seeks More Democratic Corp.

Last year many members of the Class of 1969 signed statements in which they agreed to withhold financial contributions to the College until such time as the Corporation would restructure itself. The '69 proposal sought to make the Corporation (now composed primarily of Dominicans) a more democratic body. Such a restructuring would attempt to make the Corporation more truly representative of the constituent elements of the college community.

The proposal was made officially in a special issue of The Cowl (May 1, 1969) and was proposed to the Corporation at a meeting in the latter part of May. There is a sub-committee within the Corporation which has been studying this question carefully. Both the '69 proposal and a plea for restructure by Fr. Haas has made this a question of the utmost importance to the entire college community.

The sub-committee of the Corporation is due to report at the next Corporation meeting which is tentatively scheduled to be held sometime before Christmas. To insure that this serious issue is met with as much speed and effectiveness as possible, The Cowl makes the following proposals:

- 1) That both the Student Congress and the Faculty Senate quickly act on the question of Corporate Reform.
- 2) That Fr. Haas make public his own views on the question.
- 3) That the sub-committee of the Corporation weigh the opinions of the Student Congress and Faculty Senate in their final report
- 4) That the Corporation meet BEFORE Dec. 1 to act on the problem of restructure.

Since the Class of 1969 made its proposal for Corporate restructure, The Cowl has been its leading champion. We are convinced that a more democratic Corporation will insure a more progressive academic institution.

the meeting were three faculty observers: Mr. John Lepper, Mr. Donald Leary, and Rev. Anthony Jurgelaitis, O.P.

The student proposal called for a balance of interest arrangement under which the Corporation would consist of a relatively equal representation from the Administration, faculty, and parties outside the College community. Thus, the proposal provides for the Corporation to be membered predominately by the internal elements of the campus community.

Specifically, the proposal stated that: all officers of the College Administration of the rank of Vice President or above, provided they do not exceed ten in number, shall be members of the Corporation. Should this number be less than ten, the President of the College shall make appointments to fill that number; the Faculty of the College shall, by direct election, choose eight members of the

Cowl Proposes Student Representation

The Corporation of Providence College is the highest decision-making body in this institution's system of government. From this body emerge decisions which determine both the direction and the priorities which our college is to pursue. Recent changes such as co-education and the new curriculum reform may not have originated within the Corporation. However, they require the Corporation's approval before they can be implemented. The Cowl staff firmly believes that decisions which affect the entire college community can not be made wisely by a body which excludes from its membership the voice of what is the most vital element in any college community — The Student Body.

During the past two years, this governing body has undergone a restructuring process which has gone almost unnoticed by the community at large. This restructure, to the members of the Corporation, appears wide-sweeping and considerate of the various elements within and without the college.

Recently, the Alumni Association of Providence College was granted the right to elect a member to the Corporation for a four year term. The formal reason for this concession was that "The Alumni Association constitutes the only organized off-campus constituency." Concurrent with this logic, it would seem that the Corporation would grant the a permanent representative seat as the major organized on-campus constituency. If, on the other hand, the reason for accepting an alumni delegate was a purely financial one, it would appear that the corporation is again insincere in its supposed desire to change. Once again, has the Corporation done a superb job of disguising economic shrewdness as a "desire" for meaningful reform?

The Cowl can understand and appreciate the great effort which accompanies such change. However, in the interest of the college and of the student body, we must object to what is apparently an inequitable system. The Cowl wants to believe that the Corporation is sincere in its desire to reform.

In June 1971, three vacancies shall occur on the Corporation. These positions may be filled by either administrators, faculty, alumni, students, benefactors of the college, or members from the civic community. Each of these groups, except the student body, already has representation on the Corporation. Therefore, The Cowl proposes that one of these three vacancies be filled by a student (senior), elected by the student body. This senior representative would have full voice and vote on the Corporation. With this senior, the student body would also elect a junior who would act as an "ex officio" member of the Corporation. He would subsequently become the student body representative on the Corporation, thus easing the transition from year to year. The two remaining vacancies may be filled by individuals from the above mentioned groups.

If this proposal is adopted, The Cowl feels that a momentous step will have been taken towards making Providence College the outstanding institution that it has the potential to be. Although one student may not have a monumental effect on the destiny of the College, the Corporation must at last recognize the Student body as the vital element of the College that it truly is.

Corporation Awaits Student Participation

by Ann Frank

According to a study by the Higher Education Panel of the American Council on Education, "about 14 percent of the nation's colleges and universities have students as members of their governing boards." Of the 14 percent with student board members, "less than half permit student voting on all issues, and 58 percent indicated that students were not permitted to vote on any board issues."

Last May, a proposal was made by the Student Congress to seat a student on the Corporation, Providence College's governing board. In principle, the Corporation approved of this student representation, and a sub-committee headed by Father William A. Wallace, was set up. The purpose of this committee was to establish the norms and regulations that the student representative would assume with his position.

In an interview with Dr. Paul van K. Thomson, a member of the sub-committee on student representation, Dr. Thomson explained that "the Corporation, the legal policy-maker which governs the college, is set up by the state of Rhode Island." Although one may find listed as members of the Corporation some of P.C.'s administrators, in actuality, the faculty and the administrators of the college are simply agents of the Corporation.

At present, membership on the Corporation is a four year term. For a student to be seated on the governing board, a change in this by-law and approval of such a change by the state legislature is necessary. "If this by-law were to remain unchanged, then a student elected as 'the student representative,' at the end of his term, would be an alumnus; no longer would he be a student at the college and no longer a representative of the students." Dr. Thomson also stated that "the proposal offered by the Student Congress is a very good model of the way to go about electing a student to 'the Corporation.'" Basically, this proposal consists of the election of two students, a Junior and a Senior to the Corporation (first year). The Senior will have the right to vote, whereas the Junior will not. However, both will have the right to speak. After the first year, every year, a new Junior will be elected, maintaining the two-student representation.

Dr. Thomson explained that his idea of the Corporation would consist of truly constituent representation. That is, "an official faculty representative; a student, alumni, administrative and surrounding community representatives." This contrasts sharply with the belief that the Corporation should consist of impartial members.

If one were to make a projection it would be safe to say that by the end of the school year all red tape will have been disposed of, and a student will be seated on the Corporation. It seems that progress has been unavoidably slowed by Fr. Wallace, who is on leave to Oxford University in England. However, it was indicated that he will be returning at the end of the semester, and a meeting of his subcommittee will take place.

B.O.G. Impounded Seeks Re-evaluation

To: All members of the Advisory Board
Re: Board of Governors

In light of difficulties which have arisen in the B.O.G. in the past month, I feel that definite steps must be taken to rectify the present operation. Therefore, after lengthy consideration and discussion with members of the Student Congress and Board of Governors, I have come to the decision to impound the funds of the B.O.G.

This impounding of funds will in effect eliminate all social activities for the remainder of this semester, other than those commitments already contracted. By stopping the activities of the Board of Governors, I feel that enough time exists to properly re-evaluate the position and structure of the organization, as well as to define certain policies, requirements, and regulations which must exist.

Those individuals remaining on the Board of Governors will act as a Committee, chaired by Fr. McMahon, to re-evaluate and reconstruct where necessary, the B.O.G.

Stickers Issued

One hundred more parking stickers will be issued on Thursday, November 8, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Security Office, Slavin Center. Fifty stickers will be issued to commuters and fifty to resident students. Since the last registration ended at the sophomore class level, they will be given first priority to obtain these new stickers.

It should be emphasized that should there be any spaces left after sophomore registration they will be allotted to seniors and juniors respectively. Thursday will, however, be the last chance for sophomores to register.

I realize that these measures must appear to be harsh. However, I firmly believe that this is the only means of accomplishing a responsible Board of Governors.

Respectfully,
Mark Granato, President
Student Congress

Agenda included

Business Dept. Holds Seminar

The Business Department is sponsoring a seminar on "Your Career" on November 14, 1973, in Harkins 300. The speaker will be Mr. Robert V. Sprague, Associate, of Lendman Associates in Norfolk, Va. Mr. Sprague will discuss some of the typical questions with which job candidates are faced today and current recruiting techniques.

Lendman Associates is a national youthful job placement agency specializing in finding employment for candidates with college degrees in industry.

All juniors and seniors are invited to attend. Mrs. Natalie Seigle of the Business Dept. is Chairman of the seminar.

Sociology Dept. Sponsors Party

Members of the Division of Sociology will sponsor a beer and chips party for sociology majors on Wednesday, November 7. The party will get under way at 8:00 p.m. in Slavin 217. Hopefully other such gatherings will be held during the academic year. In conjunction with a periodic newsletter for sociology majors, which is being instituted this year, it is hoped that these gatherings will stimulate increased communication between students and faculty and among sociology majors.

Mark Granato's Speech Dispels Recent Rumors

they wallow in their own self pity; grieving over their own problems — never dreaming that possibly the entire college shares the same difficulties. So, because of this selfish attitude, nothing changes. And of course, if this attitude continues, it won't change.

I have listened to people up here scream bloody murder about the ridiculous arguments of our administration. I too was one of the screamers for quite awhile. Now my sentiments have changed radically. Because I have been on both sides and listened to both arguments, I have seen the best way, the easiest way, the most fruitful way of conducting ourselves. When we act irresponsibly, we are treated irresponsibly; when we act responsibly, we are treated responsibly. What I am attempting to do is explain why we act in the manner we do. It has been our decided course of action this year to concentrate on dealing with the administration in the most responsible, mature, and rational way possible. This, to the best of my knowledge, we have done. And because of this, I believe this Congress has accomplished more, and will continue to accomplish more than any of our predecessors. When we now propose change, we are dealing with people who are actually interested in what we're saying; at times this year, I would say the administration actually came to us for aid; especially in the area of security. This to me points to one thing: we must finally be on the right track. The problem now appears to be reversed: where in the past we had no cooperation or respect from the administration, we now have little or no cooperation from the student body. A question I might raise: if in fact we no longer represent the feelings or the best interests of the student body, then no matter how good our repore is with the present administration, we no longer represent the student body. Which in effect places us somewhere in the middle of the picture. If you can understand this, I'm sure you can understand why the feeling of frustration does exist.

So much for my own thoughts. Because of the rumors that have circulated in the past few weeks, I feel it is necessary to go into details in several areas we've been concentrating on. I guess the best place to start is the security system.

As you know, the situation on campus at the beginning of this year was quite critical. We were being invaded more or less each night by the mondo traffic you've all come to know and love. Something had to be done. The present system utilizing the Colbert Agency was entirely inadequate. Therefore it was deemed ridiculous to further expand this system any further. From this decision came the idea of student security forces. I'm not about to tell you that this system is either foolproof or even adequate. But for the time being it at least offers us some further protection. Presently there is an entirely new system being discussed and formulated: a system which would utilize a security system with professional people hired by Providence College. It would be virtually impossible for us to formulate a new system with the span of a few weeks or even an entire semester. This is basically the reason why we opted to go with the student security program. I ask for your cooperation in this: without it we will have to rely on just the Colbert Agency for security, which would most likely be a tragedy. These guards aren't being paid to sit around; if this is what you encounter let someone know about it — I assure you that the situation will be corrected. Again, I must emphasize cooperation. It's at least a step forward or in the right direction and can help for the time being. Presently a revised system which would involve a general campus lock-up with the exception of Huxley Avenue is being worked on. I can only support this proposal, but as in all matters, it depends solely on your cooperation for its success or failure. I'll give out details afterwards if anyone is interested.

As far as the parking situation is concerned; again this system is nowhere near adequacy. But at the present moment, I believe it is the only system, and I emphasize the best system, available ... The Congress was given a list of limits to work with in the area of parking; from these limits (utilizing the number of 675 available parking spaces) we put together a system which we thought was the fairest to all involved. The distribution of stickers was carried out in the manner specified by the Congress: first come, first served, class by class starting with the seniors. Anyone who took the publicity on these new regulations seriously, got a sticker, with the exception of the sophomore class. Either this

by Suzanne Newton

The Economics department, in conjunction with the St. Antoninus Society, will sponsor a forum entitled "What Does Economics Hold For You?", on Thursday, November 8, at 7:30 p.m., in 64 Hall, Slavin Center. The forum will be orientated toward the Freshman and Sophomore classes; particularly those students who are unsure or unsettled with regard to their concentration.

The panel for "What does Economics hold for you" will be composed of students, alumni, and faculty. The objective of the seminar is to familiarize students with the field of economics, and show what it has to offer them. Graduate School, as well as post-graduate employment opportunities, will be discussed. A question and answer period, and refreshments will follow.

Re-evaluation Sought

This past week witnessed the demise of the Board of Governors as an administrative influence of campus social life. This statement needs a degree of clarification. In so far as a demise is concerned, the Student Congress has impounded all funds that the Board of Governors operates with. Social events already contracted for are in no way affected. The act of impoundment was conceived as a viable way of averting further financial miscalculations. Although the Board of Governors' administrative capacity has been dispensed with, the Congress still acknowledges the body's value as a contributing influence.

The B.O.G. will continue to operate. Its purpose will be to re-evaluate itself. A re-evaluation committee is being formed. The committee will be composed of the remaining members of the Board of Governors with the addition of two members of the Student Congress. The committee will be chaired by Fr. McMahon O.P. Those concerned seem to think that the concept of the Board of Governors is essentially good, however, problems seem to evolve around the by-laws to its constitution.

The present members of the B.O.G. seem to have two recourses upon which they can act. They can either resign now, or they can stay on to felicitate the evaluation of their actions as well as the rules by which they operate. We the editorial staff, feel that re-evaluation is necessary for the B.O.G. We sincerely hope that the present members of the board do not desert. Who better can interpret and adjudicate past deficiencies?

The editorial staff of the COWL approves the actions of the past week. A definitive action was definitely needed to avert further mistakes. We do encourage re-evaluation as being in the best interests of the student body.

Campus Council

Recently, the student leaders of the college community have come together in a joint effort to solve some of the campus' problems. Known as the Campus Council, it is comprised of members from the Student Congress, the Board of Governors, The Cowl, the Dillon Club, The Friars Club, the Afro-American Society, WDOM, the Athletic Council, and the Resident Board. The aim of this Council will be inter-organizational cooperation, that is, working together to cope with the projects or problems that one student organization cannot handle alone.

Each organization or club is allowed two voting representatives, however, membership is not coercive. Meetings are held every other Monday at 3:00 p.m.

We, the editorial staff, feel that at long last an organization dealing with campus problems has come into being. At Campus Council meetings, discussion reigns as the primary means towards an end. It is in effect a clearing house used to formulate plans for implementation by cooperative effort on the part of the organizations involved.

To the student body we say, take advantage of this cooperative spirit. It is there for you to use. Its success is predicated by your support.

The Chestmobile will be on campus November 13 and 14, 1973 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. The x-rays will take only a few minutes; no disrobing is necessary.

The Chestmobile will be located in the parking lot at the rear of Alumni Gym, on these two days.

The Class of 1975 and the Ring Weekend Committee would at this time like to publicly thank the Football Club, Fr. Driscoll, Gene Harding and his staff for co-operating with us in making Friar Football a part of our Ring Weekend activities.

We feel as though the addition of the football game to our schedule of activities has undoubtedly made this Ring Weekend the best in P. C. history.

The action which you have shown illustrates the community spirit which is truly present here at Providence College.

MEMO FROM THE EDITOR

Over the last eight days, The Cowl staff has provided Providence College with the most extensive newspaper coverage ever seen at this institution. Publishing four times in eight days was a big job that left the staff drained and tired. However, they have already begun work for the issue which will appear on 14 November. We have spent many hours in The Cowl office over the past two weeks; we will spend many more.

Perhaps we should look at the nature of the papers that were produced in this period. We began last week by publishing sixteen pages of what we considered, totally relevant news, features, opinions, sports and editorials. Covered in the sixteen pages were stories concerning college-wide, state-wide, nation-wide and world-wide events. All of these events in some way or another affected all our readers. Some of the stories, like the News Analysis on the Middle East problems, and the editorial asking for President Nixon's resignation, were submitted after hours of consultation.

The "A Score Ago" supplement has, we are happy to announce, received considerable praise. Ed Cimini, of course, must receive the bulk of this praise. Besides its nostalgic qualities, however, it serves various purposes. It informs Alumni of changes that Providence College has witnessed over the past twenty years. It gives today's students a fuller picture of their college, and, we feel, allows them to feel pride in their institution. It helps such organizations as the planning council to set goals for P.C.'s next twenty years.

Yesterday, The Cowl chose one specific and important issue, the election of students to the Corporation, and gave the best possible coverage of who the candidates are. In addition, together with our series of Profiles of Present Corporation Members, it made more people aware of this election and its importance over any other organization at P.C. We fulfilled our responsibilities in this area, and also, provided our readers with access to the actual Charter of Providence College and the by-laws of the Corporation.

In today's issue, we continue our coverage of issues surrounding the Corporation. We will not cease our coverage of that body simply because the elections are over. We present to our readers, a select history of the Student move to set a student on the Corporation. Although this student action was very active, and in its origins, "radical" in nature, we have seen how the Corporation, itself, voted in favor of this, its latest expansion. A student on the Corporation was realized only after P.C. witnessed a real dialogue between ature Students, Administrators, and Corporation members. For this achievement, we thank all who were involved in its realization.

We feel we have shown, then, how The Cowl has expanded to meet its new responsibilities. We have shown how The Cowl had added to the college a dynamic forum of ideas and vehicle for "community". We pledge our continued, concerted efforts in these regards, and once again ask for your assistance.

Sincerely,
Denis Kelly

Student Congress Statement

Because of complaints received in regards to the issuing of parking stickers earlier this year, we find changes are in order. Charges have been made that some students have been allotted stickers even though they do not have a car on campus or they are planning on using a car next semester but do not as of yet actually have a car. Because we did not demand car registration in order to receive a sticker, this situation may exist. In the future, registrations will be definitely called for; however, to alleviate the present situation, we must now ask for registrations in order to validate those stickers issued already.

Therefore, on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, November 13 and 14, we will hold a re-registration for parking. This does not mean that all parking spaces on Campus will be re-allocated; those who presently hold parking stickers must present their car registration papers to validate their privilege to park. Any individual, already registered with the Security Dept., who does not present his registration papers, will lose his parking sticker. By presenting the car registration papers, a student's parking sticker will become validated; if not presented, the sticker will be revoked. This hopefully will weed out those students who are actually using a car, and those who are merely holding a sticker.

The commuter student who desires to validate his sticker, and thus retain his parking privilege, can do so on either Nov. 13 or 14, from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. in the bottom level of Slavin Center. Members of the Dillon Club will process the registration and issue to those validated an identifiable marker to be placed on the present sticker. For the Resident student, registration will take place in Raymond Cafeteria, on November 13 and 14 at lunch and dinner.

I have to apologize for this situation. However, re-registration is necessary in order to give an equal opportunity to those who desire parking facilities. I must stress the seriousness of this procedure; those people who do not validate their parking stickers are liable to tow, beginning Monday,

Nov. 19,
Sincerely,
Mark Granato

Letters to the Editor

Friars Club

Dear Editor,

I'm usually one of those "one-letter-a-year" writers to the Cowl that you probably encounter during the course of the school year. Traditionally, however, I do not write a letter to you this 'early' in the school year, but I think it's time I did so.

My letter concerns the Friars Club of Providence College. As president of this service organization to P.C., I naturally take great pride in the work the Friars Club does for P.C. Perhaps, though, I take greater pride in associating myself with the fifty-four other members, or Friars, in the Club. My purpose in writing this letter is not to laud the members of the Club on an individual basis, or praise myself for being president of this organization; rather, I will try to explain the functions of the Friars Club and hopefully, clear the air of any misconceptions or ill feelings that students of P.C. have towards an individual club member or against the Friars Club in general.

It was stated in the original constitution of the Friars Club, in 1928, that the Club was dedicated "to the promotion and furtherance of all Providence College endeavors." Today's Friars Club still retains and seeks fulfillment of this pledge of service to the College. As a result, the Club has worked numerous assignments over the past years. Events which we have either assisted or will be assisting at are Academic Convocation; Freshmen Parent's Day; Class Registration for Evening and Day Students; and Commencement. Another of our primary functions has been giving tours to prospective students and other individuals who are visiting the campus. With the completion of Schneider Area in late November, the Friars will be ushering again, as it did for many years in Alumni Hall for basketball games. More historical traces of Friar activity may be seen on campus in such places as Aquinas Chapel, where the Club donated one of its stained-glass windows and on Hendricken Field, where the first fully-equipped scoreboard was a gift of the Club. And, not to be forgotten, the first mascots P.C. ever had, two Dalmation pups, were donated by the Friars Club.

Basically, the Friars Club is a group of students who have a sense of allegiance to the College. This loyalty is expressed through the services which the Club yields. Due to the nature of services performed, it is important that the Club has a spirit of unity pervading within it. This unity and this fraternity is there this year, as I'm sure was prevalent years back. The goal of service to P.C. is most effectively fulfilled when this unity is achieved.

During the Spring of every year, the Friars Club elects its new members. More than half the Club are seniors, and a good number of Friars must be replaced. The primary qualities that a candidate should have are a commitment to the College, a willingness to serve, and the ability to sacrifice. It is difficult to measure the qualities which would be characteristic of a good Friar, and the Friars Club is well aware of the problem. But it believes that the people who are Friars are best able to select those who replenish their numbers. The Club also realizes that many students are fully qualified to become Friars, but due to both organization practicality and financial reasons, it is necessary to limit its size.

You are elected into the Club not because of academic excellence, not because you belong to the "in group", and neither was the election a popularity poll. You become a Friar by being yourself and by portraying the qualities of unselfishness, dedication, and service which are of paramount importance in successfully undertaking the responsibilities of the Friars Club.

It is probably true that a Friar gets so much out of the Club simply because he has put so much in to the Club. The Friars Club has been privileged to serve P.C. in the past years and hopefully will increase in the future in its dedication to her. As a strong fraternal unit, then, the Friars Club is proud to embark on its forty-sixth year of service to P.C.

Thank you for your time and I remain,

Sincerely,
Jerome Walls
President, Friars Club

Nel Schneider

Well girls, it's that little Kraut again but this time I have no intention of attacking you. My interest lies only in my upset stomach and my aim is the Raymond Cafeteria. In an attempt to find Raymond's standing among the top ten R.I. restaurants, I dug up a copy of "The Top Ten R.I. Restaurants" from Stanley Camille owner of Camille's Roman Gardens. How wonderful to see Stanley was not only the editor of the guide but also printer, judge and distributor. Surprisingly, Stanley's restaurant was rated number one. Seeing how Ray Patriarca, Polino Pasveto, and Emilio Mazzola all said, "thatsa my kinda place", ... this Kraut went.

To Stanley, a 9:30 p.m. dinner appointment means nothing. Schneider stood as Marino, Caruso, Martucci, Gussie, and Joe Fingers walked on over and through me. I felt like the whole world spoke Italian. Well, ten o'clock isn't so terrible to be eating dinner. I even starved myself for three days to get the proper "empty stomach" approach. In effect this half hour wait seemed like nothing. So I thought.

In order to get an equally effective aged look, I pasted on my graying moustache, receding hairline and outdated clothes. The waiter must have seen through my disguise and said, "let the Kraut kid wait". Well, the food had the entire rating resting upon it now.

Ushered to a romantic spot where the stains reminded me of a somewhat renovated men's room, I searched in the dark to find my chair. The wine ordered was called Bordilino. What it was is anyone's guess. No label, no name, with only a toenail contained, giving Federal Hill away as to its source of bottling. After as many as 25, "justa five mora minutes", I finally ate a cold 11:30 p.m. dinner.

I ordered Scalappini alla Zingarella while my date had Polla alla Camille. Zingarella is veal, fried peppers, wine sauce and mushrooms. They forgot to add the wine sauce, the peppers and the mushrooms. One out of four must be Camille's odds. The accompanying two vegetables and salad were hijacked somewhere between section 8g and 22X.

The candle obviously tired of the wait, burnt itself out midway through my eating of the veal. It's embarrassing to know you dropped a piece of veal on your lap and not be able to find it. The highlight of the evening was the speed of which the check was retrieved. Only ask once and you receive it within the same breath. He must have known that I needed the extra time to work off the midnight meal before I went to bed. The only words heard all night from the waiter were "boy, it'sa been quita tougha night." My sentiments exactly Gino.

So P.C., my scale shows Raymond Cafe 1, R.I. Restaurants after the first inning. Until this little Kraut sees reason to strike again ... Chow!

Correction

Dear Editor,

Due to an unfortunate typographical error, a phrase was deleted from the last paragraph on my review of Siddhartha in the October 31 issue of The Cowl. As the sentence appeared:

"The novel Siddhartha is the story of an inward journey in the midst of the outside world, it cannot allow us to get inside Siddhartha's head; so, I think, the essential thrust of the novel is dissipated in pictures." The whole sense of the difference between novel and film was destroyed (besides rendering the sentence itself incomprehensible).

The sentence should have read: "The novel is the story of an inward journey in the midst of the outside world and, while the movie presents the outside world, it cannot allow us to get inside Siddhartha's head; so, I think, the essential thrust of the novel is dissipated in pictures."

Thus, the contrast between the art form of the novel and the art form of film is upheld.

Sincerely,
Brian Hyland

Course Added

Sir:

A new course will be introduced in the English Department, English 404: American Poetry and Prose to 1900, which will be running for the first time this spring. It will have a double perspective. The prose will be studied in order to chart the intellectual backgrounds of American literature; authors read will include Jonathan Edwards, Franklin, Crèvecoeur, Jefferson, Cooper, Emerson, Thoreau, Lincoln, and Henry Adams. (It should be noted that this is non-fiction prose; English 405 takes up American fiction before 1900.) The poetry will be studied for its own sake and as offering opportunities for interpretation and evaluation. Those drawn on will include Edward Taylor, Freneau, Emerson, Poe, Whitman, The Schoolroom Poets, Lanier, Emily Dickinson, Robinson, and Frost.

English 404 is scheduled for series K. I hope to run it as much as possible not as a lecture course but as a seminar, to insure maximum student participation. Further particulars can be had from me in my Library study, 338, any afternoon.

Yours faithfully,
Brian M. Barbour
Assistant Professor

"Your Mother's Moustache"

"Peanut-Power"

"Gantri Nite" is Successful

by Heidi Kenny

The Providence College Dillon Club sponsored "Gantri Nite", on Friday, November 2, 1973. Approximately 350 attended the event which was held in the multi-purpose room. Many felt it to be a success due to the fact that it was not the ordinary college mixer, with a rock group, dancing and beer. Music and entertainment was provided by "Mother's Moustache", who played all of the old time favorites. There was no dancing, but there was plenty of beer and an unlimited supply of free peanuts. The shells of the peanuts were thrown on the floor to create atmosphere. During the group's intermissions Marx Brothers, W.C. Fields, and Three Stooges flicks were shown. To keep the beer lines to a minimum waitresses walked around to the tables and sold beer. All of this added up to an atmosphere similar to that of Gantri's and the Ground Round.

The Dillon Club Board helped to make "Gantri Nite" the success it was. Hours of time, effort and money were spent to make "Gantri Nite" an enjoyable and unique form of entertainment for the college. We hope that those who attended this affair had a good time. We hope to see you all at our future events.

Brother to Dragons

by Elizabeth Van Houten

Last Saturday night I spent two very interesting, sometimes confusing, mindbending hours at the new Trinity Square theater. The Majestic Theater with the inside rearranged into two theaters, is the new cite for the Trinity Square Repertory Company. The stage of the lower level theater is the same as the old Trinity Square and this is where I witnessed the revival of Robert Penn Warren's Brother to Dragons.

The story is of a family that moved with its slaves, from Virginia to the dark woods of Kentucky where their nightmarish world was offset by the brutal murder of one of their slaves by the two sons. The mother of this Lewis family was the sister of Thomas Jefferson, who couldn't quite face the horror of the murder.

This isn't an average play where by just sitting there you become involved with the characters and their emotions, and are spoonfed feelings from build up to climax. And yet the impact is as great. It is poetry in a dramatic form, and like Dylan Thomas' Under Milkwood, it is a play for voices. Communication with the audience is different from the traditional play in that there is a chorus, and the characters on occasion, speak directly to the audience, constantly reminding the audience that they are an audience. The scenes change very quickly which doesn't give one too much time to consider the implications of what has been said.

Although the message is mentioned in the playbill, it did not come across to me in the actual viewing. Perhaps this was because I found it difficult to sift through the metaphors and apparent symbolism, all of which left me confused. But for all of my confusion with the oblique, the actual events and the suffering between the family members: their groping, their despair, their search for truth in the very dark and the very lonely, had a great impact. In this the play is a success; it is truly a tragedy, shown with absolutely unconventional devices. The rustic stage and minimal use of lights coincides well with the mood. According to Adrian Hall, the director, "It draws upon American history for its reality and upon American mythology for its metaphors."

Some scenes in particular were very moving but imagination is definitely needed. In one unusually effective scene actors actually

Thursday or Friday, it will be announced by Wednesday, one hundred more stickers will be issued to the student body: on a fifty-fifty basis, commuters and residents. Because the sophomores were not afforded an equal chance at the allotment of a sticker, the new issuance will start with the sophomores, and then go back to the senior and junior classes. We don't have the time, nor do I feel we should make time, to worry about those people who didn't feel like getting out of bed: in other words, those people who didn't take it seriously will have to do the best they can with the problem they themselves made. That may sound harsh, but it's the only way to keep some order to the whole thing. I have my own feelings about the Twong System, in some ways I think it is quite unnecessary and the fine is to severe. However, a system to discipline the parking problem is in need and this is the only one available at the moment. Most likely, within the next few weeks, anyone who has followed the procedures correctly will be allotted space to park: those who didn't, well that's their problem. Presently there is nowhere near enough space on campus for parking areas. Until such time that space is available, we will have to enforce a system of this type. Considerations are being given to acquire facilities; there are several options being researched.

become a riverboat sliding rhythmically across the black Ohio River, barely visible by the light of a torch. In another scene, several bent actors with their cupped hands fluttering over their head become a moth, the moth that has just landed on Lilburn Lewis' hand as he sits by a candle. This delicate action is described by a chorus in the background.

Brother to Dragons is a spectacle and an experience that seems to end with the slightest touch of hope — look for it.

There has also been inquiries into the possibilities of a parking ramp on campus. Again, I ask for your cooperation.

The campus patrol car, as has been announced, was a gift of the Campus Council. The Council is composed of the president and treasurer of the following organizations: the Congress, the BOG, the Resident Board, the Dillon Club, the Friars Club, the Athletic Board, and the Afro-American Society. After discussing the feasibility of this project, and the overall worth of such a proposal, the Council appropriated funds from each of the respective organizations. There were no commitments forced from these organizations. Those which chose to do so, did so of their own accord. I myself think that the intimidating effect of the car alone was well worth the purchase price. In no way was it an attempt to buy the respect of the administration. I honestly do not feel that the administration could be bought off so easily to begin with; anyone who could entertain any idea of this sort must be a bit demented. Providence College deals with hundreds of thousands of dollars each year. Thirteen hundred dollars is like a single drop of rain. The point is in my mind, that no matter what the political indications, the car is and will continue to be worth a great deal to the security picture. For this reason only, the car was purchased.

A Sensational Experience

Miss Marianne Masterson, one of seven blind students attending Providence College was solicited to render aid to the rehearsing cast of "Butterflies Are Free", the upcoming Friar's Cell production.

The part of Don Baker, to be performed by John O'Hurley, is that of a blind person. It was felt by the director of the play, Miss Lynn Rae Slavin, that in order for authenticity to be achieved, a blind person should be brought in to rehearse with John O'Hurley.

The first thing done in this "special rehearsal" was the arranging of the set as closely as possible as it will be during the performance. Marianne, then, with the help of John O'Hurley oriented herself to the set, and in turn taught John how to orientate himself in terms of touch and distance between objects. It was acknowledged that there are certain things done in the play which a blind person must specifically learn how to do in accordance with particular senses; reaching for the phone must employ the sense of hearing; lighting a candle must be done by touch and heat perception.

As Miss Masterson says, "The idea was to teach him to sense things in the same way that a blind person would so that he could become more a part of the character he is playing." Surely, the self-confidence that John O'Hurley must portray as Don Baker is exemplified in the character of his teacher.

Marianne Masterson is a sophomore political science major, and is Educational Director of WDOM.

Peace Corps Names Campus Representative

The New England VISTA and Peace Corps recruiting office has named Jackie Ferguson to counsel seniors on this campus on their opportunities in both Peace Corps and VISTA.

Jackie, who is a former Peace Corps volunteer, will visit here frequently during the next few months. She will be working through the placement office.

"My major responsibility is to let people know what kind of jobs are open to them following graduation. I'll also be available to answer questions and to help people fill out applications," said the representative.

"Acceptance is based on information about you from two forces; what you say about yourself in the application and what your references say about your reference sheet," said Jackie to emphasize the importance of the application. He said that people who fill out the application on their own usually wind up understating their qualifications. "I've helped a lot of people fill them out and can usually save someone four or five

VISTA & Peace Corps have hundreds of job openings for Seniors. From agriculture to zoology. Get experience you can find in no other organization. Reqs will be in the Placement Office soon. Sign up now in Placement for an interview.

JOBS In Business Consulting. Frequently the difference between a marginal and a going business is the inability of the former to hire consultants. Business graduates working for VISTA and Peace Corps are helping to change that situation. If you have a BBA, MBA, or MPA, you should look into VISTA and Peace Corps. It's experience you'll get with no other organization. A representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 14 & 15. Sign up now for an interview.

INNOVATIVE persons to teach under-educated adults, inner-city dropouts, Spanish speaking and Indian children in the U.S. Must be able to work outside traditional classroom. If you're a senior getting a degree in education, English, languages, sociology, etc. talk to a VISTA representative in the Placement Office on November 14, 15. Sign up today for an interview.

APARTMENT FOR RENT - within walking distance of PC. $165. per month, no lease required, suitable for up to 4 students, 1 rooms; 2 bedrooms, living rm, kitchen, tile bath, & small pantry. Furnished + stove, refrigerator, beds, available December 1. First and last month rent required in addition to $100 deposit for damages which will be returned. Call: 351-2580, 861-7713.

TEACH MATH and Science-Where The Earth is Flat Rocks are Evil, and Turtles Are Sacred. As a Peace Corps teacher, you'll get some tough questions from your students. Like: How does the turtle Vishnu swimming in his sea of milk and pushing up the tree of life fit into your theories of the world, Mr. Bob? You don't put legends like these down because they are a vital part of your student's culture. One of the challenges of teaching math and science in a developing country is to create acceptance for these subjects within the frame work of ancient traditions. A Peace Corps - VISTA representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 14 & 15. Sign up now for an interview.

In your job search, you'll run across all kinds of glossy pages and promises that so-and-so company wants graduates with liberal arts degrees. Last year's seniors who chose either VISTA or Peace Corps ARE AT WORK in hundreds of projects both here and in 59 countries overseas. Teaching English as a foreign language; working in - tuberculosis control programs, small pox, and malaria eradication projects; acting as agricultural extension agents; developing alternative schools; counseling in drug crisis centers and many more. Demand for these assignments is, of course, great. It's extremely important for you to apply before December. To underscore this, VISTA and Peace Corps representatives will be here to share information and help in filling out applications during this semester only: on November 14 & 15. MORE THAN ONCE UPON A TIME

ONCE A KNIGHT FELT COMPELLED TO GET IT ON AND TELL IT LIKE IT IS SO HE COULD GET HIS HEAD STRAIGHT AND PUT DOWN ANY BAD VIBES THAT MIGHT BE GOING DOWN BETWEEN HIMSELF AND HIS ROOMMATE, A DRAGON. AND HE DID SAY: "LOOK, MAN, YOU OWE ME SEVERAL CARLOADS OF SCHAEFER BEER AND IT'S ABOUT TIME YOU DID SOMETHING FOR ME. IF YOU GET ME A DATE, I'LL FORGET ABOUT THE BEER."

AND THE DRAGON DID AGREE AND DID REPAIR TO THE PHONE BOOTH OF THE LOCAL TAVERN WHERE THE NAMES OF SEVERAL WILLING MAIDENS WERE LISTED. BUT ALAS, HE MET WITH LITTLE SUCCESS FOR THE KNIGHT WAS KNOWN BY ONE AND ALL TO BE, IN THE PARLANCE OF THE UNIVERSITAS, AN "INNYSKAY EEPGRAY."¹⁾

BUT, NOT WILLING TO FORFEIT THE CHANCE TO ERADICATE HIS DEBILITATING DEBT, THE DRAGON DID REPAIR TO THE CAMPUS NOVELTY SHOP.

O'Shea Places First As Friars Cop Eastern Title

Anyone who has ever seen harrier Mick O'Shea in action has been totally impressed. Mick possesses that type of natural strike and smoothness which makes him a delight to watch. He seems to flow with ease and deer-like agility as he outruns all competition. But style is only O'Shea's outer nature; inside he is all talent and strength.

At Franklin Park in Boston last week, Mick's style and talent carried him to his fourth first place finish in a row as he lead the Friars to another EICAA title. For the past six years, and nine out of the last 10 years, Providence has totally dominated this conference meet. The year P.C. did miss out on the title was in 1967 when they failed to enter.

O'Shea fashioned out a brilliant victory as he grabbed the lead at the mile mark and built up 200 yards between himself and Greg Lees of Central Connecticut to win easily. His time of 24:08 is one of the fastest recorded on the five mile Franklin course this year. Mick's teammates were behind him all the way. P.C. scored 68 points in the 13 team race compared to 90 for second place Springfield. Frosh John Savoie of New Hampshire powered to 11th place with another fine race. Dennis Swart stayed with the leaders up to the two-mile mark but faded to finish in 17th place just behind Pat Rafferty in 16th. Chick Kasouf rounded out the Friar scoring by finishing 23rd.

In the Junior Varsity race, Providence also dominated with a low 25 points on the strength of a 1-2-3 finish. Rick O'Connor grabbed first place over the 3.2 mile course to the delight of an excited Danny Carroll. Irishman Phil Campbell took second with a fine race and Ed Lussier, the early leader, finished third. Keith Gallagher and Bruce Derrick finished ninth and 10th respectively.

OVER HILL N' DALE

Harrier of the week award goes to Phil Campbell, who has been very tough of late after coming off of a painful toe injury ... Anyone interested in joining the Rick O'Connor Fan Club is asked to contact "Dan the Man" Carroll. For a nominal fee Dan will give you a six-by-eight photo of Rick winning the Eastern 'J.V.' race plus a mimeographed copy of one of Rick's semester mark reports ... Certain members of the team have developed unique appetites for Mexican food. The favorite dish of these "South of the Border" gourmets is tacos served by El Jacko is the Box located somewhere in Warwick ... The X-C career of the Great Chris Murphy has come to a close. Murph was a member of the unforgettable 1970 Freshman X-C team which included such P.C. immortals as Jim Gaughan, Kevin Beasley and Dave Tessier. Chris continued to work hard as a Soph, but really didn't make any real progress until he attached himself to Allah, god of the transcendental runner. In his revelation Mohammad Murphy rose to be the number one two-miler on the team, but was seized by a thirst-for-power — and decided to cruise through his senior year. As for the future, only Allah knows.

Athletic Department Holds Press Day

by Bob Phillips

On Thursday, November 1, the Providence College Athletic Department staged its annual Press Day. As coach Dave Gavitt insists on "closed" practices, this is the only opportunity for the local press to witness a live Friar practice. Press Day started at 4:00 p.m. when the photographers and writers were allowed to interview or take pictures of anyone they desired. The result was mass chaos for the next hour with the players hamming it up and the writers eating it up. The players posed in full uniform while Mike Tranghese, P.C. sports information director, acted as coordinator for the photographers. Conspicuously missing from the prestigious event was that legend in his own time, Chris Clark.

As expected, All-American candidates Kevin Stacom and Marvin Barnes were the centers of attraction. Also major points of interest for the press were Friar newcomers Bob Cooper and Joey Hassett. An inter-squad scrimmage immediately followed. The Friars look sharp in all phases of the game and it was obvious to all that Stacom and Barnes are to be counted upon for team leadership.

It has been the intention of the Cowl sports staff to keep you better informed as to the pre-season developments on the basketball scene. However, due to the "closed door" policy we have been unable to do so. In order to keep in touch with the big goings-on, we must refer you to either the Providence Journal or Channel ten, who somehow have gained the secret of admittance.

Unfortunately, it will be another year before the school newspaper will be invited to witness first hand the secrets behind those closed doors.

2:00 Liberated Conference

3:00 National and American Conferences

by Len Aisfeld

For over a quarter of a century until 1967, P.C. was without a football team to fill a much needed Fall vacancy. Since 1967, the Friars Gridders had been forced to fight not only their opponents, but its Administration, poor playing conditions, poor student support and a general feeling of apathy. This year however, with the passage of the football referendum, most of their hardships were removed, but still the sporadic support remains. Surely the hard work and desire exhibited by the gridders is not reflected in the lack of community support. The schedule consisted of the top club teams in the conference which meant every game would be exciting. Their latest one-sided victory over Assumption 26-0 shows just how powerful the Friars are.

Westchester Community College invaded Hendricken Field, Saturday at one o'clock to close out the Friars season. A tremendous crowd turn-out could be the difference between a losing and winning season. Your football team deserves your attendance. I would like to congratulate Richie Kless and John Tavalone on four years of outstanding service both on and off the football field. Their hard work and long hours have helped to elevate the gridders to their present respectable position among P.C. sports. Congratulations and good luck to the other Friar seniors: John Brady, John Geary, Steve Woods, Sal Gulino, Fred Tressler, Aury

Committee (Con't.)

Corporation; the graduating Senior Class of Students of the College shall, by election, choose two faculty members to serve for a one year term as their representatives as members of the Corporation; the above said twenty Corporation members shall meet and elect, upon nomination by one fourth of their number, nine additional members who have shown exceptional ability and interest in the College. These last nine said additional members need not necessarily be chosen from within the College.

Martin McNamara initially presented this student proposal to the members of the sub-committee. Following his presentation, there was an open exchange of questions and comments in which all those present expressed their opinions. After the students' case had been thoroughly explained and examined, the sub-committee assured the students that they would receive a copy and full explanation of the final committee recommendations, and the meeting was adjourned.

"Joe Wille" Licata, Brian Carey, Ed "E.J." Carreiro, Jack Gay, Harry Scanlon, Randy Palmer, and Paul Brown.

On the soccer scene; this year's record of 5-2-3 is not reflective of their outstanding season. They also drew a small but spirited fan support to back the exciting action. The tri-captains Kevin Haverty, "X" Mantesanz, and Tim Gilbride have witnessed the soccer program expand from a weak club schedule of their freshman year to a competitive university standard. Their contribution to the soccer team is shown in the rapid growth of interest surrounding their sport. It is their dedication as well as the other seniors; Larry Whit, Bob Morgan and Peter Sheil that make the future success of Providence soccer seem imminent.

Good luck to all the Fall sports as their seasons close this week.

Friars Tie Coast Guard 0-0 for Second Straight Tie

by Paul Pontarelli

Larry Tirone

For the second game in a row, the PC soccer forces neither won nor lost. But whereas the tie with Boston College was definitely a moral victory for the Friars, the team did not return from its October 31st game with Coast Guard with the same feeling. The Friar booters had Coast Guard on the ropes early, but they failed to get on the scoreboard and had to settle for a 0-0 tie.

Despite the heavy rain of the day before, the field was not overly slippery, but the bright sun presented a problem for both teams. The Friars came out hustling and dominated the action in the opening minutes. PC's passing attack brought the ball in close, but Coast Guard goalie Russ Veirase came up with four fine saves in stopping the PC forward line.

Coast Guard got their own offense going and put pressure on goalie Wally Felag and the PC fullbacks. But Pete Sheil, Mark Cohn and Greg Papaz choked off any penetrations before they could get too serious. Around the 15:00 mark the Friars got something going a couple of times, but passes that barely missed their mark killed the threats. For the next ten minutes play took place at midfield, with neither team gaining momentum.

PC finally moved the ball into Bear territory and just missed getting on the scoreboard at the 35:00 mark. Sandy Farrell set up Pelino Ferzoco on the right, but Pelino's hard shot sailed just over the crossbar. Moments later, a PC fast break was broken up by speedy Guard fullback Bill Dickman. The Bears had a direct kick just outside the penalty area with only two minutes to go, but the drive was wide.

Statistically-wise, the Friars dominated the first half (they outshot the home team 11-6), but they could not capitalize on their early chances. Although the game was not nearly as physical as last year's encounter, both teams were hustling and moving for the ball. And during intermission the weather got chilly and the wind really picked up—making it a definite factor in the second half.

Both teams were alive and spirited as the second period got underway. But after fourteen minutes only one shot had been taken by both teams, as neither eleven could control midfield. Pat Farrell had both benches on their feet however, when he faked out a Bear fullback and had a clear shot on goal. The hero of the BC game drilled a shot that was knocked away on a diving effort by goalie Veirase.

Coast Guard, with 18:00 gone, presented Wally Felag with his first serious test in goal. Bear forward John Astley managed to thread his way down the left wing and came in all alone on Felag. Astley let loose a hard drive from about ten yards out, but it was right at Felag and the PC net-minder managed to hang on.

Play picked up as Coast Guard came right back two minutes later. Wally Felag again came up with a fine effort when he anticipated a crossing pass and was able to punch it away from a charging Bear forward. PC finally gained momentum with 25:00 gone as Bob Morgan and Tim Gilbride almost teamed up for a goal.

Morgan boomed a perfect corner kick into the Bear goal crease. Gilbride headed the ball solidly, but right at goalie Veirase, who was standing only a few feet away. Veirase got his hands on the ball and batted it off Gilbride's chest and out of bounds. PC kept up the pressure but could not get off any good shots.

With only 15:00 to go, the action shifted down towards the PC end. Coast Guard moved in close, but Felag killed off the threat with a heads-up save. However, Wally wasn't to remain in the scoreless contest for too much longer as he sustained a head injury when a Coast Guard forward ran into the PC goalie while he was crouching to make a save. Larry Tirone put down his notebook, took his place in the PC goal and immediately stopped two serious Bear threats.

The home team came down the right wing, but Tirone grabbed a rising shot that was headed for the corner of the PC goal. Moments later, John Astley broke loose on the left side and came in one-on-one against Tirone. Larry, seeing that Astley didn't have full control, left the nets and went to meet the charging Bear forward. Tirone's sliding tackle on Astley knocked the ball away, and the PC backs controlled it until Larry could get back into position. It was the save of the day and the last time the Bears threatened.

The game went right down to the last seconds as Bob Morgan lined up for a corner kick. But Mike Suffelett's header on the ensuing kick sailed just over the crossbar. After 90 minutes of action the game ended right where it started—0-0.

A disappointed Coach Doyle commented that "we had the opportunities to score five goals in the first half. But the offense didn't get good position of play in the second half and we didn't use our wings to the greatest advantage. We didn't put them away early and they just got stronger in the second half."

All afternoon it was the alert and hustling PC defense that kept the Friars in the game. Kevin Mullin played an exceptionally strong game and Greg Papaz came up with a few very nice plays. The Friar record now stands at 5-2-3 and they will be hoping for more offensive punch in their final game with Barrington.

Harrier Mike O'Shea is Cowl Athlete of The Month

by J. N. Gobis

Freshman Mick O'Shea has been named Cowl athlete of the month by the Cowl sports staff. Mick was born in Limerick, Ireland and is one of the two Irish imports on Coach Bob Amato's track team. Mick began his serious running at the age of fifteen in the Irish countryside. At Gormanston College, Mick developed much of the confidence and poise which characterize his style. The Limerick Lad gave us a foreshadowing of his talent in the first meet of the season against the Boston College Eagles when Mick showed a strong second to P.C. ace harrier Tom Smith. O'Shea maintained his aggressive pace as the Friars were upset by UConn at hilly Storrs. The Butler Hospital grounds were next testing ground for O'Shea's talent as P.C. opposed U.R.I. and Brown. Mick exhibited his prowess by taking an early lead and winning the race in a time of 26:29 for the East Side circuit. In Cowl Athlete of the Month, fantastic Irish import, Mick O'Shea.

Worcester Mick broke a Holy Cross record with a time of 25:14 over the 5.2 mile course placing first in the meet. Boston's Franklin Park has to be one of Mick's favorite courses for there in a tri-angular meet against BU and Northeastern he won a first place finish in a display of tactful running. Mick lingered effortlessly on the heels of the Hushy runners for four miles then surged for the win.

The personable Mick finds the training route here in the States much tougher than that in Ireland. He feels that the lack of facilities in Limerick hampers runners from achieving full potential. The Irish lad finds the atmosphere here at PC much to his liking, Coach Amato has clearly found a new ace to replace Tom Smith. We congratulate an excellent athlete and an international addition to the P.C. community, Mick O'Shea.

Presenting:

Dear Uncle Jack....

Dear Uncle Jack: What are your specific objections to the standardized tests that you were expounding on October 20?

Bill Roitell

Bill: My objections are against the monopolistic enterprise known as the Educational Testing Service located at Princeton, New Jersey. Do you realize that to become a professional person in this country you must deal with this organization and this one alone for there is no other. If the Congress has the power to investigate this type of practice I call upon them to do so in regard to the Educational Testing Institute. This so called Institute has as much control over our lives as any body in this society short of the Federal government and Thomistic philosophy.

Dear Uncle Jack: What about these PC Lincoln Continentals I see around the campus, I'd figure you'd have a comment on it?

Joe Gemmamoski

Joe: Beside the vow of poverty and the gas shortage I have nothing to say.

Dear Uncle Jack: Do you remember Alumni Hall?

Joe 73

Joe: I remember Alumni Hall, I've asked some people on the Staff and they remember Alumni Hall. I liked Alumni Hall and so did others. Lets get a competent person to do our advertising.

Dear Uncle Jack: Whom are you endorsing for the upcoming election for the student rep on the corporation?

Tom 74

Tom: To begin with Uncle Jack does not endorse people or products. I'm not a commercial person. My brain storm on this is not to become involved at all. After almost three and one half years here I've become unsated over this place. Any personal vendetta to infer vitriol here is met with threats and ignorance.

Dear Uncle Jack: Give us your answer to the President's criticism of the Press?

Ed White

Ed: The criticism of this President and other Presidents of the Press shows that these men do not conceive the responsibility of the Press. A noted Journalist Everett Rattray once said that the responsibility of the weekly newspaper is to print the news and to Raise Hell. It is our responsibility to bring about the betterment of our situation. Yet the "Noblesse" which we the press criticize is often up in arms over our attempts to do our job. I feel that it is my responsibility to write regardless of this or other attacks but what does this have to do with the price of eggs?

THE SEARCH FOR A NEW UNCLE JACK HAS BEGUN, WOULD YOU LIKE TO WRITE A WEEKLY COLUMN OF PUN & PRAISE? KNOWLEDGE OF THE DOMINICAN PARTICIPATION IN THE INQUISITION NECESSARY. INTERVIEWS AT THE COWL OFFICE WEDNESDAY 1:30 to 2:30.

Beat The Experts

Hello sports freaks, it's once again time to Beat The Experts. If you picked all the right answers last week don't get too excited because anyone with an I.Q. higher than that of a retarded chestnut could get them. This week our panel of John Buonaccorsi, Bob Murphy, Len Alsfeld, Uncle Jack, and special guest panelist, Nel Schneider has decided to challenge your intelligence as well as awe you with our knowledge. The questions:

1. He led the NBA in assists last year:
 - a. Dave Bing
 - b. John Havlicek
 - c. Nate Archibald
2. He holds the lifetime record for both scoring average and total points scored in the NBA:
 - a. Jerry West
 - b. Wilt Chamberlain
 - c. Dolph Schayes

3. How many points did the Boston Celtics score when they set the NBA record for points scored in a game?

4. Jimmy Brown set the collegiate single game scoring record in a game against Colgate. How many points did he score?

- a. 35
- b. 43
- c. 47

5. He holds the college record for receptions for both a season and career totals:

- a. Howard Twilley
- b. Ron Sellers
- c. Jack Snow

6. Providence College ranks where in winning percentage over the last ten years among major colleges?

- a. 14th
- b. 20th
- c. 7th

Gridders to Close Against Westchester

by Larry Ruggiero

The P.C. Club Football Team faces Westchester College in the final scheduled home game of this season. This marks the first time these two teams have met since Westchester beat Providence in the championship game of 1971. A Friar victory this Saturday will result in a four way tie for second place in the E.C.C.F.C. between Providence, Iona, Westchester, and Assumption. A playoff berth is definitely at stake with the winner of Saturday's game meeting Marist for the championship. Marist has beaten Providence earlier this year, so the incentive for a rematch is present.

To add to the excitement, the Junior class has included the Westchester game as part of their ring weekend package. A good turnout is anticipated by the ring committee.

This week's game has also been tabbed as "Senior Day". Fourteen seniors will be participating in their final game as a Fighting Friar, and the club will be honoring them and their mothers in a pre-game ceremony.

This Saturday offers then, a three-in-one package. A crucial game resulting, possibly, in a playoff berth, a Ring Weekend special, and Senior Day festivities. So come as a lover of football and enjoy an exciting game. Come as a member of the Junior Class and see many of your friends. Come to see fourteen seniors, who have helped this club grow from a mediocre independent team into one of the most powerful and respected teams in the nation. This game will offer something for everyone. COME!!!
