College Host to R.I.P.A. Saturday

FEASTS OF CELEBRATION

1. Staffs of R. I. High School Papers to Be Guests at Convention

Providence College will host this Saturday to representatives of the publication staffs of the high schools of the state at a convention to be held in conjunction with the Rhode Island Inter-collegiate Press Association. Included will be representatives from every high school in the state. A large delegation of students and faculty advisors is expected.

2. President Speaks At Inauguration Of AM Radio Station

The Campus Broadcasting Service is on the air! Thursday evening 7:15 April 28, became a red letter night here at Providence College, for that time the school's new radio station WDOM-AM began its inaugural broadcast. The Rev. Charles McKeena, O.P., Chaplain of the College, spoke about the station.

3. Capacity Crowd at Allmire Makes Successful Junior Prom

The capacity crowd at Allmire makes the Junior Prom a success. The Junior Prom was ably handled and well led from nine in the evening to the close at one o'clock. Congratulations were in order for the Prom Co-Chairmen, Phil Cunningham and Billy Elashar for their successful organization and arrangements, to Ed Coogan, Junior Class President who acted as impromptu Master of Ceremonies and to the entire Junior Prom Committee. The Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., President of the College, introduced the program.

4. The President and the Queen

The Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., President of the College, presents a bouquet to Miss Barbara Baker, named Queen of last Monday evening's Junior Prom.

5. Veritas Out Soon

The fourth and final issue of this year's Veritas is now at the printers. Delivery is expected the latter part of next week, according to Walter B. Hoxie, President of the Veritas, the college literary quarterly.

THANKS VERIDAMES

One organization which deserves a vote of thanks for its quiet work in behalf of the College and its student body is the Veridames, a sizeable group of Providence College men. Their sponsorship of lectures, recticals and dances among other things helps to raise money which is translated into an expansion of the facilities of the College.

The work of the Veridames is done without publicity and without reward. But, at least, in this particular instance, some measure of gratitude can be extended for their magnificent gift of the red leather chairs. The COWL wishes to express the thanks of the student body.

EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

As the end of the school year draws near, we may chance to look back to wonder why we were not more active in extra-curricular activities. Usually there is a lot of loose time as the academic year is replete with instances of unselfish service. Whether it be Columbia or Harvard or Boston University, graduate schools have been looking for adequate sized applicants. So extra-curricular activities are important.

LETTERS EXCHANGE

Dear Editor:

Frank admired the moonlight via the submarine. It was a formless summer evening—bewitching for the softness of the encircling buildings. As he approached an intersection flooded by a recent light, he noticed a small vendor’s shack off to the left side of the intersection. A gray square sign tacked to the left side of the vendor’s shack read: “25 Cents, Waxed, Shaved.”

Frank continued hesitantly, “You speak at all?”

continued hesitantly, “You speak at American?” he told his son.

“Surely and faithfully the Italian lad told Frank that he had studied English in school for two years. And, asked Frank if 90 per cent of the workers in Detroit were Communists like the Flat workers in Turin? Yes, he said, and they were all rich and lived in Florida; if hundreds of thousands were brought by foreign-owned railroads. He inquired about the connections among laboring groups—whether they are of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Farmers, the Handbook says, is not an easy occupation. Investment and operating costs for adequate sized farmers are in most cases, risks. However, it is continues, farmers who show excellent opportunities for vigorous, intelligent operators, not afraid of hard work.

The Handbook covers agriculture and related occupations and opportunities in to six to seven different types of farms in each of the ten major regions of the country. The agricultural section was prepared by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Handbook covers commodities are not a winning proposition. One possible road to better future is through a college education.

But, at least, in this particular instance, some measure of gratitude can be extended for their magnificent gift of the red leather chairs. The COWL wishes to express the thanks of the student body.

EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

As the end of the school year draws near, we may chance to look back to wonder why we were not more active in extra-curricular activities. Usually there is even more regret connected with our lack of interest when we apply for graduate school in our Senior year.

Not only are extra-curricular activities valuable as developers of native talents and social poise but they perform a vital service when listed on an application blank for post-graduate training. It may seem strange to some but it is this particular instance, some measure of gratitude can be extended for their magnificent gift of the red leather chairs. The COWL wishes to express the thanks of the student body.

Mr. Timlin Outlines Placement Office Policy And Plans

Mr. Timlin, former assistant professor of sociology at Providence College, outlined the policy and procedures of the Placement Office at a meeting of students and faculty members.

The Placement Office is designed to assist students in finding suitable employment upon graduation. It provides career counseling, job search assistance, and information about job opportunities.

Mr. Timlin emphasized the importance of the students taking an active role in their job search. He encouraged students to develop a resume, network with alumni, and prepare for interviews.

The Providence College baseball team is off to a rocky start as it dropped its first two games of the season, Coach Larry DePalma stated. The Friars lost 3-0 to the Brown Bruins on Friday, May 13 in Harkins Hall. This annual affair sponsored by the Monogram Club is played in the athletic program at the College and is composed of all the letter winners at the end of the Spring semester. The bids for the dance are two dollars and it is a semi-formal affair. The Monogram Club has invited anyone member of the Monogram Club. This year music will be furnished by the Duke Library. Dancing will be from 4 to 9 on Saturday.

The victory over the Rams was quite pleasing to Providence, as the Friars have gone quite a few years without defeating State in any sport. The Monogram Club was all the way for P.C. giving up only 5 hits and walking four for his initial triumph. The first hit was a line drive to left by a pitcher. Keenan hit his own cause by cutting off a third on a wild pitch, second, advanced to third on a wild pitch, and scoring on a fly by Dr. Palma.

The Providence nine won one of its last nine games against the Crusaders of Holy Cross last Sunday. The Friars will have a tough season this year. rifleman. The Providence College nine won one of its last nine games during these encounters the past week. Last Sunday, it was a thrilling 3-2 decision over the R. I. State Rams at Kingston. This hour of triumph was quickly darkened over the weekend as the Crusaders of Holy Cross ran away with the game by taking Providence 9-6. On Sunday the Marturino journeyed to Boston where they were defeated by the Rams 14-3 in five games. The Friars have lost could have come right. when State took the lead in the seventh inning with a run on a couple of base hits and a sacrifice by Dr. Palma.

Room Service Review

We have to "take the teachings of Christ and put them into public welfare," said Roy McLoughlin, in speaking to the Seniors at their Assembly yesterday on "The Field of Social Work". Mr. McLoughlin, who is Superintendant of the Connecticut School for Boys, emphasized that the philosophy of "an eye for an eye" but service to one's fellow man is the foundation of public welfare.

According to Mr. McLoughlin, the question of real import in the field of social welfare is the question of financial limitation. Not pipe dreams of generosity but facts and figures should determine the extent of government support in this field.

Adding a personal note to his talk, Mr. McLoughlin contrasted his thinking on education during his student days with his present attitude towards college training. The philosophy and Latin of his Catholic college course were part of what Mr. McLoughlin characterized as a "gentleman's education". However, he said, there are the very same subjects but he studies today not only for his own personal interest but because of their value to him in his work. Mr. McLoughlin added language in general and English in particular as assets to the competent social worker.

Mr. McLoughlin closed the Assembly with a question and answer period on the opportunities for College graduates in the field of public welfare.

swallowed—it had been a beautiful evening. This happened to a friend of mine—maybe it happened to one of yours.

Everyplace in Europe that Frank visited this summer he was bombarded by questions about the United States. He couldn't answer them all, maybe you could help him. It wouldn't be hard. For letters with information on American life from students in this country are constantly sought by European and Asiatic students.
