HEIDT PRESENTS 50 STARS AT P.C. BENEFIT NEW YEAR'S EVE

Four candidates from the Rhode Island area were selected at Radio Station WJAR, Providence, last week to participate in the Horace Heidt show at the Rhode Island Auditorium, December 31. The affair, jointly sponsored by the Auditorium and Providence College, will be one of the means of clearing the indebtedness on the Grotto of Our Lady of the Rosary, College War Memorial.

One of the many featured artists on the three-hour show will be Dick Contino, 18-year-old accordionist from Fresno, Calif., who on Sunday night's broadcast from Washington, D. C., won $5000 and a gold belt as champion of the year winning over 18,000 candidates. Others on the program are Pierce Knox, blind xylophonist; Betty Curtis, singer; Richard Malari, impersonator; Jerry Rothaus, triple threat drumming virtuoso, and Devvy Dav-

Two Hundred At Friar Formal Friday

Against a colorful holiday background of gaily lighted Christmas trees, wreaths, red and green streamers, tinsel and bells, over one hundred couples danced to the music of Stan Moore and his orchestra at the Friar Formal last Friday night in Havkin's Hall.

Wreaths adorned the walls on both sides of the auditorium. A gigantic lighted Christmas tree on each side of the hall was flanked by smaller tinsel and snow bedecked evergreens. Centerpiece of the decorations was a real old-fashioned sleigh in front of which stood a life-sized mannequin dressed as a Dominican whose face was covered by a Santa Claus mask.

Thirsty dancers refreshed themselves at the punch bowl and Coke bar that was set up in the foyer.

Robert Finn, '50, was in charge of the decorations committee for the annual event sponsored by the hospitality group of the school.

Eight P.C. Students Join Third Order

With colorful Dominican ceremony, eight more members of the student body were received into the Third Order of St. Dominic last week in the Aquinas Hall chapel by the Rev. John C. Rubba, O. P., director of the college Tertiaries.

The group includes Arthur Rogers '50, Hartford; John O'Brien '49, Providence; Ross Dagata '49, Pawtucket; Valentine Cruz '49, Providence; Alfred Russo '49, Providence; Leonard Mooy '50, Providence; and Raymond Mountain and Samuel LaMotte, both '52.

Preceding the reception of the novitiates, the monthly meeting of the Third Order was held in Aquinas Lounge, Father Rubba conducting.

Following the meeting those to be received knelt before the altar, lighted candles in hand, where they were asked, according to Dominican ritual, "What do you ask?" In unison the group answered, "God's Mercy and yours."

Here Father Rubba delivered an exhortation to the candidates in which he implored them to strive for perfection, stressing the importance of persevering in order to attain this end. The scapulars, official habit of the Third Order Secular, were then blessed by Father Rubba with prayers that reminds the candidate that the white habit is to be worn "in token of the innocence and humility" that should permeate the tertiary's life.

Then following the recitation of the Veni Creator and other prayers by Father Rubba with those present, scapulars were imposed upon the candidates, each of whom also received a religious name.

With the completion of reception ceremonies, the entire group chanted "Compline," a portion of the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary. (Continued on page 4)

Bishop McVinney Calls For Leaders Against Evil Forces

Declaring that he had a right to expect Christian leadership against "the forces of darkness" from graduates of Catholic schools and universities, the most Rev. Russell J. McVinney, Bishop of Providence, at a dinner held in his honor last Sunday night by the Alumni Association of Providence College, called upon his audience of more than five hundred to "keep America Godlike."

Bishop McVinney said that the choice facing our times was Christ or chaos. Besides the educational system's showing a tendency to worldliness, he said, so also does the business and economic system.

In tracing the parallel between Rome and America, the Bishop pointed out that both rose through the efforts of statesmen and philosophers, and that when each had reached its zenith of achievement, the people, following the examples of their leaders, became "egocentric and self-indulgent."

In the case of Rome, he said, the republic gave way to tyranny, statism and despotism. "The God of the body" was worshipped then, he said, and the theatre, literature and spectacles all became bad. Rewards had to be given to couples with three or more children, according to historians of the time. "Wouldn't you think they were describing our own day?" he asked.

Lashing out at the Supreme Court's decision in the McCollum case of last March barring religious teaching in the public school system, Bishop McVinney said that he deferred to the nation's highest tribunal, but added: (Continued on page 3)

'49 Veritas To Be Dedicated To Bishop

The 1949 Veritas will be dedicated to the Most Reverend Russell J. McVinney, D. D., LL. D., fifth Bishop of Providence, it was disclosed last week by editor-in-chief John Feely at a general staff meeting in Donnelly Hall.

Feely also said that the deadline for the selection of senior proofs for printing in the yearbook is this Saturday, December 18. Otherwise, the choice will have to be made by the staff. This is necessary, he said, because if the yearbook is to be distributed on time, the photo engraver must start work immediately.

A skeleton staff of literary contributors also declared their intention of working during the holidays on the senior "writeups."

Valentine Cruz, one of the literary editors, in a statement to the Cowl "asked for the cooperation of the senior class" in the filling out and returning of the Veritas Information forms before Saturday noon.

William Curran reported that advertising forms for space in the Veritas can be obtained at the publication's office. He requested the aid of all classes in the soliciting of advertisements, since all phases of student activity will be recorded in the yearbook. "The number of 'adds' obtained will have a direct bearing on the size of the book," he said. "And the money obtained from this source will allow the editors more room for pictures and literary comment."

The Rev. William R. Clark, O. P., moderator of the Veritas also announced that general class picture will be taken at the first assembly following the Christmas recess.

STUDENT COUNCIL ACCEPTED; JUNIORS CAST NAY VOTE

Providence College students, voting by classes, today accepted the proposed constitution of Student Congress submitted to them last week by the Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., president.

However, unexpected opposition was met from the Junior class who rejected the proposal by a clear-cut majority. The Freshman, Sophomore, and Senior classes accepted the proposal. But the voting at the Sophomore session was very close because opposition forces presented a strong front against it.

Lunn Discusses Fight For Europe's Soul

"The next war will start not with a declaration of war but with an explosion" in one of our great industrial centers, Arnold Lunn, noted English lecturer and author, said before the Junior and Senior assembly yesterday. Mr. Lunn told of three thousand Russian agents now in this country who have not been traced by the Justice Department. These agents may be busy now, he surmised, picking likely sites for the effective use of explosives.

Declaring that the "cold war" is a struggle between Rome and Moscow for the soul of Europe," Mr. Lunn said that "the only hope of saving Europe is the Catholic Church." A lost Europe, he said, will mean only those Catholics who work for the Russians will be saved, the others, those not essentially necessary, will die.

In a discussion of the Spanish situation, Mr. Lunn criticized the Anglo-American policy of fawning upon one dictator and scorning another. During the war, the Russian dictator was an object of admiration while the Spanish dictator was looked upon as cruel and tyrannical. Now, he said, Spain's forty divisions together with the armies of a future German state will be necessary if Russia is to be contained in Eastern Europe.

Mr. Lunn pointed out the growing power of the Church in European affairs. He said that "keep Russia back" was the simultaneous policy of the Vatican, the United States and Great Britain. With the Vatican as an ally, the Western powers can draw on moral strength in their struggle against Communism.

Civil Service Lists Five Job Openings

Five new examinations have recently been announced by the U. S. Civil Service Commission which are of special interest to seniors, juniors and sophomores. These examinations offer to persons interested in obtaining Federal employment the opportunity to begin a career in the Government in any one of a variety of professions. The jobs to be filled from these examinations are in various Federal agencies throughout the country.

The entrance salary for three of the examinations is $2,974 a year. Positions to be filled from these examinations are: Junior Professional Assistant - chemist, economist, legal assistant, social science analyst, statistician, technical editor; Junior Management Assistant - general administrative assistant, budget assistant, and personnel assistant; Junior Scientist - mathematician, metallurgist, and physicist. Applications will be accepted by the Commission from seniors who expect to complete their college courses by June 30, 1949. Applicants for the Junior Scientist positions will be rated on their experience and education, while competitors for the Junior Professional Assistant and Junior Management Assistant examinations must

Reasons for the Junior class rejection of the congress have not been officially explained, but general campus opinion seems to reflect the thought that the opposition stems from the fact that too much power is placed in the hands of the seniors.

The senior class will have the decided balance of power until the regular election of officers to the Congress scheduled for the latter part of April. The senior class president will serve as chairman, pro tem, of the congress. He will also be assisted by two other seniors appointed by him.

Other opposition groups on the campus appear reluctant to release themselves "from beneath the protective and paternal arm of the administration." They feel that student "politics" will result if the congress is (Continued on page 6)

Seniors To Sponsor Party On January 9

A "get-acquainted" party for married students and their wives, sponsored by the Senior Class of the College, will be held Sunday evening, January 9, according to Elmo J. Mazzone, '49, promoting the affair. There will be door prizes and a buffet supper as part of the entertainment.

The Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O. P., President of the College, will speak on "Marriage and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament" to open the "Family Hour." The ninth of January is the Feast of the Holy Family.

Mr. Mazzone said that the chapel, dining room and lounge of Aquinas Hall will be available for use of the expected one hundred and fifty couples. Because of the large number, those attending are being asked to contribute one dollar toward expenses. The College will match whatever is collected from the group.

Joyful Hour Will Be Sunday Eve

The Joyful Hour, a Christmas program sponsored on the Mutual Broadcasting System network by the Family Rosary Crusade, will be heard this year on Sunday, December 19, with the following performers: Ethel Barrymore, Ann Blyth, MacDonald Carey, Jeanne Crain, Bing Crosby, Dennis Day, Pedro de Cordoba, Ann Jamison, Joan Leslie, Roddy McDowell, Ricardo Montalban, Maureen O'Sullivan, Christopher Lynch, Maureen O'Hara and the Mullen Sisters.

According to the announcement here by the Rev. Patrick Peyton, C.S.C., director of the Rosary crusade, the broadcast will originate in Hollywood but part of it will come from New York. Time of the broadcast is 8:30 p. m., E. S. T.

Last year the program also broadcast on Dec. 19 drew such a response that it was rebroadcast on Christmas Day.

Members of the Third Order of St. Dominic are shown in Aquinas Hall Chapel reciting the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary under the direction of the Rev. John Rubba, O.P., director of the Providence College Chapter.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

The hearts and minds of all of us are drawn at this season of the year to a stable and in the stable a manger and in the manger a new born Child. In that place the only thing in the world that ever mattered happened, for the Light of the World was born. St. John tells us that "In Him was life and the life was the light of men; and the light shineth in darkness and the darkness did not comprehend it." The world of today is in darkness and does not comprehend the light of Christ. We have darkness and despairing distress in the international, moral and social world. Men ignore the light of Christ because they are afraid of what that light will reveal, namely, selfishness, greed and dishonesty. You, as students of a Catholic College, recognize that the Church is a beacon lighting the path that you must follow. You are wise men who can find the star of Bethlehem, for you know that you do not know everything but must depend upon a Divine Teacher. For you Christ still lives. The Gloria of the angels is for you a song of joy, for your hearts are young enough to sing.

People of today pride themselves on being able to face facts. Here is a factual question we should ask ourselves—why all this celebration at Christmas time? Is it not that we are celebrating the return of the human race to the friendship of God, made possible by the birth of Christ? The only thing that really matters at this season of the year is that there be room in the inn of your heart for the joy of Christ. If not, then you are celebrating when you should be grieving, for your joy is not sincere. You may have lights in your windows and wreaths on your doors but your heart will be wreathed in grief if the light of the Christ Child does not illumine your heart.

When you adore your God, Who as a Child came into the world, do not forget the one who brought the Child into the world, the Mother of God. Pray to her that the life of her Son will touch your life, so that your actions will be tinted with the love and grace of Christ, for what doth it profit if Christ be born a thousand times in Bethlehem of Galilee and not reborn in the Bethlehem of your souls.

May the Blessed Christ smile upon your Christmas Day and bring to you, your parents and your loved ones His Love, His Faith in His Father, His Childlike devotion to His Mother, His ageless joy.

(VERY REV.) ROBERT J. SLAVIN, O.P.,
President.

PEACE ON EARTH

The somber fact confronts us during this Christmas Season of 1948 that there is very little peace on earth either among nations or in the individual hearts of men. Yet when we consider the magnitude of the miracle wrought at Bethlehem, we should not be inordinately disheartened by the turmoil which engulfs the world today.

The advent of the Son of God which was heralded by angelic choirs and the startled exclamations of humble shepherds did not signify the re-creation of an earthly paradise. From the moment of His birth, by word and example, the Saviour urged mankind to transcend the material universe and seek the eternal happiness which was his true destiny.

As long as men endeavor to establish a "Pax Romani" or a "Pax Americani," without Christ, there will be no peace and Christmas will remain an incongruity. Only in so far as we direct our lives according to christian principles of justice and charity will the world enjoy any tranquility.

Each one of us can do much to disperse the ominous clouds which shadow our lives this Christmas-tide by re-consecrating ourselves to our ideals at the crib of the Infant King. It is the only certain way to obtain 'Peace on earth among men,' and to insure our eternal salvation. It is in this spirit that the COWL wishes the faculty and students of the college every blessing for a holy and happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

WAR MEMORIAL CAMPAIGN

Last week another drive for funds was inaugurated by the college Chaplain, Rev. Charles H. McKenna, O.P., to complete work on the War Memorial and to liquidate all present outstanding debts accruing from its erection. The campaign as it was outlined for the student body November 30th is a tremendous financial undertaking.

The Grotto which now graces our campus is an impressive and inspiring memorial to those P.C. men who died in the service of their country. It is also a tribute to the unselfish faith of Father McKenna and the prayers and generosity of all who contributed to its erection.

Father McKenna's keen business acumen and unbounded enthusiasm, together with the cooperation and support of the multitude of students, friends, and alumni of Providence College, carried last year's drive to a successful conclusion. We feel confident that with similar support again this year God will once more bless this undertaking designed to honor His mother Mary and the memory of our deceased Alumni, as well as to serve as a source of inspiration for P.C. students.

Cowl Mailbox.

"In most student's minds what is needed most at P. C.?" Were this question put to the student body the response would be unanimous. The vast majority would reply "a gymnasium and a football team." The former is the one that is needed most, and it is needed now. Everyone would benefit by the erection of a gymnasium. Among those who would benefit are the basketball and track teams.

Our basketball team needs and deserves a court on the campus on which they not only can practice but also can play their games. Having their own court would be a great advantage to them. It is a known fact that most teams make a better showing on their home court. This is because there is no such thing as standardization of basketball courts, and having one to play on that is familiar provides the advantage. The track team also needs a place in which to practice during the winter months. Track is a gruelling sport and requires men who are in the best of condition. With no place in which to practice during the winter months, how can the team be at its best in the spring events, and how can they expect to win? We need the gym not only for the benefit of the teams but also for the benefit of the whole student body.

The only exercise the majority of the students get during the whole school year is climbing up stairs and walking to class, even though the college catalog does mention that there is compulsory physical education here. The exercise we do get is not enough as the student finds out in an increase in weight and a groaning of the muscles when he starts working in his summer vacation. The body needs exercise, as well as good care to keep it functioning at its best. The faculty should realize that a gymnasium is in great need, a gym that would provide exercise and recreation for all the students. But they don't seem to realize it, because to date nothing has been done about providing a gym. It is up to the student body to make them realize that a gymnasium is a necessity.

Cowl Editors:

I am extremely aggravated by a situation now existing in the Athletic Department. Why are we not allowed to purchase a sixty cent student ticket and a dollar and a quarter ticket for our girls or wives; and sit on the floor at the Auditorium as was the case last year? This is no laughing matter, financially speaking. What has happened to our ten dollar athletic fee? Maybe the Department is not conscious of this fee.

Veterans' Corner

By Anthony Jazrombek

In answer to the many questions by members of the student body regarding commissions in the Army of the United States (Reserve Component), the following information, taken from Department of the Army Circular No. 306, is offered:

Veterans eligible fall into three categories:

1. Warrant officers or anyone in one of the first three enlisted grades who served on active duty in any component of the Army between 7 December 1941 and 30 June 1947.

2. Men of enlisted grades 4 to 7, inclusive, who served a period of 1 year or more on active duty in any component of the Army between 7 December 1941 and 30 June 1947, and who are graduates of accredited colleges or universities.

3. Personnel currently serving in the Enlisted Reserve Corps in a class A or B unit who complete or have completed a minimum of 1 year's service, or a combination of the two, and who satisfactorily complete the Army

Eight P.C. Students End Marine Training

Eight students of Providence College successfully completed their 1948 Summer Training at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Virginia, R. H. Pepper, Brigadier General, U. S. Marine Corps Director of Personnel, said recently.

The eight are Clifton J. Hansen '51 of Saugus, Mass.; Raymond H. Levesque '50 of Anthony, R. I.; Robert J. Maynard '50 of New London, Conn.; Anthony A. Monti '50 of Johnston, R. I.; Thomas F. Rielely '50 of Providence, R. I.; Robert E. Tougas '51 of Pawtucket, R. I.; Paul A. Cauchon '49 of Lake-wood, R. I.; and Raymond F. Denicourt '49 of Fall River, Mass.

This group entered into the Platoon Leaders Class during the early months of 1948 when the Marine Corps procurement officers visited the Campus for the purpose of enrolling students for that program.

After completion of the necessary courses of instruction during the summer months at Quantico, they will, upon graduating from Providence College, be commissioned as second lieutenants in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve.

The Bishop said that the court's decision was based on Thomas Jefferson's concept of the separation of church and state. However, he said, Jefferson meant that there should not be a state religion, with which Catholics can agree, not that the government should not co-operate with free religions.

"Irish" Freshman Plans To Return To Eire As Doctor

Patrick James Joyce, '52, is an American citizen, but the place he calls home is Ireland. For nineteen of his twenty-two years were spent in Galway County in the town of Tuam on the west coast of the Free State.

"And I'm going back home," he said. No "ifs" or "buts" qualified this simple statement. However, he hopes to go home as a doctor. And it is with that end in view that he is pursuing a pre-medical course at the college.

Jim was born in Pittsburgh but at the age of one his family moved to Ireland. It was there he stayed until the ubiquitous arm of Uncle Sam reached out. A few months after his eighteenth birthday, he got a letter from the president of the U. S. In a word, he was due to be drafted.

After ten months of waiting coupled with several visits to the American consul in Galway, Jim came to America. However, a good many weeks of those "waiting" months in Ireland were spent in digging a year's supply of turf, the national fuel.

"Everyone digs over there," he said, "the turf is free." "But in order to extract a season's supply from the bog, one must dig to a depth of approximately eight feet. Then by means of a hook punched into the soil about a foot from the surface, slabs of muddy-brown turf are squeezed out. The turf is then set out in the sun for a period of five to six weeks. After that it is ready to be burned.

Jim arrived in America in June of '46 and was inducted into the Navy in October.

While in the service he met an alumnus of the college, Dr. John Flynn, '38, of New Haven. Jim assisted Dr. Flynn in the operating room at the Portsmouth naval base. And it was at the suggestion of the doctor that he applied for admission to Providence. He was discharged last June.

Love of the Irish soil, climate and way of life are deeply ingrained in this six footer. Yet he is grateful for the opportunities offered him because of his American citizenship.

His ambition is to go back to the town of Tuam and introduce American methods of medical care and protection. "Two doctors," he said, "service an area of forty square miles inhabited by 7,000 people. Ignorance of disease symptoms and an acute shortage of hospitals place the people in a precarious position."

A portable X-ray clinic, similar to the one that recently visited the college, is the one "prize package" that he would most like to see in the county of Galway.

Jim went back home for a month last summer and found everything as he left it three years ago. "The people," he said, "were still moving along in the same even gait. No one was in a hurry like they are here in America."

He said in the eyes of an American tourist the Irish appear lazy and indifferent and not at all concerned with expedient methods of communication or transportation. "However," he added, "it's not that we are lazy or indifferent, but rather, it is the idea of not liking to be rushed."

"Yet, there are times when they carry things a little too far," he added with a smile. To illustrate this point he told of the following incidents:

Last summer his uncle, who is an engineer on the main line that runs from Cork to Belfast, kept the train at Tuam for twenty minutes while Jim's mother talked to both him and his uncle. The Americans on the train were clamoring to get going, but just as long as Jim's mother kept talking the train stayed.

Another incident involving communication occurred this summer. Jim attempted a phone call from Galway to Tuam, a distance of twenty-one miles, but vetoed the idea after being told by a gruff male operator that there would be a delay of four hours. It seems that there were two other people waiting to call home.

Though a wide expanse of ocean separates Jim from his home, he is not altogether lacking that Irish atmosphere. Whether it was just a coincidence or was planned accordingly by the Dean of Men at Aquinas Hall, the fact remains that the roster of Jim's room-mates reads like a list of Irish patriots.

They are Dan Higgins of Springfield, Timothy Duffy of Lowell, and Francis Kilbride of Newtown, Connecticut.

Glee Club Presents Carols Over WHIM

A company of carolers, members of the Glee Club and the Junior Veridames of the College, presented a Christmas program which was broadcast over station WFCI, yesterday afternoon from the Providence Arcade, twelve to twelve-fifteen.

The group under the direction of the Rev. Leo S. Cannon, O. P., presented a varied program including the following numbers: "Silent Night", "O Come All Ye Faithful", "First Noel", "Hark, The Herald Angels Sing," "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear."

Last week the Providence College Glee Club together with that of Salve Regina College presented a joint concert at Newport. The entire ensemble numbered one hundred and five voices.

Last evening the choral group sang at the Charles V. Chapin Hospital, Providence.

Gerard Thibert, '49, of Fitchburg, Massachusetts is president of the Glee Club.

The Potomac River Naval Command examination has positions open in various naval establishments in Washington, D. C., and vicinity and is only open to juniors. To qualify for these trainee positions, applicants must pass a written test and, in addition, must have completed either two or three years of academic study in one of the optional fields. Appointments for these positions are usually for employment during school vacation periods. Applications for the central office examination close February 1, 1949, the Naval Command, January 12, 1949.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Prayer, Classes, Recreation Keep Guzmanites Occupied

Everyone at P. C. knows that the rambling grey building in the Grotto corner of the campus is Guzman Hall, and that it houses the "pre-ex" students. Few, however, know anything more about it—the meaning of its name, the full purpose of its existence, its daily routine, and so on. Here, boys, is the low-down on Guzman Hall.

First of all, that strange name, which the express men have shortened to "Gus Hall," is the family name of St. Dominic, the thirteenth century Spaniard who became one of the greatest religious founders in the Church when he established the Order of Preachers.

Guzman Hall houses the members of the Apostolic School of the Dominican Province of St. Joseph; that is, it is the home of the students who are preparing themselves for the Dominican Priesthood in this Province.

An Apostolic School, then, is roughly the Dominican equivalent of a minor seminary. The Constitutions of the Order require that each province shall establish such an institution to train its students in the liberal arts and to introduce them to the history and spirit of the Order. In our Province, this training is followed by a year of Novitiate at St. Rose, Ky., three years' study of philosophy at Somerset, Ohio, and four years' study of theology at Washington, D. C. Every applicant for the Order, after he is approved by the Provincial, must come to Guzman Hall unless he has had sufficient training in the arts and particularly in Latin.

As a matter of fact, there are this year four college graduates in Guzman, two from state universities, one from Fordham, and one from Villanova; many of the fellows have attended other colleges; and a few have left successful business careers in such varied fields as psychology, electrical engineering, personnel management, and contract construction to come here.

All the extracurricular life of the Guzman students is centered in and coordinated by the Philomusian Society, the oldest organization on the campus. This group, of which all the ecclesiastical students are members, elects its own officers with the approval of the Director of the Apostolic school. Under the leadership of these officers, the Society carries on various activities, from parties to discussion groups and basketball and football intramural teams. Incidentally, when you hear a Guzmanite saying "we had a gaudeamus last night," don't be worried. He's merely referring to a party by this Latin term which means "let us rejoice."

The day begins for the ecclesiastical students at 6:30 Mass, which is followed by meditation and by the recitation of Prime, the early-morning hour of the Church day, from the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin. After breakfast (in Aquinas Hall at 7:15), the rest of the day is well filled with a schedule of house duties, classes, study, and recreation. The day ends at 11 p. m., after Rosary, Benediction on greater feast days, recitation of Compline, and a two-and-a-half hour study period.

Well, there it is: the college life of the fellows who will some day teach at P. C., staff Dominican parishes, and extend the influence of the Church through Dominican preaching of the written and the spoken word.

NEW SYSTEM FOR LATE SLIPS OFFERS READY MADE EXCUSES

A modern, versatile time-clock for the use of tardy students will be installed in Harkins Hall in the near future, it was learned recently from a usually unreliable source close to the student body.

According to this source, the need for some such innovation has long been obvious. Long lines of students standing before the Dean of Discipline's office at 8:35 A. M., has been the rule rather than the exception. While precious classroom minutes have ticked by, these students have been forced to wait their turn before explaining their excuses, signing the register and receiving their slips and admonitions.

Some members of the faculty, this source said, have realized full well the delay which the present system entails. These professors have allowed an extra ten minutes for those who are late a reasonable number of times. This policy, though commendable, has not diminished the parade of late-comers, a parade which will certainly grow as winter approaches.

Elaborating on the subject of time-clocks, this informant said that the proposed clock will tremendously improve the processing of those who are late, substituting speed and convenience for the delay and red tape of the system now in use.

When the new time-clock is in operation, the student will simply take a late slip from a stack conveniently at hand, then place it in the machine to be processed. At the same time he will select any one of several conventional reasons for being late by pressing one of a series of levers on the right side of the machine. Three sets of the more commonly used excuses are to be provided, one set for each season of the school year. When the student punches the clock, the time and standard excuse will be automatically stamped on the late slip.

The burden of recording the name and excuse of each student who is late will be left to the individual instructor. In this way, the often tedious paperwork of tardiness will be equitably distributed among the faculty. Moreover, a student's number of late classes may be quickly tallied at the end of each semester. These totals would be indications of the student's eagerness to learn.

The source for the above information on time-clocks stressed the efficiency of the proposed system. He emphasized not only the saving of precious minutes but also the elimination of hesitant, inconsistent oral excuses. The student will no longer be subjected to the humiliation of arguing his case before a small mob of witnesses amid giggles and scornful laughter. The time-clock, this informant said, will be his sole witness and will keep his secret.

When confirmation of the report on the proposed time-clock was requested of the Dean of Discipline, the Rev. William J. Dillon, O.P., appeared surprised. He quickly denied any knowledge of the installation of the time-clock. Agreeing that the problem of tardiness was an acute one, Father Dillon remarked that the problem would become less acute in no time at all if more students came to school on time.

A. I. C. AND BROOKLYN NEXT FOR FRIARS

SPORTS PANORAMA

by Dave Connors, Jr.

NAMES TO REMEMBER . . .

Cassedy, Kallman, Aldrich and Keenan who answer to the first names of John, Jerry, Bob and Bill respectively are names well worth remembering, because they are going to be in print many times during the next four years. Last Saturday afternoon Harry Coates took a few men and paid a little visit over at Brown University. The purpose was a few relay races between the two Colleges, so that the Friars might become accustomed to running on a board track. All of which reminds me of another visit to Brown a few months ago.

At that time Coates took most of these same men over to Brown for a couple of practice cross-country runs. It was a gloomy day with rain falling continually. Now P.C. had a cross-country team for one purpose that to get the runners in condition for the winter meets. There wasn't an honest to goodness long distance runner in the bunch. Harry Coates is the first to admit that. However, the long runs in the fall did help to condition the runners. That afternoon the Frosh and Varsity cross-country teams of P. C. were both defeated badly, but that wasn't what I remember about the afternoon.

During the running of the Frosh race there is a half-way point where spectators and coaches can gather to watch the runners come by. The spot is right at the top of a gruelling hill. As the runners approached the top of that steep incline two Brown men were in the lead. Following closely behind was a little bundle of dynamite named Cassedy of P. C. He was pocketed between two Brown men who actually were cross-country runners. Just at that time some one of the standbys yelled at the Brown men, "Kill him off." It wasn't so much what was said because that is good track lingo, but it was the manner in which it was said. Well they did kill off the little guy that day, they killed off a quarter miler gamely trying to run 2½ miles. But the determined little Freshman remembered. In fact after the race I remember hearing him say, "We'll do a little killing ourselves before long."

Well to get back to Saturday there wasn't any shooting over at Brown but there was a lot of killing. The Frosh mile relay teams lined up and who was there to start the Friars away but the guy who had been left for dead by those Brown killers a few months before. This was the type race that he had been waiting for. He and three other young Frosh behind him. They knew their coach was worried. They understood the many memorable days that he had enjoyed when he was known as the Knute Rockne of the track world. They also knew about the odds that were stacked against their coach and them. They realized that his heart was set on getting P. C. off to a start in the track world, a start that will eventually bolt the College into the track limelight. They knew that they were going against a Brown team that was supposed to be one of the hot shot Frosh teams.

The starter's gun rang out clearly and little Cassedy bolted from the line like Citation. The Brown runner never did see anything but his back. When he reached the quarter mile he passed the baton and then the big boys took over. Big Jerry Kalman, long lean and hungry looking. Kee-

Cross Yearlings Nip P.C. Freshmen

The Frosh basketballers of Providence College lost their first game of the season Saturday night when the Holy Cross yearlings eked out a one point win defeating the Friars by a 50-49 score. However Sunday the Frosh got right back on the victory trail with a 45-33 win over the strong De La Salle quintet at Newport, R. I.

Against the Cross the Friar youngsters overcame an early deficit, went out ahead by a point at halftime and went off the floor to the cheers of all those present. In the second half however they faded badly a couple of times and with two minutes to go they were trailing by ten points. At that time they put on a desperation rally with five seconds to go they came within one point of tying the game. Time ran out though and the Crusaders were returned the winners.

Jerry Lembo and Frank Pelligrino looked very good for the Friars and they were the individual high scorers. Pelligrino also was a tower of strength under the backboards. The Friar yearlings will conclude their pre-holiday schedule against Bryant College Saturday night at the Mount Pleasant Gymnasium.

Friar Frosh Win Relay Over Brown

The Providence College track team conducted a few informal relay races and sprints with Brown University last Saturday on the Brown outdoor track at Brown. The Relay races were all at the mile distance while a forty-yard dash was also conducted by the coaches, Harry Coates of P.C. and Ivan Fuqua of Brown. It was the first time that the Friar track team has run on boards and they showed their inexperience for the most part although they did remarkably well.

The Brown Varsity mile relay team defeated the Friars but the Friar Frosh atoned for this when they easily defeated the Brown Frosh. In a forty-yard dash Frank DiEglio of P.C. placed third.

Coach Coates on the whole was very pleased with the performance of the Friars and he has arranged with Fuqua to conduct informal runs frequently between the two teams.

Tickets for the Providence College vs. Brooklyn College basketball game Saturday night at the Mount Pleasant Gymnasium can be picked up at the Athletic Office any day this week. Each student must show his Athletic Card. This is the last home game for the Friars before the holidays.

Holy Cross Swamps P.C. By 75-34 Score

By Bob Flanagan

Saturday night was one of those times everybody likes to forget about as soon as possible. Holy Cross is not a team 41 points greater than the Friars of Providence College. The Draw-men just did not have it. Their shooting was extra poor and their floor game was considerably off. Maybe it was anxiety, tension, or expectation that influenced their faults. Whatever it was, it is not likely it will be repeated in the future.

Ed Mooney goes up for ball in P. C. vs. Holy Cross contest at Auditorium.

Some P. C. fans estimated that the Friars had an outside chance to top the Crusaders. A majority of them definitely expected a much closer game. When they looked at the scoreboard and saw 75-34, it was not a welcome sight. Providence College will benefit, possibly, from that affair in the Auditorium Saturday in as much as their mistakes can be corrected.

Crusader coach Buster Sheary surprised everyone by starting the second team. They built up an early lead of 7-0. The first Friar basket was made by Ray Garcia with almost four minutes of the game gone. When the Cross first string took the floor, the score was 15-10 in their favor. They proceeded to increase their lead until halftime when they were on top 33-11. During the first half the Friars were held scoreless for nine consecutive minutes.

Kaftan and Cousy stole the show. Cousy thrilled the gathering of 2947 fans with his passing, shooting, and trick plays. Kaftan scored only eight points but demonstrated his great agility and deceptiveness. With three and one-half minutes gone in the second half, the Purple increased their advantage to 44-17. From there till the end it was all Holy Cross turning on their power. P. C. vainly tried to bid for scoring opportunities but the defense of Holy Cross was airtight. It was just a case of too big and too classy.

P.C. GOES TO SPRINGFIELD TONIGHT KINGSMEN PLAY HERE SATURDAY

Their unbeaten string snapped by the great Holy Cross team last Saturday night, the Providence College Friars will attempt to get back on the victory trail tonight when they face American International College at Springfield. The game will be played at the Springfield College Field House where the Aces have many of their home contests scheduled this season.

Saturday night the Friars will return to the basketball wars on their own home court to face the strong Brooklyn College five at the Mount Pleasant Gymnasium. Brooklyn College boasts one of the best teams in metropolitan New York.

Soundly trounced by Holy Cross last Saturday, the Drawmen are convinced that they are a better club than they showed that night and they will be out to regain their winning ways against A.I.C. The Aces have not enjoyed too much success this year, and the Friars will enter the contest favored to add to their string of wins over the Butova-coached crew. This will be the sixth meeting between the two clubs and the Friars hold a four-to-one advantage.

Coach Larry Drew will probably start the same line-up tonight that he used against the Cross. This means that Capt. Charlie Bresnahan will be at one forward and Larry DePalma at the other. Sam Nissel will be at the pivot post. Art Weinstein and Ray Garcia will team at the guard positions.

A year ago the Friars took two decisions from the Aces although they were extended in both games. Saturday night Brooklyn College coached by Al Baggett, former mentor at West Texas State, will be the opposition for the Friars. Friday night the Kingsmen will stop at Kingston for a game with Rhode Island State. Don Seigelaub 6'7½" center is the big scoring threat for the invaders. He is the man whom the Friars will have to stop, quite a job in itself considering that P. C. has nobody comparable to him in size.

Al Goddlerner and Bill Hurley are two sharpshooting forwards who will bear close watching. Both are long set shot artists and they rifle the nets from all angles of the court. Saturday's game will be the first basketball contest between Brooklyn College and Providence College. The P.C. Frosh will play Bryant College in the opening contest.

Work on the board track is progressing though at a very slow rate. There has been a delay on the shipment of the top boards and although the underpinnings are well underway the completion of the track will depend on the shipment of boards which have been delayed.

It was announced at the meeting last night that Dick Kaufman has been selected as the assistant track manager. Jim Cahill is the Varsity manager.

Waterburyites Hold Dance December 28

On Tuesday evening, December 28, the newly formed Waterbury Club of Providence College will hold its first dinner dance. All members of the Providence College Alumni in the Waterbury area are being contacted with the hopes of the dance being a reunion for the graduates as well as providing friendship between the alumni and the undergraduates. John Barrett, '50, and James Shiel, '50, co-chairmen, expect a large turnout of students and alumni at the dance, the initial social venture of the Brass City club. The Rev. David A. O'Connell, O. P., is moderator.

nan, and stolid Sphinx like Aldrich, continued to pour it on to complete as nice and clean an execution as I have ever seen. The P. C. Frosh won the race by a half a lap. They never were pushed. No one knows exactly how fast they can go. So don't forget to remember these names. It will cost a nickel to read about them soon, that is if you don't want to continue reading about them in the Cowl.

NAMES TO FORGET...

Kattan, Cousy, O'Connell and all the rest on that wonderful Holy Cross quintet. They are everything that has been said about them and even more. They gave P. C. a bad beating but it was the Friars' fault as much as anyone's that they lost by that margin. P. C. wasn't as good as the Cross. It would have been a tremendous upset if they had won. In fact it would have been the upset to end all upsets. However the Drewmen were not as bad as the final score indicates.

The Friars were nervous and jittery. They did not play the game that they are capable of playing. It was one of those nights that all predominately sophomore teams experience. They could just as well have been as hot as they were cold.

The big question now is whether they can come back. That will be answered tonight in Springfield. I think they will.

allowed to exercise all the powers given to them.

A radical section of the junior class is opposed to the constitution, as such, because of the time it takes, two successive regular meetings, to amend the constitution. They feel that the time element involved is too long.

No official statement was forthcoming concerning the procedure to be followed if the juniors refused to elect delegates to the convention. But according to the constitution, the opposition will be prohibitive for the congress is the coordinating agency between the administration and student body, and is empowered to regulate all student extra-curricular activities.

Father Slavin, in a statement to the Cowl yesterday, said that the Rev. Henry Schmidt, O.P., will be the faculty advisor of the Student Congress. As a result of this appointment, the president added, Father Schmidt will relinquish his duties as moderator of the Friars Club since that organization will elect delegates to the congress.

Mutter, Boyle Beat B.C. Debating Team

The Providence College Debating Club defeated Boston College 2-1 last Monday evening before the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church at Stoughton, Mass.

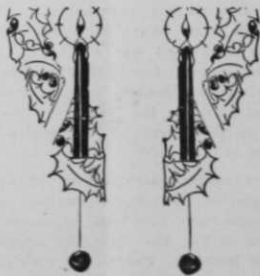

John Mutter, President of the club, and Secretary Francis Boyle took the affirmative on the question, "Resolved, Federal Aid is Needed for Equalization of Educational Opportunities." Robert Dray and John Kully of Boston College spoke for the negative.

The Rev. J. T. Fitzgerald, O.P., moderator of the debating club, spoke briefly. Stressing the "necessity of an audience to aid our young men," he congratulated the debaters for their "magnificent" job.

In thanking the audience for their interest, Father Fitzgerald said: "If these young men receive a sympathetic and understanding audience as you who are present this evening everywhere they debate, they will acquire the qualities of leaders and eventually become the leaders that are so badly needed in this America today."

Chairman of the affair was Mr. Richard O'Neill of Stoughton. The judges were: Mr. Vincent Burke, an architectural engineer and graduate of Carnegie Tech; the Rev. John P. Cosgrove of St. Mary's parish of Stoughton, and Mr. John F. Flynn,

President of the Stoughton Historical Society. Timekeepers were Mr. Joseph Duggan of Stoughton and Mr. Thomas Malloy of Providence.
