Cowl to Feature "Caubose"

In an attempt to contribute to the alleviation of the current energy crisis, and pocketbook pinch, the COWL announced today that it will be starting a special features section for travellers desiring driving tips or companions. The new section entitled the Cowl Caulose will appear each week beginning next week.

The Cowl Caulose will give students a chance to place a free advertisement (similar to WRU's Neatad-Land in the newspaper). Each ad should be approximately one column inch (about 20 words). Students who wish their ads to appear in a Wednesday issue must have their ads in by 4 p.m. Friday of the previous week. Students may mail their ads to the COWL, P.O. Box 2981 or drop them off at the office between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekly.

Faculty Lectures Continue

The first in a series of three lectures at Providence College on the political history of Rhode Island was given Tuesday night, January 15th, in the Slavin Center at 7:30 p.m. by Dr. Patrick Conley of the History Department on the topic "Ethnic and Religious Studies in Rhode Island's Modern parlamentary System, 1841-1900."

On Tuesday, January 15th, Matthew Conley, a first-year chas-ivist, spoke on "The Rise of the Democratic Party in Rhode Island since 1870."

Tuesday, January 22, Dr. Smith and Dr. Conley will continue in an open forum with the audience on "Modern Rhode Island Politics, 1930-1974."

Both Dr. Conley and Mr. Smith are specialists in Rhode Island history and both are actively in- volved in State politics. The lecture series is sponsored by the Mai Brown Chapter of the Providence College Alumni Association.

The series is open to the public, individual lectures are $2 each, while registration for the full series is $5. Registration may be made by phoning the Providence College Alumni office, 805-2614.

Grading System Brings Confusion

by Norman Queenal

In addition to the famous A through F (E excluded) set of possible grades that every student craves or cringes over, some people will find on their report cards that they had spent four months in certain courses only to come out of them with marks of T or NM. These are not secret codes, computer errors, of the ultimate low grade you can receive for a course, rather, you occur usually due to the failure of students or teachers in meeting their particular requirements.

An "T" represents "Incomplete" and is given when a student fails to meet all of a course's requirements, i.e. all papers or the final exam. Anyone who receives an "T" for a full semester course has the first 30 days of the spring semester to complete all of its requirements. An "NM" received for spring courses have to be completed within the first five school days of the semester. After the 30 day period, the "T" is changed to an "F." Once an "T" is given, a professor is obligated to accept all the necessary work for the com- pletion of his course that is handed in during the 30 days. Then the professor makes up a final grade. A staff from the Dean's Office goes through every report card, and for every "T" they come across they make a copy of the student's transcript, report card, and average. They then send for the student to discuss the situation that may be in his or her having received the incompete. When a student has an "T" appear, the "T" is recorded on his or her Central File. If a substantial amount of students in a particular course receive Incompetes, they can be dropped from the Dean assign- a review of the course or its in-struc-
Thanks and a T-shirt to everyone who entered The Schaefer Write-Your-Own-Punchline Contest. As we suspected, the entries were real snappers, featuring such clever literary devices as malapropism, obscenity and dullness. Gee whiz, it must be a lot of fun being in college nowadays.

Here are a few of the winning entries:

PROVING ONCE AGAIN THAT:

- Deflate is quicker than dehand.
- Dragons make better wallets than roommates.
- The kiss of death lives.
- A move for an end comes to disaster under the cover of Knight.
- You win some, you lose some, and some get rained out.

Princeton Testing Service: An Overall Survey

Effective this school year, female students in the Providence and Boston areas are eligible to enroll in the Army ROTC Program at Providence College, Providence, Rhode Island.

While limited at this time to current Freshmen Coeds, certain Sophomore and Junior classes may be recruited. The Army ROTC Program is specifically designed to give college men and women on their "campus" training and experience in the field of military management, motivating and leading others. The program basically exists to develop leaders for the Active Army and Reserve Components, but the leader must be a personal asset to the individual who aspires to management positions, and thus, be able to motivate people, to win their confidence, and to supervise them effectively.

Students cross-enrolled in the program from other institutions attend classes at Providence College on weekends, and the fee is $60 per term. There is no evening, weekend, nor summer training involved in the first two years of the program. And the first two years are taken in such a way that whatever the student may drop out at any time before the start of the next academic year, in college with no obligation involved!

Female Cadets will participate in the same program except the shooting of weapons and the driving of Army vehicles. They may do so if desired. They will receive $100 per school month, tax free, in addition to their regular tuition. Female Cadets are eligible to apply to Army ROTC Scholarship. They may pay all tuition, books and school fees from their monthly school month tax free, while attending the college of choice!

The program is so structured at Providence College to allow flexibility of the program. It is in January without missing a thing. Coeds interested in finding out more about the ARMY ROTC Program should write to the Secretary of the Army, 1801 Constitution Avenue, Providence, Rhode Island, 02918.

Veridamess Scholarship Brunch

Chairwoman on various committees are: Mrs. John Murphy, Mrs. Louis J. D'Urio, Jr., Mrs. Anthony T. Spinelli, Mrs. John J. Coughlin, Mrs. John A. Doherty, Mrs. Alfred Texiera, Mrs. William Kelley, Mrs. Raymond Bunch, Mrs. Raymond Bohannon, Mrs. John T. Bobb, Publicity.

Renowned Poet Gives Reading

by Rosemary McBride

The atmosphere of Aquinas Lounge was quiet and intense, reflecting the poetry being read there. On Tuesday, December 4, at 8:00 p.m., Thomas Kinsella, the renowned Irish poet, entertained a fascinated and sizable audience.

Kinsella, born in Dublin in 1928, came to live in America in 1950. Presently, among his many other pursuits, he is a professor of English at Trinity College, Dublin. Kinsella is the recipient of several poetry awards including the 1973-74 Slavin Award.

Selections were delivered from Night Walker, New Poems 1973, A Caboose, and a selection of songs from The Girl from Ipanema and "A Time for Us." During the second half of the concert, Frias sang and played the guitar, accompanied by a group of students.

Siesta Sponsored

by Rosemary McBride

A Siesta Luncheon was sponsored in the 94 Hall of Slavin Center on Wednesday, December 12, at 5:00 p.m. by the flamenco guitarist from the Dominican Republic. He gave a lecture on the history of Spanish music, gathering with his talented musical interpretations. Frias sang and played the guitar with select selections from songs of the flamenco variety, playing "The Girl from Ipanema" and "A Time for Us." Frias entertained a very calm, articulate man, when everyone enjoyed listening to and appreciated.

Caboose con't.

(Cout. from P. 17)

is the most widely used gas-saving speed for any car, whether it be a compact car, a sporty model or a personal luxury car. It is certainly one to consider.

In addition to the obvious safety reasons the Siesta does require constant slow down and speeding up.

This might add to the exit you will take. Taking the wrong way may mean unnecessary delay as well as an unnecessary bad disposition.

Martin Luther King, Jr. A Birthday Tribute

It was a warm day. The lady came down the street with packages in her arms. Her feet were so tired! When the bus came she got on and took the first seat she saw. Her feet were so tired! Rosa Parks had sat down on a seat reserved for the whites. That action would put her in the national spotlight and result in the Montgomery, Alabama, boycott. The force, the spirit, the organizer, the hope behind the boycott was Mrs. Parks’ pastor, the Rev. Martin Luther King.

Many days have passed since Montgomery. The bus then was a symbol. Blacks in the United States were just not being treated with equality. It is no surprise that the issue today is still symbolized by a bus — a yellow school bus. And in many ways Blacks in the United States are still not treated with equality. This is the situation that has no progress in the field of civil rights and justice during the last decade. There has been much good will and a lot of hard work by serious and strong Blacks and Whites to try to make things better. One of the giants was Martin Luther King.

There are many ways to look at Dr. King — organizer, politician, leader with charisma. He was of course all these. But he was more. King was a man in search of a vision that carried him beyond politics or economics or strategy. He saw and spoke for the possibility of love in every man. He was convinced that the ultimate goal of peace and community were only possible if man both in word and action lived his neighbor lovingly. One Christmas he said: "It really boils down to this: love one another or perish together as fools." We are all caught in an inter-related network of mutuality, tied into a single garment of destiny. We are all bound to be affected — for we live in a mutualistic society of peace, justice and redemptive goodwill toward all men." He wrote: "Lord, my blood brothers and sisters tell me something of brotherhood — sometimes it's very hard, but we are agents of a vision. We are born of the same parents and shared our early lives together. We did not choose each other, we were given to the situation that we did depend on each other, we became part of each other. This begins to tell me that we must either learn to live together as brothers or we are all going to perish together as fools." King died named one of the 'other leaders of the movement." March has been there since the day in March 1965 when there was a peaceful, non-violent, non-violent march from Selma to Montgomery, and we have traveled to the issues. We have focused attention on the issues. We have used the momentum of the movement to continue to work for peace on earth until we recognize the concept of the inter-related structure of all reality.

Lord, you said, "Love your enemies." I'm happy you didn't say, "Like your enemies," because I'm sure there are some people that I find pretty difficult to like. I think I'm a pretty good person, but I can't see how you can trample over me with injustices. I can't like them. So Jesus, you come to redeem us that love is greater than liking. Love is understanding creation, redemption, good will toward all men." Martin Luther King worked to gain civil rights for his black brothers and sisters. However, he never intended to end there. De jure segregation and discrimination were urgent issues but not final goals. King was out to end de jure segregation and discrimination. King was out to bring about a new society, a society of peace, justice and goodwill toward all men. He wrote: "Lord, my blood brothers and sisters tell me something of brotherhood — sometimes it's very hard, but we are agents of a vision. We are born of the same parents and shared our early lives together. We did not choose each other, we were given to the situation that we did depend on each other, we became part of each other. Another Snow Job Problems come very quick to Providence College students. Upon entering the campus limits this past Sunday, one was immediately confronted by inadequate snow removal. What do you tell your snow tires surface. It gets to be quite aggravating.

Dear Editor,

There is a small group of musicians present on the Providence College campus who have faithfully supported the basketball team at the Providence Civic Center and who have tried to support the hockey team here at home also. The Providence College Band would like to support every function at the coliseum, yet, we have been running into many problems. Our biggest problem is that we have no means of adapting ourselves to other activities and the remnant that is left behind cannot possibly appear at every function in full strength.

Earlier in the year the Cwric sports staff called on the student body to support the athletes of Providence College and the response from the student body has not been very good (the members of the band realize the terrible prices of tickets for athletic events and hope most people agree with them that the students of Providence College are being sacrificed at their own sports events). Because of the inadequate response at these sports events Pete Laison (the band manager) and the other leaders of the band (organizer) ask all the members of the band to continue their support of their band and hope that all the spectators at the games will join in with us.

Looking back on my college days and the other college years, I realize that the pre-Christmas season is a time of extra interest. So perhaps you will let us have your thoughts on this. Are your Christmas spirits dead or alive? Are you planning on anything special in December?

Yours very truly,

Robert E. Burns

The Measure of an Order may be Taken in the Measure of its Men.

In the beginning there was Haw. Hawcker. He created the order in 1858 and his aim was to create an order of priests who would be able to meet the needs of the North American people as they arose in each era, each age. Modern saints who would be modern men.

Part of the success of this order is that it would be in the fact that each man would be himself, contributing his own unique talents and gifts in his own way for the total good. The individuality of man, he said, cannot be too great when he is guided by the spirit of God.

And that is just what the Paulist Fathers. We are proud of our men and of each and every individual contributions great and small.

Whether the Paulist keeps boys off city streets by restor- ing and re-planning a city park or wins awards for a remarkable TV series— he is responding to the needs of his age. When he serves in a parish or an inner city school, or in a small rural camp, or a welfare shelter or in prison, or joining a senior center group or on a television show or publishing, the Paulist is making his own contribution, and keeping alive Father Hawcker's dream.

After all, there is a lot to live up to and an order is only as good as the men who make it up. And that is why you, the Paulist Fathers, are so proud.

Dr. Lambe: Do you anticipate any "short-term" problems at the Student Congress? Did that work well?

(A.) Zullo: At the first Executive Board meeting last week, we decided to change the name of the organization from Student Congress to Congress. We are going to elect a new President and Secretary in the next registration period, so that we could go out with the course and see the results of the new evaluation, too.

(Q.) What do you think of the view of the BOG?

(A.) Zullo: We're considering developing a new proposed legislation in the Cowl next week. We're hoping to make the proposal a reality before the next registration period, so that we could have a new position on that for the election.

(Q.) What are your reasons for the meeting?

(A.) Zullo: We are considering developing a new proposed legislation in the Cowl next week. We're hoping to make the proposal a reality before the next registration period, so that we could have a new position on that for the election.

Red Auerbach is a genius.

by Bob Murphy

Imagine running into someone you have respected and idolized for your entire life. Such was the case when I worked up enough nerve to have a conversation with Arnold "Red" Auerbach, president and general manager of the Boston Celtics. Red guided the Celts through the glory years, winning an unprecedented eleven National Basketball Association titles.

Red was more than just a successful basketball coach, however. He, with the aid of Bill Russell, totally revolutionized the game of basketball. Red was the first to recognize the primary importance of building an impenetrable defense in order to win championships. This philosophy has since permeated the entire sporting world. Red introduced the running game and showed the world that basketball was a team sport. He drafted with the aid of Bill Russell, totally revolutionized the game of basketball.

I decided to spare myself the embarrassment. Which he had a chance to view four potential prospects: Kevin Stacom, Bill Russell,完全革命化了比赛。

Our conversation went something like this:

Satch Sanders, and on and on. The list is endless. Yet under Auerbach's impenetrable defense in order to win championships. This philosophy has since permeated the entire sporting world. Red introduced the running game and showed the world that basketball was a team sport. He drafted with the aid of Bill Russell, totally revolutionized the game of basketball.

Yet just a few minutes in his presence will convince you of what you've known all along. Red Auerbach is a genius.

Interview Can't: Cathy Caswell, Academic Research; Ray McGrath, Committee on Administration.

Q.) How do you see Len Taddeo's role as a member of the program?
(A.) ZULLO: His position will enable him to bring to the Congress the viewpoint of those people with whom we have little or no contact. We are looking forward to what they will bring—meeting four times a year is an important role for the Congress. In the same token, he can present our viewpoint to them.

Friars Sport Impressive 11-2 Record Presently Ranked 7th In Nation

by Bob Phillips

Sporting an 11-2 record, the Friars enter second semester cl asses as the seventh ranked team in the nation. After a dissapointing 93-84 defeat to Purdue in the first round of the Rainbow Classic, the Friars rebounded to overcome Tennessee by the score of 66-60 and Washington State 82-67. Despite their 3-4 record for the tournament, the Friars placed only fifth in Hawaii because their loss was suffered in the first round. The loss to Purdue caused the Friars to drop to number fourteen from number nine in the meaningless national polls. The sportswriters showed just how ignorant they were when they elevated the Friars to number ten. What did the Friars do to deserve this four space jump? They demolished the Catholic University Cardinals, 104-66. Marvin Barnes and Kevin Stacom tallied 21 and 20 points respectively. Bob Cooper added 13 points as he is proving that he is a very key member of this Providence College team. Joey Hassett added a rebuilding program. Jack Kraft's 8.5 point game was a 75-51 demolition of the Rainbow Classic, the Friars did play a rather slopy game and that fact, combined with a hustling Villanova defense, resulted in an unimpressive 30 Providence turnovers. The Friars zone, on the other hand, was not effective at all. At a. times it appeared that the Friars were ready to send the Cats back to Philadelphia rather prematurely. With 7.30 remaining in the contest and Providence holding a six point advantage, Rick Saxon hit a jumper from the left corner and Kevin Stacom quickly stole the ball from Tom Melchioni and took it in for an uncontested layup to give the Friars a 71-41 lead. But just as quickly Larry Moody who led the Wildcats with 17 points quickly hit a turnaround jumper. Marvin Barnes then lost the ball and freshman John Olive hit the basket to narrow the lead to 71-46. Villanova never got closer and eventually went down to a 10 point defeat.

For the Friars, Kevin Stacom led the way with a 23 point performance while Bob Cooper chipped in with 18 point effort. Marvin Barnes tallied 15 points and grabbed 16 rebounds. Mark McKendrow and Rick Santos both broke into double figures with 12 points apiece. The Friars' number seven ranking was a 75-71 demolition of the University of California Anteaters.

This game was never a contest as the Friars turned in one of their best efforts of the still young campaign. Marvin Barnes led the way with a 21 point and 16 rebound game. Other Friars breaking the double figure barrier were Kevin Stacom with 13 points, Bob Cooper with 11 and Joe Hassett with 10.

As stated before, the Friars have experienced a succession of peaks and valleys this season. In the Cow Winter Sports Special, coach Dave Gavitt was quoted as saying the Friars' number six pre-season was "ludicrous". As far as this reporter is concerned, the present number seven ranking is just as ludicrous. The Friars simply have not jelled as of yet and lack the consistency expected of a team with such a ranking.

This is not to say that the Friars are in any way not a solid club. After all, they can't be that bad with an 11-2 record, considering that they have not reached their full potential as of yet.

Many comparisons are being made between this years' club and last year's. I feel that the most outstanding difference is that last year's season was culmination of a three-year effort while this is really the first year that this years' team has played as a unit. The cohesiveness that is now missing will take some time, but it is sure to be present by the end of the campaign. With the toughest part of the season over, the Friars are surely in good shape for the remainder of the season.

Presenting:

Dear Uncle Jack....

Post Christmas nonsense has begun on Bradley Hill as the shoges head back for another semester of chaos. The new year brings few hopes of joy. I must compliment maintenance on their excellent job of snow removal. I assume that they used spoons to remove the snow and ice. The situation will change when the first Dominican falls.

My compliments to the Registrar's office for over-tying me. I've signed up for one course this semester when I signed up for four. Many thanks to the Prof who could not give me a mark in three weeks period. Yet the new year holds many promises; promises of shortages of gas, oil, milk and bread. The basketball Friars lost in the Sun Tan Classic to the dimmies of many who called their performance indolent. Furthermore, the Friars are faithfully questioning the coaches techniques of Dave Gavitt. It seems his free substitution worries many fans.

How about the considerate plower who gave a student bell for having a total of three flats because he was in the way of the place? And I wonder if I could schedule Prefs like the Athletic Department schedules basketball opponents? It is also good to find all the current magazines in the library but that will change once the idiots begin to take them. Good things are in store for commuters and poolers with the Cowl Caboose. Patience will be the most important virtue one could have in '74 for times are tough to the chagrin of us Seniors who must battle the job market. There is a wealth of excellent movies around. I recommend Day For Night, 'The Sting' and 'Papillon.' There is a new George Gershwin album around and a new Scott Joplin. Next week we will begin the usual madness no send your questions here to me.
