Kickoff at 2:30 p. m.

Heartened considerably by their second half comeback against the powerful Crusaders up at Worcester last Saturday, the Fighting Friars will be in search of victory number one when they invade Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn, on Sunday afternoon for the second successive year to exchange pigskin strategy with the Blackbirds of Long Island University.

Boasting a line that averages slightly better than 200 pounds per man and a dangerous forward passing combination of Bob Trocolar, 210-pound back, and "Dolly King, six-feet, two-inch, 215-pound negro end, Long Island downed Brooklyn College 6-0 in their seasonal opener. The Blackbirds completed 11 out of 22 passes for 130 yards, and one of these, a Trocolar-to-King aerial, resulted in the winning score.

Superb physical condition enabled the Friars to emerge from the Cross contest without any serious injuries. Everyone, with the possible exception of Ed Haponik, who has a sprained ankle, will be ready to go against the Blackbirds. Ray Kowalski will take over the left halfback post and Johnny Stonkus will start at fullback. Either Jugues or Yockers will be at right half and Pettine will call the signals. Slingin' Sam Iorio, whose all-around play against the Crusaders was noteworthy, is due to see plenty of action in the Sabbath conflict.

The team will leave for New York by train tomorrow evening and return via the same route immediately after the game Sunday night.

President Names Class Moderators

Appointment of 15 professors as moderators of classes and extra-curricular organizations at the college were announced this week by Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O. P., president.

Moderators of organizations include: Rev. Irving A. Georges, O. P., band and orchestra; Rev. Leo S. Cannon, O. P., choir and glee club; Rev. A. P. Regan, O. P., debating; Rev. Charles V. Fennell, O. P., The Cowl, student weekly; Rev. John T. McGregor, O. P., The Veritas, college annual; Rev. Donald Reilly, O. P., The Alembic, school quarterly; Rev. Edward H. Schmid, O. P., the Friars' Club; Rev. Charles H. McKenna, O. P., the Carolan Club; Rev. George Q. Friel, O. P., Rev. Edward H. Gallagher, O. P., and Rev. James T. McKenna, O. P., the Pyramid Players, college dramatic group.

NOTICE

There will be a meeting of all students interested in the formation of a Camera Club in Room 19 next Monday at 1 o'clock. Should a sufficiently large group show interest, lectures in photography and the technique of picture taking will be given.

Gallagher Named Alembic Editor

The appointment of Matthew P. Gallagher, '41, as Editor-in-Chief of the Alembic, student literary publication, was announced yesterday by the Rev. Donald Reilly, O. P., moderator.

New appointments to the staff are Joseph A. Conway, '43, associate editor; Seymour Sherman, '41, and Thomas A. Mulligan, '42, assistant editors.

Appointments in the business department include Joseph O'Shea, '43, business manager; Paul Cummings, '43, assistant business manager, and Joseph M. McLaughlin, '42, circulation manager.

The Alembic Literary clinic which has functioned for the past two years will continue to offer criticism and advice to all students interested in submitting manuscripts.

An appeal, particularly to freshmen and sophomores, was made by the editor, urging them to contribute short stories, essays, poems, or articles. Deadline on all material for the October issue has been set for Friday, October 18. The format will be the same as that of last year.

Charles E. Sweeney, '41, Edward Kaylor, '41, Ira T. Williams, '41, and Charles J. McGovern, '41, will retain their positions as assistant editors.

Miller Named Veritas Chief

Appointments to the staff of The Veritas, Providence College annual, were announced yesterday afternoon by Theodore Miller, '41, of Providence, whose appointment as editor of the yearbook was announced by Rev. John T. McGregor, O. P., at the senior meeting yesterday noon in the Old Auditorium. Miller is a student in the philosophy department.

Appointed as associate editors were John Gibbons, '41, of Pawtucket; Edward Crouchley, '41, of Providence, and Leo McNeerney, '41, of Providence.

George Harley, '41, of Providence, was appointed business manager. Members of the business staff include: Jerome Driscoll, '41, West Warwick; Edward G. O'Brien, '41, Apponaug; Edward MacDougald, Rumford; John

Tramonti, Former Cowl Artist, Rises In Walt Disney Studios

John Tramonti, former Cowl cartoonist, who left Providence College last winter for Hollywood and a tryout with the Walt Disney Studios has in a few short months earned a promotion to the story-sketch department. This is the first such promotion to this department in over two years. Tramonti's promotion came as a result of work creating new and original characters as envisioned by Disney.

On February last, Tramonti left Providence for Hollywood to report to the Walt Disney studios in response to a bid received from that studio for a tryout as an animator. This tryout was to consist of attending a school at the studios for three months, during which he would be paid eighteen dollars a week, for learning how to

Seniors Meet To Nominate Class Officers

Plans for Yearbook Are Outlined By Class Moderator

Nominations for senior class officers were made yesterday noon as the fourth-year men met in the Old Auditorium for their first class meeting of the year.

Plans for the organization of The Veritas, school annual, were discussed by Rev. John T. McGregor, O. P., class moderator, and supervisor of the staff of the annual.

Nominees are: For President—John Gibbons, James Pettine, Sabatini Terrace, Joseph Zalenski, John T. Riley; for Vice-President—Casimir Potera, Edward Keenan, George Gardner.

For Secretary—Francis Roy, Edward Crouchley, Francis Greene, Olindo Nocera; for Treasurer—John Keenan, Matthew Gallagher, Richard Blake, Donald Cronin and John J. McKenna.

Nominees who have been prominent during the last three years in major extra-curricular organizations at the college are John Gibbons, sophomore class president and member of the Pyramid Players; Pettine, junior class vice-president and varsity quarterback; Terrace, intra-mural basketball. Gardner, sophomore vice-president and member of the Pyramid Players.

Also, Sarris, varsity football; Crouchley, Pyramid Players; Greene, The Cowl; John Keenan, varsity baseball; O'Brien, Pyramid Players; Cronin, varsity football.

Francis McCarthy, secretary of the class last year presided at the meeting in the absence of Joseph Howe, president last year.

In explaining his appointment of Theodore Miller as editor of the Veritas, Fr. McGregor said that previously two systems have been tried and that both have been found wanting. He stated that three years ago "acrimonius" debate resulted from the election of the editors by class mem-

JUNIORS TO HOLD HARVEST DANCE

The college social season will be inaugurated on Oct. 18 as the Junior class, traditional social leaders of the college, hold a Harvest Ball in Harkins Hall, from 8 to 12 p. m. Tiny Quinn's orchestra will play for the ball.

The Junior Class held its first meeting of the year yesterday to discuss plans for the dance and for nomination of class officers. Nominations will be made next week, and the class officers will be officially inducted at the Harvest Ball.

GRAY BECOMES COWL EDITOR

Mulligan and Rosen Are Named Assistant Editors

Henry L. Gray, Jr., '41, of East Providence, managing editor of The Cowl during his junior year and a staff reporter during his freshman and sophomore years, succeeds Charles E. Sweeney, '41, of Edgewood, as editor, with the present publication of the paper.

During the past three years Gray has been member of the International Relations Union, the Debating Union and the Pyramid Players, college dramatic group.

The naming of editors of The Cowl usually comes immediately after the end of the first-semester, but Sweeney's resignation because of work outside of the college, resulted in the appointment of Gray until the end of the present semester. Immediately after mid-year examinations a new editor and editorial board will be appointed.

Gray announced yesterday that all freshmen, who have not already joined the staff and who are interested in working on The Cowl should make their intentions known immediately. Positions are open on the editorial, business and advertising staffs.

Francis X. McCarthy, '41, of East Providence was renamed sports editor.

Other members of the editorial board who will hold their positions until January when seniors will resign and underclassmen will be promoted include Louis Rosen, '42, Cranston, and Thomas A. Mulligan, '42, of Providence, assistant editors; Ira T. Williams, Jr., '41, of Providence, feature editor; Joseph A. McLaughlin, '42, of Providence, circulation manager; and John Cronin, '41, of Valley Springs, Minnesota, business and advertising manager.

Cronin succeeds John M. Reynolds, '40, Providence, as advertising manager, and James R. McGowan, '41, of Providence, as business manager.

AQUINO CLUB MEETS

The Aquino Club held an informal meeting yesterday to discuss plans for the coming school year. An election will be held shortly to elect officers for the group. M. Macarusso, '42, treasurer, presided.

300 Freshmen Enter College

President Urges Students To Be Prepared to Defend Their Freedom

Providence College formally opened its 22nd academic year on Tuesday of last week when the Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O. P., president, addressed more than 300 freshmen and returning sophomores. Following a matriculation Mass celebrated by the Rev. Charles H. McKenna, O. P., college chaplain, the students also heard addresses of welcome by Rev. Arthur H. Chandler, O. P., dean, and Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O. P., assistant dean.

The assembly marked the second day of the four-day opening program. On Monday, Freshman Day, the incoming class was welcomed by the dean and assistant dean, and registered under the supervision of Rev. Daniel M. Gallier, O. P., registrar. The class was presented with handbooks edited by Louis C. FitzGerald, head of the college news bureau.

On Wednesday the Juniors registered under Rev. Daniel M. Gallier, O. P., registrar, and heard an address of welcome by Father Chandler.

Seniors and Juniors heard an address by Father Dillon on Thursday. Following the address Seniors registered and arranged programs. Classes began for the upperclassmen on Friday.

Speaking to the Freshmen and Sophomores, Father Dillon said, "Private educational institutions enjoying academic freedom in this country of ours can play an important part in the national emergency by developing educated individuals of exemplary moral character and capable of effective and courageous leadership.

"Such an education will contribute to the security of a nation and the preservation of democratic ideals," Father Dillon continued. "Bear in mind that religion is for vigorous, courageous men of action, and democracy is not the right to an easy and soft living, the life of least resistance in the lap of Uncle Sam; it is not the right to selfish liberty. I mention the security of religion for without religion intrigue, treachery, decadent morals and a soft generation results, a generation which will not do an honest day's work, nor be ready to serve. God forbid that such a generation will be found in America when the call comes."

The president urged the students to "keep your eyes and ears open in this emergency and your mind on your studies, religious and secular, ever prepared to do your part."

In his speech to the upperclassmen on Thursday, Father Dillon, after welcoming the returning Juniors and Seniors back to their studies and sympathizing with students abroad, said, "In this citadel of peace — in this stronghold of democracy — we open our college year with a Holy Mass which should drive home to you the freedom of worship which we enjoy. Again, I stand up here with the right to speak freely, a circumstance which should make you realize our American freedom of speech. You have selected your career, and we conduct this private college where we are blessed with benefactors, for all this is due to our democratic foundation of free enterprise the backbone of

OPPORTUNITY

With the opening of the 22nd academic year at Providence College, all student organizations, athletic, social and cultural are depending upon the members of a large first-year class to inject new vitality into the varied extra-curricular program on Bradley Hill.

First-year men should realize that aside from the major duties of paying close attention to their studies there remain other functions at the college which are vital in producing rounded personalities. The "little" man whose interests and ambitions are glued to a very narrow field is respected as such and for nothing more. But for the student who balances his collegiate program to include not only scholarship but extra-curricular activities has the respect of the entire student body and procures for himself a healthier and happier mental outlook.

At the college there are activities which fall within the field of interest of every freshman. In the writing field there are The Veritas, The Cowl and The Alembic, all demanding separate styles of approach and all providing excellent proving grounds for prospective writers no matter what their fields. The Pyramid Players and the Debating Union give excellent training for all those who wish to improve or to acquire an easy flow of speech and an effortless, attractive personality.

For the freshman whose major interest is in athletics and who is not physically able to participate in varsity sports, the college has initiated during the past two years a successful program of intra-mural sports which provide absorbing activities for lovers of sports. Regional clubs, class committees and such organizations as the Friars' Club and the Carolan Club give ample opportunity for all to participate in the social activities at the college. Science and language clubs give the student a chance to put added emphasis on studies in which he is particularly interested.

When considered as a whole, Providence College student functions present a balanced and rounded pattern which adds much to the vitality of the college and which often means the difference between loneliness and recognition to the individual student.

Freshmen, therefore, should show no hesitancy in deciding upon activities with which to ally themselves. The only major requirement for a prospective member in any of the clubs is the probability that the student will produce effectively and that he show consistent interest in the organization.

New Professors Named to Faculty

Former Providence Graduate Among Appointees

Several changes in the faculty including the appointment of new professors as well as the reappointing of former members of faculty have been announced by the Very Reverend John J. Dillon, president. Among the new appointees is an alumnus of the College.

Rev. Aquinas Edward McDermott, O.P., a native of New Bedford, and a graduate of Catholic University, has been appointed to the French department to replace Prof. William B. S. Smith who has been granted a leave of absence to study Indo-Iranian languages at Columbia University. Father McDermott, who was ordained in 1929, comes here from the Dominican Academy in Oakland Park, Illinois, to which he returned last year after extensive French studies at Sorbonne.

Rev. Ernest Albert Hogan, O.P., a graduate of Providence College, has been appointed assistant librarian. A native of Boston, Father Hogan was ordained in 1928 and received his degree in library science at Catholic University in Washington.

Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., who received his Ph. D. degree at Catholic University last June, has completed his leave of absence and has returned to the sociology department.

Rev. John V. Fitzgerald, O.P., who has been studying at the University of Penn. during the past summer, has been granted leave to continue his studies at the Catholic University.

Rev. Bernard A. McLaughlin, O.P., has returned to the department of Business Administration, after his sabbatical leave during which he completed work at Catholic University for a Doctorate in Business Administration.

Prof. Daniel M. Lilly has returned to the Biology department after a year's leave, during which he did advanced work at Brown.

Rev. Edward C. LaMore, O.P., who was appointed to the faculty in 1935, has been assigned to the staff of St. Joseph's College in Adrian, Mich., where he will be temporary head of the Philosophy department.

Rev. James M. Murphy, O.P., former professor of Philosophy at Dayton University, has been assigned to the Philosophy department here.

Rev. Louis F. Kelly, O.P., member of the faculty since 1930, has received appointment to the Central Mission Band of Dominicans at Zanesville, Ohio.

Rev. Maurice O'Leary, O.P., who was professor of Religion at Catholic University last year, has been assigned to the College as a member of the Eastern Mission Band. He will

By T. M. and J. A.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN! But don't read. Once you have engulfed yourself in this maze of mischievous material, we can not assist you. If you have high or low blood pressure and are allegeric to an overdose of clean, wholesome, and unadulterated literature, go no further. If you are one of those who thinks that the great English Bard's stuff is tommyrot, cease, we say, cease the perusal of this column pay excellence. We warn you, there is no antidote. And so dear friends, and you are our friends, with this admonition, we bear forth to you and for you our initial galley of newsy news.

As we are wont to do as official welcomers, we greet you of the freshman class. May your years here at Providence College be many and prosperous. May you forever uphold our age old adage, "A P. C. man is a gentleman always—whether at the table or under the table." (For further info on such etiquette, see any of the senior business students.)

And now divulging momentarily into the personality angle we doff our caps to the new keeper of the "Alembic" keys, Matt Gallagher. Incidentally, Matt is the fellow who says, "Well, rumple my hair and call me Willkie." We are certain that those starting their first year under Dominican tutelage, will give active support and co-operation to Matt and the entire Alembic staff.

Summer Slants: This past vacation has been, and has not been such for the P. C. boys. From what we gather, most of the fellows performed manual labor of some sort or another during the last couple of months. Two or three of the Fall River aggregation went before the mast. Upon seeing them at the start of school, we were reminded of Longfellow's immortal "The Village Blacksmith"—the muscles of his tan brown arms, stand out like iron bands." We had thought that one of our brother Cowlites had not teach any classes the first semester.

Father Dillon also announced the appointment of Dominican Lay Brothers to assist with the duties of the Porter's office.

Brother Francis Connolly, O.P., who became the friend of many students while at the college, has been transferred to St. Dominic's Priory, where he will replace Brother Dominic King, O.P., who has been assigned here.

Brother John Santoro, O.P., who has been at St. Raymond's parish, this city, has also been assigned to the college.

"done gone and left us," but he showed up the early part of the week. He informed us that he had to take a trip to Washington, D. C., for his health. Does this bespeak a belle femme? Jim Duffy has been making money hand over fist by holding down two jobs. That's politics for you. Any of the boys who live hereabouts could be seen bi-weekly over at Rhodes. Some of the boys with Daedalian blood running through their veins have done right well for themselves. From what we-uns hear a couple of them will be teaching the intricacies of aviation to other air-minded aspirants in the near future. Because he's well-bred, Lou Fraga assisted Bond & Co. in delivering the "staff of life" to thousands down Cape Cod way. That bashful sophomore hailing from Attleboro, who starred for the freshman basketball and baseball teams last year and whose initials are Edward Andrew L. kept one of his fair city's jewelry shops out of the red during the summer. And who was the incoming freshman who had himself called "Weatherstrip" during the summer, so he could avoid the draft?

True to the colors of black and white, our gridiron laborers fought a valiant battle up Worcester way on Saturday last. It was unfortunate indeed that the Cross boys tallied so many times in the opening half. Cuz without a doubt, the Fighting Friars outplayed the Purple Crusaders in the latter half. But there'll come a day.

So sorry, we have to write finis to this column. The Ed. tells us that it's time for the Cowl—the first issue of the sixth volume—to go to press. And so we take leave of you with this parting remark. This column is one thousand per cent behind the Detroit Tigers in the current series. The reason lies in the fiery backstop of the Tigers, our own George "Birdie" Tebbetts, former Friar star under the late Jack Flynn.

Extension School Opens Session

The regular winter session of the Providence College Extension School, offering 41 courses in 11 departments to the public at large, began last Monday evening in Harkins Hall and will continue for 15 weeks until Jan. 25.

There are 14 new subjects open to both men and women. Additional courses for college graduates desiring to become teachers have been added to the Teacher Training division. A course in Church Latin, open to the

Alumni News

Have you been reading lately all the news dispatches concerning Providence College boys? Have you noticed the various members of the alumni association who are outstanding in the professions, business, etc? Well, do you know what? The alumni association through its tireless president, John E. Farrell and its executive group has decided that if the lay press features our boys it's time we gave them a "blow" ourselves . . . hence a weekly column in the under graduate newspaper, The Cowl . . . this alumni column should be sponsored both from a literary and financial standpoint. . . Don't look away. Subscriptions for a year costs $1.00. Get it up boys. . . $1.00. Subscriptions made payable to The Cowl and incidentally they are payable in advance. . . As for the literary angle just send to Dr. Daniel J. O'Neill all the news you might have relative to alumni affairs and it will make one of the editions. . .

This column was carried on admirably last year by one member of the association and he is to be commended for his efforts but remember men we have innumerable outlets and inlets and this column can become the greatest conveyor of alumni news we have ever had. At the price we're getting this for there should be a paucity of squawks. . . Sectional notices can be sent in by the territorial clubs. . . Hats-off briefs by our countless members who hear from day to day something which would prove another P. C. alumnus has made the grade. . . Obits can be printed informing us of our deceased brothers for whom we should pray. . . Yes and for those who have axes on their shoulders they may bury them in the column. . . Gentlemen there are more angles to this setup than I care to write about and if you ever intend to get organized and benefit one from another now is the time. . . Your literary contributions may be written anonymously if you don't care to have your public writing to you. . . Seriously we should try to put this over as nobody is going to miss the $1.00 and there is going to be plenty of enjoyable reading this winter when you pick up an edition of The Cowl and read where H. F. the fellow who never could speak in oratory was considered to be the best public speaker in West Overshoe. . . It is not only a means of entertainment but also the proper medium through which alumni affairs may be announced. . . This week's hats-off department:

George "Birdie" Tebbetts, the first Providence College alumnus to be an active participant in the World Series.

J. Howard McGrath, Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

"Ned" Gael Sullivan, who was written about in the Providence Sunday Journal's special feature section as the assistant mayor of Chicago and the brains behind the throne.

These and many others are the toasts of thousands. Why shouldn't we be proud of them. Let us get behind this move of Mr. Farrell and carry it through to a successful completion. If you have already subscribed try sincerely to get at least 10 other members to subscribe. You haven't any sales resistance to break down because an alumnus of Providence College doesn't have to be sold alumni news, I hope.

general public free of charge, will give an introduction to the language of the liturgy based on selected passages from the missal. This course does not carry any credit.

The business department is offering two new courses in Modern Economic Problems which will consider the economy of the Soviet Union, Italy, and Germany, and the present status of capitalism, and banking and business, emphasizing credit institutions.

Class Program Includes Touch Football League

Director Crotty Announces New Additions to Intra-Murals

Encouraged by the success of the intra-mural basketball and softball programs during the past two years, Director of Physical Education Ed Crotty is inaugurating a new intra-mural touch football program.

The set-up is similar to last spring's softball program wherein clubs and organizations will be represented rather than classes. Any group that can field 11 players and is able to play at the scheduled dates is eligible to enter. Entries will be received no later than next Wednesday noon in order that the schedule may be drawn up and made ready for publication in Friday's Cowl. Mr. Crotty will stage a double elimination tournament closely approximating that conducted by the National Semi-Pro Baseball Association if the entries reach a number that will prevent the playing of a complete schedule. In other words, teams will remain in the running until they are defeated twice.

All games will be played on Hendricken Field, starting at 3 o'clock. Since no equipment will be provided no roll or flying blocks will be allowed; nor will players be permitted to wear cleats of any kind.

Students not yet signed with any team, but desiring to participate in the program, will be placed by Director Crotty.

RING IN THE NEW

It goes without saying that a new academic year is already under way and the athletic record-book is already opened to the first order of business—football. In the first session which took place last Saturday up at Worcester the Friars' main motion was defeated chiefly because the Crusaders turned out to be the better lobbyists and managed to put across their movement before our heroes could rally their forces. As the debate progressed, however, the Friars offered some fancy arguments of their own by way of rebuttal and began to punch all sorts of holes in the Crusaders' platform. The locals' noteworthy performance in the second half can be accredited in no small measure to the effective oratory of Coach Hugh Devore during the recess period, when he planned a better method of attack and defense which enabled them to play the Cross to a standstill. Fact of the matter is, we lost the decision but all hands present can testify that the Friars' last-half spurt easily atoned for its earlier shortcomings. All of which bodes well for the Devoremen's chances of emerging on the right side of the ledger in the majority of the remaining games.

The Cross contest also served as a means of bringing to light talent that has hitherto been hidden or else enclosed with a big question mark. "Slingin" Sam Iorio (with apologies to the Washington Redskins' ace pitcher) was the man of the hour for he not only provided Providence with its only score against the Mt. St. James' representatives in four years but he also served notice on those assembled that he will bear watching as P. C.'s forward passer extraordinaire. The play of Nick Budnowski at end, and Paul Zenobia, Ed Haponik and Johnny Stonkus in the backfield also came in for its share of praise. Of our tried and true veterans Co-Capt. Avedisian and Potera, Joe Sullivan, Jim Pettine, Ted Alexacos and Horace Marone played excellent football.

INTRA-MURALS

Coach Ed Crotty, already a pioneer in the field of Providence College intra-mural athletic activity, has announced that there will be a planned program of intra-mural touch football this fall. He also informs us that Hendricken Field will be at the disposal of you intra-muralites and that any group of 11 men is eligible to enter a team. The season will get under way one week from Monday.

HEARIN' AROUND

Already several members of last year's graduating class have found their way into the teacher-coaching profession. "Slip" Barnini is at Woonsocket high; Jim Leo and Ray Bedard are at Sacred Heart Academy, Central Falls, and Dan "Red" McKinnon is teaching at Goff junior high school in Pawtucket and assisting "Gig" Pariseau with the coaching of the Friar freshmen. . . . First Half Aerial Attack Downs Fighting Friars

Friars, However, Edge Cross in Second Half Of Game

Taking command of the air from the outset, Holy Cross' Crusaders managed to push across four scores in the first half—three of them on forward passes—and rolled past the Friars, 34-6, for the 17th Crusader victory in 19 starts against Providence.

Ed Haponik, fleet Taunton halfback, threw a scare into the Sheeketski-coached eleven when he grabbed the opening kickoff on the Providence 15-yard stripe and weaved his way to the Crusader 44 before being brought down.

Two short jabs at the Purple line combined with an offside penalty carried the Friars to the 23 before the drive was halted when the Cross recovered an Iorio fumble. From this point on Andy Natowich took charge and before the half-time gun the Purple was in front, 27-0.

A Natowich-to-Hudson pass shortly before the close of the first period, broke the scoring ice. It was good for 29 yards. Tyksinski, on an off tackle slant, added the second touchdown, and two passes, Tom Sullivan to Ed Murphy, and Jack Bezemes to Bill Mulcahey were good for the others.

After the half-time rest, the Friars roared back and added a score of their own while holding the powerful Cross to seven points.

Late in the fourth canto, after Natowich had added the fifth Holy Cross score, Sam Iorio rifled a pair of passes to Joe Sullivan good for 30 yards and then whipped one to Budnowski. The latter made his way to the 12 before being stopped. Iorio battered the remaining distance himself.

Frosh Candidates Show Promise

With a keen eye on the opening game against Rhode Island State first-year men Coach "Gig" Pariseau wasted no time in getting his yearling squad off to an early start. With two weeks of practice already to their credit the candidates are beginning to mould into a well-rounded club.

Thus far the Friarlets have two home games on their schedule, opening with Rhode Island State freshmen on October 17, and winding up against a strong Holy Cross freshman eleven on October 25.

Just as the extras in his favorite cigarette...Camel...make the difference between smoking and smoking pleasure at its best.

I TURNED TO CAMELS FOR EXTRA MILDNESS AND FOUND SEVERAL OTHER SWELL EXTRAS, TOO, INCLUDING EXTRA SMOKING. SLOWER BURNING SURE IS THE TICKET FOR STEADY SMOKING

● WATCH OUT, PAR—here comes Little! No, Lawson Little is never content unless he can better par...in his golf...in his cigarette. "I want all the mildness I can get," he says. "Camels burn slower and give me extra mildness." Yes, Camels give all the qualities you want in a cigarette plus an extra measure of each. The extra flavor of costlier tobaccos preserved by slower burning. The natural mildness of costlier tobaccos plus freedom from the irritating qualities of too-fast burning. Extra pleasure—and extra value (see right).

- EXTRA MILDNESS
- EXTRA COOLNESS
- EXTRA FLAVOR

In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to

TRAMONTI

Features. For his ingenuity Tramonti received first prize as well as the thrill of seeing his creations in newspapers from coast to coast.

That Tramonti is on his way to the top in his chosen field is exemplified by the character and determination which has been his constant ally. He worked for months to get a tryout with the Walt Disney studios. Animation studios all over the country were flooded with the applications and drawings of the youth. After sending many samples of his cartoons to the Disney studios, Tramonti finally received a talent test from the studio in the summer of '39.

The Providence youth spent approximately one month and a half filling in tests which dealt with the various actions of typical Disney characters. The test was submitted and the studio responded with an offer to Tramonti to work as a tracer in the story department. Believing that the offer was not sufficient, Tramonti remained at home and continued to send the Disney studios samples of his work until last December, when he gave up and started to send his cartoons elsewhere.

Then like a bolt from the blue came the new offer and Tramonti was quick to grasp it.

Drawing cartoons has been second nature with young Tramonti ever since he was seven or eight years old. When he was twelve he started studying at the Rhode Island School of Design on Saturdays, taking courses in creative drawing and expression.

When he entered La Salle Academy in 1936 he set up a small studio of his own in the corner of his room. While in High School he did sports and political cartoons for the old Star-Tribune and The Providence Visitor.

Upon his matriculation to Providence College last fall Tramonti immediately became art editor of the Veritas, College yearbook, a position usually reserved for seniors. He was also art editor for Cowl and designed several sets for the Pyramid Players.

ago, is back at these halls taking up graduate studies. . . . The Providence Steam Roller professional football team is generously sprinkled with ex-Friar footballers: Paul Sweeney, Gig Pariseau, Charley O'Keefe, Jim Leo and Ben Polak. Polak scored the touchdown and O'Keefe place-kicked the winning point last Sunday against the Jersey City Giants. . . . Congratulations to George "Birdie" Tebbetts, ex-Friar backstopper, for his share in helping the Detroit Tigers to the American League pennant. The Tiger pitching staff seemed to reach peak efficiency when "Birdie" was calling the slants and Schoolboy Rowe's sensational comeback can be accredited in no small manner to the former Friar's assistance. . . . The bitter must be taken along with the sweet, they say, and "Birdie" can tell you that they're not just kidding. For on last Friday afternoon when he was sitting in the Tiger bullpen along with the aforementioned Schoolboy Rowe while his mates were clinching the A. L. flag at Municipal Stadium, Cleveland, a full basket of fruit was dropped from the upper stands, knocking him unconscious. By the time he was revived in the Tiger dressing room, the police had apprehended the fruit-thrower and "Birdie" took care of him while "the police admired the Cleveland landscape."

Drama Group Discuss Plays

Thomas J. Farrell, '41, production manager for the Pyramid Players, college dramatic organization, announced yesterday that the dramatic group will sponsor three productions during the current scholastic year.

The schedule includes production of one major play in December, three one-act plays in November, and the annual college musical comedy in the spring. Plays under consideration for the major dramatic production in December are "Both Your Houses" by Maxwell Anderson; "Safe Crossing" by Courtney Savage, and "Cyrano de Bergerac" by Rostand.

Farrell also announced that a synopsis for the musical comedy written by Francis Stadnicki, '43, will be used as a basis for the musical comedy script.

At the meeting a new policy for the dramatic group was outlined by Farrell. This year all members of the group will be obliged to act as stage hands, scenery designers, and technicians when not taking active part in any of the productions. All the work of the group will be rotated in order to give as many as possible a chance to display their talents and in order to divide the more monotonous tasks.

Choral Clubs Start Practice

The student Choir and Glee Club began rehearsals last week with a large enrollment of new members as well as many former members, under the direction of Rev. Leo S. Cannon, O.P., moderator.

The choir will make its first appearance this year at a Solemn High Mass in the students' chapel in Aquinas Hall on Sunday at 9 o'clock. They will sing the Mass "Stella Matutina" by Vito Varnivale. "Concordi Laetitia" will be sung by the entire group at the Offertory.

The Mass, which will be sung by Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., president, is in honor of Rosary Sunday.

Seniors Nominate Miller Named Veritas Chief

bers. The past two years, he said, staff members have elected the editor and this system proved faulty. He said that he was positive of Miller's qualifications and asked for further cooperation from the class.

It was also announced that Miller was to appoint staff members including the business and advertising managers. Tentative date for the annual Veritas dance was set for Feb. 21.

The moderator said that the class president will appoint all members of all committees but that the other three class officers have the right, by a unanimous vote, to squash any one appointment made by the president.

It was also announced by the moderator that the class will not select the studio which will take individual pictures for the year-book but that the selection will be made by the staff of the annual.

Roses will be blessed and distributed before the Mass.

Membership in the choir includes: John Falco, '44, William Duffy, '44, Max Knickenbocher, '44, William Cantanchi, '44, George Wilkinson, '44, Carroll Gettings, '44, Theophilo Vincent,
