FORMAL DANCE WILL CONCLUDE SENIOR WEEK

Billings Is Chairman Of
Committee For June
10 Event

Plans for the traditional Commencement, June 10, in Harkins Hall were announced yesterday at a meeting of the committee. The Ball is an event held annually after the presentation of degrees to the graduates, and concludes the ceremonies of graduation week, as well as the social season of the College.

The members of the Commencement Ball Committee are: C. Myron Billings, Webster, Mass., chairman; Michael F. Donahue, Pawtucket, Francis M. Croghan, Providence, J. William McGovern, Providence, Leo L. Miller, Providence, George F. McGuire, Newark, N. J., Charles R. Gallagher, Newburgh, Mass., Joseph W. Carey, Medford, Mass., Raymond J. Maia, Staten Island, N. Y., E. Riley Hughes, New Haven, Conn., Laurence J. Walsh, Providence, Francis V. Donahue, Brighton, Mass., Raymond J. O'Mara, Staten Island, N. Y., Leeks, Providence, and D. Howard Slavin, Pawtucket.

Fitting Climax
The formal dance will close a varied program of Commencement week activities. Chairman Billings, in commenting on the plans of the event, stated: "We are to present a program which will mark a fitting climax to the four years which we have spent here at Providence College. This will be the last social event which the senior class will attend together, and because of this the committee is bending every effort to make it a reception to the Juniors on Monday will precede the Commencement Ball. These two social events will inaugurate the Commencement Week program."

Action Committee Holds Last Meeting

Dr. Dore Addresses Final Meeting of New
Action Group

The final meeting of the current session was held yesterday by the Providence College Committee on Catholic Social Action with 17 members in attendance. The Rev. Vincent C. Dore, O.P., Moderator, addressing the group, outlined the plans of the organization for next year, and distributed lists of suggested reading matter. Thomas F. Flynn, '39, presided, and Charles MacArthur, '40, acted as temporary secretary in the absence of Albert McAlon, '39.

Father Dore, emphasizing the necessity of personal sanctity in those who would lead others, said: "If we are to help others, the best way is by the power of our example. After giving example, then we can instruct." He continued, "The Catholic outlook on social questions is to be placed foremost in our discussions. As members of the Mystical Body of Christ, our outlook must be as wide, as embracing, as this fundamental Catholic doctrine. Man is not the whirlwind." (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

New Publication Date

After much consideration it has been decided to change the date of publication of The Cowl next year. Under the new arrangement, the paper will go to press on Tuesday, and be put on sale at the College on Wednesday morning. Twenty-nine issues are planned for next year, the first to appear September 29. Another change contemplated for the coming year is the separation of the staffs of The Alembic and The Cowl.

HUGHES ELECTED ALEMBIC EDITOR

Healey, Geary, Cavanagh
and Fanning Named
To Assistants

Walter Appleton Hughes, '39, was elected editor of the Alembic for next year at a meeting of the Alembic staff yesterday. Hughes will be assisted by Robert C. Healey, Andrew A. Geary, Joseph V. Cavanagh, and John A. Fanning, associate editors, Michael DiCola and John J. Mahoney were also elected business manager and advertising manager respectively. Hughes has been a member of the Alembic staff for two years.

In the election of DiCola and Mahoney, it was made known that a line of demarcation would be drawn between The Cowl and the Alembic next year. Individual staffs will be drawn up to edit the publications and as much as possible there would be no dual office holding. Concurrent with this announcement, it was made known that a slight change in policy would be made and more stringent rules regarding submission of articles enforced.

The final issue of the Alembic is scheduled for distribution next week. The guest article, a prominent feature in the magazine this year, will be written by Mr. John J. Ryan, a member of the faculty at the University of Chicago. It is entitled, "On Propaganda and art." Short stories and articles of interest will also be included in this issue.

Junior Ring Stones Reported Lost In Crash Of Zeppelin Hindenburg

Burning of Huge German
Airliner Causes Delay
In Ring Delivery

The effects of the destruction of the Hindenburg were felt far afield. More particularly, they were felt by students of Providence College. For the stones for Junior rings were aboard the ill-fated air liner, and were lost with the ship, according to the report received by the ring committee.

The work of cutting the stones is done by master craftsmen in Europe, and the finished product imported to this country. The Providence College consignment was part of a large shipment bound for American jewelers. The rings were originally scheduled for delivery this week, but their arrival has been indefinitely postponed. As Robert Burns so truly said, "The best laid plans of mice and men gang aft a-wee." The stones were

President Issues Statement
In connection with the granting of awards to the eligible members of The Cowl and Alembic staffs, The Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., President of the College issued the following statement:

"You realize the power of the press. A college magazine and newspaper share in this power. Our publications are a real force and influence here (Continued on Page 6, Col. 1)

TURN IN PHOTOS

John E. Farrell, graduate manager of athletics, announced that all undergraduates must supply the Athletic Association with their photos before next Fall in order to acquire football season tickets. All boarding students are requested to turn in their photos now adorning the baseball season tickets before they return home for the summer holidays.

Only those students who have supplied the Athletic Association with their pictures will be presented with season tickets to the football games. So, don't forget to turn in your photo, and, if you have already promised it to the gal, the five and ten cent store will be more than willing to make some more photographs for the small fee of ten cents.

DRAMATIC CLUB PLANS CONTEST

Alembic Joins Group for
One Act Play
Contest

A playwriting contest for the publication and production of original one-act plays was announced yesterday by the Pyramid Players, student dramatic organization, and the Alembic, literary quarterly. All students of the College will be eligible to submit manuscripts for the contest.

The best plays in the opinion of the board of judges headed by the Moderator of the Pyramid Players will be produced by the group. The best three plays will be presented at the end of the year in a special production. All the plays will be student directed.

A medal will be awarded to the student who writes the best one-act play, to the best student actor, and to the best student director. The Pyramid Players will guarantee the production of any worthy manuscripts and they will be published in the Alembic.

The first meeting of the Pyramid Players will be held next year on the second Thursday of the next scholastic year.

A campaign to enlist student support for the work of the Pyramid Players next year was commenced this week. A committee headed by John Andre began the solicitation of student memberships in the dramatic organization. With the support thus far received it is expected that the organization will be able to continue its plan of presenting three complete productions. (Continued on Page 6, Col. 1)

STUDENTS AT HEALEY FUNERAL ON MONDAY

The funeral of Mrs. James F. Healey was held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the Church of the Assumption, Potters avenue. Mrs. Healey is the mother of Robert C. Healey, co-editor of The Cowl and a member of the Sophomore Class. Interment was in St. Ann's Cemetery, Cranston.

Norman J. Carignan and Michael A. Coyne, both members of The Cowl staff and Sophomores, were bearers at the funeral. Many students of the College attended the funeral.

SENIORS ISSUE '37 YEARBOOK; HUGHES EDITOR

Pioneer Effort of Seniors
Earns Universal
Plaudits

Resuming publication for the first time in nine years, Veritas, the official senior class yearbook, was distributed Wednesday morning to all seniors and undergraduate subscribers. In 1928 publication of Veritas was abandoned, and since that time this senior class tradition has not been maintained.

E. Riley Hughes, Editor of the Alembic and secretary of the senior class, is editor-in-chief of the book. Francis M. Croghan, and George T. Scowcroft, are assistant editors and J. William McGovern, business manager. Leo Miller is advertising manager.

Veritas is dedicated to His Excellency the Most Reverend Francis P. Keough, D.D., Bishop of Providence and President of the Providence College Corporation, "in grateful appreciation of his compelling interest and assistance in the advancement of Providence College."

Bound in black downgrain fabricoid leather and embossed with a silver seal of the college, the yearbook is neat in appearance and effective in format. Complete coverage of all Providence College athletics and extra-curricular activities is included in the book. Departing from the usual personals style used in the senior class album, seniors are identified by an enumeration of the events in which they participated.

The book is divided into three parts, the senior class, extra-curricular, (Continued on Page 6, Col. 4)

Relations Union Elects Officers

O'Rourke and Healey New President and Secretary
Of Group

Francis J. O'Rourke, '38, of West Warwick, was elected President of the International Relations Union last Tuesday, for the academic year '37-'38. He was opposed by Vincent Anniello, '38, of Providence. The total number of votes cast numbered fifty-two, of which Mr. O'Rourke received twenty-seven and Mr. Anniello twenty-five. Mr. O'Rourke, who was Secretary of the Union this year, will succeed Michael Donahue, who served as President during the past year.

Two candidates were also nominated for the office of Secretary, Robert Healey and Ernest Pike, both Sophomores. In order to give every class representation it was decided, when the union was formed, that only Seniors would be eligible for the Presidency, Juniors for the position of Secretary, and Sophomores for librarian. Mr. Healey, this year's librarian, was elected, receiving forty votes. Mr. Pike twelve. The librarian of the union will be temporarily appointed by the officers and Moderator.

A SECOND YEAR'S CLOSE

With this, the last issue of the present scholastic year, The Cowl ceases publication for the second time in its history. This marks the end of Volume 2, and brings to a close a year of intense activity on the part of the staff members.

During the two years during which The Cowl has appeared weekly, a noticeable and evident improvement in the style and format has been made. The plans that have materialized this year had long been hoped for, and through an increase support by the student body, they have been put into effect. The staff members have always been willing to sacrifice themselves for the betterment of the newspaper that is serving Providence College in the intellectual field. All that had been lacking is student support. However, this year a marked increase in interest has been evidenced, and likewise a marked improvement has been made.

The staff members have set themselves to reporting the news of Providence College in a truthful and diligent manner. We believe that we have done that to the best of our ability. On occasion, we brought to our readers news that was given them first hand. We strived throughout the year to furnish to Cowl readers articles that were of interest and columns that would delight. That policy will be continued next year when we resume publication again.

However, before we can draw the curtain upon another year of activity, we feel that we cannot do so without expressing a word of thanks to those who have given us their support week after week. We single out first, the Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., and the Rev. Robert S. Quinn, O.P., moderators of The Cowl, who daily have guided the destiny of this newspaper, and who through their encouraging words and skilled leadership have trained us in journalism and have fostered in us a strong spirit for success in our enterprise.

The Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., president, and the Rev. Arthur H. Chandler, O.P., dean, have always been ready to add a suggestion and to compliment us when we deserved it. To the members of the faculty and in particular to Dr. Daniel J. O'Neil, Mr. John E. Farrell, and Mr. Louis P. Fitzgerald, who have been instrumental in providing exclusive news stories to The Cowl, we extend heartfelt thanks.

Last, but by far not the least, we wish to thank the members of the student body individually without whose support The Cowl could not function. It has often been our happy occasion to be complimented by various students, and now we take this opportunity of expressing our gratitude to them for the part that they have played in whatever success The Cowl has achieved this year.

New plans are being drawn up that are intended to improve both the make-up and the reading matter. For the convenience of the students, the publication date is being moved up to Wednesday instead of Friday. We are putting these plans into effect only because we are confident that student support of The Cowl will not wane, but will become stronger, and because of that we are striving to provide a newspaper that will be truly representative of Providence College.

A LONG FAREWELL

Nine members of the 1937 class today have ended their terms as members of The Cowl Staff. These students will be graduated from Providence College on June 10, and as they are about to take the final step of their collegiate careers, we pause for a moment to reflect on the benefits of work on a college newspaper.

A newspaper which is published once every seven days is bound to give its editors a thorough training in one specific branch of journalism—if the work is carried out seriously. So-called "hot news" or a "beat" on a story is unknown in the collegiate circle. Local newspapers infrequently prick up their ears because they have been beaten to a story by a student weekly. The relatively slow and low circulation of collegiate papers account for this absence of interest on the part of the locals.

Student editors must content themselves therefore with the work of learning to write. The logical method of learning to write is to acquire quality first, and then speed. This applies only to journalistic writing, in artistic writing, art can never be acquired, but merely improved. This is so because journalism is mostly objective and partially subjective, while creative writing is mostly subjective and partial objective.

If one is interested in journalism during his undergraduate days, the college paper provides him with the ideal practice field. Here he can write as slowly as he wishes, without a cranky, business-minded boss present to administer an intellectual horse-whipping. Here he learns to work out the various types of news stories, and to develop speed gradually. He discovers—and if he applies himself—masters the particular vocabulary tricks applicable to this or that type of story. If he is smart, he benefits from his experience. If he is intent only on turning out an enormous amount of copy, he is likely to draw down the wrath of any city editor with whom he comes in contact in later years. Unless he has an extraordinary ability and a keen newspaper instinct, he is destined to become a beautiful failure.

Other members of a collegiate staff are not interested in writing. Make-up, headline-writing, proof-reading, business, or advertising, all must be taken care of, even on the college paper. Students who are engaged in these works should make the same approaches as the writers. Efficiency, accuracy, diplomacy, and other specific techniques must take precedence over speed. Just as acceleration is likely to embarrass the inexperienced proof-reader, so the hasty approach of a "dub" to a prospective advertiser might cause the loss of a good sized check. Seek ye first quality and tact, and speed will be added unto you who are persistent.

With these few thoughts in mind we bid farewell to those who today look back to their days of collegiate journalism. Realizing that the college training is merely a means to the end, and that those who leave with the class of 1937 are now closer to that end, we cannot work ourselves into a state of mixed emotions. We are not sorry that these boys are leaving, because we feel that, unless they have been wasting time, the departure is not a loss of collegiate joys, but the acquisition of post-graduate security. Graduation is not an occasion of mournful goodbyes, but the culmination of four years—or more—of purposeful study.

A STUDENT'S PRAYER

"Teach me goodness and discipline and knowledge." This aspiration of the Psalmist (CXVIII.66) addressed to God, forms an excellent prayer for a student. It expresses briefly but fully, simply but forcefully the whole prayer of a Catholic scholar. It embraces what he should strive for as the aim and achievement of his school life.

SUCH QUESTIONS:

Mr. R. B. Downs, head of the University library, reports that the extension division of the library frequently receives strange requests. The most recent was for a copy of Eugene O'Neill's "The Morning Becomes a Lecture." Poor Electra!

Attendants at the reference desk also have their problems. During the last quarter a freshman asked where he could find the names of two writings by Dr. George Coffin Taylor of the English department. He was told to look in "Who's Who in America." A NEW CHAMPION

"He who dares to place any mortal beside Christ, or worse, above Him, must be told that he is a false prophet." These solemn words, written by the Holy Father only a few short weeks ago (Section 20, Encyclical on the Condition of the Church in Germany, Issued March 22, 1937), resound significantly as we follow the news of the world this week. His Eminence George Cardinal Mundelein, Cardinal Archbishop of Chicago, discussed and denounced the maltreatment of Catholics by Germany's one-man-government, and was promptly made the victim of a vigorous editorial attack by the Minister of Propaganda, the "prophet" of that government. But even more quickly, however, the Cardinal's statements had been given the approval of the Vatican.

It is well known that the American secular press can not possibly present a correct picture of the foreign scene. Censorship imposed by totalitarian governments and their ruthlessness in effecting reprisals make it dangerous to disregard their whims. None but the Catholic Church, whose authority is divine and whose strength is from the Holy Ghost, dares to defy. The Church alone is unafraid to speak out openly in protest and condemnation.

Cardinal Mundelein's speech is timely and welcome. Long enough has the Catholic press been unaided in its campaign to expose the truth of conditions abroad. Long enough have we fought by the printed word alone. The entrance of this new champion from the princely ranks is indeed heartening. The immediate commendation his words received from Rome emphasizes sharply the importance of his action.

Pre-Med. Students Attend Outing

Seniors travel to Woods Hole For Annual Affair

The Senior Pre-medical students last Friday went on their annual outing to Woods Hole, Mass. The outing, which has become a traditional affair, was organized and sponsored by the biology department under the direction of Rev. Louis F. Kelley, O.P.

Besides a tour of the museum and the Marine Biological Laboratory, at Woods Hole, a three hour cruise on the motor launch, Neris, to the island of Martha's Vineyard featured the program. After a stroll through a tiny town on the island, the cruise continued along the Southern coast of the island, and then back to Woods Hole. Lunch was served on the launch.

Among the members of the faculty present were Rev. Louis Kelley, O.P., Rev. Stephen R. McGonagle, O.P., Rev. Cyprian W. Meehan, O.P., Mr. George Kenny, and Mr. Daniel Lilly. The following premeds attended: Henry Archetto, Walter Campbell, Maurice Coyle, Armand Courchaine,

Faculty All-Stars Engage Students

(Special to The Cowl)

In a wild game of wild throws and wild applause the faculty tied the score with Guzman Hall Tuesday night in a last inning rally. Guzman Hall was represented by twenty-four players and a playing coach, while the faculty had representatives from Latin, Religion, English, Drama, Sociology, Chemistry, German, General Ethics and Oratory. There were two representatives from some of these departments, but only two substitutions were made.

For the faculty Bill Lawler, of College Road and Springfield, Mass., did the twirling to the target held by the veteran of many another such twilight tilt. For Guzman, three pitchers worked at four different times, one doing a repeat performance when the faculty tied the score 8-8, in the seventh (the last).

The traditional faculty-Guzman game got under way at 6:45 on Hendricken Field while the Varsity and the Freshman teams were beating the Springfield teams in Springfield. With not much time to play the game hurried along even before players were warmed up. And as the sun sank behind Fruit Hill and the shadows stretched across Bradley Hill, the umpire got honest and said that it was too dark to continue! And so, to bed

The coming marriage of Mr. Frederick J. Donovan, A.M., of the English Department, to Miss Grace E. O'Connor of Providence was announced this week. The Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O.P., will conduct the services at St. Pius Church on June 17.

Mr. Donovan has been a member of the English Department for several years. At present he is organizing a local unit of The Catholic Poetry Society.

Plan Student Camera Club

Rumors are going around that a Camera Club will be organized at the College in the Fall. The plan is to coordinate the forces of mere interest and curiosity in pictures with the scientific angles personified in members of the physics and chemistry departments as well as the useful angle of publication in The Cowl. A detailed program has not yet been made public, but it is sufficiently definite for camera fans to make plans.

SCOWL

With E. Riley Hughes
(Dean of Columnists)

Your Scowler should be chock full of reminiscences or something after two solid years of fooling the public, but some things are better left unsaid. It has been noised abroad that with the departure of the Dean of Columnists (sic) columns themselves would be seen no more. A weary, sad-eyed student body had settled down to the blissful vista of a columnless future. Such, we hear from headquarters, will not be the case. Though the "Scowl" will be out like an egg on a hard pavement, a couple of hybrids (Hi, Casey!) will leap into the breach. And can Casey leap into breaches.

At last it happened. It happened at last. The occasion was none other than the examination period in one of our nicest modern languages. A spindle legged Soph tottered up to the professor's desk with ink stained, criss-crossed blue book. He placed the book on the table, with all the tenderness of a mother hen or something. Then he walked to the door and opened it. A split second afterward he fell headlong into the corridor, having fainted in the spirit of grim defiance of irregular verbs. Six of the swarthiest gents in the class rushed to the rescue.

Speaking of examinations, some of the lads taking a Latin course were required to write a sample citation to the Dean of Agriculture who will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Horticulture. We won't burden you with the answers, but John's reply is worth noting:

Eram eras erat eram eratis erant. Git out. Git out. Tweet tweet. Arma virumque CANO. Now I have it all over Mal. Git out. Git out.

A special bouquet needs to be given to one Walter Gibbons who played the part of Mr. Coffee Nerves in the No-bellish "Days Without End." He was painted a bluish black and was the hero's worse self. He turned to green whenever he stepped in the way of the footlights.

With all the rush about autographing yearbooks it is not surprising that many hectic things happened. One bright youth signed his name over the picture belonging to the owner of the book instead of his own. All of which reminds us that there are still a few copies of the First Edition of VERITAS: 1937 on sale. Don't be crushed in the rush, come early.

Gus Hagstrom is rushing around like a lost soul peddling copies of a panorama photograph of the Senior Class. To Seniors who fear that his panorama will duplicate the composite furnished by Purdy we hasten to bat with the assurance that such is not the case. Gus has a batch of swell pictures let it be known.

Torch-Triangle Club To Induct Fr. Dillon

College President Named As First Honorary Head

The Torch and Triangle Club, newly-formed local Alumni group, will inaugurate its program Monday night with the induction of the Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., President of Providence College as Honorary President.

Fr. Dillon is the first alumnus to become President of this institution, and the honor accorded him is in recognition of this fact.

The announcement of his unanimous election to this office will be made at a reception and buffet dinner to be tendered in his honor at the group headquarters, Monday evening, May 21. A special allowance has been made which will permit any member of the new organization to bring as a guest any alumnus of the college not a member of the local unit.

For entertainment, several features have been arranged by the house committee in charge of the reception, among which are motion pictures of the last season's football games. Other entertainment will be provided by Paul Connelly, President of the Class of 1933.

The house committee in charge of arrangements is headed by Joseph P. McGee. Other members are George A. Johnson, Edward S. Doherty, Louis F. O'Brien, Joseph L. McAndrew, and John G. Coffey, treasurer.

Alumni Members To Elect Officers

Installation Will Be Made At Annual Alumni Group Banquet

The announcement and installation of the new officers of the Providence College Alumni Association will take place at the annual banquet on Alumni Day, June 8, at the Metacommet Golf Club. All ballots must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Association, Dr. Daniel J. O'Neill, '24, on Monday, June 7.

The ballot provides for election of officers to four positions, that of President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer, and to the Board of Governors.

The following are candidates for President: Francis L. Dwyer, '24, Charles A. Murphy, '28, and Joseph H. Lyons, '31, Vice-President, John F. Keough, '29, Dr. Francis M. Hackett, '32, and J. Joseph McCarthy, '32; Secretary and Treasurer, Dr. Daniel J. O'Neill, '24, Mark L. McGovern, '31, and John V. Maguire, '36. Edward S. Doherty, '24, William J. Bannon, '26, Peter J. Pimentel, '30, and John W. Moakler, '32, are candidates for the Board of Governors.

they hope to inaugurate jacks as a Varsity sport. It all started the other day when they got together at Me-shanticut Park with a couple of high school girls of their acquaintance.

Poetry Society Meeting Changed

The last meeting of the current season for the newly organized Rhode Island unit of the Catholic Poetry Society is to be held Sunday, June 6, instead of June 2, as was originally planned. Mr. Frederick J. Donovan, temporary President of the group announced this week.

Notices of the change of date, and copies of the poems to be discussed at the meeting, will soon be mailed to the members.

SEEN AND HEARD

BY T. CASEY MOHER

And so into the home stretch. Post time 1937. This has surely been a photo finish. The class book has a photo of everything but the class tree five years hence. The worried expressions having disappeared from the faces of most of the seniors, they seem like strangers. Their faces actually glow with joy and good-fellowship because of the realization that knowledge is theirs.

Around the Circuit

By popular acclaim, Frank McInnis is considered the nicest appearing balcony user in Loew's theater in the afternoons. Mike Deleo must own a concession at Crescent Park. He's there at every opportunity. John Graham is still denying everything and anything and offering to prove it. The following is stark truth. Mike Massad is known to have sent in an application to a dancing school to take a course in interpretative dancing. It should be quite a sight to see Mike doing the dance of the seven veils in the middle of Eaton street.

Campuses

Now that the term is drawing to a close, this columnist wishes to announce that a fare-thee-well banquet and dance will be held for all the faithful readers of this column. A large hall has been hired to care for the crowd. The Scowler is also throwing a similar party. He has hired the phone booth to care for his following's party. He shouldn't be crowded at that.

Whatever happened to the Formal Evening Club? I have finally located a tux I can borrow, but now I find that the club is no Moher. I guess they folded up their tents and silently stole away, as we are all about to do soon.

PLAY HOST TO BEARS

An important forward step in athletic relations between Providence College and Brown will be taken next Wednesday when a Brown Varsity team invades Friar territory for the first time since the inauguration of the athletic relations between these colleges. Fourteen years ago the long and interesting series started on the Bruins diamond. Since that time the Bears and Friars have engaged in 31 contests, all on Brown's home field. The Bears will assume the role of the guests for the first time.

A more friendly and intense rivalry between the three Rhode Island colleges is being evidenced every year. The invasion of Providence territory by the Brown baseball team is a positive indication of a better understanding and a hearty friendship among all parties. A spirit that is desired by both the students and officials of Little Rhody's institutions of higher learning. This cannot help but be beneficial to everyone concerned, and we sincerely hope that this bond linking Rhode Island State College, Brown University, and Providence College becomes more powerful as the years pass. It will certainly be more than welcomed by the inhabitants of Rhode Island and New England.

BROOKS SETS THEM DOWN

We extend our heartiest congratulations to Marshall Brooks for his brilliant pitching performance against the powerful Villanovians and Springfield Maroons. In humbling the Mainliners, Brooks pitched the best game of his career, allowing the visitors a total of only five hits which is excellent twirling in any man's league. Marsh accomplished what eight leading Eastern College nines had failed to do, and the big, rangy moundsman deserves all the laurels which accompany a feat of this sort. He duplicated this performance in the Springfield tilt.

Marshall has been tossing them up for the Friars for the past four years. He has always possessed speed galore plus a good curve. But he lacked control which, you know, is an essential part of every successful pitcher's repertoire. However, he didn't toss in the towel and give it up as a bad job. He just plugged a little harder until he reached the goal. The next fellow probably wouldn't have had the guts to stick it out for four years in the face of disheartening obstacles.

Brooks proved conclusively that success and glory can be attained by perseverance over a period of time.

FAREWELL

We take this opportunity to pay tribute to the 21 members of the class of '37 who have played an important role in the athletic destinies of Providence College for the past four years.

Our personal nomination for the outstanding athlete and scholar of this class is Gus Hagstrom. The only three-letter man and always close to the front in his scholastic endeavors, he stands out as the ideal student. Hagstrom has established a record that speaks well both for himself and for Providence College.

BROOKS BLANKS GYMNASTS, 9-0, FOR THIRD WIN

Springfield Gets Six Hits; Belliveau, Crowley Star At Bat For Friars

In its first visit to Western Massachusetts since 1923, the Friar nine defeated Springfield College, 9-0, behind the six hit pitching of Marshall Brooks, big right hander. Providence maintained its perfect record of straight victories over DeGroat coached aggregations, extending over a span of ten years. This was Brooks' third straight triumph.

Providence gained the lead in the second when Fischer reached first on a bunt, and advanced to third on Belliveau's double, and then scored on Hazell's long fly to center field. They tallied two more in the third on a single, attempted sacrifice bunt, outfield fly, and an error by Huston. Hall, starting pitcher for the Gymnasts, left the game in the fourth after giving up three more runs to the visitors. Belliveau's walk, Hazell's sacrifice, Deause's double, and Crowley's home run caused his downfall.

Friars Get Three More

In the fifth Providence scored number seven when Bobinski tallied from third on Belliveau's third hit, stole second, and reached third on an infield out.

A pass to Ploski in the seventh started the Friars final rally which netted them two runs. After stealing second and advancing to third on an outfield fly, he scored on Fischer's bingle to right. Fischer went to second on Belliveau's final hit and came home on Hazell's hit to left.

Allen, Maroon center fielder, starred both offensively and defensively for the losers getting two of the six hits and making seven putouts.

Brooks was master of the situation throughout, never allowing more than one hit in any inning and walking but one. Only two Maroons reached third base. The Friars collected a total of thirteen hits off the combined offerings of Hall and Mantor. Four of these went for extra bases, three doubles and a homer.

Belliveau had a perfect day at bat with four hits out of four trips to the plate.

rick, Maury Regan and Frank McCarthy for their contribution towards Providence College. Each of you has played a noble part in furthering the athletic tradition of Providence College. Your spirit fostered here will ever remain as a criterion for those who follow.

FROSH GO TO TOWN

It has certainly been a pleasure to watch the marauding Friarlets register one victory after another. Practically all of their triumphs have resulted in overwhelming scores, and their pitching has been above the ordinary standard. This, plus the manner in which the lads have been clouting the ball to all four corners of the lot, has evoked a great deal of satisfaction from Prof. Jack Egan. He's looking into a bright and promising future.

The pitching staff will be greatly bolstered by Kwasiński, Scavatto, Padden, and Bagley. In Burdge, Whitford, and Morrell he has three promising receivers, while the hitting of Gungent, Barnini, Brochu, Gendron, Ayvasian, Leo, and Pomfret should play an important part in the Friars' coming baseball campaigns. You'll hear from all of these lads in the very near future.

FRIAR FRESHMEN DEFEAT BROWN

Play R. I. State Today At Hendricken Field Kwasniewski Hurls

Johnny Ayvasian hit a triple, two doubles, and a single out of five trips to the plate to lead the Friarlets to a 14-4 victory over the Brown Cubs yesterday afternoon at Hendricken Field. By virtue of this decisive triumph, the Providence yearlings retained the City Junior baseball championship and at the same time registered their eighth victory of the season. Jim Padden, former La Salle Academy star, pitched for Providence and Don "L'Ab" Morrell did the receiving. Brown used two pitchers and two catchers in a futile effort to stem the barrage of Friar hits and runs. Pietrusca of the losers hit a homer into deep left center.

The Providence College yearlings will bring their successful season to a close this afternoon at Hendricken Field when they play host to the strong R. I. State Freshmen. This will be the only game between these teams this year, since the first game was rained out and time will not permit it to be played. The Ramlets have registered victories over some of the leading first-year teams in New England including a 9-8 triumph over Connecticut State yearlings nad a 4-3 victory over Dean Academy. Last year, State won, 11-2.

The Friarlets have enjoyed a successful season defeating such teams as Yale, Harvard, Boston College, and New Bedford Textile. Many promising players have been developed, and next year's varsity nine will be greatly augmented by additions from his year's Frosh nine.

Last Friday, the Friarlets dropped their second verdict of the season by a 7-6 score to the undefeated Holy Cross Freshmen in a 10-inning encounter. The homesters scored four runs in the ninth inning to tie the score and had the winning run across the plate when a block was called by the umpire and Leo was sent back to third. Pomfret then fanned to end the inning.

In the tenth, Kwasiński walked Medford who went to third on Kwasiński's wild peg to first. He scored on McAuliffe's grounder to short.

Scavatto started for Providence, but he was replaced by Kwasiński in the sixth. John "Slip" Barnini captured the batting honors for the day with three hits out of five times at bat.

The Friar Cubs gave Providence a perfect day at Springfield on Tuesday when they collected 15 hits off the combined pitching of Pullenen and Caron to garner 13 runs while Scavatto held the Springfield yearlings to 9 hits; and 2 runs. Johnny Ayvasian hit a home run over the long left field fence, Gendron got three hits out of four trips to the plate.

Friars Encounter Crusaders At Worcester Tomorrow

KARL SHERRY TO PITCH

Brown Invades Hendricken Field Wednesday; Collins On Hill

With bespectacled Karl Sherry on the mound seeking his third victory over Cross, Providence will tangle with one of its leading rivals and the most powerful nine in the East tomorrow afternoon when it encounters the Crusaders from Mount St. James. Sherry will endeavor to duplicate last year's performance by handing Holy Cross its first defeat of the season. The game will start at 3:15 p. m. Bleacher seats will be fifty cents and reserved seats will be seventy-five cents.

The intra-city series between Brown and Providence will finally get under way on Wednesday when the Bruins invade Hendricken field for the first game of the series. This will mark the first time that a Brown Varsity team has invaded Providence territory since the start of athletic relations fourteen years ago. The game will start at 4 o'clock.

Karl Sherry will pitch the Holy Cross game and Captain "Lefty" Collins will face the Brown batters with Gus Hagstrom and Elt Deuse sharing the catching honors. Marshall Brooks, who has won his last three starts in an impressive fashion, will be held in reserve.

Holy Cross again boasts of a strong, well balanced nine which is undefeated, but has been tied by Princeton. Both Jack Barry, Crusader mentor, and Coach Jack Egan are anxious to annex a victory, and they have primed their charges for this game which promises to develop into a close and interesting battle.

The Crusaders had a record of 13 straight victories last year when they hooked up with the Friars in a return game at Fitton Field. They had already been established as the Eastern college champions, but this had no effect on Karl Sherry, who nonchalantly silenced the powerful Crusader bats allowing five hits as the Friars registered a 3-2 triumph. This victory gave Providence a high ranking in the final tabulation of the leading Eastern college nines.

Al Jarlett and Mike Ryan will comprise the Holy Cross battery.

Bruins Invade Hendricken Field

The Bears and the Friars will renew their athletic rivalry Wednesday afternoon at Hendricken Field when they meet in the first game of the 1937 intra-city baseball series. With this game having a direct bearing on the City and State baseball title, a hard fought and closely played contest is anticipated.

Brown started off slowly, but the Bears have displayed vast improvement in their last few starts. During the early part of the season their pitchers worked well while the batters failed to produce the necessary hits, and then it was vice versa. However, the pitching and hitting has been up to standard the last few

P. C. NETMEN END CURRENT SEASON

Capt. Frank Fitzpatrick, Maury Regan Complete Collegiate Careers

With a record of three victories and two defeats the Friar netmen will journey to Springfield tomorrow afternoon to close their season against the American International college tennis team. Captain Francis Fitzpatrick and Maurice Regan will be making their final appearance on the tennis courts as representatives of Providence College.

Providence defeated the American International netmen, 6-0, last year. The Springfielders, however, have a veteran team and the match is expected to be very close.

Last week's matches scheduled with Springfield College and Clark College have been cancelled.

The Friars' singles team will be comprised of Captain Francis Fitzpatrick, Joe Berg, John McQueen, Bill Spinnier, Jim Tully, and Bill Scanlon. The doubles team will be comprised of Captain Fitzpatrick and Berg, Mason and Tully, and Holdridge and Leandra.

"The welfare of the College can be vastly promoted or equally hurt through our publications. College papers should not be mere chronicles of college pranks, silly behaviours, nonsense and sensational items. We are happy that you gentlemen of the college press have not misconstrued the purpose of our papers along these lines.

"You have worked to promote proper notice of students' and college activities. This notice you have conducted in veracity, which is a necessary virtue of any good publication; falsehoods should be absolutely foreign to the press. You have given our news in proportion, with a sense of relative values, not headlining sensational trivialities and back-paging fundamental truths and serious facts. You have expressed our activities in good taste, free from the semblance of vulgarity.

"And, as a result, you have moulded a healthy student opinion and life on our campus. You have familiarized the homes of our students with our activities, thus assuring parents, who have a right to know, we are living up to our obligations in educating their sons. You have helped to create a feeling of good will and respect for us in the community, which I hope, will begin to express itself in gifts and contributions to our wor-weeks, and Brown supporters are hoping for a victory.

Since the Friars have registered five more victories than their rivals they have been installed a slight pre-game favorite. They will also have the advantage of playing on their home field where they have yet to lose a game. Providence is undefeated on their home diamond with a record of seven straight victories.

Coach Jack Egan will start the same team that took the field against the Springfield Maroons at Springfield.

Bob Dye will pitch and Bob Brush will catch for the Bruins.
