The national "Who's Who" honors each year alumni who have contributed distinguished service to education, public affairs, the church, business, and science. The 1962 list includes sixty-two thousand graduates and present students from approximately 750 colleges and universities in the United States. The students nominated were chosen by a committee composed of the Dean of Disciplines, the provost, the president of the Board of Trustees, and the Academic Council. The 1962 list includes the Very Rev. Vincent J. Dore, O.S.A., president of Providence College.

On Scholarship and Leadership

The Thomistic Institute of Indus­trial Relations will open its fall session on November 12. The first lecture will be delivered on Sunday, November 18, by Father Charles Quirk, O.P., at 8:30 p.m. in the University Chapel.

Father Quirk graduated from Providence College in 1930 and was ordained to the priesthood in the Dominican Order in 1939. He received his master's degree at the Catholic University in Washington, D. C., and his Ph.D. at the University of Louvain in Montreal.

In addition to being head of the economics department, he is also director of the Industrial Relations Institute and moderator of the Management Guild and the St. Antoninus Club. Father Quirk has contributed many articles on economics and labor-management relations to a number of publications and is author of A Frame on Economics, a textbook con­cerning industrial relations.

Walsh Encouraged by Weekend Ticket Sales

Joseph Walsh, Student Congress president, has announced that tickets for the Congres­ss weekend, "Autumn Journey," which will be held on Novem­ber 16 and 17, may be split. Walsh indicated that the semina­ral, non-floral dance at the King Philip on Friday night from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. will cost $5.00.

Saturday afternoon's casual lunch and junior concert in the Club from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. with Tony Tomasso and his Jewels of Dixie will be $2.00. The price of Saturday night's concert with the Jour­neymen, and comedian, Norm Cross, at the East Providence High Auditorium will be $5.00.

Saturday night's program will begin at 8:30 p.m. Individual students who wish to attend the concert on Saturday night may go to the $2.50 per ticket.

President Walsh noted that the demand for tickets has been rising rapidly, especially since the announcement that bids may be split. Walsh added, "We are very optimistic for a suc­cessful weekend due to the great increase in ticket sales."
AED Seeks Blood For College Bank

On Tuesday, November 29, the AED will conduct a drive to obtain more blood for the Providence College blood bank. Blood will be taken by staff members of Our Lady of Fatima Hospital. All students under 21, who desire to donate blood, must have parental permission. The necessary slips to be filled out will be provided. Further information will be published as the drive draws nearer.

Last Thursday, seventeen pre-med students of Providence College were invited to attend its showing. Among the dates.

The unusual blend of scientific objectivity and great visual impact has won international acclaim for this film. It is in color and runs for twenty-seven minutes. All students are invited to attend its showing.

Senior Class Holds Meeting: Makes Plans for Its Prom

At a meeting to determine the location of this year’s senior prom, members of the class of 1963 decided on the King Philip Ballroom in Wrentham, Massachusetts. The meeting was on Tuesday, November 29 in Harkins Hall auditorium.

According to class president Richard Segura, the affair will be held on the evening of Friday, May 31. A later meeting of re-chairmen Ron DeThomas and Gerald O’Brien with the class officers resulted in the scheduling of another meeting for Wednesday, November 14, at 6:30 p.m. in Harkins Auditorium. Committees will then be formed for the weekend. Those unable to attend this meeting and wishing to work on this committee are asked to submit their names to one of the officers.

The class gift committee has decided to place a suggestion box in front of the Student Congress bulletin board, from November 7 to 16 for class gift suggestions. According to Segura, a list of the two or three most popular suggestions will be voted upon by the class at a later date. He reminded seniors to give class gift money to their respective concentration representatives accompanied by activity book slip number 14.

A treasurers report showed the class to have realized a $200 profit at the senior mixer. “This money will be used to defray the cost of senior weekend,” said Segura. He also stated that 219 seniors had signed a petition asking for the class meeting and only 40 appeared at the meeting.
Aquinas Society Talk Planned

"Infinity—Some Problems for Philosophers" will be the topic for a lecture to be delivered tomorrow evening by Dr. Robert C. Kennedy, assistant professor of mathematics at PC, before the Aquinas Society. The meeting will begin at 8:00 p.m. in Aquinas Lounge, and all students are invited.

Dr. Kennedy, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, pursued his undergraduate studies at the University of Florida and received his doctorate in mathematics from St. Louis University in 1961. At the 1960 International Congress for Logic, Methodology, and Philosophy, he presented his paper on "The Mathematical Philosophy of Giuseppe Peano," and his article "An Appreciation of Giuseppe Peano," was published in the Pi Mu Epsilon Journal.

The ROTC, through this Distinguished Military Graduate program, is the largest single source of career officers for the Army, providing almost twice the number of Regular Army officers furnished by West Point annually.

Seniors selected include Walter J. Campbell, Jr., Leo Carroll, Frank C. D'Angelo, Joseph De Gennaro, Jr., David E. Donnelly, Joseph Ganino, Stephen M. Kennedy, Jr., Edward J. Quinn, David E. Russell, Donald J. Slover, Terrence E. Sullivan, Alfred J. Theriault, Frank Toro, Jr., James O. Travis, Robert J. Valieres, and James T. Whitehead. Present at the military ceremony honoring the selected cadets were the President of the College, the Very Reverend Vincent C. Dore, O.F.; the Superior of the Dominican Community, the Very Reverend Ernest A. Hogan, O.F.; Reverend Joseph L. Lennon, O.P.; Dean of the College and Lt. Colonel Lawrence V. Troiano, Professor of Military Science.

Colonel Troiano concurrently announced leadership assignments within the Cadet Brigade for the school year. Among the key appointments, Cadet Travis will serve as Brigade Executive Officer, Cadet McNamara as 1st Battalion Commander, and Cadet O'Leary as the 2nd Battalion Commander. Each will hold the rank of Lt. Colonel. David Rus-sell was previously announced as Brigade Commander.

It's Up To You!...

Next Friday and Saturday the Student Congress will conduct the first "all student body weekend" ever to be held at Providence College. Once more the advertisments have been posted, the college bands are hard at work, and the tickets are being sold. And yet this weekend appears to be lacking one of the most important qualities: it is supposed to foster—college spirit.

This fault cannot be laid at the door of the Student Congress, which has labored diligently and faithfully in the creation of "Autumn Journey" but must be ascribed to the student body itself. Too often we at The Cowl have heard the perpetual complaint that campus social life does not measure up to proper standards. Too often have we listened to the Monday morning critics who dissect every attempt to improve PC's social atmosphere and yet ignore every social function given. We wish to hear these puerile wallings and moanings no more.

You, the student body of Providence College, are now being presented with an opportunity to help improve your college's social atmosphere. The Congress has provided an excellent weekend at a reasonable price. From present indications we believe "Autumn Journey" will fulfill both a social and financial success. Yet if the student body continues to remain lethargic and uninterested, that one essential ingredient of college and spirit and unity will be missing. You can provide that ingredient by attending "Autumn Journey" and making it truly a college weekend. The choice is up to you!

Plaudits...

As the class of 1963 passes its last year on the PC campus, we note with pride that thirty-one of its members have been selected for inclusion in the student "Who's Who." Some may argue that although such a listing is an honor for those thirty-one fellow collegians in academic achievement, extra-curricular leadership, and scholarship it is also true of the Summa. Yet the significance of the Catholic student's intellectual activity is derived ultimately from his growing awareness of the relation of that activity to his faith. It is so to speak, a secondary source of his faith, i.e., Sacred Scripture.

Thus, we feel it is unfortunate that no attempt is made by the Providence College to instruct the student in the primary source of his faith, i.e., Sacred Scripture. We believe that the development of a thorough acquaintance with the scriptures is a life-long study; but this is also true of the Summa. Yet the Catholic must have some knowledge of the written deposit of his faith, especially in our day, when so many varied sects attempt to claim the Bible as their own.

Perhaps a course could be inaugurated which would not profess to explain the content of scriptures in detail, but would rather familiarize the student with the principles upon which the interpretations of the Church are based. With this background the Catholic student would feel more confidence in approaching the Bible, whether it be to defend his faith or for his personal spiritual development.

Summa: Secondary Source...

Catholic colleges in general are distinguished from their non-sectarian counterparts by the basic objective toward which they operate. In the Catholic college, an attempt is made to develop the intellectual and social potentialities of each student in conformity with the truths of the Catholic faith. The significance of the Catholic student's intellectual activity is derived ultimately from his growing awareness of the relation of that activity to his supernatural goal.

At Providence College, although the attempt to produce properly integrated students is evident to some extent in every area, that attempt finds its most specific and emphatic expression in our courses in Theology. Three years are devoted to gradually introducing the student to the explanation and defense of the many truths of Catholicism presented by St. Thomas in the Summa Theologica. Taken in its proper perspective, then, Theology is in many ways the most important course undertaken by the undergraduate.

Nevertheless, although the SUMMA contains, as was noted above, a brilliant explanation of Catholic beliefs, it is obviously not the SOURCE of those beliefs. It is, so to speak, a secondary text.

This fault cannot be laid at the door of the Student Congress, which has labored diligently and faithfully in the creation of "Autumn Journey" but must be ascribed to the student body itself. Too often we at The Cowl have heard the perpetual complaint that campus social life does not measure up to proper standards. Italian Club Sponsors Lectures on Culture

The Italian Society of Providence College will hold a meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m., according to society president, Stephen Cicilline. A notice for the place of this meeting will be posted on the bulletin board in Harkins Hall.

A series of discussions will be held concerning the Italian culture during the school year. Dr. Salvatore G. Scotti, moderator of the club, will present the first lecture to the society on November 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Guild Room entitled, "Italy in General." Other topics for discussion are: Italian Government, the Renaissance, Art, Poetry, and Contemporary Italy.

Club officers besides Cicilline include: Joseph Tutalo, vice president; Jerome Visconti, treasurer, and Morris Sabatini, secretary.

Military Duty Obligations Explained by ROTC Dept.

By Capt. John C. Grant

EDITORS NOTE: One of the cold hard facts facing the young American male of today is his obligation to his country in the form of military service. In an effort to inform, prepare and inspire our readers for this unquestioned role in the military, THE COWL will provide a series of bi-weekly articles prepared by the staff of the military selection department. This series, in content, is directed to all PC students, ROTC and non-ROTCAlike.

It is fitting, considering the objectives of this column to begin this series with an article discussing the many programs by which a young man can fulfill his military service commitment. It should be considered a privilege if not a right to serve America for his country.

These programs are continuous, and based on the needs of the armed forces. The programs cited below are subject to change without notification and should be considered "on the top shelf." For reasons of space, only minimum essential information is included. Detailed aspects of all these programs can be gained by contacting members of the appropriate service.

COMMISSIONING SERVICE

Army

The Army has recently announced a requirement for 17,500 commissioned officers for fiscal year 1963 (July 1962 - June 1963). In order to meet this increased requirement a number of actions are being taken to increase the active Army officer pool. First, ROTC graduates scheduled for active duty will be called for a period of at least two years. The 6-month active duty for training program suspended in August of 1962 will remain suspended through the current fiscal year. The Reserve commitment for the ROTC grad remains at 5 years in the Ready Reserve with 1 year in the Standby Reserve.

For those students interested in the ROTC grad remain at 5 years in the Ready Reserve with 1 year in the Standby Reserve.

The service obligation incurred by the Reserve Army officer input. First, ROTC graduates may request a delay from call to active duty for the purpose of obtaining advanced degrees. The Army is placing considerable emphasis in this area as a means of retaining the best and brightest for the Reserve. Further, the programs are geared to the needs of the armed forces. Further, the programs are continuous in nature and are subject to change without notification and should be considered "on the top shelf." For reasons of space, only minimum essential information is included. Detailed aspects of all these programs can be gained by contacting members of the appropriate service.

Gary Ruggeri Paces Team
As Friarlets Top Orange

The freshmen harriers, with a score of 51, continued their winning ways by defeating Syracast, Brown, and Fordham in a quadrangular cross country meet held in the wind and rain at Van Cortland Park, New York, Sat-day, November 3. Gary Ruggeri placed a strong third for the Friarlets.

The fine balance of the squad again enabled the freshmen to outscore their rivals, as Paul Foster, Jerry Riordan, and Richard Duggan picked off the all important low scores of the fifth, sixth, and seventh positions, respectively.

Coach Bay Hannon said that his freshmen runners are cap-

Eccleston Faces Difficulty; Team Loaded with Goalies
By Joe Reihing

Facing Coach Tom Eccleston this year is a problem many other coaches wish they had. Before the first game on December 8, he has to make a decision as to who will be starting between the pipes. He has at his disposal three of the top-flight goalies, all with impressive records.

"How well we'll do this year depends a great deal on our goalie," commented Eccleston. "Last year, when Jack McGough stepped in for a game, we had no goalie at all. It was a very difficult situation."

Hornstein

Returning this year is Dan Hornstein, who has been regular goalie for the past two seasons. Dan mindes the net, that his brother once held here at PC. After playing for Hope High and Bridgeton Academy in Maine, Dan alternated in the goal in his freshman year. He took the first string job in his sophomore year and made the second All-Star Team in the Christmas Tournament at Boston that Providence won that year. Dan's strong showing was not enough to put the state championship in the bag, but now that he is back, he will be a strong contender for the starting job.

Other prospects include Bill Geraghty of Gorham and Tom Hall, a 6'3 guard who owns a good jump shot and will anchor the court; and the team's big man, Bill Lasher of Plainfield, Conn., a 6'4 center who has good moves around the basket and is a strong rebounder.

Leading the squad after the first week of practice are Bill Blair of Boston, a 6'3 forward who possesses a fine jump shot and is a great leaper; and George Knuttel, a rugged rebounder.

In appraising his over-all performance thus far, Mr. Eccleston, "We have speed and shooting power. Our offense will take advantage of this by being open and fast breaking, when possible. Since we lack a real big man, we operate without a pivot man, and Bill Lasher, 6'4, should be able to handle the rebounding load. If necessary, Benedict can be moved into the center. Our defense will be mainly man to man with an occasional press. All in all, it looks for a good season."
