The essence of Mr. O'Malley's talks revolved around the chronological sequence of circumstances that led to the climactic events of contemporary Irish history, and it was clear that "the Northern Irish problem is both colonial and religious in its root causes," he continued. The current lead-up to the invasion of the province events of violence in '69. He said and 1970. Proper atmosphere was continued, "put an end to the consideration of Ulster Protestants felt that James II was replaced by Protestantism and constituted a continuing materialism of contemporary religious and laws over royal absolutism. I can envision for example, that time, they consolidated various ideas and suggestions finally emerging with a unique plan, which, if successfully implemented, will benefit the college greatly in the coming years. The officers realized that many extenuating circumstances face the members of the Senior Class. Such problems as grading school, a tight job market, possible unemployment, or military service are presenting themselves to many Seniors. Taking into account these situations, a special three-year pledge plan has been developed to satisfy the desire to bestow a last-minute gift to the college. The students will be notified by the Office of Alumni Development and Seniors will be able, therefore, to judge the success of the plans for the Class of 1972's Senior Class Gift Plans.

Pat Lynn Slonina

Plans for the Class of 1972's commencement gift have been developed by Senior Class President James L. Lanzillo, Jr., and vice president Thomas J. McCabe, Jr. Accompanied by William Fitzgerald, class treasurer, and Mark Pelacchi, class secretary, the officers met last week with Mr. Charles Duffy of the English Department along with Mr. O'Malley and Mr. John Railey, representatives from the Office of Alumni Development. At that time, they consolidated various ideas and suggestions finally emerging with a unique plan, which, if successfully implemented, will benefit the college greatly in the coming years. The officers realized that many extenuating circumstances face the members of the Senior Class. Such problems as grading school, a tight job market, possible unemployment, or military service are presenting themselves to many Seniors. Taking into account these situations, a special three-year pledge plan has been developed to satisfy the desire to bestow a last-minute gift to the college. The students will be notified by the Office of Alumni Development and Seniors will be able, therefore, to judge the success of the plans for the Class of 1972's Senior Class Gift Plans.

THE AMERICAN DREAM

by Edward Albee

8:30 P.M. Fri. & Sat., Feb. 4, 5

DIRECTED BY

McCRORIE
Prospective Insurance Salesmen May Try Their Skills

Joe Osborne
Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company has established an internship program on campus. Headed by Donald F. Lapi erre and Leo Lapi erre the internship program is open to all students, preferably sophomores and juniors, interested in selling life insurance.

It took one year of talks with the administration to gain an office on campus. When asked how they achieved this Mr. Lapi erre said, "We had to establish the fact that the office was student oriented, and not primarily for selling." He also stated, "The program deals with management, finance and sales in the life insurance field. The student that takes part in this internship program will know more about life insurance than 99% of the population." Also stated was the chance for students to earn some money.

The advantages of selling life insurance that were stated by both agents were independence, unlimited income, and a sense of accomplishment. "In selling life insurance you are your own boss, and no quota which gives yourself unlimited income, and a sense of accomplishment," agreed both, and no quota which gives yourself unlimited income, and a sense of accomplishment.

The intern program is an experimental project being pioneered at Providence College by Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company. Rent for the office in room 102 in the Student Union in being paid by the insurance company. Both agents are graduates of Providence College.

A special one day presentation of original lithograph, intaglio and woodcut prints will be held Wednesday, February 16 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. in the foyer of the Student Union of Providence College. The public is invited to view this unique collection of the Lakeside Studio from Lakeside, Michigan and to meet their representative, Tom McCormick, who will be happy to answer questions both historical and technical. Works to be displayed are available for purchase. The works to be exhibited here contain prints by old master and modern master artists such as Albrecht Durer, Martin Schongauer, Jacques Callot, Pablo Picasso, William Blake and Georges Rouault. Also there will be contemporary prints by Leonard Baskin, Garo Antreasian, Mark Tobey, S.W. Hayter and many others including Tom Okerse from Rhode Island.

The purpose of the Lakeside Studio is two-fold. First, to make available high quality, original prints to established and beginning collectors and, second, to fulfill a need for rapport with the working printmaker. Located on five wooded acres overlooking Lake Michigan, yet within an hour's drive of Chicago, the studio offers a fully-equipped lithograph and intaglio workshop. These facilities have been set up and operated by master printers trained at Tamarind Lithography Workshop in Los Angeles.

Editions by Baskin, Richard Hunt, Mich Kohn and Minna Citron, to name only a few, have so far been printed and published by Lakeside. Plans are now being made for an annual program of intensive study which the noted English printmaker Michael Rosenberg will inaugurate this summer. Included on the property is a 50-room hotel which was once a popular summer resort and now provides living quarters for visiting artists, professors, curators and gallery directors.

The Origin of Man

By Dennis Kelly

Last Thursday night, Fr. Thomas L. Fallon, O.P., gave a lecture entitled "The Origin of Man". Although at first one might think that in modern society a discourse concerning itself with a Catholic's attempt to justify the Old Testament account in Genesis, and explain Original Sin, is outdated, its relevance cannot be denied. Brought to mind initially are debates of Darwinian based theories versus Scripture, followed by the relatively modern scepticism over the existence of any supernatural force.

Fr. Fallon proposed that the human form did evolve through the ages, as did other species, but it was unique, in the sense that it was prepared for human life and the human soul, by the process of natural selection and genetic isolation. Once that human soul was incorporated into this particular species, it existed as man, but its degree of self-consciousness was proportional to its time of existence; that is, young and undeveloped. Once the human soul was established as it was, it was possible for God to reveal himself to man. Man was self-sufficient enough to either accept or reject God. This self-sufficiency, however, eventually enabled a single moment when man forgot that he was mortal. By believing himself immortal, he felt that moment, man placed himself on par with God. Here, man reached and committed Original Sin.

When questioned about the seemingly fatalistic idea that since, one sinned, all are flawed, as it seemingly appears in Genesis, Fr. Fallon alluded to the Hebrew notion of the "Corporate Personality" that is, one person represents the race. Just as Christ is the head of Christianity, Adam (a literary figure) is the head of humanity. Fr. Fallon stressed the fact that Adam could very well be taken to mean "mankind." Adam is a name, per se. It means "the man."

Emphasized from the beginning of the lecture, was the fact that Genesis was a theological writing, not a scientific account. It was written by an author-tradition, which or who wanted to teach theology in a simplistic fashion. It is not a "history."

A sense of necessity pervaded the atmosphere of the lecture. Even though no clear-cut understanding of the origins of man and original sin, were reached, it was obvious that a reasonable attempt was made. The participants were optimistic that such discussions are productive and relevant to all men.

MARK TWAIN TONIGHT

The knowledge will begin to flow in the FRIAR CELL

8:00 P.M.

Jan. 28, 29, & 30
Feb. 4, 5, & 6

Admission $1.50

with P.C. id. $1.00

Presented by the P.C. Theatre Arts Dept.

TAKE A SPRING TRIP TO ACAPULCO, MEXICO

EXPERIENCE THE WORLD'S FINEST VACATIONLAND

MARCH 26-APRIL 1
APRIL 1-APRIL 7

CONTACT YOUR STUDENT REPRESENTATIVE

BOB POTTER
at 353-1762

THE COWL, FEBRUARY 2, 1972
Students On Collision Course

Arlington, Texas - (L.P.) Changing attitudes of college students and the unavailability of some American institutions are on a collision course that may pose major problems, warns a University of Texas at Arlington sociologist.

Notable targets of student discontent are the university system, government, and churches, concludes Dr. William A. Stacey after evaluating data from some 7,000 student interviews during the past six years.

"The thing different about the student of today and the student of yesterday is that the student today might be willing to do something about his ideals," he cautions. "We're talking about two different generations of students," he adds in comparing 1965 and 1970 colleagues. He began the study in 1965 at Mississippi State University and continued it there through 1970.

He and a colleague, Ronald C. Engle, associate professor of sociology, posed the same questions to UT Arlington students for comparison purposes. They presented their findings at the Southern Sociological Society meeting in Florida this year.

Responses at both universities followed approximately the same pattern, although UT Arlington students reflected a more liberal attitude, Dr. Stacey attributes this primarily to the urban environment.

"The student today doesn't feel the same kind of hangups that the student of, say, five years ago experienced," he said. In the survey, Dr. Stacey found today's students are more concerned with human relations, college administrations, and national and international policy.

He discovered today's students appear to be freer of prejudice and increasingly alienated by bureaucracy.

He also found increasing use of alcohol among students, more sexual permissiveness, a decline in religious values and church attendance, and a rise in the percentage who cheat or are aware of cheating in their classes.

He traces campus problems principally to two factors: "the failure of the administration to bring up the quality of education and to build the student into the administrative structure." He sees some encouraging signs that these problems are diminishing, he says.

"I think the churches are changing," he reports. "Should they make the changes, they should become more flexible so they can provide a service that is compatible with sociology, then, I think perhaps they will remain quite effective. But it's just like the university system. Unless they build into their structures the flexibility to deal with this new generation, then I see other philosophies developing." Dr. Stacey isn't perturbed about increasing sexual permissiveness, maintaining it doesn't represent a declining moral standard. "It's not a new morality. It's just more honesty about the morality we've had all along. I think we're finally realizing, both males and females, that sex is not a dirty thing.

Tuscaloosa, Ala. - (I.P.) The New College of the University of Alabama, is influencing its students and the future of college education in Alabama by encouraging its members to incorporate their learning into a total lifestyle that reflects and satisfies their own individual needs.

This function is being accomplished as much by the students' motivation and response to the New College environment and concepts as it is by any administrative set-up. In fact, the true success of the program is dependent upon the innovativeness and drive of the students in building and using the freedom New College offers.

The New College is based on the small school principle, having only 85 members at present out of a university of 11,000, and at full time it will have about 450 students. It was set in operation in the spring semester of 1971 with only 20 people.

One of the contributions of the New College include a commitment to a cross-section of students in terms of admissions with motivation as a primary concern. Inter-disciplinary program-focused approaches to general education, credit for out-of-class learning experiences, an opportunity to specialize and engage in independent study through the New College program and individualization of each student's academic plan through a contract-advising model.

In working and talking together, in personal involvement, the students learn to respond with an honesty and openness which may not often be found in a university environment. Says New College student Cynthia Wallace: "This involvement is sometimes frictional, sometimes aesthetic, but almost always with a love for other students and what New College stands for - a sense of maturity and identity.

"It is this concern, involvement and sense of purpose which will allow New College to help evolve the kind of College and hopefully the kind of University necessary for the future," he concludes.

---

Individual Learning Experience

---

Live In Concert

KING CRIMSON AND BLUES PROJECT

Feb. 13 at 8:00 P.M.
Alumni Hall Providence College

Light Show by FANTASMA

Tickets: General Admission $3.00
Two Tickets $5.00

---

THE TUTORIAL CENTER

has opened for the second semester.

Need any help?
Come see us.

located in Aquinas 112
Do You Want To Take A Walk?

Editorial writing does have its drawbacks. On a campus such as that of Providence College, where students go placidly from class to class, from day to day, one is often left groping about uncertainly for topics to wax eloquently on. This is one of those days. At this particular time in our college careers there seems to be a wealth of material to take our interests. We do have a big game against U.R.I. Saturday. The Friar Formal is Friday. The kinks in the new curriculum seem to have been worked out and the Student Congress has a new constitution. What utter banality.

What to do next? Well, I could write about the problems besetting the inaugural edition of the Board of Governors. That organization is already on its second president, not to mention the resignations of three other members. The Board, however, is oppressed by interdepartmental squabbles, boardroom administrators, and legal shackleph placed upon it by the Student Congress. It seems to be close to an end before it has reached its first birthday, but you can read about that on the op-ed page.

I suppose I could also write about the need for granting salaries to publication editors and major organization presidents. This system has been instituted successfully at other colleges and universities, but then again the Congress has already rejected that idea. (It seems the congressmen feel that a salaried official would then be required to do his job more effectively. We do not want that.) You can read about its presentation in an edition of last year’s Cowl or its rejection in the minutes of a long passed Student Congress meeting. You can read about both if you are so inclined.

Well then, why not write about something off campus. The war, our faltering economy, racism, and a myriad of other problems have provided material for editorializing that seems to be inexhaustible. That may be our ultimate ailment. We do seem to thrive on bad news.

Ah, but aren’t we all so tired of this. Aren’t we all so very tired of everything. Its eleven-thirty. Brad’s open. Do you want to take a walk?

The Constitutional Maze

Last week, the Student Congress debated and passed a proposal for a new constitution for student government. This proposal marks the first time that the student congress has completely presented an entirely new concept and model for student participation in the decision making process. The new constitution, as passed by the congress, is very complicated, but has the possibility of being an effective organ through which students can gain meaningful participation in community government.

The intent of the congress seems to be the greater participation of all students in the student government itself, and also creates the foundation for a more representative student legislature. Greater participation by the students can be achieved by the involvement of at least two hundred students in the various offices, committees and boards. This constitution is particularly unique in that it allows for student caucuses of at least fifty offices, committees and boards. This constitution is particularly unique in that it allows for student caucuses of at least fifty offices, committees and boards.

The Cowl can see merit in the new constitution, but is very apprehensive about its effectiveness. How does the congress expect to gain greater participation by simply setting up a complex and almost maze-like constitution which would necessitate a lawyer’s interpretative skills? Is it really necessary for a small campus to have such an elaborate legislative, executive and judicial structure? If it is, the new constitution will demand greater dedication to student government from those who dare to participate. In the past much of this dedication has been lacking. Student leaders will have to face great responsibilities under this new constitution. Proposals will have to be professional and rationally thought out with greater depth than has been demonstrated in the past. It is not to say that student government in the past has been capricious, but this new organ passed by the congress will demand much more time and responsibility from students. Students will have to learn to compliment academics with their extra-curricular activities and derive a learning experience from such a combination.

The new constitution has been sent to the administration for its approval. The Cowl sees its successful passage by the Committee on Administration and we welcome its passage with apprehension. We also hope that upon its passage that students will rise to the occasion and make the new constitution effective.
To Civil Disobedience

The Race Is On

The Relevancy of Relevance

Letters to the Editor

Senior Raffle Tickets

May Be Returned
Daily 9:00 A.M. - 4:00 P.M.
At the Information Desk in the Union
Please give all returns to Mrs. Green

By John Wall

By Bernie McKay

A question that people ask when looking at the wave of dissent that is sweeping across the nation is, "Do the American people react to symbolic protest? What is symbolic protest? There have been many attempts at this, but in most cases it may be that symbolic protest is another type of unrealistic conflict. Is this putting us anywhere?"

Bob Fagley, a noted author and new commentator for NBC's New York Bureau, stated that the only means left is an active approach to change. This means that an aggressive attitude is necessary, if one hopes to procure change. He used an interesting example to prove his point. During the last Olympiad, two Americans used the black panther symbol to signify their distresses with the prevailing attitudes in this country. A person in the audience maintained that the athletic field was not the place for such protests, but others went even further to state that these men and others like them were destroying America's image.

This person obviously does not watch the news at night. What surprising possibility of symbolic protest, which in this case was very justified; or plain sanity? What could they possibly say to our world about our say-in in Southeast Asia; or in Bangla Desh; or in the South? How much longer can we put up with the waste and the destruction of our age? It is symbolic protest or is it realistic? If it is realistic, then the students should be made aware of the problems that lie in the way. It seems to me that when realistic protest is the only answer, then people must be working long hours and a Prudent Meaning is the case, then the college administration might be in the way, his words, students should be allowed to participate in this protest. After all, their money is symbolic protest may easily be included.

Symbolic protest is absent from our campus. The recent rash of resignations from the Board of Governors is an example. Why did this happen? Nobody was unaware of the reason for the resignations. Now the Union is left without the guidance of a President and vice-president. Is this symbolic protest or is it realistic? If it is symbolic protest, then the students should be made aware of the problems that lie in the way. If it is realistic, then the administration might be in the way, his words, students should be allowed to participate in this protest. After all, their money is symbolic protest may easily be included.

Symbolic protest may take many forms. It would take hours to list them all. The interested should turn on the news tonight and there will be many tales on.

In my opinion there is no use in listing them all, as the world has lived through symbolic protest for quite some time now. People have seen the words, people have seen the acts. But the question that people ask is, "What exactly are non-returnable and I don't don't have a Democratic track record. One major political power has said that he has more love in his heart for Richard Nixon than he had for John Lindsay, and that came from a Democrat.

Nonetheless, what of his connection with the Students for a Democratic Society and what of his connection with the Administration, which, in my opinion, is based on a philosophy of primitivist humanism which is neither Catholic nor Dominican nor one of the other religious ideologies involved with members of the administration from the President on down.

We part good friends as we assist one another and may our best wishes are with the college where I have spent so many years. I can say with conscience I could continue my association with the college and that came from a Democrat.
Mark Twain Tonight

by Dennis Kelly

You are greeted at the door, and escorted into the parlor. After chatting with your friends, the guest of honor ambles out into your sight. From his appearance, you can tell that he is an old man, about seventy. His hair and mustache are gray with age, fitfully unkempt, and his eyes project a grandfatherly, senile vision, exuding wisdom as he glances at his guests. This is Mark Twain, gracing you with the honor of being in his presence. You need not ask for his autograph; this night will ever remain in your memory. You just sit back and enjoy the words of one of the great authors of our time.

The performance that Robert Butler presents as Mark Twain is incredibly engaging. Indeed one seems transformed into an acquaintance of Mark Twain, five or six decades ago, sitting down at the Universe, on his works, on his life and on the night. Paging through the Programme, one is introduced into the atmosphere of the evening. It calls the visit: "an evening of wit, humor, hope and Good Omen with Mark Twain", and warns that many other things may be expected. "In fact, the public is privileged to expect whatever they please!" A piano, banjo and harmonica musical arrangement passes your time while waiting for Mark Twain's first appearance. It is obvious that a great deal of work and preparation went into the success of this production. One actually begins to forget that this is presented by an actor, not Mark Twain himself. One is also forced to consider how contemporary and universal this man, Mark Twain, was. In talking about advice to youth, accident insurance, his trained Presbyterian Conscience, how to give up smoking, and politicians, the travel back through time is no further than yesterday. Seemingly, you receive the best of both worlds: a serious discourse on a particular philosophy of life while thoroughly enjoying it as the same time. You're having your cake and eating it too-truly in the Mark Twain tradition.

Mark Twain rated an encore. (He liked that.) In coming out to receive it, though, he beckoned all to be seated, and told another story. Although you knew that he was to leave soon, you wished that it wasn't just one story before the end of the night, but hundreds more. (And he will entertain you three more nights, this weekend.)

An Actor or Mark Twain Himself?? (Photo by Tracy Page)

In Retrospect:
Rubber Soul

A rarity in the rock world is an album on which the lyrical content displays a unification of theme. Simon and Garfunkle have achieved this, the most obvious example being Book-Ends, but other than this one can cite perhaps only a dozen more groups that have consciously employed such an ambitious technique. However, it seems that the Beatles have been well aware of the power of this approach since Rubber Soul. They reached the high point with Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, a work that did more to lift the face and change the image of rock to that of a respectable art form than did any other album before it. But Sgt. Pepper should not have been the great surprise that it was because, if we had been looking, it would have looked obvious.

It appears that the idea of recording only those songs that had a similar theme first gelled on Rubber Soul. It is not very polished but at least they tried. An important consideration, though, is that the Beatles were still quite young when this was recorded. The album then, would reflect adolescent views and would not be as stylized as one written from a more mature stance, as we find in Abbey Road, for example.

The pun of the title was intended to reflect upon the shallowness of the twentieth century man by revealing the many changes that the only thing that's fallen. In "You Won't See Me," for example. The physical attractiveness of adolescent affairs. We are begged not to lose faith in spite of its transient state, the hope that this time their beliefs will be vindicated. "Wait" is a scream from the heart in which we are begged not to lose faith and make a concerted effort at making love work. Perhaps love cannot survive time, but can it at least survive space? The physical distance between the lovers is growing and though the singer is trying to be liberal by letting the lover wait only if she feels strong enough, it seems quite possible that he prefers to have her waiting faithfully for him.

"In My Life" is a classic. There is a panorama unfolding before us, revealing the many changes that happen in the course of love. Yet in spite of its transient state, the Beatles are ready to try again in hopes that this time their beliefs will be vindicated. "Wait" is a scream from the heart in which we are begged not to lose faith and make a concerted effort at making love work. Perhaps love cannot survive time, but can it at least survive space? The physical distance between the lovers is growing and though the singer is trying to be liberal by letting the lover wait only if she feels strong enough, it seems quite possible that he prefers to have her waiting faithfully for him.

The last song on the album is entitled "Run For Your Life" and seems to be some sort of prophecy regarding the outcome of a century devoid of love. It is the chronicle of a love based on fear and jealousy and this is worse than no love at all. This Rubber Soul is trying to emphasize the lack of love in the lives we lead. All the songs on the album belong to that direction, even though the lyrical content is not strenuously worked out. But the grain of the idea is there and it will go through one more change. Rubber, before it will bear fruit in Sgt. Pepper. (Next week: Revolver.)
For January, the COWL honors Dennis Swart as Athlete of the Month, an outstanding middle distance runner from Saratoga Springs, New York. The sophomore Economics major, who is in his two years at PC has been a mainstay for the harrier country, indoor and outdoor track.

However, the lanky sophomore did not really put himself to the test until the indoor season rounded around to the-2-mile event. To his credit to be his "hard-nosed" that is two workouts a day, 50-60 miles a week.

In a pre-season meet at the Coast Guard Academy, he combined a 1:57 half-mile, and a 9:30 two-mile to his credit. Swart then spent his Christmas recess training for two back-to-back meets on January 7th and 8th at Colgate University and then once again at Coast Guard Academy.

At the Federation Meet on January 7th, Dennis led off the two-mile relay (four men — each running one quarter mile) with a 1:58 half-mile, and 3:27 mile. A short time later, he anchored the distance medley team and single handedly sailed down the second place medal for the Friars, outpacing a runner from Colgate University, who held a fifteen yard lead on Swart when the baton was passed.

With very little sleep and the added pressure of a three hour bus ride to New London, Conn., Swart managed to brilliantly run a 1:57 half mile in the distance medley. Less than one hour later, he added a 1:56 half-mile to his credit to give P.C. a first place medal in the distance medley.

Swart's fastest half mile, however, was recorded at the Millrose Games in New York, following in New England AAU Indoor meet, but they didn't fare too well in either meet.

In the Millrose Meet, the Friars were seventh in the 2 Mile Relay, a race which saw about 35 teams on the track. Denny Swart found the green oval to be the source of some heavy trucking when he ran a mediocre 2:01 half mile. Following legs Rich Malachowski, Tom Lee, and Thos Peterson, the Friars were scratchmen in the 2-Mile Relay.

In the NE Senior AAU Championships on January 29, F. Thomas Bosh. Swart had the best run of all the Friars when he screamed around the track in the good time of 14:33 to earn second place behind Tufts' Hamilton. Swart clocked 14:43 1/2.

The second period was marked by a pair of tallies for both sexes, with former La Salle Academy and 6-7, 190-pound defender and 8-4-1 the best run of all the Friars when he screamed around the track in the good time of 14:33 to earn second place behind Tufts' Hamilton. Swart clocked 14:43 1/2.

The sweet taste of success and joyous jubilation rebounded through the Friar lockerroom like a Roman festival holiday, and ceremoniously concluded at the Holiday Inn on South Figueroa Boulevard with a Los Angeles Alumni reception.

The gleams on the Friar hoopsters faces beamed beacon-light brightly upon sighting the delegation of Friar fans at Greene Airport. Families and friends along with Fr. Thomas Peterson, President of PC, Fr. Haas, Fr. Morris, Fr. Duffy, Fr. Rover, Fr. J. Peterson, Fr. Walsh, Mr. Pearson, and Fr. Quigley and other "spirited" members of the Providence College community were on hand to welcome the boys home.

The hoosiers also had the occasion to be honored by the presence of Rhode Island Governor Frank Licht, and George Sarge, owner of Bonanza Bus Lines and the R.I. Redkeyteacm and the Friars again Cocktail Friday after a 2-1 win over the Trojans, Tuesday, February 8th, Canisius College, at 1-0 and 5-4 in the all important Providence game. The Friars were then through scoring for the evening. And "when the Friars come marchin' in, oh when the Friars come marchin' in, oh I want to be in that number, when the Friars come marchin' in." Melodies of the Friar fight song and cries of "Let's go Friars" rang aloud through Greenough Gym in Warwick by 400 Friar basketball fans at 10:30 last Thursday evening greeting the PC hoopmen back to Rhode Island.

Sandwiched between the Friars departure and arrival was a stunning upset victory over the nation's seventh ranked basketball team, Southern California 70-66. With the Friar victory over the Trojans, watched by "just about everybody in the state," Coach Dave Gavit's hoosiers became instantly the talk of the PC campus and of Rhode Island.

The Friars record stands at 8-4-1, and 5-4 in the all important Providence game. The Friars were then through scoring for the evening. And "when the Friars come marchin' in, oh when the Friars come marchin' in, oh I want to be in that number, when the Friars come marchin' in." Melodies of the Friar fight song and cries of "Let's go Friars" rang aloud through Greenough Gym in Warwick by 400 Friar basketball fans at 10:30 last Thursday evening greeting the PC hoopmen back to Rhode Island.

With the Friars victory over the Trojans, watched by "just about everybody in the state," Coach Dave Gavit's hoosiers became instantly the talk of the PC campus and of Rhode Island.

The Friars record stands at 8-4-1, and 5-4 in the all important Providence game.

"Comin' into Los Angeles" at 6:50 (PCT) last Monday evening via an American Airlines transcontinental flight #5, the Friar basketball team made haste to the Sheraton Universal Hotel at Universal Plaza, an Universal City, California (a long way from the PC dorms) for a good night's rest.

Following a 1:00 p.m. practice session at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, the Providence basketballers were treated to a dinner at Andre's Restaurant on Wilshire Boulevard, courtesy of the Dominican Faculty at Daniel Murphy High School in Los Angeles.

Awakened early for a 9:00 a.m. breakfast at the Sheraton Universal Hotel, the Friars rode out to the L.A. Sports Arena for a shooting work-out at 11:30. After a similar :53 leg. Kevin Beasley produced the fastest time of the quartet in sprinting to :52.1 and a half-foot lead as he handed off the baton to brother Dan the anchorman. Beas left the field upon sighting the delegation of Friar fans at Greene Airport. Families and friends along with Fr. Thomas Peterson, President of PC, Fr. Haas, Fr. Morris, Fr. Duffy, Fr. Rover, Fr. J. Peterson, Fr. Walsh, Mr. Pearson, and Fr. Quigley and other "spirited" members of the Providence College community were on hand to welcome the boys home.

The hoosiers also had the occasion to be honored by the presence of Rhode Island Governor Frank Licht, and George Sarge, owner of Bonanza Bus Lines and the R.I. Redkeyteacm and the Friars again Cocktail Friday after a 2-1 win over the Trojans, Tuesday, February 8th, Canisius College, at 1-0 and 5-4 in the all important Providence game. The Friars were then through scoring for the evening. And "when the Friars come marchin' in, oh when the Friars come marchin' in, oh I want to be in that number, when the Friars come marchin' in." Melodies of the Friar fight song and cries of "Let's go Friars" rang aloud through Greenough Gym in Warwick by 400 Friar basketball fans at 10:30 last Thursday evening greeting the PC hoopmen back to Rhode Island.

With the Friars victory over the Trojans, watched by "just about everybody in the state," Coach Dave Gavit's hoosiers became instantly the talk of the PC campus and of Rhode Island.

The Friars record stands at 8-4-1, and 5-4 in the all important Providence game.

"Comin' into Los Angeles" at 6:50 (PCT) last Monday evening via an American Airlines transcontinental flight #5, the Friar basketball team made haste to the Sheraton Universal Hotel at Universal Plaza, an Universal City, California (a long way from the PC dorms) for a good night's rest.

Following a 1:00 p.m. practice session at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, the Providence basketballers were treated to a dinner at Andre's Restaurant on Wilshire Boulevard, courtesy of the Dominican Faculty at Daniel Murphy High School in Los Angeles.

Awakened early for a 9:00 a.m. breakfast at the Sheraton Universal Hotel, the Friars rode out to the L.A. Sports Arena for a shooting work-out at 11:30. After a similar :53 leg. Kevin Beasley produced the fastest time of the quartet in sprinting to :52.1 and a half-foot lead as he handed off the baton to brother Dan the anchorman. Beas left the field upon sighting the delegation of Friar fans at Greene Airport. Families and friends along with Fr. Thomas Peterson, President of PC, Fr. Haas, Fr. Morris, Fr. Duffy, Fr. Rover, Fr. J. Peterson, Fr. Walsh, Mr. Pearson, and Fr. Quigley and other "spirited" members of the Providence College community were on hand to welcome the boys home.

The hoosiers also had the occasion to be honored by the presence of Rhode Island Governor Frank Licht, and George Sarge, owner of Bonanza Bus Lines and the R.I. Redkeyteacm and the Friars again Cocktail Friday after a 2-1 win over the Trojans, Tuesday, February 8th, Canisius College, at 1-0 and 5-4 in the all important Providence game. The Friars were then through scoring for the evening. And "when the Friars come marchin' in, oh when the Friars come marchin' in, oh I want to be in that number, when the Friars come marchin' in." Melodies of the Friar fight song and cries of "Let's go Friars" rang aloud through Greenough Gym in Warwick by 400 Friar basketball fans at 10:30 last Thursday evening greeting the PC hoopmen back to Rhode Island.

With the Friars victory over the Trojans, watched by "just about everybody in the state," Coach Dave Gavit's hoosiers became instantly the talk of the PC campus and of Rhode Island.

The Friars record stands at 8-4-1, and 5-4 in the all important Providence game.
Friar Five Springs Upset; Rhody Rams Sat. Night

by Ed Paglio

Providence College acquired victory number 13 at the expense of the University of Massachusetts, 64-55, Saturday evening at Amherst, Mass. The Friars, who are of the opinion that any Providence advantage when the Trojans came to life, but Murphy foiled a pair of penalties in the first three minutes of the second half after getting tangled in a game in which the Friars were out in front by as much as 16 points. It was the Friars' 13th win as of Sunday (Jan. 30) as compared to 15 for the University of Southern California Trojans. 70-66 triumph.

Providence, Southern California Enterprises of California's CompSport rating service, P.C. had it and the Trojans grabbed the No. 6 position. Apparently, somehow was aware of Providence college. What's more, as of Sunday (Jan. 30), Friars employing a hustling forecheck in defense that Journal-Bulletin sports writer Harold Rich was prompted to refer to it as their best defense in recent memory. Again the defense was highlighted by the exceptional job done by the multisized Don Lewis, who demoralized UMass' playmaker and leader scorer, John Brown, with his ability to guard Betancourt he threw his stick at Jordan in a temper display, drawing a two-minute penalty. But according to High Score Enterprises of California's CompSport rating service, P.C. had it and the Trojans grabbed the No. 6 position. Apparently, somehow was aware of Providence college. What's more, as of Sunday (Jan. 30), Friars employing a hustling forecheck in defense that Journal-Bulletin sports writer Harold Rich was prompted to refer to it as their best defense in recent memory. Again the defense was highlighted by the exceptional job done by the multisized Don Lewis, who demoralized UMass' playmaker and leader scorer, John Brown, with his ability to guard Betancourt he threw his stick at Jordan in a temper display, drawing a two-minute penalty. But according to High Score Enterprises of California's CompSport rating service, P.C. had it and the Trojans grabbed the No. 6 position. Apparently, somehow was aware of Providence college. What's more, as of Sunday (Jan. 30), Friars employing a hustling forecheck in defense that Journal-Bulletin sports writer Harold Rich was prompted to refer to it as their best defense in recent memory. Again the defense was highlighted by the exceptional job done by the multisized Don Lewis, who demoralized UMass' playmaker and leader scorer, John Brown, with his ability to guard Betancourt he threw his stick at Jordan in a temper display, drawing a two-minute penalty.

AS "Tex" Evans, the hottest scorer of late with 12 points in his last six games, lit the lamp on a 50-foot drive assisted by Davey Kelly. However, Guy Burrows matched Evans' goal just 31 seconds later to increase the count to 4-1 in the Terriers favor. Gary Williamson cashed in on a 6'8" Ron Riley and 6'10" Larry Ketvirtis, both of whom were held out of the game by hitting outside shots, the Providence College Friars were deliberately probing the Redmen's zone defense. Apparently they were successful. Marvin Barnes scored 27 points on a 14 of 18 shooting performance from the field to lead the Friars. Marvin Barnes was the dominant factor in rebounding the four teams ahead of the No. 6 position. Apparently, somehow was aware of Providence college. What's more, as of Sunday (Jan. 30), Friars employing a hustling forecheck in defense that Journal-Bulletin sports writer Harold Rich was prompted to refer to it as their best defense in recent memory. Again the defense was highlighted by the exceptional job done by the multisized Don Lewis, who demoralized UMass' playmaker and leader scorer, John Brown, with his ability to guard Betancourt he threw his stick at Jordan in a temper display, drawing a two-minute penalty.

BU's Guy Burrows (16) deflects home goal over the out-stretched hand of a vociferous crowd of Southern Californians. Burrows converted both ends of a one and one. When USC put the ball in play there were only 33 seconds remaining. The Trojans came down court and on three successive shots, failed to score. Don Lewis grabbed the rebound of the missed third shot but was called for traveling. With 12 seconds remaining, the Trojans called a time out, then missed several shots in a flurry as time ran out.

Providence bumbled the Trojans with their several defenses. They enjoyed their most success when they went with a triangle-and-two defense. In the alignment, Ketvirtis, Barnes, and Costello were pressuring and out-matching the Friars and stumped to no avail as the Friars were out in front by as much as 16 points. It was the Friars' 13th win as of Sunday (Jan. 30), Friars employing a hustling forecheck in defense that Journal-Bulletin sports writer Harold Rich was prompted to refer to it as their best defense in recent memory. Again the defense was highlighted by the exceptional job done by the multisized Don Lewis, who demoralized UMass' playmaker and leader scorer, John Brown, with his ability to guard Betancourt he threw his stick at Jordan in a temper display, drawing a two-minute penalty.

BU's Guy Burrows (16) deflects home goal over the out-stretched hand of a vociferous crowd of Southern Californians. Burrows converted both ends of a one and one. When USC put the ball in play there were only 33 seconds remaining. The Trojans came down court and on three successive shots, failed to score. Don Lewis grabbed the rebound of the missed third shot but was called for traveling. With 12 seconds remaining, the Trojans called a time out, then missed several shots in a flurry as time ran out.

Providence bumbled the Trojans with their several defenses. They enjoyed their most success when they went with a triangle-and-two defense. In the alignment, Ketvirtis, Barnes, and Costello were pressuring and out-matching the Friars and stumped to no avail as the Friars were out in front by as much as 16 points. It was the Friars' 13th win as of Sunday (Jan. 30), Friars employing a hustling forecheck in defense that Journal-Bulletin sports writer Harold Rich was prompted to refer to it as their best defense in recent memory. Again the defense was highlighted by the exceptional job done by the multisized Don Lewis, who demoralized UMass' playmaker and leader scorer, John Brown, with his ability to guard Betancourt he threw his stick at Jordan in a temper display, drawing a two-minute penalty.

BU's Guy Burrows (16) deflects home goal over the out-stretched hand of a vociferous crowd of Southern Californians. Burrows converted both ends of a one and one. When USC put the ball in play there were only 33 seconds remaining. The Trojans came down court and on three successive shots, failed to score. Don Lewis grabbed the rebound of the missed third shot but was called for traveling. With 12 seconds remaining, the Trojans called a time out, then missed several shots in a flurry as time ran out.

Providence bumbled the Trojans with their several defenses. They enjoyed their most success when they went with a triangle-and-two defense. In the alignment, Ketvirtis, Barnes, and Costello were pressuring and out-matching the Friars and stumped to no avail as the Friars were out in front by as much as 16 points. It was the Friars' 13th win as of Sunday (Jan. 30), Friars employing a hustling forecheck in defense that Journal-Bulletin sports writer Harold Rich was prompted to refer to it as their best defense in recent memory. Again the defense was highlighted by the exceptional job done by the multisized Don Lewis, who demoralized UMass' playmaker and leader scorer, John Brown, with his ability to guard Betancourt he threw his stick at Jordan in a temper display, drawing a two-minute penalty.

BU's Guy Burrows (16) deflects home goal over the out-stretched hand of a vociferous crowd of Southern Californians. Burrows converted both ends of a one and one. When USC put the ball in play there were only 33 seconds remaining. The Trojans came down court and on three successive shots, failed to score. Don Lewis grabbed the rebound of the missed third shot but was called for traveling. With 12 seconds remaining, the Trojans called a time out, then missed several shots in a flurry as time ran out.

Providence bumbled the Trojans with their several defenses. They enjoyed their most success when they went with a triangle-and-two defense. In the alignment, Ketvirtis, Barnes, and Costello were pressuring and out-matching the Friars and stumped to no avail as the Friars were out in front by as much as 16 points. It was the Friars' 13th win as of Sunday (Jan. 30), Friars employing a hustling forecheck in defense that Journal-Bulletin sports writer Harold Rich was prompted to refer to it as their best defense in recent memory. Again the defense was highlighted by the exceptional job done by the multisized Don Lewis, who demoralized UMass' playmaker and leader scorer, John Brown, with his ability to guard Betancourt he threw his stick at Jordan in a temper display, drawing a two-minute penalty.

BU's Guy Burrows (16) deflects home goal over the out-stretched hand of a vociferous crowd of Southern Californians. Burrows converted both ends of a one and one. When USC put the ball in play there were only 33 seconds remaining. The Trojans came down court and on three successive shots, failed to score. Don Lewis grabbed the rebound of the missed third shot but was called for traveling. With 12 seconds remaining, the Trojans called a time out, then missed several shots in a flurry as time ran out.