YURGEL, M'ELROY, SHEEHAN SPEAK ON ENCYCLICALS

Speakers are Members of Catholic Action Committee

The Providence College Committee for Catholic Action held an open meeting yesterday morning in the main auditorium of Harkins Hall, featuring addresses by four members of the Committee and the Moderator, the Rev. Vincent C. Dore, O.P. The demonstration commemorated the anniversaries of the Papal Encyclicals "Reconstructing the Social Order" and "On the Condition of the Laboring Class".

The Committee had received the approval of the Rev. Arthur H. Chandler, O.P., Dean of Studies, and the regular Thursday assembly period was officially given over to the meeting. Thomas F. Flynn, '39, acting as chairman, thanked the College authorities for their cooperation and encouragement. About six hundred students attended the meeting.

Moderator Urges Action

Flynn introduced Father Dore who, discussing the Encyclicals and the part that the present day college student should play in the promulgation of their teachings, said: "Pope Pius XI, in his social reform Encyclicals, has given the Catholic cure for the ills which today afflict society in the United States and throughout the world. The extent to which these principles shall be recognized and applied to our American economic life depends to a large part upon your individual interest and your organized activity, to the end that we may reform the life of America of the fundamental principles of religion and morality, particularly in the matter of social justice." He urged all to participate actively in the work of the Committee, stressing that it plans to become a permanent institution for the advancement of Catholic Action at the College.

Advances Cited

Those on the speaking program were Anthony Yurgel, '39, whose topic was "The Living Wage"; Eugene J. McElroy, '39, who discussed "The Catholic Church and the Labor Unions"; and Thomas Sheehan, '38, who explained "The Occupational Group System".

Citing the recent move toward labor legislation, McElroy said: "The Wagner Labor Act has been hailed by liberals as a great advance in social reform. Yet, over a quarter of a century ago, the same doctrine was advocated by the great Leo XIII. He maintained that the right of the worker to bargain through an association of his own choosing was a necessary part of common law".

Discussing the occupational group system, Sheehan said: "These vocational or occupational groups are, according to the Pope, well-ordered members of a social body binding man together according to the different functions which they exercise in society". They are a thoroughly modern adaptation of the Medieval Guild, not a return to that fine, but outmoded, institution".

Copies of both Encyclicals were sold after the meeting.

EXAMS SCHEDULE IN TODAY'S COWL

The official final examination schedule may be found in today's issue of The Cowl on page 4. The schedule does not include the senior examinations, as that list has already been published. The program is complete and is arranged so that it might be easily clipped from the paper.

RELIGION COURSE MOVE SUPPORTED

Fr. Dillon Voices Approval
in R. I. C. E.
Address

Declaring that "It is a sad commentary on the school system of America which gives more time and attention and spends more money in educating youth than many other nations put together, that it must face the terrifying charge of fostering godless education", the Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., President of Providence College, addressed the Seniors of the Rhode Island College of Education at the annual cap and gown day exercises yesterday at that institution. Father Dillon was the principal speaker at the traditional exercises and was introduced by Dr. Alger, President of the college.

In supporting the present move to introduce religious courses in the public school system, Father Dillon said: "The failure of our public schools to make provision for the training of our youth in religion has deprived many of our boys and girls of one of the greatest needs in their lives. It has deprived them of the greatest safeguard against vice and crime, and has deprived our country of the greatest protection against atheistic communism."

Religion Everyday Affair

"It is nonsense," Father Dillon continued, "to insist that the teaching of religion should be left entirely to the home and Church. De facto it is not taught in the home; it is not adequately taught in Sunday schools where pews are empty. Religion is an everyday affair in life."

"Children are in contact with the teachers during the most important days of their lives, during the days

FR. FITZGERALD SPEAKS AT COMMUNION BREAKFAST

The Rev. Jeremiah T. Fitzgerald, O.P., vice-president of Providence College, delivered the principle address at a Communion Breakfast held last Sunday by the Leo Council, Knights of Columbus, Natick, R. I.

Father Fitzgerald stressed the point that social readjustment will come only when individuals direct their lives according to the principles of Christ.

Among the members of the committee in charge of the Communion Breakfast were Constantino Cinquegrana and Francis O'Rourke, both members of the Junior Class.

Friar-Boy, P. C. Dalmatian Mascot, Succumbs to Distemper Attack

Campus Favorite was Feature of Athletic Events

Friar Boy of What-Ho, the beloved Dalmatian hound mascot of Providence College and veteran of many an athletic campaign, died Monday afternoon of distemper aggravated by an internal disorder. His death came as a distinct shock to his master and the student body who took keen interest in his canine escapades.

Friar Boy was presented to the college by the What-Ho Kennels in Washington, N. Y., in 1934, and since that time he had been the official mascot of the college. His presence at athletic contests was the signal for shouts and cheers from the student bodies of both his own school and that of the opponents. Friar boy, as he was most commonly referred to, was sired by Tom and whelped by Tally Ho Patricia, two pedigreed Dalmatian hound coach dogs.

No later than last Sunday, Friar Boy's picture was published in the artgravure section of the Sunday paper, as representing one of the features of the college campus. Last December 11th, he celebrated his second birthday by holding a mythical

Carew Named Most Popular In Cowl Senior Class Poll

HUGHES AND SCOWCROFT DID MOST FOR P. C.

Joseph W. Carew, president of the senior class and veteran member of the basketball team, proved himself again the leading member of his class when he was named the most popular and the most versatile senior in a poll conducted this week by The Cowl. Carew ran far ahead of his runner-up, Carl Angelica, versatile athletic star.

E. Riley Hughes, author of two musical comedies and editor of the Alembic, was selected in the senior poll as the student who accomplished most for Providence College. George T. Scowcroft, former editor of The Cowl, came in second in the balloting. Hughes is also editor of Veritas, senior class yearbook, and has been secretary of his class for three years. He is also a cum laude honor student.

Typical P. C. Man

The typical P. C. man honor was awarded to Raymond O'Mara, vice-president of the senior class, while Joseph Carew fell short of another title in the poll by a few votes. Charlie Gallagher was runner-up to Carew as the most versatile.

J. Sturges Howes and Thomas Hammond led a nip-and-tuck race in the voting for the most humorous senior, with the final results showing Howes the winner. George F. McGuire and Michael F. Donahue were named in that order as the best politicians of the class.

Remembering the way William McGovern, business manager of The Cowl and secretary-treasurer of the Ship and Scales Club, convinced the seniors to support the year book, voters in the poll elected him by a wide margin as the best business man with Larry Walsh as the second choice. As the most earnest and the quietest, Henry McDonnell had little difficulty in gaining these titles. He is a cum laude student. Thomas Mullaney and Aram Johnson were second as the most earnest and the quietest respectively.

Best Athlete

Leo Davin, captain of this year's basketball team, was voted in as the best athlete in Providence College with Gus Hagstrom as second choice.

The truth won out in the senior poll when the champion of the favorite P. C. pastime, cigarette chiseling, became known. James E. Boboras was named leader in this sport and Edward Gill second.

The greatest modern figure at the present time in the minds of the seniors is President Roosevelt. Pope Pius XI figures next in the opinion of the voters. Favorite radio comedians are Jack Benny and Fred Allen, while the favorite radio programs are the Jello and the Hit Parade programs. Football and baseball were named as the favorite sport of P. C. seniors.

When Providence College seniors begin choosing a wife, they will first look for virtue, beauty and intelligence in that order it was revealed by the poll. Forty per cent of this year's graduating class will further their studies at a university. Many of the seniors have jobs awaiting them after graduation and others are yet in doubt as to their specific future occupations.

Favor Dean's List

The introduction into the curriculum of Providence College of a Dean's list which will provide an unlimited cut privilege was strongly advocated in the senior poll. Literary and (Continued on Page 3, Col. 4)

Throng Attends Concluding Undergraduate Social Event

A happy throng gathered in Harkins Hall last Friday evening to dance beneath a towering May-pole at the Junior spring festival, "Swingtime in Maytime," the last dance of the undergraduate social season. One hundred and fifty couples glided to and fro amid spring flowers to the melodious rhythm of Jimmy Walsh's band.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Larry Simonds presented an exhibition of waltz and fox-trot steps. A timely color scheme was carried out in the decorations, the streamers being Coronation blue and white.

The committee and their guests included: Harry Brennan, chairman and Lillian Wall, Bernard McKenna and Madeleine Coffey, Fred Rogers and Louise O'Neill, Dominic Minicucci and Tina Buco, Frank DePasquale and Ethel Drew, William Dodd and Alice Fitzgerald, William Thompson and Mary Gallivan, Joseph Cavanagh and Ruth Connors, Leo Ploski and Kay Mullaney, John Graham and Mary L. FIVE MORE DAYS

Today the 1937 Catholic Charity Appeal completes the first half of its ten-day campaign for funds to support the charitable services and institutions of mercy in the Providence diocese.

There is no cause more worthy of the contributions of the people of Rhode Island. A tremendous amount of money is needed if these institutions are to continue their work. Every cent given to the Catholic Charity Fund is applied directly to the relief of the afflicted. With the spirit of Christian Charity as a motivating force, the benefits to the donor are almost infinite.

We strongly urge that all who have not yet given, make their donation at once and that they make it as large as possible. Further, every Catholic should pray frequently for the success of the appeal.

A NECESSARY STEP

At last it appears that the campaign of the Catholic Church for religious instruction in public schools is making some headway, at least in Rhode Island. The Catholic Church has long deplored the lack of religious education for thousands of children of the public schools of the state and nation. Since she has been powerless to supply the facilities for the education of every single child, she has long campaigned for a program which would allow instruction in religion in public schools. It is such a program which is now under consideration by the Rhode Island Board of Education.

The necessity for religious instruction, of whatever faith the child may be, is obvious. Schooled in the arts and sciences, lettered in everything that pertains to the world, the public school child is sent forth to the stress of life with no moral foundation, with no grounding or standard on which to base his life and actions. Thus arise many of the countless wrongs of our present-day America. Education forms a large and important role in the formation of the mind and without religion education is completely useless.

We heartily endorse this program. It is the most practical solution to the problem of religious education in public schools. It is not partisan. It does not seek to force tenets on anyone. It aims only to give to members of each particular faith instruction in that faith. As Catholics we are obliged to do all in our power to aid the deepening and spread of our religion. Here is a means, not the best possible, but the best at the present time. We must aid and support this measure, and with our small voice add to the number who demand and contend that this program of religious education, as outlined, must be adopted in Rhode Island.

THE CORONATION

Amidst cries of "Long Live the King" and ceremonies both public and private, the coronation festivities came to a joyous end. The coronation of George VI was undoubtedly one of the greatest spectacles afforded to this modern generation. Literally, hundreds of thousands lined the route taken by the King both to and from the Abbey.

The ceremony itself was brilliant with pomp and pageantry. The procession was a riot of color formed by the gaily bedecked men and women, and set in a background that was ablaze with the coronation colors.

The ceremony gave the impression of a perfectly done stage performance. The most important characters gave a wonderful performance and the scenery was beautiful, but still a sense of unreality prevailed. Yet the English who produced and directed the ceremony certainly deserve a great deal of credit; the exhibition presented to best advantage its grand story of "pomp and circumstance."

Now that coronation ceremonies are over it is interesting to speculate on its purpose and effect. To the average American visitor, who was there to enjoy himself, and witness the spectacle for no other purpose, the coronation offered just that spectacle. To the average British citizen who is a supporter of the present form of government, the coronation meant two things: it satisfied his craving for the pomp and pageantry; something that has been engrained in his blood, and sustained by many such pageants which have been occurring since the conquest of England in 1066; secondly, the coronation attracts many visitors who spend millions of dollars during their stay in England. Outside of these two reasons their interest in the ceremony is practically nil; so goes our speculation.

However to the more understanding Englishman and to the English statesman the coronation of the king has greater significance. The king is a symbol of power which though inert from suppression is still powerful enough to hold together the far-flung dominions that go to form the modern British Empire. And there in lies their main reason for keeping a king who is merely a figure-head.

Without commenting further on the king's relation to his people, we may safely say that the world can look forward to several other coronation ceremonies before the institution is abandoned altogether.

NEW INSPIRATION

On May 6 the German zeppelin Hindenburg fell in flames to complete destruction with a death toll of 35. The huge lighter-than-air craft was transformed in a moment from a ship filled with a happy, carefree throng to a halocaust. With a sense of surely, trust, confidence and calm her passengers and crew enjoyed the comfort, modernity, and luxuriousness of this superliner of the air. And then in an instant this pleasure ship was catapulted into a shambles of wreckage and destruction.

At present the cause of this catastrophe is unknown. Theories have been advanced by various aeronautical experts such as sabotage, lightning, exhaust sparks and static electricity. Yet no one will gainsay that if the Hindenburg had not been using highly inflammable hydrogen, there would not have been the danger that any spark might turn a $3,000,000 master aircraft into a twisted mass of scrap iron. We venture to say that one would not reasonably suppose that the accident was caused by negligence. Crew and officers were experts in the field, picked men, selected for their knowledge and experience.

Whatever the investigation committee may discover, whatever they may decide was the cause of this disaster we should not let this accident prejudice us with regards to the value of this method of transportation. The Graf Zeppelin and the ill-fated Hindenburg had enjoyed the greatest success. We must admit that all the dirigibles constructed in the past have come to a sudden and accidental demise. But through these accidents we have obtained added knowledge about lighter-than-air craft. We have progressed scientifically in all fields, and experience, though costly, has taught us many valuable lessons.

Why exist in this world at all if we remain stagnant and passive? The real tang of living comes from activity, advancement, progress. God created us for a purpose, an active one, not a passive one, and the visionaries of today lay the plans of our world of tomorrow.

Granted that the tragedy of the Hindenburg was shocking in its brutality; we venture to say that if it had not been for the sensational newspaper publicity given to the affair, and its dramatic appeal the catastrophe would not have affected us as it did. The Morro Castle disaster did not stop us from travelling on ocean liners. Reasonable people will not allow the bugaboo of publicity to prejudice their decision in regards to aircraft transportation. Relative safety is present now; absolute safety can be present in nothing. Look into the future; aircraft transportation is definitely valuable. We can not allow it to be hindered or bogged down by unreasonable fears.

A SUGGESTION

Most of the students in Catholic colleges are enthusiastic over the objectives of Catholic Action in broad outline. But most of them, even as we, are frequently at a loss as to specific programs of action. This week we received a letter from a student who has devised a scheme whereby, as he expresses it, he satisfies "the obligation Confirmation brings with it of active soldiering pro regno Christi". His idea is eminently practical, and he reports concrete accomplishments. So we are passing it on.

The plan might be designed "An approach to persons of good will"—God-fearing non-Catholics earnestly in search of truth, that is, first find out what the person is most interested in. Then supply his need "with a Catholic positive belief succinctly stated in a pamphlet." Our correspondent mentioned the American Press, 53 Park Place, New York, as being able to supply five cent pamphlets to meet specific cases.

Far from stopping here, the plan calls for a "follow-up" which must be "(1) personal and (2) introduction to books treating the subject exhaustively." In conclusion, the letter gave the following advice: "Always approach from positive angle, then, gradually, misconceptions on other points will be cleared."

Our friend stated in his letter: "We must try to keep the mean between hysterical 'erism' and dilettante solemnity—a hard thing to do." It is hard, but worth the effort required. This plan finds the mean. Use it.

Latin

Many B. A. students, whose real interest is in History or English for instance, take Latin instead of Sciences as the lesser of two evils. Something ought to be done for them. We suggest that B.A. students who do not wish to take three years of Latin, should be allowed to replace the present Latin requirements with Latin X and two other courses, such as World Literature, Fine Arts, or Music.

Motives of Life

When Adam ate of the forbidden fruit of the tree of paradise, death came into the world. From the tree of the Cross came the fruits of life, won by Christ, the Second Adam. His death gives us the confirmation and illustration of the great truths of faith that form the motive for right living. Christianity rests on the foundation of the fact that Christ was God.

Favorable Prospects

Employment prospects of this year's college graduating classes are only a little less favorable than those of the 1929 graduates, and substantially better than the June, 1936, classes experienced. Guzman Hall

The last regular meeting of the Guzman Hall Unit of the Catholic Association of International Peace will be held tonight. Thomas Flynn has announced that the committee selected to speak at this meeting will discuss the state of the Western Hemisphere in matters concerning peace. The topographical material will be handled by James Loughrey, '38. Matthew Scullion, '38, will discuss the question of America, Canada and Alaska and their efforts toward peace. The crucial points of Mexico and Pan-America which have an especial interest to the members of the Hall because of religious conditions in Mexico, will be discussed by Joseph M. Tigue. Russell Aumann will conclude the session with his work covering South America from the aspect of international peace. Father Reilly, faculty advisor of the unit, is expected to give a few concluding words concerning the work of the unit in its efforts toward international peace.

FATE OF A BUTTERED HAM SANDWICH

One of the most popular sandwiches served in the College cafeteria is the buttered ham sandwich served "a la Condon". Because of its great popularity, it is well to note all the changes which occur in the process of transforming this food from a complex substance which is useless to the human body to a number of simple substances which serve to nourish the body or else serve as a source of energy.

Ordinarily the buttered ham sandwich is taken into the mouth and masticated very thoroughly with the aid of the teeth and tongue. While the food is being chewed there is initiated a flow of the secretion of the salivary glands commonly known as saliva. This saliva contains an enzyme known as amylase. This amylase works upon the starch of the bread and converts this complex carbohydrate into simpler carbohydrate such as maltose. The enzyme in the saliva has no effect upon the proteins in the meat and the fat in the butter.

In the stomach the mixture is mixed and churned by the contraction and relaxation of the muscular walls of the stomach thus causing the mixture to come in contact with every portion of the mucous membrane of the stomach. The stomach fluids containing hydrochloric acid and various enzymes now mix with the food substances and react with them chemically. An enzyme known as pepsin acts upon the protein of the ham and breaks the complex protein molecules into simpler molecules known as polypeptides. Another enzyme, gastric lipase, acts upon the fat of the butter converting the fat into fatty acid and glycerol. This mixture of maltose, starch, fatty acids, glycerol and polypeptides now passes through the pylorus or lower end of the stomach into the first portion of the small intestine or the duodenum.

In the small intestine there is a flow of juices which are supplied by the pancreas.

These simple substances—amino acids, fatty acids, and glucose are now ready to be absorbed into the blood streams and carried to the various tissues of the body.

Moral: Why buy ham sandwiches when one glass of milk will supply more wholesome and complete nourishment? Milk contains the fats, proteins and carbohydrates all in one.

Pyramid Players Open Campaign

Members Will be Sought For 1937-38 Schedule

Plans for a reorganization of the Pyramid Players, student dramatic organization, were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the committees appointed at the recent "Soup and Fish" entertainment. An intensive campaign for membership in the Club will be undertaken before the end of the present year in preparation for three productions next year.

Membership cards for participation in 1937-38 dramatic activities will be distributed next week. All Providence College students will be eligible for membership which will carry with it opportunities for participation in any phase of Pyramid Player work. Members of the committee will distribute the cards next week.

Plan Three Productions

Definite plans for three productions next year were under discussion. A light, modern comedy drama will be presented in mid-November, a more serious play in February, and the musical comedy at the close of the season. It was emphasized that membership

During these formative, impressionable days, it is comparatively easy to form, shape and guide habits, tendencies and inclinations. It is at this time that an intelligent, constructive religious life can be encouraged in a child."

Father Dillon, warning the prospective teachers not to be "classroom tyrants, said: "Always bear in mind that simple kindness is a blessed virtue and costs little; it blesses the teacher with peace of mind and blesses the pupil with the will to learn. A teacher can do nothing constructive for the development of young lives while her heart is tossing and seething with passion. Pupils lose confidence in a teacher just as soon as she manifests temper and anger."

Providence Second In Spelling Bee

Friar Representatives in Match at State College

Providence College representatives gained second place in a spelling bee conducted at Rhode Island State College last Saturday in connection with a conference of the English teachers of the State. Brown University was the winner of the match which was witnessed by two hundred and fifty people in the Home Economics Building.

The Providence group comprising Michael Coyne, Robert Healey, Wallace Mason, and Howard Irish waged a strong fight against the spelling wizards of five Rhode Island colleges. Two Friar representatives lasted until the final rounds when three Brown contestants were left standing. The contest was decided by the correct spelling of "liturgical."

Colleges represented in the bee besides Providence were Rhode Island State, Brown, Rhode Island College of Education, Rhode Island School of Pharmacy, and Pembroke.

Seven Alumni Will Be Elevated To Priesthood

Brother of Senior Class Member Will Also be Ordained

When His Excellency the Most Rev. Francis P. Keough, D.D., Bishop of Providence, administers the Sacrament of Holy Orders to seventeen ordinandi in St. Peter and Paul Cathedral on May 22, he will be raising to the priesthood seven young men who began their ecclesiastical studies here at Providence College and one whose brother will graduate next month with the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The Rev. Arthur A. Sullivan, brother of Eugene J. Sullivan, member of the Senior Class, entered Providence College in 1929 and was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1933. He completed his studies for the priesthood at the Sulpician Seminary, Washington, and next month will receive a Master of Arts degree from Catholic University.

The Rev. Anthony F. Czubak, and the Rev. Arthur A. Sullivan are graduates of Providence College, while the Revs. Robert E. Kelly, Harold J. Flynn, Andre Lefebvre, Henry T. Lefebvre, Paul A. Lloyd and John F. O'Neill, completed two-year courses preparatory for entrance into the Seminary. Father O'Neill will receive his Master's degree from Catholic University next month.

All are natives of Providence, with the exception of Father Flynn, whose home is in Cranston.

"OLMEDA" BYRON

Several years ago, Ecuador wanted to perpetuate the memory of its poet Olmeda by a statue. As made-to-order statues were found to be expensive, it was decided to buy a discarded one. So the junk yards of London were searched and a second-hand statue of Lord Byron was found and purchased. Today it stands in Guayaquil with "Olmeda" engraved on its base.

SEEN AND HEARD

BY T. CASEY MOHER

The Maypole—dances down at R. I. C. E. drew a large and appreciative audience. Many of our own fellow-students from the Junior class and other classes too, were there. Charlie McElroy enjoyed the festivities immensely from his commanding position on the greensward. Apparently Charlie now has two Alma Maters.

The selected queen was beautiful, but the P. C. boys who had any interest there, sincerely and individually had their own ideas as to which girl should be queen.

Be that as it may, John Graham insisted that one had to have an aesthetic spirit to enjoy the interpretive dances. Maybe John enjoyed the writings of the nymphs and raindrops, but the majority of the boys, I noticed, were concentrating their attention on the men who were repairing the stone steps.

The Meanest Man

Francis O'Rourke, music loving Junior, was at the R. I. C. E. concert at night. (Admission gratis) Frank remarked especially about the fine variety in the presentation. First, the recital was interrupted by refreshments. A few slight discrepancies in the presentation of songs etc. embarrassed the players enough to warrant a snicker from Frank. Frank likes music.

I suppose to make his night complete, he would have to crush a few flowers under his foot on the way home.

For Sale

Clarence Curran's Model A Ford is still for sale. It has been on sale, (and on it's rims) for weeks. He is willing to exchange it for an American History book. The car has all modern conveniences. Clarence himself admits "This is not the kind of a car you have to grab by the throat to look under the running board for the choke. (I mean the dashboard of course.)"

The Campus Club Dance

May I begin by saying that, although

Mal Brown and Ray Belliveau were not at the dance, they decidedly were at the refreshments.

Much credit is due Joe "Cupid" Baldwin for his cooperation in providing partners. Joe put in several frantic calls to the local hospitals which were productive of surprising results. What a doctor he is going to make. (Or will be he a nurse?)

The orchestra was commented upon very favorably, although I hate to be the one to say that in two instances I thought that each musician was racing to see who could finish first.

Buzz Fischer one more led the pack with a solo flight. The hit of the evening was Frosh Jim Dickinson trying to buy a pack of cigarettes from the superintendent of nurses at the Homeopathic Hospital. You know, Jim, that those nurses are not allowed even to chew gum in the building. Well charge it all up to experience.

Frank (intellectual life) McGovern President of the P. C. D. U. seems to go ga-ga with the late hours. He and Jack Fanning, of all people, selected the hit song of any week—the Easter time is the time for eggs, and the time for eggs is the Easter time.

Nomination for the Narragansett Special—E. Riley Hughes riding The Juke Family.

The P. C. delegation to the track reports favorable progress. Walter O'Hara is due for bankruptcy any day now. The boys then start to wonder who is making the money. John Mahoney, the Boston Barker, claims that he wouldn't even bet on Man O'War against Mal Brown, unless the odds are on Mal.

JUST BETWEEN US

I. S. SIPERSTEIN

Old Man Weather put in an appearance last Saturday and caused the postponement of the Providence-Brown game. As a result the scene of the inauguration of the 1937 series has been shifted from Hendricken Field to Aldrich Field, the Bruins home diamond. Little Rhody's ardent baseball fans are expected to turn out in full force to witness the 32nd game of the long and interesting series which began 14 years ago. Brown remained in the title race last week by handing the Rams a 6-4 setback.

Previous games between these local rivals have resulted in close scores and thrilling play, and tomorrow's encounter should prove no exception. When the Bears and the Friars hook up on the athletic field almost anything can and does happen. Season's records have no bearing on the final outcome of the tilt. You can set them aside and make a wild guess at the final score. One guess is as good as the other.

Both teams are pretty evenly matched. Defensively the Friars hold a slight advantage, while offensively the nines are even-steps. However, the Bruins will have the advantage of playing on their home field. The Friars have played good ball at home but have not fared so well on foreign grounds. But determination and confidence which has been evidenced by the Friars should offset this handicap.

A victory for the Bears will send them into a tie with the Rams for the coveted Rhode Island Intercollegiate baseball crown, while a triumph for the Friars will keep them in the running for the title. Last year, Providence won the State and City championships by defeating the Bears in a three-game series.

It will be very interesting to watch two of the finest keystone combinations in New England college baseball perform. You'll have to do some profound searching before you will uncover a pair of combinations to compare with Danny Hicks and Bob Brokaw of Brown and Leo Ploski and Tom Hammond of Providence.

Both teams will be primed for the battle, and the lads from Smith Hill and College Hill are both confident of emerging from the fray victorious. Regardless of who finally wins, the fans are assured of a very interesting afternoon of high grade baseball. It shapes up as an exceptionally close game with the victor in doubt until the final out.

Invasion of Scouts

Major league scouts have invaded this sector of the country in search of future big league talent. Max Bishop, former infield star with the Philadelphia Athletics, was in the stands during the Providence-Tufts game. He looked the boys over carefully and after the game had a little chat with "Lefty" Collins. Bishop is a little too late if he has hopes of signing Collins. "Lefty" has all but signed with the Yankees.

The scouts held a convention last week in Brookline for the Northeast-Rhode Island State game. They had their eyes on Joe Callahan of the Huskies. But they were wasting their time again because Callahan has already decided to cast his lot with Connie Mack's Athletics in June. Warren Huston of Springfield has also decided to join the Athletics in June. However, the afternoon was not entirely wasted since the ivory hunters had a chance to watch George Hines perform. He certainly has the makings of a big leaguer.

P. C. BASEBALL NINE WILL MEET BROWN BEARS

"Lefty" Collins Will Face Bruin Batsmen at Aldrich Field

Providence College and Brown will renew their athletic rivalry tomorrow afternoon at Aldrich Field when the fighting Friars encounter the improved Bears in the first game of the intracity series. This contest will have a direct bearing on the final outcome of the State and City college baseball championships. On next Tuesday the Friars will invade Springfield for their long game of the season with the highly rated Springfield Indians.

The Providence-Brown game is the 32nd of the series. Of the 31 games that have been played, Brown has won 10 and Providence has registered 21 triumphs. All have been played on Brown's home field.

Brown stayed in the running for the State title by defeating State last week, 6-4. State is leading the title race with two victories and one defeat, while Brown is second with one victory and one defeat. Providence is last with one defeat and no victories. Providence needs a triumph tomorrow to keep them in line for the crown.

To date the records show four victories, five defeats, and one tie in the ten games played by the Bruins. Through last Sunday the Friars won seven games out of twelve starts. The Bruins started off inauspiciously, but have shown a great deal of improvement in their last few starts. In their last three games, they defeated State, 6-4; Boston College, 7-5, and lost to Harvard, 7-6.

Last year, Brown extended the Friars to three games before the city championship was finally decided. The Bruins won the first game, 3-0, and lost the next two, 5-0 and 8-0. The final and deciding contest went 12 innings with the Smith Hillers winning when Captain Omer Landry made a phenomenal catch of a long drive by Charlie Butler with two men on bases.

Coach Jack Egan will start the same team that took the field against Boston College and Villanova. Leo Fischer will be on first base. Captain "Lefty" Collins will pitch and Gus Hagstrom or Elt Deuse will take care of the catching assignment.

On next Tuesday the Friars will invade Springfield for their annual tilt with the Springfield nine. Last year the Friars defeated the Indians, 8-6. Springfield has its usual strong nine and will undoubtedly furnish the Smith Hillers with stern opposition.

The most stupendous death warrant in all history was signed by King Philip of Spain in February, 1568. It sentenced to death as heretics the whole 3,000,000 people of the Netherlands.

A man can be perfect—physically and mentally—yet be rejected for enlistment in the army of the U. S. when his face is characterized by "extreme ugliness."

FRESHMAN NINE WILL MEET H. C.

Encounter St. John's Prep Tomorrow at Hendricken Field

The Providence College Freshmen nine will meet the strong Holy Cross yearlings at Hendricken Field this afternoon in the only meeting scheduled for these teams. Kwasniewski or Sweeney will probably start for the locals with Burdge doing the receiving.

Tomorrow morning, St. John's Prep and the homsters close their series at Hendricken Field where the Friarlets will endeavor to atone for the tenning setback handed them last week at Danvers. On Tuesday and Wednesday, the Providence Frosh will face the Springfield first-year men and the Brown Cubs, meeting the Gymnasts at Springfield on Tuesday and Brown at home on Wednesday.

Last Friday at Danvers, the Friarlets suffered their first loss of the season when they were defeated in tennings by St. John's Prep. Outbit 13 to 8, the Frosh went down when St. John's successfully worked a squeeze play in the tenth.

On Monday, the Friarlets defeated the Boston College Eaglets 8 to 5 at Newton for the second time this season. A pinch single by Jim Padden in the tenth scored two runs and started a Friar rally. Padden had batted for Don Morrell.

Besides pitching eight-hit ball, Bagley struck out 6 and walked 7. On the offense, he scored twice and hit once, batting .500 for the day.

The Providence College yearlings scored seven runs in the sixth inning against the Brown freshmen on Wednesday to register their sixth victory in seven starts. The final score was 13-6.

Jim Padden, former La Salle Academy athlete, on the mound for the Friarlets allowed the losers thirteen hits but proved effective in the pinches. Providence collected ten hits on the combined offerings of Conner and Cheever. Ayyasian led the Friarlets offense with four hits out of six trips to the plate. Cook got four out of five for the Brown yearlings.

Seventh Straight Friar Victory in Home Engagements

Behind the five-hit pitching of Marshall Brooks, Providence College defeated Villanova 4-1 at Hendricken Field yesterday afternoon. The Friars kept their home record intact in seven starts by snapping the eight-game winning streak of the Main Liners.

Bobinski's double followed by Fischer's single to center gave the Friars a one run lead in the second inning. They added another in the fifth on successive singles by Brooks, Crowley, and Gallagher. Plaski then walked to fill the bases, but Bobinski grounded to McLaughlin for the final out.

The fielding gem of the game was Fischer's sensational stop of Bond's hard hit ball along the first base line in the seventh.

In Choosing Your Career

The science of the "new dentistry" is still in its infancy. It is a most promising field for constructive thought and work. It calls for the best minds interested in health service careers.

Because of advancing standards, enrollment in Dental Schools in the United States has been reduced during the past thirteen years. Today there is one practicing dentist to approximately each 2,400 of population.

Marquette University Dental School is given the highest rating—A—by the Dental Educational Council of America. Its diplomas to graduates are recognized in all states. The close relationship of dental-medical study proves an advantage to students.

Entrance requirements: Two years in a recognized College of Liberal Arts with satisfactory credits in biology, organic chemistry, and physics.

Debating Moderator Tendered Dinner

Father Fitzgerald and Father Chandler Address Group at Biltmore

Addresses by the Rev. Jeremiah T. Fitzgerald, O.P., and the Rev. Arthur H. Chandler, O.P., featured the testimonial dinner tendered to the Rev. Ambrose P. Regan, O.P., moderator, by the members of the Providence College Debating Union in the Biltmore Hotel, Sunday evening. Unable to attend the dinner because of a previous engagement, the Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., President, was represented by Father Fitzgerald.

Frank G. McGovern, President of the Union, acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers of the evening. The officers of the debating union were called upon to speak and discussed briefly on the success of the union during the past season.

During his address, Father Regan thanked the debaters for the cooperation and spirit of willingness accorded him by the members of the society, and outlined briefly the program for next year. He expressed a hope for the continuance of the activities of the union and added that the splendid interest shown by the faculty was easily indicative of the position the Union held in the intellectual life of the college.
