Research Dept. Receives Cancer Grant Equipment

By Ed Ferry

The Research Department of Providence College recently obtained on a grant from the National Cancer Institute an infra-red spectrophotometer. The National Cancer Institute also gave financial support for the period from September 1, 1957, to August 31, 1959, to the Medical Research Laboratory of Providence College.

The operation and description of the instrument is rather complex but Father Hickey described the principle behind the operation of it briefly as follows:

A Nernst Glower consisting of three spirals standing upright is enclosed in one side of the instrument. The spirals on either side are made of platinum and operate so as to heat the center spiral which produces light. The light is then divided by mirrors into two beams, the sample beam and the reference beam. The sample beam absorbs certain wave lengths of infra-red light characteristic of its chemical structure. The reference beam, on the other hand, must compensate for the solvent used in the sample and therefore, is passed through the solvent taken separately without the sample. When the separate beams are passed the sample and reference they are recombined by means of rotating mirrors and fall on a thermocouple 180 degrees out of phase. A shutter moves across the reference beam to keep the two in balance and a recording pin which is mechanically attached to the shutter records the transmittance of the solution at each wave length.

Because the glass is opaque to infra-red light, the optical system involves only aluminized mirrors and sodium chloride lenses.

The wave length dispersing element is a sodium chloride prism about two inches in height and two and one half inches on the edges. The prism is cut from a single artificially grown crystal of sodium chloride.

To protect surfaces from dissolving due to the moisture in the air, a dehumidifier is used in the laboratory and the entire instrument is kept heated to a temperature above that of room temperature.

A precision polarimeter has been obtained through a Frederick G. Cottrell grant from the Research Corporation. It is a product of Rudolph & Sons of Caldwell, New Jersey.

Dr. Theodore Galkowski described the instrument in the following manner: "Certain molecules have the property of rotating polarized light. This property can be used in the identification of compounds, in their structure determination, and in studying the ratio of reactions. The instrument measures the angle to which the plane polarized light is rotated by the compound in question with the accuracy of .002 degrees circular. This happens to be the most precise polarimeter in use today."

The infra-red spectrophotometer obtained through the National Cancer Institute.

Hagan Re-Elected Pres. Of The Class Of 1958

By Dick Wolfe

Last week, Jim Hagan, of Pawtucket, was re-elected president of the Jr. class of 1958 of Providence College. Jim, a political science major, collected one hundred seventy-six votes, eighty-three over his opponent, Marty Bartley, last year's Sophomore vice-president. A newcomer to college government, Phil O'Hara, a business student from Greenfield, Mass., won the seat of vice-president. While Phil received one hundred and six votes, his opponents, Jack McCarthy, Arthur K. (Ken) Johnston, and Jack Fay, tabulated their votes at sixty-one, fifty-one, and fifty, respectively. Noel J. Doyle, Jr., of Norwood, R. I., for the second consecutive year holds down the secretarial duties. Noel collected one hundred eighty-six checks while Joe Bell, a last minute nominee, received eighty-three. Dave Roche of New London, Conn., will continue to serve as treasurer this year, having done so efficiently in his Sophomore year. Dave had one hundred ninety-five votes; his opponent, Al San Souci, collected seventy-four.

Although all these men ran independently, it is certain that they will work as a unit. This will be greatly facilitated through the experiences of the president, secretary, and treasurer who have served with each other in their Sophomore year. The new vice-president undoubtedly will fulfill his position efficiently. Among other things he has served on various social function committees last year. Thus all the four aggressive officers of the Junior class have a practical knowledge of the plans and progress of social functioning. Last year the Sophomore Weekend was an overwhelming success. This year seems to be very promising also.

Carolan Club Dance Listed

At a meeting of the social committee of the Carolan Club, plans were drawn up concerning the first event of the 56-57 social season, the Autumn Festival, an annual affair. The date of the dance is November 3, from 8-12 p.m. A limited number of bids will be available shortly, at the reasonable price of $3.50.

This year a new twist will be added to the Autumn Festival. Instead of being held entirely in Aquinas Hall, the jazz combo will be presented in Stephen Hall, with Art Phelan and his band setting the pace. Dance music will be provided by Hugo Basso and his orchestra in Aquinas Hall lounge.

The chairmen of the various committees are: Vincent Smith, social committee, assisted by Jim Baker; Band chairman, Art Phelan; Decorations Committee, Mary Angelo and Joe DePaolo, co-chairmen; Refreshment Committee, Jim Aywood and Dan Macedo, co-chairmen; Arrangement Committee, Tom Gilligan and Tony Piscatello, co-chairmen; Procurement Committee, Tom Malloy and Bob Gulla, co-chairmen; Publicity Committee, Hap McLarney, chairman, John Powers, assistant chairman.

Pre-Legal Club Elects Officers

By Bob Laffey

Last Thursday night over sixty people assembled in room 300 for the first meeting of the Pyramid Players.

President Richard McCarthy introduced the new members to the officers and welcomed both the new members and the returnees. In his opening remarks, McCarthy outlined the aims of the Pyramid Players with particular emphasis on the benefits to be gained from belonging to a dramatic organization. In describing the Pyramid Players organization to the new members, McCarthy related the history of the organization, and enumerated some of the successes which the Players had met in past years. In particular, he noted the past seasons' successes and expressed hope that the current seasons' productions would meet with even more success.

McCarthy also paid tribute to the work of the moderator, Fr. Larnen, without whose help, he said, the Pyramid Players would not exist.

Plans were announced for the first production, which will take place in December. The Players have picked for their first production, THE CAINE MUTINY COURT MARTIAL, a drama in two acts, based on Herman Wouk's best-seller, THE CAINE MUTINY.

Tryouts for the CAINE MUTINY MARTIAL will begin sometime next week. Anyone interested in trying out for the production is advised to watch the Pyramid Players bulletin board for information, McCarthy said.

In closing, the president remarked the number in attendance at the first meeting and stressed the importance of a large behind-the-scenes crew to any theatrical production. "While the number of new members is more than we anticipated," he said, "there is still room for many more in every phase of the Pyramid Players organization. Anyone interested to contact any member of the club or to attend the next meeting."

Glee Club Looks Forward To A Successful Season

By William Paolino, '59

The Providence College Glee Club has opened its 1956-1957 season and it promises to be one of its most enthusiastic and successful. Under the capable direction of the Rev. Leo S. Cannon, O.P., the members are looking forward to a most enjoyable year. Serving the P. C. Glee Club in the capacity of Assistant Director and Assistant Moderator is the Rev. Raymond St. George, O.P. This is Father St. George's first year with the Club. In less than a month, Father St. George has gained the members' utmost support and confidence through his sincerity and interest in the individual.

On October 7, the Glee Club made its formal debut at the Rosary Devotions in the Grotto. Their second appearance was made at the Mass of the Holy Ghost on October 8. Because of the delay in the opening of the school year, the Glee Club was able to have only two rehearsals before these occasions. The newly admitted freshmen found these performances quite rewarding, although difficult, having to adjust themselves to an audience. They also were faced with the task of learning many new pieces.

Although the year's program has not, as yet, been completely set, a number of concerts have been definitely scheduled. They are as follows:

Feb. 10—P. C. and Save Regina—here—sponsored by the Veridames.
Feb. 17—P. C. and Pembroke—away—to do either "La Belle Helene" or "Oklahoma".

Jan. 6-18—(no definite date)—P. C. in a concert in the Blackstone Valley area—sponsored by the Blackstone Valley Club of P. C.

May 5—P. C. and Albertus Magnus—away.

Plans for concerts sponsored by the Hartford Club and Waterbury Club are in the making for the first semester. The majority of the season's concerts, however, will take place during the second semester, and it will be then that the activities of the Club will reach their peak. In the planning stages for the latter part of the year are concerts with Marymount College, Caldwell College, and Emmanuel College. The Dominos, one of the most outstanding collegiate octets in the nation, will participate in the All-New England College Octet Concert to be held in Vermont this spring. Jim MacHardy, '59, is a new addition to the Dominos, replacing Bernard Drzinski, who graduated last year.

At the close of last year's season, elected as officers of the Club at the annual banquet at the Narragansett Hotel were: President, Tony DeBernardino, '57; Vice President, Tom Malloy, '57; Business Manager, Bill Paquin, '57; Secretary, Jim Felice, '58; Treasurer, Nick Donovan, '58; Librarians, John Cochener, '59 and Ed McKenney, '59.

The official 1956-1957 Glee Club Roster consists of the following: D. Albano, F. Bassett, M. Breault, J. Brennan, D. Burns, J. Cacchiotti, A. Canavan, W. Casper, G. Cassidy, R. Cavanaugh, J. Cocheno, G. Corrado, M. Daley, R. D'Amico, T. DeBernardino, T. Degan, J. Derwin, J. Donovan, E. Dugas, P. Falzone, J. Felice, T. Fasulo, J. Gallagher, W. Galvin, R. Garrity, P. Greene, J. Griffin, J. Kane, T. Keegan, N. LeBoeuf, E. Lind, F. Lindquist, R. Loftus, C. Lupo, J. MacHardy, E. McKenney, T. Malloy, J. Murphy, F. Nelson, R. O'Brien, W. Paolino, W. Paquin, A. Patenaude, R. Payne, E. Porfido, R. Renaud, J. Ryan, A. Sarazen, R. Simec, J. Sososiek, R. Spycholski, J. Tobin, G. Trainor, J. Warren, J. Welsh, J. Williams, E. Wilk, and M. Woods.

Tentative members are: Khoury, McCarthy, Trede, and Sweeney.

Accompanist for the Club are Arnold Sarazen and John Cacchiotti. The Glee Club, one of the most prominent organizations on campus, has long been one of the outstanding assets of Providence College. Responsible for the overwhelming success of the Club is the great spirit of its individual members who show unceasing interest in its activities. Their faithfulness in attending the rehearsals twice weekly is also a major factor to be considered when we reflect on the Club's many achievements. However, none of this would be true were it not for Father Cannon, who by his untiring devotion to the Glee Club and its members, is continuing to spread the name of Providence College.

Junior Veridames To Sponsor Dance

Miss Jane Roach, of East Providence, president of the Providence College Junior Veridames, has announced that an informal dance will be sponsored by the group on October 26 in Harkins Hall Auditorium. The music for the dance will be furnished by Arnold Sarazen and his group. The dance will be from 8 to 12 and a seasonal theme, "Autumn Nocturne" is planned.

Miss Roach also announced tentative plans for a short skit during intermission, presented by her group with the assistance of the newly-organized spirit committee, under the direction of James Pitocelli, '59.

For the benefit of those who may be unfamiliar with the role played by the Junior Veridames at the College, Miss Roach explained that the group is composed of sisters, related (Continued on Page 3)

A Chance To Get Rich

Something new and challenging in the field of competitive collegiate contests for students and faculty has reached the Providence College campus. However, as with others, this novel scheme fostered by "Readers Digest," has met with little or no interest from our students. As this particular contest requires just a small amount of effort, it is not out of the ordinary to assume that Providence College will be noted by a dearth rather than a wealth of applications. Yet our intention here is not to give "Readers Digest" gratis publicity, but to flicker the dormant flame of our well-known nemesis, school spirit. How may this be achieved? Well, to seek an entry blank is half the battle. Then enter, with a will to win for self and school. For here's the gimmick, the bit of strategy that the Digest people thought would make this test of wits a natural on any college campus. A dual prize is in the offering and it is tempting and more than a little attractive. The rules provide for a substantial monetary reward for the lucky winners and to the winner's school the same prize for its scholarship fund.

We urge you to display your initiative, to show the Readers Digest that we are alive and kicking, to get the feel of that competitive school spirit and bring home a winner to Providence College.

Wear Yours Proudly

The wearing of the Beanie is part of the tradition at P.C. This badge is the official characteristic of the Neophytes of Smith Hill. The Beanie not only exemplifies the Black and White but also the integrity and obedience of the typical P.C. student. The student who shuns this obligation must be a weak individual and should be treated accordingly, not as a man but as a child. Therefore, members of the freshman class, wear them proudly, and warrant its significance, and when liberation time rolls around you will know that you have fulfilled your obligation.

Political View Point

By Frank Brennan

This week, as promised we will discuss a few of the major issues which are in the forefront of the political limelight.

During the Eisenhower Administration, the Supreme Court made integration decisions which were received with great unpopularity in the South. There is a possibility that the integration issue would not have reached the proportions it did. However, politics entered the situation, and southern leaders secured their tap root and pledged to fight the decisions. Vice President Nixon has been credited with a statement saying that the Supreme Court decision was a Republican decision. It doesn't seem to matter that the statement was made, the only thing that seems to enter the picture at the moment is that many people believe it . . . and will vote accordingly.

In 1952, Eisenhower broke the southern political barrier and won Florida, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia. It is doubtful whether he will win any southern states this year. Adlai Stevenson, during the convention made it known that he was in full accord with the decisions. At first glance many thought that this was unwise, but as time passed this statement hasn't hurt Mr. Stevenson's chances at all. It is believed that Mrs. Roosevelt's undying support of Stevenson has made it possible for him to step out on a limb and support the Supreme Court's decisions without any fear of losing any of the southern states. Mrs. Roosevelt has always been a popular figure in the South and Mr. Stevenson seems to have taken advantage of this fact.

There is a political paradox in this issue, and it evolves itself this way: At Chicago, the Democrats from the South knew that sooner or later they would have to integrate their schools but they wanted to do it in their own time and in their own way. This is a prime example of the southern political philosophy of states rights. However, the South has allied itself with a party which during twenty years of office concentrated their efforts on a strong federal system of government, and have fought the party which believes in the individual right of the state.

The farm problem is a difficult one indeed to explain, for it is a problem of success not of failure. We live in a system of free enterprise, which allows the individual to achieve a healthy income and to live in comparable luxury. Times have been good, and the free enterprise system has never been better, so the American people are buying consumer products for their quality, and not for their quantity. The success of our system has led to the disadvantage of the farmer, for the people are buying more dairy and vegetable products, rather than the food-stuffs which are grown in the Midwest. Cotton growers are having a difficult time competing with the manufacturers of synthetic fibers. So the case seems to state that the success of one tends to lead to the failure of another.

In order to protect themselves, the farmers are trying to establish 100% parity on the products so that they can enjoy the fruits of living which the rest of the country has. However, the Eisenhower administration is strong for a flexible parity. The one in operation at the moment ranges from 75 to 90 percent parity, and the administration feels that if it's given a little more time it will work to the advantage of the farmers. The election will prove whether the people want to wait.

The introduction of new promises into the campaign has been a very slow. The first one was Nixon's "Four day work week." There is no doubt that this would have great effect on the people and would make them listen to the speeches of the candidates a little more intently. However, Nixon is a master politician, and you would wonder at times whether this forecast wasn't a little more political than it was practical. No doubt, Mr. Stevenson realized the political worth of the four day work week, and started searching his mind for an equalizer. So the next promise that comes to mind is the idea of limiting the draft call. However, from this point it seems as though Nixon's pledges are a little more practical and political than those of Mr. Stevenson's.

There isn't too much that can be said in the field of foreign policy. For the most part it has been bipartisan, and successful. At least the country is reasonably better off today than it was four years ago. This campaign is unique, in that its basic issues are on the domestic level. Next week we will go through the states and see how each of them will vote on these issues, and who will win the electoral vote.

A Slice of Lemon

By BOB LAFFEY

Just a minute ago something happened that made me just a little bit hot under the collar. After the session in back of Aquinas Hall tonight (which, by the way, is Monday night) I was walking back toward the COWL office to return the camera. As I was waiting along, some animals, for want of a better word, came crowding up behind me. As soon as they spotted the camera, they were forced to make some really funny comments. Then, since I wasn't too receptive, they turned their attention to a couple of freshmen who were walking along a few yards ahead of me. The time-worn remarks of "bean-boy" and the like were dragged out again. The frosh played it smart and minded their own business. Just as we passed Donnelly Hall, Fr. Prout, who was standing outside, asked them what they were doing on campus. They began to run, but the freshmen collared one or two of them. Fr. Prout told them to stay off the campus and they began to walk across the parking lot behind Aquinas Hall. When they got out of range and had secured themselves of a good head start, they began to taunt the Frosh with "Come around to our corner," etc.

What turns me up is the fact that we don't go around bothering them, so why should they come up here to bother us. If you go over to the cafeteria in the late afternoon, you'll be besieged by a number of little monsters ranging in age from eight to about fourteen or fifteen. How come, with all the drug stores, spas and the like we have around here, they have to pick the cafeteria to hang around in? That's not bad enough, but you also have to bear with their humor, which is probably the worst part of it. You can't elude one of them; you'd probably be put in jail, or better yet, the one you clouted would probably pull a gun and shoot you. If anyone, after reading this comes to the point of going out to contend with these little James Jameses, leave your tender sensibilities at home. These kids use a type of language that would shock James Joyce.

Because I can't think of anything interesting, I think I'll describe what usually goes on around this place, this place being the COWL office. If you came down here about eleven o'clock in the morning, the place would be deceptively quiet. Nothing happens around here until one or so. Then Dave Pepin shows up to chew on his pencil and compose his weekly effort. Shortly after, Dick Wolfe drops by and begins typing up the political and social news he has gathered. About four, editor Hanson and his side-kick Ray Morin show up and things begin to perk up. Jim Sheehan stands in and begins to grind out his copy. By five, the COWL office sounds like a newspaper office. I turn up, get shouted at by the editor and his staff, and retire for supper. When I return, Jim Westwater is hammering his head against the wall trying to fit his pages together, get out a column, and write headlines. Norm Dugas is sitting quietly in the corner munching a sandwich while the editor is four different places at once. Ray Morin is typing at a terrific rate, using only four fingers, while various other people, some of whom I have never seen before, either lounge or sit at typewriters waiting for inspiration. Shortly after nine the office begins to empty out and silence, broken only by a certain columnist's typewriter, reigns. Some mumbled comments from the direction of the editor's desk as the sports pages are finally shaped up. The one person I seem to have forgotten is Bill Pepin, who turns up in the office like a cyclone and leaves five minutes later. Evidently he does something in those five minutes, because we always have the ads in place. And that, in brief, is how the COWL gets put together.

In Passing

By Dave Pepin

Three years ago there entered into the student body of P.C. a character of great abilities. His name was Rob Duffy. Rob was what you might call an intellectual. His command of the English language was so great that although he was speaking English no one could understand a word he was saying. Most of us thought he spoke a foreign tongue, but later we learned that most of the words were in dictionaries, the larger dictionaries, that is.

Another of Rob's talents was Anglo-Saxon. Rob could speak Anglo-Saxon as well as any student on campus, since he was the only one who even bothered. German was another of his many talents, but since a few others also spoke German, Rob considered this endeavor too common.

In order to give the entire student body the full benefit of his talents, Rob joined as many clubs as possible. He was the man who took the exclusive picture, wrote the exclusive story, demonstrated his acting ability, became a press agent, etc. The final step was giving the Cowl the benefits of his genius.

Mr. Duffy was given his own column when one of the old guard retired, and was an immediate hit. His column was read over and over, no one understood it. Later Rob lowered himself slightly and even went so far as to change the name of his column so that it could be understood. As for stories Rob did very well. Most of us thought that Rob was going to be a mail man, he was taking letters, but since then he has changed his mind. The brewery that gets Rob will be very fortunate indeed for Rob has excellent taste, and as chief taster he will insist on an excellent brew. Good luck, Rob, and now we are even for last year.

The Thinking Catholic

Union City, N. J.—"You can't tell a Catholic from his neighbor by the style of his hat or the cut of his coat or the baseball team he roots for. But you should be able to distinguish between the principles he holds and by his outlook on the world."

So declares Rev. Ralph Gorman, C.P., editor of The Sign, national Catholic magazine, in a signed editorial appearing in the magazine's October issue. Under the title, "The Thinking Catholic," Father Gorman describes what he calls "a few distinguishing marks of a Catholic . . ."

"He knows," the priest asserts, "that Christian charity isn't limited by national boundaries, nor can it exclude Jew or Gentile, Russian or American, black or white. He is naturally inclined to favor organized efforts for international cooperation. While loving and serving his own country, he dislikes chauvinism and is nauseated by the raucous boasts and constant flag-waving of the extreme nationalists."

"Such a person advocates generosity to less favored nations. . . He believes we should welcome refugees. . . He condemns efforts to segregate the negro. . ."

"The kind of Catholic who's writing about," the priest says, "has distinct ideas on the sacred character of the individual and on the rights (Continued on Page 8)

Campus Political Platforms —

PLATFORM OF THE VERACRATIC PARTY

Within a week the members of the Sophomore Class will decide who the instruments of their student government will be. It is a time for an intelligent decision on the part of the student electorate so that they may be assured of true representative government.

Those who would guide us must manifest an interest in the college as well as the class itself. They must take a stand on the issues confronting the student body. Therefore in order that everyone may know what our party stands for and against, we publish this platform:

School Spirit
We pledge to encourage spirit by wide and intelligent leadership and active participation in extra-curricular activities.

Free Bids
The Veracratic Party is opposed to the idea of giving free bids. It feels that rather than contributing to better class spirit, free bids have a demoralizing effect. We pledge that no such bids will be issued.

Committees
We will, if elected, appoint intelligent, interested, hard working, and co-operative students to the chairmanships of the various committees that will be chosen during the year.

Day and Dorm Students
The Veracratic Party does differentiate between day and dorm students; we feel that we owe our undivided loyalty to the Class of 1959 as a whole and not to any one faction.

Finance
We promise a broad policy of sound economy and equality for all. Expenditures will be based upon the needs and desires of the class. With this sound economic policy, we should be able to maintain a substantial balance in the class treasury so that next year our Junior Prom will be the most successful ever held in the school's history.

We will do the utmost in our delegated power to make this year the most outstanding in sophomore class history and to make the Class of '59 the greatest in the annals of Providence College.

The candidates supported by this party, all of whom will live up to this platform are John Eckert, president; Edward Lind, vice president; John Brennan, secretary; and Kevin McMahon, treasurer.

CLASS OF '59

Well once again a political fervor has enveloped the campus of Providence College. Now is the time for all members of the particular classes to manifest a profound interest in the basic functions of a Democratic form of government.

Bearing this in mind I wish, at this time, to impress upon you, the Class 1959, the tremendous significance of class elections. Of course you are aware of the tremendous franchise of the vote so I do not feel that I am obliged to waste any effort dwelling on the significance of such a privilege. However, I do feel that it is very necessary that your attention be brought to bear on the particular qualities that you should look for in a candidate for office. By training yourselves to recognize the qualities in a person that makes him a strong leader and a discreet judge of men you will be doing yourself and your college a great service. After all it is you that will be choosing the men that will lead our country in the years to come and there is no time like the present to begin training yourselves to recognize the qualities of a leader.

So, members of the Class of 1959, I implore you to be present at the class assembly which will be held Tuesday, October 22nd. By being present on this date you will give yourselves the opportunity to meet and consider the several candidates who are seeking to be of service to you.

Remember . . . Vote on October 23rd, assemble October 22nd.

Sincerely,
John Eckert, '59

INDEPENDENT PARTY PLATFORM

Fellow Classmates:
Last spring, I urged for your support in electing me as a class representative to the Student Congress. When you honored me by electing me, I determined that not only would I hold true to my campaign promise to work to the best of my ability for our class, but that I would also attempt to serve the class in any other manner, for which I might be able. I have the necessary spirit and ability. Now, I believe that no person has the right to seek office solely because "it's nice to be an officer," but because he is proud of his class and wants only the best for it, and, consequently, for the school. It entails hard work, straight thinking, and sacrifice, so you may wonder why I should want to seek office. The answer is simple: We are members of a large class in a great school. However, it takes more than number to make any group outstanding. Because I recognize the true potentiality of our class—as a whole group—I want very much to be a part of the development of that group, to work towards a unified goal, and to make subsequent classes admire the class of 1959.

I want for us a memorable Sophomore Weekend; I want for us increased social activities; but what I most realize is that these do not "come about" haphazardly. Their successful realization requires study, planning, and work by a UNIFIED group. UNITY: remember this word, because it is to be the basis for my campaign. The reason for this is that our Sophomore year is of importance foundationally. What we accomplish this year will not be of as much importance as last year's well-prepared we to meet the challenge of our junior year and the following one. If we are not a strong, UNITED group—not "day-hops" and dorm students—but a group together, by the end of this important year, we cannot hope to work towards memorable events of the coming year; we cannot hope to work towards the memorable events of the coming years, as well as those of 1956-57.

You have read the main tenet of my platform—if you can refer to it as such. Because of limited space, I cannot recount my entire platform in this paper. However, I sincerely

Here's How to Play

TANGLE SCHOOLS!

OLD GOLD'S GREAT NEW GAME

A total of 24 puzzles will appear before the Christmas holiday. Get started now in Old Gold's exciting new game for college students only.

Here are the Official Tangle Schools Rules! SAVE THEM!

1. PRIZES (a) P. Lorillard Company, the makers of OLD GOLD CIGARETTES, will award a total of 46 prizes, valued at more than $15,000—to college students in the United States in accordance with the following Official Rules. (See complete list of prizes.) (b) This game will consist of twenty-four (24) monogrammed puzzle drawings to be published in this and other college newspapers; three puzzles each week for eight weeks, and a series of tie-breaking puzzles, if needed, as outlined in rule 3. (c) Contestants must arrange the scrambled letters from each of the 24 monogrammed puzzle drawings to be published in this and other college newspapers; three puzzles each week for eight weeks, and a series of tie-breaking puzzles, if needed, as outlined in rule 3. (d) Contestants must arrange the scrambled letters from each of the 24 monogrammed puzzle drawings so that they correctly spell the name of a certain American college or university. In the scrambled drawings there are no superfluous letters, no distortion of letters, and no letters are left out or mislaid or mislaid extraneous. A clue will be furnished with each drawing to help identify the correct answer to the puzzle.

2. (a) The person complying with all the rules of the game and solving the highest number of puzzles correctly will be declared the winner of the first prize, a $40-day tour of the world for two persons—the winner and another person of his choosing or, at the option of the winner, the first prize shall consist of $5,000 to be paid to the winner. The person complying with all the rules of the game and solving the second highest number of puzzles correctly will be declared the winner of the second prize. In like manner, the winners of the remaining 44 prizes will be determined. (b) In case more than one person solves correctly the same number of puzzles, the prize fund will, and as many additional prizes as there are persons tied, will be awarded and those so tying will be required to solve a set of tie-breaking puzzles, to determine the order in which the reserved prizes will be awarded. Each of the tie-breaking puzzles will be comprised of scrambled letters forming the name of either one, two or three American colleges or universities. Clues with each puzzle drawing will indicate whether the puzzle contains one, two or three schools to be identified. If, after solutions have been submitted to this second set of puzzles, a tie or ties still remain, those tied will be required to solve another tie-breaking puzzle. Accompanying this tie-breaking will be an official list of American colleges and universities. From these, contestants will make up a list of schools and colleges in accordance with instructions to be given at that time. The contestant earning the highest score in so doing will be awarded the highest of the prize tied for. The next highest prize will be awarded to contestant earning the second highest score and so on down through the reserved prizes that have been reserved. Those tie-breaking puzzles, if necessary, will be mailed to each contestant.

P. Lorillard Company reserves the right (only in the event of further tie or ties) to require contestants to solve as many tie-breaking puzzles under supervision, and without assistance, as are necessary to determine a single winner for each prize.

3. NOTE (a) When extracts have completed solutions to the complete set of 24 initial puzzles, which are to be published three per week in this paper, the solutions are to be printed or typewritten by the entrant in the answer space provided on the puzzle (or a reasonable facsimile). The complete set of 24 puzzles must be answered, neatly trimmed and enclosed in an envelope, flat and not rolled and addressed to—Tangle Schools, P. O. Box 264, Mount Vernon 10, N. Y., and mailed bearing a postmark not later than December 19, 1956. Decorated, posted or uncolored puzzles are not permitted. Each set of 24 puzzles must be accompanied by a wrapper from any type OLD GOLD CIGARETTE package—(REGULAR, KING-SIZE OR FILTER KING) or a reasonable facsimile thereof. (b) More detailed instructions on the reading of completed sets of puzzles will be published later. No solutions are to be sent in separately. Save the puzzle and your solution so that they may be submitted as a complete set at the end of the game. Entrants are not limited as to the number of complete sets of Solutions. However, each set must be submitted individually, and only one prize will be awarded to any one entrant. (c) After the solution for mailing solutions, the correct answers to all 24 puzzles will be published in a single issue of this paper. Each contestant must keep an accurate record of all solutions and check his answers with the published correct answers.

4. WHO MAY ENTER: (a) This game is open to all bona fide college students in the United States; that is, persons who, at the time of entering, are duly registered in an accredited college or university within the continental boundaries of the United States, except that the game is not open to students whose immediate families are employed by P. Lorillard Company or its advertising agencies. Contest is subject to all State and Federal regulations. (b) Contestants may, if they prefer, make copies of the puzzles by hand. Copies of the puzzle and of OLD GOLD package wrappers reproduced by a multiple process such as carbon paper or mimeograph are not acceptable. Entrants who wrap back puzzles and copy of Official Rules may obtain them by addressing their request to Tangle Schools, Box 264, P. O. Box 9, Grand Central Annex, New York 17, N. Y., enclosing $1 in payment for each puzzle desired and/or request together with a STAMPED SELF-ADDRESSED envelope. (c) Prior to receiving a prize each winner may be required to sign an affidavit certifying that he or she is eligible to compete in accordance with rule 4-a; that he or she has not bought, sold or exchanged the puzzle solutions and is not acting for, either by proxy or in collaboration with, any person who is not qualified to participate under the rules.

5. METHOD OF JUDGING: Decision of the judges is final and contestants to agree upon entering the game. Solutions to the puzzle will be judged on correctness, including the spelling of the name. All entries become the property of P. Lorillard Company. None will be returned. P. Lorillard Company cannot be responsible for any solutions timely delayed or lost in the mail; this also applies to mail from P. Lorillard Company to any contestants. On entering the game, each contestant accepts the foregoing rules as binding. P. Lorillard Company reserves the right to disqualify any entrant not conforming. Evidence indicating collusion by or ineptitude of contestants will automatically disqualify such contestants. P. Lorillard Company reserves the right to correct any typographical error or other errors which may appear in any published matter in connection with this game. P. Lorillard Co., insofar as publication of material is concerned, is responsible only for submitting material for publication to newspapers involved.

Ski Club Elects Maillet Prexy

On Monday evening at 7:30 the Ski Club of Providence College re-elected Mr. Gerry Maillet President with Charlie Burke as Vice-president. Max Fleusht and Don Freund were elected Secretary and Treasurer, respectively.

After the members of the club were introduced, Mr. Maillet said that the reason the club was formed was to bring together students wishing to participate in winter sports.

Mr. Maillet emphasized the fact that those wishing to have pictures taken for the yearbook must pay their dues during the first week in November.

Charlie Burke was named chairman for the dance to be held January 4, sponsored by the club for the promotion of winter sports. He will be assisted by Joe Tocco, Harry Pierce, Paul Zuchowski, and Jim Flannery.

A permanent committee with 2 day students and 2 resident students was established to coordinate the different activities of the club.

Day trips to Mt. Snow have been planned with the Annual Ski Trip to some underdeveloped ski area to be held on February 1, 2, and 3.

hope that those of you who are interested will attend the sophomore class meeting next week, and hear what I have to say. I am aware that I have opponents of the utmost calibre and ability—I cannot ask that you vote for me simply because I would like to be your leader. All I can rightfully ask of you is that you think seriously—before you vote—the best-suited candidate, and then, if you find that you approve of my plans and platform, I ask that you cast your vote for president for me. Thank you.

Respectfully,
Richard J. DeNoia,
(Independent Candidate for President.)

Members of the Class of 1959:

On October 24, the sophomore class will go to the polls in Harkins Auditorium for the purpose of selecting the four men they feel are the most qualified to lead the class for this year.

I am running for the office of secretary of our class, only because I know that I shall try my best to carry out the wishes of every sophomore. Now, as I write this, there is only one thing that I can think of that could be considered a promise to the voters. If and when I am elected I shall try to make known to every sophomore every matter of importance decided on by the officers. I shall also listen to all "gripes" and see what can be done to remedy them.

In closing I would like to say that I shall, of course, appreciate very much your vote on the 24th.

Sincerely,
Paul H. Walsh
Candidate for Secretary

Letter To The Editor

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the entire Junior class for giving me the great honor of representing you in your class functions. Our class has shown time and time again its willingness to work hard in an effort to promote the best interests of the class of 1958. I sincerely hope that the class will show once again the great spirit of the past and continue our reputation as the creator of Providence College spirit. Once again, many thanks.

Sincerely,
Jim Hagan,
Junior Class President.

to contact his players on the field. This should be a considerable help to George Ratterman in choosing plays or should it?

Now in the execution of plays, fans say there never was a better passer than Otto and records tend to back up this statement. But Ted Williams is known as a superlative hitter in the baseball world and the Red Sox were not winning. Records are not self-explanatory. The books say Graham completed a goodly total of passes but they do not tell of the remarkable and sometimes spectacular grabs of ends Dante Lavelli, Mac Speedie and lately Pete Brewster. Nor do the books tell of the amazing protection the Cleveland front wall always seem to provide for their passer. Nor do the books tell of the explosive backfield Cleveland has always had. Men like Marion Motley, Dub Jones, Ray Renfro and others have been a factor which always kept the element of surprise in Graham's favor.

To explain last year's performance is not too difficult. Cleveland began its slide downhill early in the year. This was the cause of the cancellation of Graham's retirement. But as the season wore on, not to deny Graham, he did play well, but more important was the development of the Brown's defense as well as the coming to their own of backs Ed Modzelewski and Ray Renfro. The season was climaxed with a sweeping conquest of the Los Angeles Rams in the playoff game. It is noteworthy to say not as an alibi but as a fact that many teams were hurt by injuries to key players during the campaign, such as Frank Gifford and Kyle Rote of the Giants. This also added to Cleveland's and Graham phenomenal success.

What lies ahead for Cleveland and George Ratterman? They will rebuild and regain their stature as a power and in the process won't miss Otto Graham for they still have Paul Brown, the real quarterback of the Cleveland Browns.

P.C. Sailors Race This Weekend

The Sailing Club at their last meeting elected the following officers: Dave Pepin, commodore; Joe O'Neill, vice commodore, and Joe Kumiega, secretary. Plans were discussed for the coming year. The attendance at the meeting was the largest in three years.

The Sailing Team, in its initial start of the season, finished fourth in the State Championships at R.L.S.D. last Saturday. The regatta was won by the host team in an upset over heavily favored Brown. The P.C. team missed the first two races and lost any chance of winning. Brown seemed a bit upset at their loss and went so far as to protest the race committee.

This coming weekend will see the nautical friars racing at M.I.T. on Saturday and Brown on Sunday. The Friars are seeking to make a comeback this year and some capable skippers are badly needed. Anyone who has sailed and would be interested in sailing for P.C. should contact Dave Pepin as soon as possible.

There will be a very important meeting of the club tonight at 7:30 in the old lounge in Harkins Hall. The racing schedule will be discussed and crews will be assigned for the coming races. Any new members who want to sail must be at the meeting or contact one of the officers of the club.

Student Congress Report

On October 12, at 10:20 the Student Court held its first session of the semester. Appearing before the Court were 15 freshmen who had failed to comply with the Beanie regulations in one way or another. Chief Prosecutor, Daniel Del Vecchio explained that the offenders had willfully or otherwise been guilty of an infraction of the regulations concerning the wearing of beanies and recommended that they should each be dealt the full penalty for this offense. He also pointed out that the defendants had each signed his own violation ticket thereby eliminating any question of their authenticity.

The following defendants appeared before the court:

Kovacs, W.	Colletto, J.
Herlihy, J.	De Fco, R.
Velie, A.	Brown, D.
Finnegan, P.	Costigan, P.
Keaney, F.	Woods, J.
Foley, D.

Harris, W., Christoforo, J., and Sweeney, H., failed to appear and as a result will be held in contempt of the court.

According to the penal code set up by the court the offenders were liable to any one or all of the following penalties:

Sign Wearing
The defendant may be made to wear on his person, a sign which shall proclaim him as a beanie violator.

1. The sign may be worn either on his back or chest. It shall not extend below his waist.
2. It shall be made by the student and approved by the court.
3. The duration of the penalty shall be at the discretion of the court.
4. The defendant may be placed in a conspicuous spot on campus holding a sign proclaiming him as a violator.
1. The spot shall be picked by the court.
2. The sign shall be approximately as big as the defendant.
3. It shall be made by him and presented to the court for approval.
4. The time of day that the defendant shall be at his post will be decided by the court and the duration of the punishment shall be decided by the court.

None of the above penalties shall be imposed for longer than a week. The defendant may be made to give a speech concerning the beanie. Dayhops will give their speeches in the cafeteria. Dorm students will give theirs in the dining hall.

1. The speech may be written by the court or by the student.
2. The speech may be repeated three times by the defendant in the same day.
3. The duration of time of the penalty shall not exceed one week.

Defendants who show subordination or contempt of court may also have their right to participate in the social functions of the school removed for a period of three weeks. Dorm students may be campused.

After a short consultation with the Enforcement Committee Chief Justice DeLeo and Associate Justice Powers found the 11 defendants guilty and all were directed to write speeches in compliance with the penal code regulations.

Congress Business
At a meeting held on Monday morning the Congress approved the Carlon Club Constitution which had been submitted for consideration.

In the afternoon another meeting was held at which all the regional clubs were present. This meeting was unique in that it was the first of its kind ever held.

The Congress offered several suggestions to the club representatives as to how enthusiasm may be generated at the club's functions.

An old fashioned Tug-O-War, sponsored by the Student Congress, is scheduled for 3:30 tomorrow afternoon at Hendricken Field. It will be a contest between the freshmen and sophomores in which the frosh, if victorious, will be allowed to discard their beanies immediately. However, if they are not successful the beanies will have to be worn until the night of their Liberation Dance.

All interested freshmen and sophomores are urged to register in the Student Congress office today or tomorrow morning.

GABRIEL DOOM

Once every month Gabriel Doom
Locked himself up in a sound-proof room;
Then he laughed out loud and rocked with glee
At a life that was funny as life could be!
He laughed at the weather, sunny on Monday
. . . rainy on Saturday, rainy on Sunday
He laughed at the news so loaded with grief
That an ax murder came as a pleasant relief!
He cried, "what with worry, hurry, and strife you couldn't ask for a funnier life!"
