

Student Peace Meeting Held Here Saturday

True Peace Thwarted By Greed, Suspicion and Selfishness, Fr. Slavin Avers

FENWICK URGES PEACE

Students Express Opposition to Loyalists; Sino-Japanese Debate Heated

More than 125 delegates representing 20 New England colleges at the second annual one-day conference of the New England Student Peace Federation held here at Providence College last Saturday, heard the Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O. P., S. T. L., Ph. D., declare "God Who is the First Cause of all peace and order, Who is Wisdom Itself, has placed as the first condition for peace that the human heart empty itself of all greed, suspicion, and selfishness. Not until that condition has been fulfilled," he said, "will you have true peace in the world." Father Slavin, professor of Thomistic Philosophy at the Catholic University of America, was one of the two principal speakers at the luncheon session. His topic was "St. Thomas Aquinas and Peace."

The other, Charles G. Fenwick, LL.D., Ph.D., national president of the Catholic Association for International Peace, and a member of the department of politics and economics at Bryn Mawr College, discussed "Economic Justice as a Condition of World Peace." "Economic disarmament must go hand in hand with military disarmament if another world war is to be averted," Dr. Fenwick stated. "We have concentrated our attention too long upon the mere repression of violence, important as that task is," he said. "The objective now before us is to work out the conditions of a stable economic order; and to attain that order, the more highly favored nations must be willing to pay a price for peace."

Oppose Spanish Loyalists
The delegates in afternoon session urged opposition to "communist loyalist Spain" in every way possible "except by direct intervention," and advocated "moral and financial support for Franco's Catholic Spain." The all-day program included three round table meetings and two general assemblies for the discussion of the neutrality question, the Sino-Japanese war, and the Spanish situation.

A panel discussion at which papers on the Spanish situation will be delivered is to be held in the upper auditorium at 3 p.m. Sunday.

New Coach Talks Things Over

Shean's Orchestra For Frosh Dance

Broadcasts Daily on "Brevities" Program from WJAR; Dancing, 8:30-12

Earl Shean and his orchestra, widely recognized as Rhode Island's outstanding dance band, will furnish the music when the class of '41 stages its first dance on Wednesday evening, March 16, the eve of St. Patrick's day in Harkins Hall.

Shean, a newcomer to Providence College dances, is widely known throughout the State for his work in several of Little Rhody's night clubs and at present for his "Brevities" program which is broadcast daily from WJAR over an N.B.C. hookup.

The large committee headed by William A. Quirk is confident that the first social attempt by this year's frosh will be a tremendous success. Both the fact that the dance is to be held on St. Patrick's eve, weeks removed from other college socials and the fact that the Freshman class seems already solidly behind the dance serve to make the committeemen greatly optimistic. Those serving with Quirk on the committee are: John Keenan, Kenneth McGovern, Charles McGovern, Casimir Potera, Joseph Cavanaugh, Francis Greene, Milton Krevolin, Beryl Sack, Matthew Gallagher, Charles Avedesian, James Pettine, Alvert Marchetti, and the class officers, Charles Sweeney. Quirk Named Baseball Coach

Faculty Member Trained Under Flynn Succeds Jack Egan; First to Beat H. C.

By Albert Paine, '38

"I aim to put baseball on the same footing that it maintained when the immortal Jack Flynn was head coach at Providence College. There is room for Providence College at the top of the collegiate baseball world, and it is my heartfelt desire that we shall realize that objective."

These were the words of Dr. Arthur L. Quirk, professor of physics at the College, who was appointed yesterday as head baseball coach, succeeding Jack Egan, who resigned after having held the reins during the past three years.

Surrounded by a group of eleven students in the physics laboratory, Coach Quirk discussed his happy hours spent at Providence on the ball field and in the classroom, both as a student and as a professor. He was interrupted occasionally by students and faculty members who entered the laboratory to offer their congratulations to the new coach and to wish him success in his new enterprise.

Although students know little of the baseball experience of Doctor Quirk, alumni and faculty of Providence College know him as one of the finest twirlers to wear the Black and White. Before entering P. C., Quirk was selected as an All-State pitcher from Providence Classical, where he was graduated in 1926. He played Freshman baseball and three years of varsity baseball at Providence College from 1927-1930.

As a senior, Quirk established a precedent on Smith Hill by pitching the Friars to their first win over Holy Cross, a 6-5 victory. He also holds the distinction of having been the winning pitcher in P. C.'s first triumph over Boston College at Boston. That same year, he defeated the Quantico Marines, conquerors of the New York Yankees.

After having been graduated from Providence College magna cum laude in 1930, Quirk was signed by the Boston Red Sox. He was farmed out to Pittsfield for experience. After that club abandoned play because of financial difficulties, the Sox sent him to Harwich of the Cape Cod League. At the conclusion of the season, Quirk decided to give up baseball in order to continue his scholastic advancement.

He entered Catholic University in the fall of 1930, the recipient of the Knights of Columbus National Scholarship awarded to the college graduate attaining the highest grade in a competitive examination. He received (Continued on Page 5, Col. 2)

Building Negotiations Will Start In Spring

Incomplete Total $77,883 as Drive for Funds Officially Closes With Committee Meeting Here Last Night; Father Dillon Thanks Contributors

Negotiations for construction of a dormitory in the early spring will be started, the Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., president of Providence College, declared last night at the final meeting of the Providence College Building Fund Committee. The president thanked all who had contributed their services and voiced his gratitude to all who had made donations toward the erection of a new structure on the campus.

Total amounts of money received are not available since committees in Pawtucket, Woonsocket, Pascoag, Newport, and West-erly, have not reported results of their campaigns.

Present Total $77,883

With a present total of $77,883, with all returns incomplete, the Providence College Building Fund Drive officially closed last night. Led by contributions of $1,000 each from the Narragansett Brewing Co. and the James Hanley Co., and $500 from P. J. Quinn and Son, Inc., the largest amount of contributions since the campaign started was reported.

Other contributors listed last night were: $375, Judge James E. Dooley; $200, William A. Needham; $197.50, the State Department of Public Health; $155, the Providence Department of Public Works; $125, William H. McCaffrey; $100, C. J. Fanning Construction Co. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard

College to Mark St. Thomas Day

General Communion Will Feature Observance of Foremost Dominican's Feast

Providence College will celebrate the feast of St. Thomas Aquinas, patron of Catholic education and Dominican theologian, with a solemn high mass and general communion at the college today. The Thomistic Institute attached to the College is in charge of the celebration.

The Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., president of the College, will celebrate the solemn high mass at 9 a.m. the Rev. Adrian T. English, O.P., will be deacon and the Rev. Robert G. Quinn, O.P., will be subdeacon. A sermon dealing with the philosophy of St. Thomas will be delivered by the Rev. Paul C. Perrotta, O.P. William Geary, '39, Thomas Sheehan, '38, and Matthew Scullion, '38, will be acolytes.

Fr. Dillon stated His Holiness Pope Pius XI has recently sent his blessing on the work of the Institute and the priests of Providence College. The Pontiff, who is Protector of the Order of Preachers, has indicated his approbation for the work of the Dominican Fathers in diffusing the doctrines of Thomas Aquinas.

All classes will be suspended at the College on Monday which is the actual feast day of the Dominican saint.

"Steamshovel by Spring"

"We are certain," Father Dillon said, "we can start negotiations for our building. We ought to have a steamshovel out by Spring. We have been completely encouraged and gratified by the support which has been given to this drive by the people of Rhode Island. We have tried to paint for you a picture of our needs. I ask you for continued cooperation even after the official closing of this drive."

Speakers at the program were J. Burleigh Cheney, Fred S. Kelly, Mayor John S. Ruess of Warwick, Lieut. Gov. Raymond Jordan, and Percival de St. Aubin. Judge Francis McCabe presided.

Early this morning no statement could be obtained as to when the computation of the final total would be made.

Tardiness Punished by Mite Box Donations Under New Class System

Proceeds Will Aid Fund for Furnishing Chapel in New Dormitory

Professor Smith of the French department has evolved a plan whereby he kills two birds with one stone. The aim of his plan is twofold: 1. To increase the Building Fund donations; 2. To get students to class on time.

Mr. Smith arranged the plan so that the worst offenders will do the most good for the school which seems rather ironic, but, nevertheless effective. The plan is quite simple. If a student comes to class just a minute or two late, he pays a $.01 tax; if he comes to class very late he pays the $.01 tax just the same, but he also has to get an admission slip from the Assistant Dean. Just to make things more complicated and also to swell the Building Fund jack-pot (we suspect a mercenary motif) Mr. Smith also imposes the $.01 fine on all students who fail in recitation. Wednesday was the eighth day on which the plan was in effect; the books showed a $1.22 total on the asset side of the ledger.

Students will readily see that they are caught between a cross fire—if they recite correctly or come to class on time, the Building Fund suffers; if they come to class late or fail to recite their scholastic standing suffers. A student may now flunk with impunity and blame it on an overabundance of school spirit—but will the folks at home believe it?

Mr. Smith doesn't want his entire class to be tardy en masse. Neither does he want wholesale flunking, but an occasional lateness or failure to recite will be welcomed—you know, for the good of Alma Mater. (Not to be a kill-joy, but we think that the SPIC is already formulating plans to deal with this newest threat to limited resources.)

Providence and State Clash at Kingston in Intra-State Series

R. I. Intercollegiate Court Title at State; Final Game for Rams

Providence College invades Kingston tomorrow night determined to upset the favored high scoring Rhode Island State and remain in the State five and remain in the State Intercollegiate basketball championship. A capacity crowd is anticipated. This is the second game of the home and home series between the Friar and Ram hoopers. Keane's basketballers are one up on the Smith Hillers as a result of the 52-39 triumph at the Auditorium.

On next Tuesday, the Friars will make their last home appearance of the season when they encounter the Lowell Textile quintet before winding up their season at Brown next Saturday. Last year, Providence defeated Lowell twice by 28-25 and 50-26 scores.

A situation similar to last year's prevails as the underdog Friars invade the South County for their annual basketball tilt with the high flying Rams. It will be recalled that last year State downed the Friars, 63-54, at the Arena, but the Friars bounced right back to even matters up by edging the Rams, 42-38, at Kingston in a thrilling see-saw battle. For the past four years Providence holds the distinction of never having tasted defeat at the Kingston gym. And the locals have high hopes of keeping this record intact.

The Providence attack is based on smooth passing and set play in comparison to State's wide open and colorful style of play featured by (Continued on Page 5, Col. 5)

CLASS POLITICS

Politics is a notoriously rotten business. Class politics at college, in their own inimitable way, are as rotten as any. The inanities, the petty jealousies, the childish squabbling and the throat cutting of class activities is incredible among men of college age and attainment, men to whom is attributed a certain maturity, intelligence and balance.

Yet, year after year the same sorry drama is enacted on a thousand campuses. The freshmen get acquainted; then they start fighting. The conniving grows progressively more bitter through the sophomore and junior years; the Junior Prom usually turns several fine friendships into undying enmities) rising to a brilliant climax in the final year.

Those who come in contact with class politics understand the harm that often arises from dissension among the members of a class. As a result of politics, we see friendships which have been four years in the making, and which should be strongest because of the common purpose of intellectual pursuit ruined by enmity and jealousy, we see the class which should be working as a harmonious unit, with the sole purpose of making the final year at the College one to be looked back upon with warm pride as a year of accomplishment and good fellowship dismembered by a lack of harmony and cooperation which threatens to make the year one which will be looked upon as a nightmare.

Such a situation is detrimental not only to the class and individuals in the class, but to the College as well. Corrective remedies for political dissension must come from the Seniors, who by their example can show that petty jealousies, slights (real or imagined), and personalities can be thrust into the background for the good of the individual, the class, and the College. To correct the abuses of politics, every member of the class must throw his entire energy behind its various activities, and disregard his personal dislike for Tom or Harry in the effort to make his class outstanding.

As we have said, all classes share in this fault—that of promoting politics—with progressive vehemence. Each has to answer for its own conduct. But the Seniors can set the example, and show that college men can act as men and not mere boys.

PROMULGATING PEACE

The New England Student Peace Federation is to be congratulated upon the success of the peace conference held here last Saturday. The Providence College International Relations Union is to be highly commended for the admirable manner in which the affair was conducted.

Young and enthusiastic students are so often caught up in the whirlpool of economic conditions rushing in the world on to another great war, that it is indeed refreshing to see activity of this type being undertaken in the cause of peace. Especially fortunate were the delegates in that, as Catholics, to quote the welcome words of the Rev. Vice President of the College, they possess "not only a horizontal view of peace, that is, peace between nation and nation, but also the altitudinous and upright concept of peace, peace between man and God."

Perhaps they did not settle the problems of the world in a day; they never intended to. But what they did intend, and what they did accomplish was to evoke interest in them, to bring their own view of them before the public, to assure a hearing to the cause of righteousness and justice.

The benefits of the conference to the College itself are incalculable. The participation in the program by two of the nation's outstanding figures, Father Slavin and Dr. Fenwick, and by students of the highest types in New England's Colleges, places Providence College in the forefront of progressive Catholic activity for the promulgation of the Catholic doctrine on peace.

STATE CIVIL SERVICE

At the present time the basis of selecting employees for many of our state governments is far more akin to the "whom you know" than to the "what you know" standard. Although this condition is undoubtedly convenient for the career politician who looks upon all available state jobs as an account on which he can draw for the payment of his election "debts", the lack of concern for the fitness of appointees, a result of party "loyalty", unavoidably produces inefficiency in the administration of government. The only remedy is a wholehearted application of the merit system.

The civil service movement, which is synonymous with the agitation for the merit system, has recently won the endorsement of the Governor of the State. In addition, bills aiming at the establishment of fitness as the sole norm for selecting state employees have been introduced in the State legislature, and hearings are being currently held.

When, and if, the civil service principle is embodied in a state law, that law will bear an especial importance for Providence College men, since it will affect them not only as citizens interested in good government, but more directly as prospective job-seekers. This, of course, is on the assumption that the law will apply to substantially all of the non-policy forming groups, and provided further it will not admit of loopholes through which the ward-heeler's darling may worm his way into the service. Each year, Providence College sends forth graduates possessed of the intellectual equipment normally expected of the holders of state positions. They include accountants, chemists, teachers, and innumerable others who, by reason of an education of sixteen years' duration, are in a position to handle state positions. To seek discrimination advantageous to Providence College alone would be, of course, unreasonable. But it is not unreasonable to seek a condition under which Providence College men will be afforded the perfectly normal privilege of competing with others for the purpose of proving their adequacy.

Many a Providence College man will step up to the polls for the first time in '38, while a whole host will repeat that performance in '40. Our legislators on Francis Street (what with election time and all) should prove peculiarly receptive to the views of such a bloc on this matter of a state civil service system. It might well be worth the ink and postage.

SMOKING

Smoking is, and always has been, strictly forbidden at any function in the college auditorium. Within the past weeks there have been flagrant violations of the rule at two events in the hall. The Office of the Assistant Dean has given notice that in the future the strictest disciplinary measures will be taken against violators of the smoking regulations.

We hope it is enough to remind that a gentlemanly attitude is demanded of every Providence College man. That attitude should be sufficient to cover all contingencies. If he is witnessing a play, if he is a spectator at some entertainment there is always that element of gentleness which must be preserved. Public smoking in such a case is not only illegal but degrading.

One warning should be enough to discourage any continuance of this practice. In any event, there will be a rigid enforcement of these smoking rules in the future. But we expect that there will be no further opportunities for criticism on this point. Even though the practice may have started rather haphazardly and not with Providence students, it must be stopped immediately.

In the Mail Bag

Dear Sir:

May I ask your cooperation and assistance in a work I am undertaking?

I am compiling a glossary of present-day college idioms, expressions, slang, or 'collegese,' call it what you will. And to make this really valuable, I wish as exhaustive and authentic lists as are possible to obtain from all, not merely a part of the recognized colleges and universities of the country.

I have found that practically every school in the country has its own idioms and expressions. In the collection of these it is peculiar to note how ideals and traditions of different schools as well as locality habits of expression are plainly marked.

I will appreciate it if you bring this to the attention of the undergraduates. Your assistance will be of great value to me, and I am sure the final result will have real informative value to you.

Very truly yours,

B. R. Clarke,

Maitland, Florida.

(Ed. Note: The Cowl will be glad to transmit any communications from the students here to the writer.)

My dear . . . :

Congratulations to the students of Providence College for their highly successful drive against objectionable literature. The battle is still on out here and we are hoping for a complete victory.

Very sincerely yours,

John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C.

Prefect of Religion,

University of Notre Dame.

(Ed. Note: The above letter was received last week by one of the Cowl's readers. Providence College students, led by The Cowl, were almost the first to take up the indecent magazine crusade after it had been begun by the students of Notre Dame.)

To the Editors of The Cowl:

The thought occurred to me that, in an institution where daily so much brawn and muscle is on display, it would be quite convenient to arrange a program of Boxing wherein students would participate to the benefit of the Building Fund. There could be weight divisions and also groups according to class. The finalists in each weight could then battle for the Championship of that limit and so on until a College Champ was crowned in a Grand Finale.

In order to ascertain instantaneous success in an undertaking such as this, the cooperation of each and every student is needed. Support in events in the past has been woefully lacking so, let us amend this by a spontaneous approval of such a program.

Ira T. Williams, Jr., '41.

Gentlemen:

Referring to an article in the Evening Bulletin of February 25th wherein the consensus of opinion of certain Seniors of your College, indicated that "PULL" is the big factor in securing employment, may we venture to present a thought which might be considered a pleasant alternative?

This thought is, that the "ANTONYM" of the so-called Big Factor, as claimed, is the real determining element governing the situation. The word is: "PUSH."

Advise your Seniors that the initial step in securing a job is to create, in the heart, a sincere DESIRE to secure one.

Very truly yours,

H. S. MORRISON.

COLLECTIVE SECURITY ONLY A THEORY

Recent events in Europe involving the peremptory demands of Hitler, the welding of the Rome-Berlin axis, and the resignation of Foreign Secretary of England, Anthony Eden, demonstrate clearly that attempts to conciliate the rules of Europe for peace purposes are on the brink of collapse. The League of Nations in particular, which represents the practical means for this conciliation, seems to have fallen into utter inefficacy.

The idea of collective security, which is the underlying principle of the league of Nations, is at best only a theory. The ultimate efficacy of the League stands as ready proof of this. It was totally powerless in the Ethiopian invasion and had to be contented with a passive resistance. Japan, Russia and Germany's envoys refused to participate any longer in the discussions of the League and thereby destroyed the last vestige of collectivism in that international body. The League was succinctly described last week by Neville Chamberlain, Prime Minister of England, when he stated that the League of Nations is a proved delusion.

Collective Security Impractical

At the present time especially in America, there is a large group of pacifists who proclaim that collective security on a world scale is the only panacea for the condition of the world today. They proclaim above all things that the United States should take the initiative in fostering this theory. Without taking exception to the theory itself, we do, however, believe that there is due cause to doubt the practicality of the theory. Collective security in itself is an all-embracing solution. It would solve the problem of world peace they say, yet it is idealistic. It has no foundation in past experience. It doesn't consider the human equation. It is impractical.

Before the collective security plan can even be considered as a principle of international government, it must survive the test of universal practicality. Charles A. Beard, noted Political Scientist, advances in effect the following points: It must be true, for instance, that 90% of the nations of the world really want peace: the Arabs, Africans, British India, the Bolivians, and the Paraguayans. And if the other 10% were quarantined or subjected to an embargo, they must succumb and would not strike back even in sheer desperation. Furthermore the governments of the 90% or the major powers among them, must be motivated merely by democratic ideology. And finally there must be such a thing as politics apart from economics. One has only to look to European nationalism to see the impossibility for the fulfillment of these conditions.

No Plan Suggested

It is further to be noted that the enthusiastic and adamant supporters of collective security are most verbose in their demand that the United States foster the plan, but none of them give us any glimpse on how they intend to have it work. It is one thing to propound a theory, and still another to make it effective. A theory is worthless if it is impractical. And so far collective security has not been practical.

Collective security is another League of Nations—in Sunday-go-meeting attire. Beneath its gaudiness there is the same withered hope for international cooperation on a sound effective basis. But it will never come until selfishness, greed, and lust for power are supplanted by charity, understanding, and love of humankind.

Senior Cap, Gown Committee Named

Father McGregor Urges Yearbook Support at Class Meeting

George V. O'Brien, president of the Senior class, announced the appointment of a Cap and Gown committee at a class meeting held yesterday in the old Auditorium.

Speaking at the meeting, the Rev. John T. McGregor, O.P., moderator of the class, urges the class to get more solidly behind the yearbook advertising staff, and secured from the class a vote of approval of a drive to "Pay up by Easter" on Veritas subscriptions. William C. Spinner, associate business manager of the annual, will handle the payments in the absence of Daniel R. Libutti, the business manager, who is ill.

The Cap and Gown committee announced by O'Brien: Harold C. Nagle, Clarence J. Curran, Frank C. McGovern, John A. Corrigan, William H. Tully, John E. Crowley, and Harry D. Brennan.

The meeting of the Albertus Magnus Science Club, originally scheduled for last Wednesday evening, was postponed until next Wednesday evening, March 9. John Milles, '38, will be the speaker.

MISSIONARY SPEAKS

The Reverend Francis McRae of the Maryknoll Fathers addressed the assembled student body yesterday morning. He spoke on the Maryknoll Missions and especially the Maryknoll supporters.

Snapped at the Peace Conference

1.—Father Slavik appeals for peace and justice. 2.—General scene at the conference luncheon. 3.—Dr. Fenwick addresses delegates. 4.—Registration of Delegates. 5.—Executive Secretary Bessie A. Martin of Albertus Magnus College and President Thomas W. Durnin of Providence College read a report. 6.—Chinese Delegates puzzle the situation. 7.—Dancing around the world at the tea dance. 8.—Father Reilly, P.C. adviser, Dr. Stephen Pan and Rev. Paul Facey, S.J., of Holy Cross discuss faculty problems. 9.—An informal group of delegates.

Junior Week Plans Will Be Discussed

Plans for the Junior Week program will be discussed by the heads of the various committees and their assistants at a joint meeting of the several groups in Room 17 on next Tuesday afternoon. Daniel F. Murphy, class president, announced yesterday.

The members of the recently-appointed committees have already started the extensive preliminary work which they hope will insure the successful inauguration of the Week at Providence College. Charles F. McElroy, chairman of the Boxing Night group, has promised one of the most interesting programs since the introduction of that annual affair, and the other committee heads are certain that they will make their initial ventures "landmarks in Providence College social history." These chairmen include Walter F. Gibbons, Arthur St. Germaine, Leo Flynn, and John F. McQueeney.

James J. Gallogly, chairman of the Junior Prom committee said yesterday that he expects to announce a definite date and the place for the annual dance at the meeting of the class on next Thursday in Room 17. Gallogly's committee includes J. Laurence Hall, Joseph Martellino, Joseph Baldwin, and Edward A. Burke.

FR. CLARK SPEAKS MONDAY ON "THE RELIGIOUS LIFE"

Participating in the observance of next week as "Vocation Week," the Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., professor of sociology at the College, will address the students of St. Xavier's Academy Monday at 9:00 a. m. on "The Religious Life."

"ARE CAMELS REALLY DIFFERENT FROM OTHER CIGARETTES?"...a question of interest to every smoker

"I've never been very fussy about cigarettes myself. Do you think that Camels are really as different as some people say, Bill?"

"You bet they are different, John! A fellow in any work as hard as selling has to figure a lot of angles on his smoking, such as how it agrees with him. And just notice how many salesmen smoke Camels. I changed to Camels—smoked 'em steadily—and I found a distinct difference in the way I enjoyed all-day smoking and in the way I felt. Camels agree with me!"

"YES!" says H. W. DALY, rayon salesman, and millions of other steady smokers too. And that explains why Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in America!

MARITA'S PLANNING a grand feed. "We enjoy entertaining," Marita says. "I like to have plenty of Camels at the table. Camels cheer up one's digestion."

ON WEEK-ENDS, Bill goes in for photography. On week days he "pounds the streets." "I get tired," he says, "but when my energy fails I get a 'lift' with a Camel."

A KISS FROM MARITA (Mrs. Daly) and Bill is off to his work in the city. The Dalys agree about most things. Among them, Camels. Mrs. Daly smoked them first, noticed a difference. "Now we find Camels agree better with both of us," she says.

A FRIEND DROPS IN (above) to see Bill's model sloop. Daly passes the Camels and answers a natural question. "That all-cigarettes-are-alike talk doesn't square with my experience. Believe me, steady smoking is the test that shows Camels in a class by themselves. They don't make my nerves edgy."

What with "100 Men and a Girl" in the not so far distant past, and now, the currently popular Disney spectacle, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs", this beamish boy has become inspired to the extent that he will write his own version of the modern pixie tale, titled, "Coal Black and Amazon Belles." (Someone has got to give men a break.

Once upon a time a little boy who thought that he was scheduled to take Spangler Arlington Braugh's (The Yank's) place sat on the Easton St. bus and wished that he was going to the land where women live alone and like it. So he rubbed his cosmology book, and immediately his fairy god-mother appeared and gave him a laundry check to plant, and after he planted it, a planters punch appeared. Coal Black looked at the punch and uttered the magic words, "liquid, liquid in the glass, where can I find the fairest lass?" So the genie thumbed a ride from a passing magic carpet and swept Coal Black off to Amaganatania (Exchange Place to you). Coal Black was well rested when he arrived for he had had a nap on the rug. The genie disappeared and C. B. found himself in a beautiful night club. There was no one around so C. B. went to the table and saw seven plates filled with caviar. So he ate all the caviar and went upstairs to rest. He was awakened by a contralto voice piping, "who are you, fi, fi, fo, foo—and I do mean foo!" So C. B. told the Amazon that he was from the mob, and she said, "then you'll have to drink this Ovaltine and you won't wake up until the seven Amazons, Georgie, Lionel, William, Bernard, Joe, Michael, and Eugene, win the silver skates. So the seven Amazons bought up all the tickets on Blueboard in the fourth, and won the silver skates. So C. B. woke up just in time and passed his final exams. (The End).

Anybody's Holme: John Sherlock expects to have barrels of fun any time now (yeh, shot gun barrels), for he was in circumstances. (What a convenient word). It seems Celia and John went to a dance—a tea dance—out of town. Circumstance 1. The car froze up; Circumstance 2. The car had a flat tire; Circumstance 3. Car was on a steep hill; Circumstance 4. The jack broke; Circumstance 5. There were no houses or garages around; Circumstance 6. Celia got back to Pembroke at 6 a. m.; Circumstance 7. John got back to Pawtucket at 6:30 p. m.; Circumstance 8. Is poppa mad! Just a victim of circumstances! CONNECTICUT STATE LOSES TO FRIAR DEBATERS

The Providence College Debating Union won its third intercollegiate debate of the season last Friday night when it defeated the Connecticut State debating team at Storrs, Connecticut. John A. Fanning, '38, John A. Graham, '38, and Norman Carignan, '39, represented Providence College and defended the negative side of the question "Resolved: That the United States Should Totally Abolish Its Neutrality Policy in Favor of Collective Security". The decision of the judges was unanimous.

The Debating Union is now making final plans for its annual road trip through northern New England. Debates with Colby College, in Waterville, Maine and with the University of Maine at Orono, have been scheduled and the debating tour will start the week of March 14. Other debates are planned with Northeastern University, Clark University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston University and Williams College.

Plassism: Three gozinta ten three times, and one to carry makes four.

If intra-mural basketball would only take on the spirit and dash that is peculiar to those afternoon brawls in the auditorium. Any number of players, from any class creates a game where anything goes, including a few chairs.

It seems that every time I go into a certain drug store, no matter what hour of the night, I find Frank "Casanova" McKenna ogling across the counter at his lady love. Ordinarily I would never remark about such a thing, but I refuse to stand another ten minutes, waiting for a nickle change while he gurgles, "I'll bet you say that to all the boys." He MAY C me in there to-night.

Our own "Macker" McCabe was a visitor to the cafeteria here Thursday. The mighty "Macker" says the world isn't so cruel after all. To us who are about to venture forth he advises, "Play for the breaks. Be like day, get a break every morning." The "Macker" seems to cast a spell over his listeners. Maybe it is because he is conducting spelling bees out in the City of Pawtucket.

Arnold "Shrinking Violet" Guisti takes exception to the statement concerning the rightful owner of the table-tennis title. Guisti, maintains

"After four years here, a good deal of which was spent at the table, (what kind?) no puny Freshman can lick me." Sic 'im Reynolds.

Al Saute, the only man who can wear white shoes all winter and get away with it. Not a sole in the college can compete with him in that respect.

Anthony Stramondo has started up a new business. It seems that he discovered he could draw fine distinctions and just found it out himself. Tony advertises, "Distinction of best quality drawn cheap. Syllogisms a specialty. We cater to Freshmen." Tony really loves distinctions. He always has one around him everywhere. He draws them in class, on paper, at home, or even out of thin air. I consider Tony a first class distinction-drawer, and unreservedly recommend him.

FRIARS AND RAMS TANGLE

As far as Little Rhody's sports fraternity is concerned, all roads will lead to Kingston tomorrow night where the fighting Friars from Smith Hill and the rollicking Rams from South County will renew their basketball hostilities before a capacity crowd. It shapes up definitely as another court classic that promises to duplicate past games between these colleges in the matter of rugged play and thrills.

With both teams putting on the pressure when facing each other, athletic competition between Providence and State has always waxed hotly. And with both sides determined to emerge from the fray on the long end of the score, tomorrow night's encounter certainly should be no exception.

Many will point to the Friars' rather unimpressive record and say that they will provide no opposition for the Rams. However, when the Rams and the Friars tangle, you can nonchalantly toss past performances into the proverbial waste basket, as has been proved in the past.

History Repeats Itself

There is an old saying that history repeats itself and a great many Providence supporters are looking for it to do just that tomorrow night. Last year's setup prior to the second game was pretty much the same as the present. Keane's lads defeated the "Gen's" boys at the Arena early in the season. But the lads from Providence bounced right back at a re-rounding smack to upset the favored Rams at Kingston later in the second game. Many of the Friar rooters will point to this and say that Providence will duplicate this feat.

Providence is conceded a chance of turning the trick, but it's a slim one. State has a decided edge over their rivals from Smith Hill in practically all departments of play. Speed, shooting, experience and condition are all on the side of the Rams. This, plus the teams' records to date, gives the Kingstonsians all the better of the argument.

P. C. Smarting From Last Year

But you can't count out the Friars as easily as that. They happen to have a few scores to settle with the lads from down Kingston way, and there's no time like the present. Providence is still smarting from last year's baseball and football defeats and the recent basketball setback. So, a triumph tomorrow night would sort of even things up a bit.

On the other hand, State, New England Conference champs, would like nothing better than to make it two straight over Providence. A victory would also enhance their chances of representing New England in the basketball tournament to be conducted in the Madison Square Garden in the near future. Furthermore, it would definitely assure them of the Rhode Island and the mythical New England Intercollegiate hoop diadems. It's the Rams' final scheduled game of the season and there's nothing like fading out of the picture in a blaze of glory.

There's plenty of incentive for both teams to put forth their finest brand of basketball. And you can count on the boys doing just that.

About the only things definite in regards to the forthcoming contest are that the turnstiles will click a merry tune and that there'll be action and thrills aplenty.

TIME CHANGED

John E. Farrell, graduate manager of athletics, announced yesterday that the starting time of next Tuesday's basketball games at Harkins Hall have been moved ahead at the request of the Lowell Textile team. The Freshman game will start at 7 o'clock with the varsity tap-off scheduled for 8:15.

There are still a few tickets available for the Ram-Friar basketball game tomorrow night at Kingston. Tickets are $1.10 and may be obtained at the athletic office. Tomorrow's Freshman game will start at 6:30 o'clock with the varsity tilt held for 8 o'clock. Dancing will be held after the games.

his Master of Science degree in 1932 and his Doctorate in 1934.

Dr. Quirk was born in Nasonville, Rhode Island, on January 24, 1908. He became affiliated with the Providence College faculty in 1934 as professor of physics. He now resides in the vicinity of the College.

In tendering his resignation, Jack Egan extended his best wishes to his successor and to the Rev. Robert G. Quinn, O.P., Director of Athletics.

Egan became head baseball coach in 1935, succeeding the late Jack Flynn. In his first season, the Friars won 11 games, lost eight, and tied one. In 1936, Providence was victorious in 15 out of 25 contests. Last year, the Friars won 13 while losing 10.

The new coach expects to begin indoor battery practice at the conclusion of the basketball season, one week from tomorrow. Outdoor drills will commence as soon as the weather permits.

Coach Quirk announced that there will be a wide open race for all positions on the baseball team. He invites every student in the college to try out for baseball, for only in this way, he believes, can he build the strongest possible nine for Providence College.

OUTDOOR GRID DRILLS START ON WEDNESDAY

Coach Hugh Devore announced yesterday that on next Tuesday all candidates for varsity football will receive uniforms. With the expected arrival of the assistant coaches, Ed Croft and Joe Dulkie, on Wednesday outdoor practice will begin. This date has been set tentatively; if weather conditions do not allow outside work, practice will be continued in the gym.

Guzman Hall, Freshmen Tied

Deadlocked for Lead In Intramural League; Seniors Bow To Campus Club

Guzman Hall and the Freshmen remain deadlocked for the intramural basketball lead as the results of the games played Wednesday night in Harkins Hall. The hitherto undefeated Senior aggregation dropped from the select group by falling before the Campus Club five.

The Campus Club's 41-37 upset victory over the Seniors featured this week's set of intramural league games. Bill Carter and Burt Holdridge, scoring 17 and 15 points respectively, were mainly responsible for their team's unexpected win over the favored overclassmen. The Boarders pulled away to an early lead and were never headed thereafter. Leo Fischer with 18 points and portly Ray Belliveau with 12 markers excelled for the losers.

In the first encounter of the evening, the undefeated Guzman five kept their record intact by edging the Sophomores 34-31, in a sea-saw tilt which saw the lead change hands six times during the last four minutes of play. Farrell paced Mal Brown's aggregation to victory with a total of 13 points. Lacey was high man for the losers with six field goals.

The Friars Club quintet broke into the win column for the first time this season by noising out the Juniors, 21-20, in a nip and tuck affair. Harry Speckman and Ed Banahan led their five to victory. Marr of the losers kept pace with the leading scorers by garnering eight points.

Maintaining their undefeated record, the Freshmen trounced the Cowl hoopers, 40-14, in a rough and loose-ly played game. The winners encountered little trouble in chalking up their third straight win. Reynolds and Barry of the Frosh and Byron of the Cowl left the game via the foul route. Gardner and Keenan tallied half their team's points.

Friars Lose Three, Win One on Road

During the recent road trip the basketball team, encountering some of the stiffest opposition it has been called upon to face this season, managed to win one of the three games. On Saturday evening the Friars lost to City College of New York 57-33. A late rally brought a 41-40 victory over East Stroudsburg on Monday. But on Tuesday Villanova proved too strong as it gained a 50-33 triumph.

In their game with City College, the Friars were unable to get their offense working early enough and were forced to fight uphill all the way. The play of Joe Kwasniewski and Captain Ed Bobinski kept Providence in the ball game time and again by cutting the home five's lead which was established in the early stages.

Bill Spinner's basket with but four seconds of play remaining provided the margin by which the team turned back East Stroudsburg. Outscored in the first half, the combination of Bobinski-Crowley-Ploski was not to be denied in the final period and evened the count in the closing minutes.

R. I. State-P. C. Hoopsters Meet In Return Game

rapid fire and long range shooting from all angles of the court. Team play is stressed by the Smith Hillers while emphasis is laid on individual play by the Kingstonsians. And with such outstanding individual stars as Jaworski, Tashjian, and Fabricant, State can well afford to do this.

With the New England Conference crown already clinched, a victory over Providence would greatly enhance the chances of R. I. State of representing New England in the basketball tournament to be staged at New York in the near future. State leads the New England court parade with a record of 18 wins in 20 starts.

Coach Keane's starting five will have Chet Jaworski, New England's high scorer, and Ed Tashjian, second to Jaworski in scoring, at the forwards; rangy Dave Parington at center, and Morry Fabricant, one of New England's finest defensive players, and Ed Caprellin in the back court.

Bobinski, Ploski Start

Coach Al "Gen" McClellan is undecided about his starting team, but it is very probable that he will start Leo Ploski and John "Wink" Crowley in the front court; Captain Ed Bobinski at center, and Joe Kwasniewski and Bill Spinner at the guards. Paul Sweeney, John "Slip" Barnini, Eli Deuse, Jimmy Leo and Paul Farley are expected to see plenty of action in reserve roles.

Captain Bobinski, Ploski, and Spinner will be facing the Rams for the final time in three years of varsity competition. Crowley and Farley, other seniors, will also be making their last collegiate appearance against State.

On next Tuesday in their final home appearance of the season, Providence will be heavily favored to triumph over the Lowell Text five which has an unimpressive record of only four victories in 17 games. Lowell's four victories were scored at the expense of Fall River Textile, Amer. International, Alumni, and Assumption.

Uncle Peter

Once there was a man named Uncle Pete who used to write pretty good columns. A little bit of humor here, a very little bit there; a good humor here, and a Coco-Cola there (with a doff of the bonnet to J. Ford McGowan) and before you knew it, he had a column written. His mother always liked it. That made it unanimous, because Uncle Peter liked it too.

Then one day he read in what is politely termed the secular press where Henry McLemore had taken a vacation. Guest stars were taking his place. Columnist Winchell had somebody bat for him when he went away. Uncle P. asked Myrna Loy to do a series for him but she said the only cereal she could stand was Quaker Oats. So U. Oatmeal Peter turned to Snowwhite. Well to make a long story short, this week's columnist is Hugh J. Devore, new football coach at Providence College.

Mr. Devore says in his column entitled: Uncle Peter Overlooks the Alumni—"To the Alumni of Providence College:

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the inspiring reception which you accorded me on my arrival to Providence.

"It is my desire to give the College and the Alumni a football team that will reflect in its actions that same spirit which you have conveyed through your actions since my arrival.

"The short time that has elapsed since my arrival makes it impossible for me to give you an idea of the material we have on hand.

"Again thank you for the splendid cooperation, and my best wishes to you."

Thank you, Coach Devore. Happy is The Cowl that it should be chosen to print your first written comments on the situation at Friar Hill, entirely unghost handled, as anyone can see. We know you are going to have good seasons; because after reading the above it is obvious that you are a very fine football coach. So good luck to you and the whole team.

Now don't go away, my friends. Next week—yes, next week—the management will give away a silver plated—absolutely, it's guaranteed—cup and soup tureen, with every issue of The Cowl sold bearing a column written by Joseph H. Lyons, president of the Alumni Association. Right this minute Joe is home looking over old copies of the Brown Alumni quarterly, and we should have a message of utmost importance for every man who ever finished P.C. owing the institution money.

Of course, if there develops a clamor and the alumni wants me back—well, frankly, I'll be more surprised than you. I did pick up a fact or two at the Alumni Ball that I could tell you about. Being the gentleman that I was, I called up their escorts the following day and told them that I took the facts home o.k. Now do you want me to come and report the didoes and doings next week—or will you settle with or for, Miss Loy?

You'd better think quickly about whom you want to write this column in the next few weeks, because just let me get at a typewriter and I'll spend my venom telling you how lousy you contributed to the Building Fund Drive. If it weren't for outsiders, we'd have no student residence hall at all. See you next week.

METROPOLITAN CLUB FETES BASKETBALLERS

The Providence College Club of New York entertained the basketball team, the coach and manager and the faculty director of athletics at a luncheon held in the Hotel Lexington on Saturday, Feb. 26th. The visitors were welcomed by John J. O'Neill, President of the Club, and Dr. George Whitby, who acted as toastmaster.

Pyramid Players Give Three Plays

A moderately large audience witnessed the three one-act plays which were presented under student direction by the Pyramid Players, College dramatic organization, last Sunday evening in Harkins Hall.

The Quay in a seaport town in Ireland during the Irish Rebellion of 1854 provided the setting for "The Rising of the Moon" by Lady Gregory. The cast included Thomas Farrell, '41, Paul Davis, '41, Frank McInnis, '39, and James Brady, '38. John J. Andre, '39, was the director.

Walter F. Gibbons, '39, Daniel F. Murphy, '39, and Louise Sullivan, guest artist, appeared in "A Minute", a costume play in rhyme couplets by Louis N. Parker. The play was based on the "Reign of Terror" during the French revolution and was directed by Eugene J. McElroy, '39.

Pre-marital difficulties were the theme for "The Bride Wore Red Pyjamas", by Harold J. Kennedy, directed by Raymond F. Baker, '38. Included in the cast were Michael Jenkins, '41, John Bucklin, '38, Thomas Farrell, '41, and Alice Haberlin and Rosalind Turbitt, guest artists.

Michael Massad, '38, was stage manager for all three productions.

FRENCH CLUB MEETS MAR. 9

The next meeting of "La Pleiade", Providence College French Club, will be held on March 9, at 2:30 p.m., in room 22.

FACULTY MEMBERS GIVE LENTEN COURSES

Several of the Providence College faculty will preach in Providence and nearby communities during the Lenten Season. Rev. Nicholas H. Serror, O.P., will preach at St. Pius, Providence, on Sundays, and at the Good Shepherd Convent on Wednesdays.

The following will preach on Wednesdays: Rev. Francis L. Kelly, O.P., at St. Theresa's, Providence; Rev. James B. McGwin, O.P., at St. Raymond's, Providence; Rev. Francis J. Fanning, O.P., at Sacred Heart, East Providence; Rev. Thomas M. McGlynn, O.P., at St. Rose, Meriden, Conn.; Rev. Adrian T. English, O.P., at St. Mary's, New Haven, Conn.; and Rev. Irving A. Georges, O.P., at St. Mary's, Norwich, Conn.

FRIARS SELECT MEMBERS

The Friars Club met last night at 7:30 in Room 14 to select members from the Freshman class. The selections will be announced next week, after they have been approved by the Dean.
