ALLEN RESIGNS AS COACH — COWL EXCLUSIVE

The Cowl has received advance information that freshman basketball coach Jackie Allen would tender his resignation sometime this morning. Allen denied yesterday that he had as yet accepted any offer from another institution.

A majority of the Allen resignation are contained in an exclusive story on page eight of today's paper.

O’LEARY ELECTED FRESH PRESIDENT

Last Wednesday 78.9% of the freshman class went to the polls to elect James O’Leary class president. The vice-president elect is Peter J. White; secretary, Robert Silva; and the treasurer, Thomas Murray.

Three seats were contested in #2. The Fourth seat ended in a tie between Marshall Farley and Donald Shover. The tie was reached after more than an hour of reconvening with the lead swinging from side to side. Each of the men received 222 votes. There will be new vote taken to decide who shall be the fourth Congressman on next Thursday.

The 78.9% of the class who voted represents a jump of 9% over the last class election.

The election was all but perfect for the only party, the Dominicans, who took all but the vice-presidency and the last two Congress seats. They were not, however, running anyone for the last two seats, so in reality White was the only one to break their victory skein.

O’Leary had the following to say: "I would like to thank all the members of the class of ’63 who voted for me, and on behalf of the class, I would like to sincerely thank Jim Lowe for the wonderful job he has done. I hope that I will be able to fill the position now being vacated by Jim with the same success he had.”

Next Year’s Ring

Charles T. Reilly, sophomore, class president, announced early this week that the rings of the class of ’62 may be available for Ball and senior committeemen of this year. In previous years rings were not made available until the second semester of the Junior year. "Since the Student Congress has standardized one side and the top of the ring,” Reilly explained, “all that remains for the Ring Committee is to design the remaining side of the ring. If the Ring Committee submits the design to the manufacturer in time, the rings will be available in December.”

The ring committee is to be announced after the elections to be held today.

College Library Has Made Great Strides Since Institution, Now Has 60,000 Volumes

By PAUL A. O’ROURKE

In the 60 years of its existence the Providence College library owns approximately 60,000 volumes and subscribes to 250 periodicals.

On the occasion of National Library Week the assistant librarian, the Rev. John H. Nebusch, O.P., stated that in recent years the student use of the library has improved considerably.

"Circulation has increased by 25% in the past three years," he said. "This rate of increase is greater than that of college enrollment. In fact, circulation reflects on a higher caliber student at Providence College."

"Because of the greater demand on the library, stacks has been issued to a limited number of students announced later. Requests have been added." Fr. Hines­buch maintains that it is adequate for the needs of the great majority of PC students. "Many students cannot find what they want," he said, "because they fail to consult library assistants. Others seek very detailed works and unfairly indict the library when they are unsuccessful in finding them."

"It must be remembered," he continued, "that ours is a young college. Its library must not be compared with university libraries within a radius of 5, 50, or 150 miles which are much older and happen to be among the largest in the country."

"In the case of the only party, the Catholic religion. I will limited number of students before the end of the week." he said. "This rate of increase is greater than that of college enrollment."

The tie was reached after more than an hour of reconvening with the lead swinging from side to side. Each of the men received 222 votes. There will be new vote taken to decide who shall be the fourth Congressman on next Thursday.

MEMO FROM THE EDITOR:

The Friars Club ranks high, if not supreme, among student organizations which have contributed most in terms of benefit to Providence College. It is with a real sense of concern that I find increasing evidence that the club is motivating a wave of antipathy among ever-larger segments of the student body.

PC’s familiar white-sweatered Friars are unique for the fact that they constitute the membership of the only campus organization which can in any way be equated with a restricted fraternity. Significantly, the club’s discriminating membership policy has recently been bitterly assailed as outright discrimination—in the highly uncompromising connotation of the word.

Perhaps the roots of this budding enmity toward the Friars Club spring from the fact that the original concept of the club is becoming warped and distorted, not only among students at large, but also among many members themselves. The difficulty is, quite simply, that the Friars are in danger of degenerating from a service club to a BMOC clique. This trend may be averted, but also among many members themselves, it is most tortured, not only among students at large, but among many members themselves.

Some would assert that it is less a danger to Providence College. It is with some 1,000 students to pledge an hour for solicitation, O’Herron told The Cowl that the movement was already underway. “We hope to make students aware of the tragedy and utter futility of the refugee problem,” O’Herron said. “The show depicts for us the wretched position of a camp refugee. The very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., President of the College, will speak at the show.”

In letters to Father Skalko, both Christopher Del Santo, Governor of Rhode Island, and Michael F. Walsh, Commissioner of Education, expressed their best wishes for the success of the tournament. They also stated that they were very pleased to note that the delegates include representatives from other states outside of the New England area.

Plan Refugee Drive....

By PETE WHITE

The polemic strains of debate will once again echo through the corridors and classrooms of Harkins Hall on April 30, as the Providence College Third Secondary School Invitational Tournament gets underway.

Substantially Increase Its Regu- labor Unions. Each participating school will enter two teams, one affirmative and one negative. The teams will consist of two undergraduate students. In Round I, the touring teams will be paired, as much as possible, on an intersectional basis. Also, the teams will be asked to debate against its own school, or to debate any opponent more than once.

Announcement of principal awards will take place in the auditorium of Harkins Hall on the afternoon of the debate at 3:30 p.m.

The show will be told of the plans of our committee. As soon as this show is over, our students will begin their door to door march.”

When asked how the committee would attempt to get 1,000 students to pledge an hour for solicitation, O’Herron told The Cowl that the movement was already underway. “We hope to make students aware of the tragedy and utter futility of the refugee problem,” O’Herron said. “The show depicts for us the wretched position of a camp refugee. Jim was soon overridden by the Conference. Jim expressed surprise that many of the delegates from European and Latin America could not grasp the idea of race problems.

He noted that he found many liberal Southerners who recognized the fact that integration was here to stay.

The second major topic was federal aid to education. The most interesting point brought up on this issue according to Jim was a bill that Rep. Reuss, Dem., Wisconsin, introduced which is now pending passage. His bill calls for American students to be sent to foreign countries to work while receiving a year's pay. It is anticipated that the following members will receive honors at the convention: John

THE COWL, APRIL 6, 1960
Alumni Hall Howls...

According to our understanding of Father Begley's rather curious habits, the College's athletic department has severed relations with The Cowl.

The athletic director further accused this paper and its staffers of deliberately printing false and malicious statements about his department. His statements admit of no other interpretation than as an explicit indication of the personal integrity of the student editors and columnists.

Father Begley went so far as to question the entire content of the paper, pressuring the voice in criticism of any faculty member or administrative department.

Our staff is sorry that the athletic department chooses to lower this controversy to the level of slurs on personal character and ethics. Even while directing sharp criticism at inefficiency and bungling, our own editorial column has in every instance given the athletic department credit for acting in good faith.

The Cowl's sports coverage will be maintained to the best of our ability. Meanwhile, we trust that public opinion will enourage us of being deliberately and maliciously deficient in journalistic integrity. Let anyone examine the record.

National Library Week...

"My library was dukedom large enough..."
—Shakespeare, "The Tempest"

Some public relations man somewhere has decreed that this is National Library Week. Having a special "Week" is a unique American custom by which we give recognition to things we might be better off appreciating all year long.

It is difficult to conceive of a college education or a balanced cultural life without the facilities of libraries, both public and institutional. Now, while we as students are inacapable of aware the utility of college libraries, it might be appropriate here to make a mental memo for future years.

Libraries and their essential cultural role ought to be more vital to alumni than basketball teams and more important to taxpayers than a new coat of paint on City Hall. Remember that when your College or community needs you to pay for all the different types of facilities that are intellectually priceless.

Good Public Relations...

There's a popular song title to the effect that "Little Things Mean a Lot." Without subscribing to any corny sayings, we'd like to commend the athletic authorities of the College for not overlooking a small detail that might easily have gone unremembered.

Our reference is to the formal thank you card recently received by all friends of the College who in some way tendered their assistance or best wishes to the school during the NIT.

We'd like to encourage this sort of thing at Providence College. If you're ever asked to win a friend and a four cent stamp, the opportunity ought to be taken for the bargain that it is.

Phi-Chi Hear Lecture
On Philos. Of Science

The Rev. W. A. Wallace, O.F.M., from the Dominican Priory at Dover, Mass., was the speaker on Monday night's meeting of the Phi-Chi Club. The subject of his lecture was: "St. Thomas, Galileo, and Einstein."

Theological writings of Aquinas tend to overshadow his work in the sciences. Aquinas' scientific work was also outstanding for his time. Aquinas was trained under the great Dominican scientist, St. Albert, and was thus in a position to contribute to the science to his day. St. Albert built up a physical theory based on Aristotle's "Physics" and Thomas elaborated on this. He claimed that the physical reality of being was more fundamental than the mathematical reality.

Galileo, who is credited with beginning much of modern science, was, according to Father Wallace, too willing to accept weak proofs for physical theories without mathematical proof. Einstein went to the opposite extreme regarding mathematical proof and was quoted as saying that, "if a mathematical proof couldn't be found, it must be impertinent and if it was perfect, it didn't conform to reality."

Father Wallace pointed out that in his opinion one of the outstanding contributions of Einstein to modern science was the offsetting of the previous extreme trend started by Galileo.

The lecture was followed by a lengthy question period which the topic of conversation tended toward the current subject of agreement between philosophy and the physical sciences.

NEW HAVEN CLUB ELECTS

At their meeting on Monday night, April 4, the members of the New Haven Club elected John Eagan as president. Eagan replaces William Donohue who served as this year's president. John Donohue as secretary; and Edward Turbert, vice-president; replace William Donohue who served as this year's president.

To the Editor:

The Student Congress, in accord with the passage of a bill at its last meeting, wishes to extend congratulations to Mr. Daniel E. Sullivan, manager of the Providence College Book Store, for his unsolicited work in developing the extensive library of paper-backed books in the Book Store. The availability of such books can, indeed, effectively satisfy a good part of the extracurricular reading demands of the Providence student, covering, as they do, a wide range of interesting subjects.

We salute Mr. Sullivan and the Book Store for their work and encourage both students and faculty members to recommend additional works to this worthwhile project.

The Student Congress
Sincerely,

To the Editor:

We take a great deal of pride in being able to publicly announce the candidacy of Mr. David A. Duffy for the presidency of the class of 1961. We have been authorized to release the following statement on his behalf:

"After much serious consideration, I have decided upon the urging of many of my fellow class members to enter the race for the presidency of the class of 1961.

"I am a candidate primarily because I sincerely feel that the class needs enthusiastic revitalizing to operate efficiently for the important Senior year. A change is badly needed in order to assure its success."

"I cannot see how the class can continue to function properly through the use of power politics. We need spirit and a through the same time new life. It is my hope that we can provide the Class of 1961 with the lift that it needs for its final college year."

Respectfully,
Committee for David A. Duffy
George Gutnicher, Chairman

To the Editor:

We have forwarded the following letter to Mr. J. Vincent Curley and would appreciate publication of it in The Cowl:

"In the March 30th issue of The Cowl, the undersigned were quoted as follows in answer to the question: "Why do you think, Len Wilkens wasn't named to all of the first team All-American lists?"

"I think he was also learned that you send news wires at the conclusion of each week's basketball activity.

"Since publication, upon our own investigation, we have found that at the conclusion of each week's basketball activity we have discovered that this was not turned in by his English teacher and was not considered a complete." He was not even told that his mark was a D.+ He was not even told that his mark was a D.+

If you checked (B) on three out of four of these questions—you think for yourself!!

To the Editor:

In the Freshman assembly last Tuesday one candidate was prevented from speaking to his classmates. The candidate was told that he had an "incomplete" mark for the first semester. Upon investigation it was discovered that this mark was not turned in by his English teacher and was not considered a complete." He was not even told that his mark was a D.+

If you and I, for one, and I think that I am speaking for the class of ''63, feel that this mark does not deserve an apology from the Congress and the English Department for the grave injustice that has been done to him.

Sincerely,
Richard Jones, '63

Capt. Space Egan: Tops With Teammates

By TOM DRENNAN

Checking a book of Irish surnames, one would probably find that Egan means "son of fire." Whoever was responsible for the derivative must have had our own John Egan in mind.

Since the day he first put on a Friar uniform, Space has never failed to thrill his audience. His daring style of play has often overshadowed his genuine ability to carry out the fundamentals of basketball.

It was no surprise that John was elected captain of the Mullanymen for 1960-61. Everyone felt that the kid from Hartford would be the only logical choice.

In a way, it was taken for granted that John would be captain! And in a larger sense it has been taken for granted that Egan would naturally become a star as well as one of the best collegiate players today.

Prior to the arrival of Jim Hadnot, no other player in PC history had received the advance publicity that Egan had. And he had a tough audience to please. Most of the basketball fans here, both students and "friends," are of the doubting nature. They seem to feel, "Well, you're the star. Show me what you can do."

And Egan showed them. We need not go into his fabulous basketball career. We need not dwell on the relationship between John and Bob Cousy and their similar styles of play. But we should dwell on this one question: "If I were Egan, would I have done what he did this year?"

Egan was picked as a sure-fire All America in preseason polls. His scoring power and flashy style of play labeled him star material.

Then it happened! Standing up after having tried to straighten a rug on the floor of his room, he heard and felt a crunch in his knee. Providence College's season almost crunched with it!

After the injury had been diagnosed, his future looked dim, and many of his friends advised John to drop out of school, have an operation; rest up and strengthen the leg and come back next season as a junior again. In that way, he could save face.

And Egan showed them. He could plead injury and then come back and still not lose the press backing. But his answer was a firm "No!" He once told me, "I'm not here for personal glory. I'm here to help win games for PC. As long as the coach wants me to play, I play."

But play he did! He hobbed through the first twenty games, sometimes showing spurts of the old Space but always giving... (Continued on Page 9)

100 percent, even if for only 15 minutes a game. Then, up in Albany in the second half of the Siena game, he exploded. Over the last five regular season games and the four N.I.T. tilts he scored almost 200 points, more in nine games than in the first twenty put together.

Everyone was happy. The team was winning. Lenny was at his greatest, Hadnot had lost his sophomore, and Space was moving again.

This was the way the season ended, not with a whisper but with a bang!

Egan hadn’t lived up to preseason expectations according to the press. But we knew that he had risen above these early accolades. He had sacrificed personal honor and glory for the team and it had paid off in victories.

But pleasure does not come without pain. This was the way the season was with John. It was a pitiful sight to see a jux-ousy dressing room after a victory when all Space could muster was a slight grin. He admitted recently that in every game until the Siena and Space season, he constantly had the pounding pain going through his leg.

Yet he continued to play, turning moans into baskets and groans into assists. He ran out of the sight of the press clippings into the hearts of his teammates.

Yes, John Egan is the captain next year. He’s had it good and he’s had it bad. But a word to the wise should be sufficient.

That’s why they unanimously elected him captain.

MEANWHILE, long-distance runners are also worried about their legs. Bob Barborger and freshman Stan Blejwas have begun the season with appearances in earlier races while Barry Dougherty, and Pat Stewart continue to grind out the miles, coaxing their aching limbs into shape.

Participating in what is probably the most thankless and past-publicized sport, these fellows help spread the name and reputation of Providence College in much the same way as its varsity counterparts in other sports, if not to quite the same extent.

This strange breed of athletes is an interesting group. Off by themselves on the daily eight, ten and twelve mile jaunts throughout the countryside, they provoke many humorous remarks from those whom they encounter.

Right from the rock-throwing young boys to the giggling girls, this strange old folk to the understanding fellow-students, these road-running enthusiasts provide a topic of conversation for all those whom they encounter.

Pershing Rifles Repeat Champs Of New England

By JIM O'LEARY

Providence College's Pershing Rifle team has won the New England Pershing Rifle championship for the second year in a row. Sgt. Ronald Orchard, rifle team director and co-captain this year, will allow the team to participate in the national P.R. championship match. The Providence Rifles are out of a possible 1000 total.

Besides having the high team score, the high individual score also emulated from the hot-shooting PC squad. Ray Ouellette, turning in his best performance of the season, was the top man in New England. Ouellette was backed up by Ed Harvey, John MacDowell, Dick Paltziczi, and Bob Devaney.

This has been an outstanding team, and it has one of the best season records ever compiled by a PC team. As Orchard stated, "The team, composed almost entirely of underclassman, has shown an impressive potential for next year," he continued.

The PR rifle team, one of the most unsung squads in the country, is made up of a son of twelve wins and no losses this year. The team was awarded the champions' belt after their victory over the last team in the annual Army-Navy field meet.

John McNiff, captain of the varsity shooters, and Al Inz, first baseman of the varsity baseball team, are also members of the PR team.

Jackie Allen, fresh basketball coach for three years and now a senior at Providence College, announced Monday in a "first to the Court" interview that he has tendered his resignation to the Athletic Committee. In his resignation, Allen said, "This year coach the fresh five to a eighteen win, one loss season. In his three seasons at PC, he has lost only five games. As a primary reason for his resignation, Mr. Allen mentioned a desire to spend more time with his wife, Mary, his four children, Jack Jr., Ann, Bruce, and Robert, and his home in Newport. Allen emphasized that his coaching career at Providence was "generally happy and satisfactory to me."

The ex-coach indicated that he has not definite present plans for the continuation of his basketball coaching career. He did say, however, that he is considering several offers. Mr. Allen, who never considered coaching in the Provincetown area, has in the past indicated a deep desire to teach or work with youth.

Jack was graduated in 1942 from De La Salle, St. Paul, Minnesota, and then attended St. Mary's Academy in St. Paul, Minnesota, where he was a schoolboy standout. His work in his second varsity season was vastly improved over his first campaign. As a sophomore Wadsworth has made great progress this year, and is considered by many to be a potential for a first team all-American selection next year.

Joe Keough, a Malden Catholic product, came out of the Massachusetts high schoolboy scoring record at his high school and gained all-state recognition as a result of his stellar play. Joe has been the varsity's leading goal collector for the past two years with 23 and 26 goals. Although his goal production dropped one notch this year, he still raised his point total from 12 to 21, thus becoming the team's top scorer with 43 points. Wadsworth came to Providence from Crete High in St. Paul, Minnesota, where he was a schoolboy standout. Jim's work in his second varsity season was vastly improved over his first campaign. As a sophomore Wandmacher has made great progress this year, and is considered by many to be a potential for a first team all-American selection next year.
