Paul Hanaway Resigns Post; White Editor
Following the resignation of Paul J. Hanaway as editor of The Cowl, the Rev. John P. Gerhard, O.P., has announced the appointment of Peter J. White as new editor-in-chief. Hanaway, who served as Cowl chief since the beginning of 1961, was asked by the moderator to vacate his post.

Assuming the duties of editor as of this paper, Hanaway has been an active member of the junior class, acting as its vice-president last year and its treasurer this year.

The new editor is a native of Chappaqua, N.Y., and a political science major. He has also been a member of the Spike Club for the last three years.

White joined the staff of the Cowl in his freshman year. He rose successively to the post of copy editor and then to managing editor.

Hanaway, the outgoing editor, was due to relinquish his post with the January 31 issue of the Cowl.

The announcement of the change was made by the moderator last Thursday.

IRC Conducts Initial Meeting; Roche Named Committee Head
The initial meeting of the International Relations Committee was held last Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. in Aquinas Lounge. John Roche was named to head a six-man steering committee which will coordinate the objectives of the committee and will draw up a constitution to be presented to the Student Congress for approval.

Upon approval of the constitution by the Congress, the committee will become the International Relations Club of Providence College. It is expected that the Club will be affiliated with the American Association of International Relations Clubs.

Tentative plans call for the new club to hold seminars on international affairs, and after careful study to present recommended resolutions on world problems to the Student Congress for them to pass. The I.R.C. also intends to bring some well-known speakers and some foreign students to the college to speak on world problems.

Drivers Beware 'If-Only' Plague
By Peter J. Conn
Don't bet that you won't be involved in a traffic accident, even if you have a safe driving record.

The experts say that chances are 50-50 that you or some member of your family will be involved in a highway mishap before you die.

New Student Congress President Named
Gene Fusaro, President of the Providence College Metropolitan Club, announced that tickets for the club's annual Christmas Dance have been moving well since the sale began following the Thanksgiving recess.

The Met Club dance will be held in the Sheraton-Atlantic Hotel, at Broadway and 34th Street in New York, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., on Wednesday, December 27. Music for the affair will be provided by the Melody Aces.

Tickets are still on sale every evening from 5 to 6 p.m. in Raymond Hall. The price of the bid is $5.00; a $2.00 down payment is required and the remainder can be paid the night of the dance. Students are urged to buy their tickets as soon as possible, because the number is limited.

The dance is open to all PC students, along with any friends they care to invite.

Junior Ring Reaction
What is your opinion of the Junior Class ring?
Ronald Southworth: 'Our rings definitely display superior craftsmanship, and in my opinion are one of the finest the college has ever had.'

Leonard Thelander: 'I believe the 1963 class ring is unexcelled in its design and craftsmanship. However, it appears to me, in relation to size, to be in the order of a large high school ring.'

Eugene Sheridan: 'I think the Ring Committee and the Josten company should be congratulated for the fine job they did on the ring. However, I did not like the idea of giving $4 to the Bookstore for being the middlemenn.'

Tom Kelley: 'The class ring of this year seems to me to be the finest I have seen so far at Providence College. It certainly has all the appearances of a college ring and the durability to stand up to many years of wearing. Its distinctive styling is of the highest calibre and it is certainly something that is worth cherishing for a long time to come.'

Ken Jodein: 'Our class ring is something that of all us will always be proud to display. It is significant of the attainment of an educational plateau. Everything in its design has a meaning and it does a good job of showing the importance of this plateau through art.'

Dave Reilly: 'I think that this year's class ring is of exceeding great beauty and it is truly a detail. Josten's and the Ring Committee did a wonderful job in designing it and I'm certainly very proud to wear it.'

John Alquist: 'The rings really show me something' to the wearers in the thought that they have been a part of the entire institution.'

John Nicholas: 'I am well satisfied with the ring. It is certainly one of the best designed and made that I have seen since I've been here.'

Memo From the Editor:

None but the foggy-minded idealist can listen to a radio news broadcast or pick up a newspaper without realizing the many problems that beset us on all sides in today's world. These problems have international, national, and local significance. Sooner or later, once these conflicts are made known, proper agencies attempt their solution, with varying degree of success.

Colleges too are involved in various problems, which, whether they are large or small, are of interest and must be communicated to both the faculty and students. This is especially true if either group should fail to understand the position of the other in conflicts which arise.

At Providence College, the task of communication is entrusted to the Cowl. It is our duty to understand the problem, report it accurately and objectively, and to take a constructive attitude toward the solution or appeasement of any conflict.

The Cowl must give credit where credit is due in the solution of these problems, but we must also simultaneously maintain the privilege to positively criticize when conflicts are not satisfactorily solved.

Finally, we intend to foster those ideals which are ours to maintain as students of a Catholic college and which Providence College attempts to instill in our minds.

Student-Faculty Board Opinions Voiced by Congress President Hall

Joe, just what is the Student-Faculty Board, and do you really think it will fulfill any need for us?

'I've been asked this question several times since the beginning of the year, and I would like to give a brief description of this committee in an attempt to explain it.

"Let me answer the second part of the question: The first is this. Does a college have a right to attempt censure on an element of opinion is heresy, then it may not have direct powers, it does promote affection among all its other faculties voluntarily use them, the college is the inescapable future for the committee.

"But such a committee relies heavily on the mutual interest and cooperation of the students as that of the faculty. The committee cannot adversely influence student-faculty relations if there is complete silence on the part of the students and the faculty.

"In particular, I would like to request the students to present their ideas to this board anything they consider important. The areas open for discussion by the committee are vast, but nothing specific can be accomplished without your personal interest.

"I realize that this description is still rather vague, but I hope that the general idea is clear. I hope that the student-faculty board is more clearly understood and that all will seek to contribute the suggestions and co-operation essential to its continued success.

"The members of the board are: Fr. Joseph L. Lennon, O.P.; Fr. Thomas Peterson, O.P.; Mr. Sigfried Frese, George L. Finley, and Robert Silva. Please feel free to bring up any matters pertaining to, or tending to improve, student-faculty relations.

Blood Drive Termed Success;
70 Pints Collected by Alpha

Alpha Epsilon Delta's blood drive which was held December 5 in the exercise room of Alumni Hall collected a total of 70 pints. Co-Chairmen of the drive were Timothy McCann, president, and Harry Iannotti, treasurer of the Alpha. Iannotti termed the drive "very successful."

Although 94 students had pledged to donate, some 35 were turned away because of asthma conditions, hay fever, high blood pressure, colds, and other minor ailments. The drive also received contributions from many who had not pledged in advance.

Among members of the faculty who donated blood were the Rev. Charles V. Reichert, O.P., and Dr. Robert C. Kennedy.

Five technicians from Our Lady of Fatima Hospital collected the blood from the donors. The Rev. Charles V. Reichert, O.P., and Dr. Robert I. Krasner acted as advisers and arranged with arrangements. McCann and Iannotti performed hemoglobin tests while Robert Feeley, Roger Raymond, Thomas Vest, Kenneth Tolan, John Beusis, Joseph Moretti, Gerald Mariscotti, Andrew Pryharski, Merrill Chernow, Edward Blankstein, and Sheldon Kaplan helped the donors in filling out cards.

A filing system of donors and dates of donation is being set up in the biology office. Donor cards will be distributed in the near future to those students who contributed. All PC faculty members and students themselves are able to receive blood credits. Donors' immediate families are also protected, but non-donors' families are ineligible in the program. Those in need of blood credits should contact either a member of the AED or Father Reichert.

Alpha also announced that any one who didn't give and wants to donate blood should contact the biology office which will make the necessary arrangements. Free transportation will be provided for the trip to Our Lady of Fatima Hospital.

African Neutrality Concept
Subject of Frodin Lecture

"The concept of neutrality in African countries is an expression of aloneness," stated Reuben Frodin in a lecture on African neutrality sponsored by the Student Speakers Committee and the Political Science Department on Monday.

The African countries cannot be counted in a grouping. This is the reason why Nigeria refused an invitation to the Belgrade Conference. Nigeria regarded those who went as false neutrals," he continued.

The administrative elite of Nigeria is no longer regarded as an element of British colonialism. Also, its constant residentialism movement does not leave its members open to criticism arising from luxury privileges.

In contrast with leaders of some other underdeveloped countries, Balewa, the Prime Minister of Nigeria, has grown in stature because of his moral principles and acts for the benefit of his people.

Nigeria has passed legislation which assures outside investors that nationalization is not an immediate prospect. If any industry is nationalized at present, the investor is certain to be compensated.

Communications have contributed to national unity and have offset the influence of tribalism. Tribalism is weak, but the tribal chiefs have the prestige of being identified with the central government by holding governmental posts.

Conservative Club Given Approval
By Committee on Administration

Student Congress president Joseph Hall announced, Monday evening, that the Conservative Club has been approved by the Committee on Administration.

Father Lennon, in an inter-office memo to Mr. Hall concerning the club, has mentioned that it has been requested by the committee that the club change its title to one using the name of some famous conservative philosopher. The purpose of the requested change, as stated in the memo, is to prevent the College's name from being associated with conservatism and thus be politically tagged.

Mr. Raymond Lajeunesse, organizer and temporary chairman of the Conservative Club, stated in regard to the memo, "I feel that the title Conservative Club tags only the organization and not the whole College, and it is the intention of our organization to be tagged as to political philosophy." He also mentioned, "It is not within my power as temporary chairman to make a decision on this matter, which will be submitted to a vote of the club membership."

Now that recognition has been obtained the club will hold its first public meeting after the Easter recess. At this meeting permanent officers will be elected, and two films, "Communist Entercement -- 1961" and "Operation Abolition," will be shown.

Pirraglia Elected Frosh President;
Lang Chosen VP

Robert Pirraglia, a 1961 graduate of Classical High School in Providence, won his bid for the presidency of the freshman class in the recent elections. Voting took place in the lounge of Alumni Hall last Wednesday. Pirraglia, sponsored by the "Friarcratic Party," overcame his closest opponent by a slim margin of three votes. Pirraglia received 107 votes; Don Lyon, 104; Richard Weronik, 84; and Richard B. Nerf, received 83 votes. His opponents, Ed Ford and R. B. Nerf, received 83 and 21 votes respectively.

The office of secretary was given to Paul Kinsky who received 216 votes to Albert Beaton's 166.

Voting for treasurer went thus: Frank Sullivan, 159; Joe O'Brien, 114; Bob Monti, 81; and P. Call, 21.

Drive Safely . . .

Motor vehicle deaths could be rated as the seventh or eighth of the principal causes of fatalities among the people of our country.

Accidents have occurred on all types of roadways and wherever automobiles have traveled. Yet, motor vehicle accidents tend to cluster in certain locations known as high accident frequency locations. For example, more deaths occur in the country than in the city. In rural areas, three persons are killed to every one person killed in urban regions.

What can we do in a positive way to curb the number of traffic accidents?

Safety experts have suggested a number of proposals including driver education courses, regulation of pedestrian traffic and tightening up of traffic laws in general. But actually how can any of these be effective without something first being done on the individual level?

May we suggest, especially over the holiday vacation, that each and every one of you exercise an extra amount of caution so that it might be a safe vacation as well as a happy and holy one.

An Odd Twist . . .

We can take a parking ban; we can stand the loss of a good editor, but they can't do THIS to us!

Last Friday night a host of smiling couples entered Raymond Hall preparing to enjoy an evening of relaxed dining and dancing. But alas, the evening was to prove unenjoyable. Why? Because they were denied THIS!

Record shops in the Providence area that are patronized by PC students noted a sharp decline in their sales in the past week because THIS is no more on the PC campus.

The men in the dormitories must now swiftly turn the pages of their previously neglected textbooks to find an outlet for the energy they once worked off by doing THIS.

We can take Kennedy replacing Bowles; we can stand Hrushechev's 50-megaton bomb, even strife in the Congo is tolerable, but we have to have THIS.

We have to TWIST.

Drivers Beware . . .

"Jumps the light," this is the IF-Only driver. Operating just within the law, he allows no margin of safety or error for either himself or other drivers—and pedestrians had better beware.

The final advice from our safety experts: drive defensively. The best equipped car cannot prevent collisions; that's the driver's job. And for your family, an extra margin of safety is worth a thousand laments—"if only . . ."

For your driving days are through.

With traffic accidents in the United States reaching the 10,000,000 mark annually, the people whose business it is to help keep you safe point out that only about one-fifth of these accidents involve normally reckless or irresponsible drivers. The remainder involve the usually proficient, normally conscientious, comparatively accident-free group, known as the "good" drivers.

If you fit in this group—and most of us do—then beware, lest you become one of the nation's burgeoning crop of "IF-Only" drivers.

Who is an IF-Only driver? You might meet him any day on the road—with results that could be tragic for both of you. He is the one who gets involved in a traffic accident that could have been prevented if only he had acted, or reacted, differently.

The best protection for you and your family against the IF-Only driver is to make sure that you do not become one. That is a full-time job, because an instant of inattention, a momentary lapse of reason, a single impulsive action can wreck your complacency, your car, your life.

And the authorities point out that even many of the most intelligent and experienced motorists sometimes court disaster.

So keep in mind the advice of safety authorities that safe driving is more than legal driving. The driver who grasps every advantage that traffic allows, who weaves from lane to lane, speeds along "bumper-to-bumper" or

Once in a while, at ever so infrequent intervals, a great movie comes out of Hollywood that justifies all that is merely mediocre, and 1961 will go down in movie history as the year that produced West Side Story. This wordless first scene captures, as no dialogue could, the explosive energy, the calculated arrogance and restless energy of the two gangs, and thus sets the mood for everything that is to follow.

If you cannot make the act of faith or suspend your disbelief at this scene, you might as well leave the theatre, for you will not enjoy what is to follow. If you can and do, after this scene has concluded, whenever the movie shifts from dialogue to dance and song, the change is so natural that you will not even give it a second thought. There are no more moments of shock or annoyance. You can sit back and enjoy as the wide screen and color flash with the formal excitement of that will undoubtedly be called the best musical ever made.

One of the first motor vehicle accidents in America is reported to have taken place in 1896 in the state of Ohio. The collision in which one of the drivers was killed happened on the main street of a town at a time when there but two cars in the entire state, the two involved in the accident.

Revolt On Campus Reviewed

By Raymond Lajemusse

The past decade has seen a remarkable resurgence of conservatism among college students of America. In his book Revolt on the Campus (Regnery, $4.50) M. Stanton Evans describes an exciting movement which is carrying on an ideological counter attack against the liberals entrenched in college faculties and in the Kennedy administration.

Twenty-seven year old Evans a graduate of Yale, is editor of the Indianapolis News and one of the most interesting young conservatives. He illustrates the scope and power of the movement, discusses the intellectual qualities of the students participating in it, and examines the philosophical premises of the movement and its performance in the arena of practical politics.

Three organizations have been in the forefront of the tide of collegiate conservatism: 1) the Intercollegiate Society of Individualists, an educational organization founded in 1953 to fight socialism and the spread of intellectual conservative philosophy among young people; 2) Young Americans for Freedom, a political action group founded in 1953 to fight the Spending program of the government; and 3) the most important chapter in the arena of practical politics.

The most important chapter in the book deals with the intellectual quality of the young conservatives. These students, one and only the most important chapter since, for some inexplicable delay, I have not yet received my ring as I should have.

Frank Anthony Canepa: "I am unable to voice an opinion on the class ring since, for some inexplicable delay, I have not yet received my ring as I should have.

Excellent
Frank Giordano: "The design and workmanship on our rings are excellent. I compared my ring to the '62 ring, and I believe we came off better in the deal. The intelligence and initiative that our Ring Committee showed in their decisions concerning the jeweler and design problems should be highly commended. In all, I think it is a great job."

Frank Maxar: "Judging from what I have seen and heard, I think that Josten did a good job. Engraving work and definition of Friar against Harkins Hall was prodigiously executed."

Richard P. Jones: "As much as I hate to disappoint those who expect a critical comment, I think that the rings are the finest that this school has seen in a long time."

Chris Burger: "The shoveling looking friar whose image overshadowing Harkins Hall, not withstanding, I think our rings are unmatched in quality and are the best looking ones I've seen."

Gerald Marsocci: "The lettering in FRIARS on most rings and also the numerals in the year 1917 were not sufficiently oxidized (a process used to blacken the letters and numerals). Furthermore, the "service charge" imposed by the bookstore could be eliminated by having the rings shipped C.O.D. to the individual."

One immediately wonders why we weren't invited. Why were we told so late? And what does "unofficially" mean? When interviewed by the Daily, the Rev. Aloysius Begley, O.P., Director of Athletics, related that the format for this year's tourney had been changed. In view of the usual six or seven teams, the tournament will now include only four teams; two from Boston, one from the Midwest and one from Canada. The Friars, being members of none of these geographical areas, were thus excluded.

On the surface, the only objection that can be raised is that PC is the defending champion and should have been invited. But this is not the only aspect of the matter which presents itself in the light of poor judgment. Providence athletic officials have not yet been officially notified that they are not to participate.

The Athletic Department had to discover that PC was invited to the tourney that no invitation was to be received. In the past the school had gotten their invitation a little later than this time of year.

The blame for the situation can be laid on many doorways. It would certainly be unfair for the Athletic Department to lose one of such an important organization as the Boston Arena Tournament Committee, so future occurrences can be avoided.

Nevertheless, the entire Providence College family is partly responsible for the present affair. Had the Friar isemen been given sufficient support and encouragement, it seems that the newly established rifle team might have become a success.

As stated previously by this writer if we fail to back hockey at PC, we may one day find that we have nothing to cheer for.

To paraphrase a friend of mine, "a stitch in time saves nine." A little support at the right time and at the right place can save a great deal of sorrow.
