FIGHTING FRIARS BLITZ RAMS

Nineteen New Courses Are To Be Inaugurated

Most Departments to Offer Defense Subjects

Students will be allowed to choose among nineteen new defense training courses to be inaugurated on January 26 with the beginning of the spring session. Almost every department has made provision for one or more specialized courses dealing with various phases of the country's war effort, it was announced by the Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O.P., acting dean.

College authorities announced that every student will be allowed to drop a course from his regular program and choose one of the courses to be introduced.

The Biology department will add three more courses to its program. They are Clinical Laboratory Technique, Public Health and First Aid, and Nutritional Science.

Courses to be introduced by the Business department will include Industrial Management, Statistics, and Control.

The Physics department contemplates the inauguration of four additional courses: Practical Terrestrial Navigation, Practical Celestial Navigation, Practical Meteorology, and Photography.

The department of Political Science announces two new subjects intended to provide an academic background for those who may take civilian or political posts. They are Latin American Relations, and Far East Relations.

Subjects to be offered by the Sociology department will include Civilian Morale, Training for War Time living, and Occupational Guidance.

Other courses to be offered will be The American Language, Plane Trigonometry, and the Theory and Practice in Choral Singing.

The Economics of War, and Economic Geography will be the new courses offered by the department of Economics.

Details of the various courses will be given soon, and registration for changes must be made before Wednesday, January 21.

Debating Union Plans Road Tour

An extensive program has been planned by the Providence College Debating Union. In addition to several home debates, the Union is to undertake the road tour during the latter part of February and the first part of March. Among the colleges which the forensic barnstormers will engage are: Holy Cross, St. John's of Brooklyn, Riders College, the University of New Hampshire, Tufts, Vermont, Middlebury of Vermont, and Villanova. Syracuse, Brothers of New Jersey, St. Peter's, and Maine are also included.

These colleges boast some of the best debating teams in New York and New England. The debating team of Bates has often been acclaimed as one of the best in the nation. The

Annual Jump Is Planned

Snow, Or No Snow, the Show Must Go On

The famous Mid-Winter Festival, which takes place annually in Harkins Hall, will be held on Friday evening, Jan. 26.

Since it is difficult to predict whether or not sufficient snow will be present to provide for the well-known sports events, it was announced, provisions are also being made for indoors entertainment.

Leading bands will be there, via Victor Records, to contribute their share of the evening's merriment, and many other events are being planned, including games of chance—or what have you—and the drawing of prizes.

The most muscle-bound gentleman of the evening will be seized upon to reign as the spirit of the gala festivities. He probably will be crowned as queen, if he seems properly shaven, and seated on a cake of melting ice.

It has been suggested that this event may be the only one of its kind for months to come, as an added inducement to those who are sensitive about their ski-jumping attainments.

Economic Relations Discussed By Forum

At a meeting of the St. Antonius Society held last Wednesday evening in Harkins Hall Max Knickerbocker, '44, spoke on "Economic Relations Between the Americas". Stressing the importance of the strategical resources of South America in our war effort now that the Malayan peninsula and the Dutch East Indies have been lost to us as far as these resources are concerned, the speaker declared, "The success of our "Good Neighbor" policy will be evidenced by the amount of cooperation which we obtain from our Latin-American neighbors in supplying us with needed raw materials."

Prior to the address a business meeting was held at which a publicity committee composed of Jerome Collins, '44, and John Stafford, '44, was named. The officers were instructed to formulate a statement of objectives and to draw up a constitution to be presented for approval at the next meeting of the society.

The Post-War Reconstruction Program will be the subject of the next meeting and will be delivered by John Gerhard, '44.

FITZGERALD SPEAKS

Louis C. FitzGerald, director of publicity at the College, will speak at the Monday Night Club in Newport on January 19.

Mr. FitzGerald will discuss public relations and the problems that face a publicity director. He will show movies illustrating his lecture. The talk will follow a dinner in the Mary street Y.M.C.A. in Newport.

FATHER DILLON REVEALS PLANS FOR 'TRIMESTER'

Commencement Date Is Moved Up To May 11

Providence College will inaugurate year-round sessions with the opening of the second semester on January 26th, the Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., president of the College, announced to the students at an assembly yesterday morning.

The new schedule was listed as a program of "trimester" instead of semester. The President of the College said that the College would conduct three sessions a year, with the summer session scheduled to begin June 1. The students were also told that the College would accept a freshman class in June at least for 1942. A freshman class will also be accepted in September.

The new program has been designed so that students may be graduated by the time they are 20 years old. Commencement for the class of 1942 has been moved up to May 11. Baccalaureate Sunday will be held the day previously with a parents' reception in the evening. Cap and Gown Day, an annual event when the Seniors are invested in their academic garb, is scheduled for April 20.

Father Dillon told the student body that the new acceleration program has been placed before the clerical and lay faculty several days previously. "The faculty," he said, "manifested a wonderful spirit of cooperation and sacrifice and the new system was adapted in principle."

The College does not contemplate holding Saturday sessions according to the outline, in order that many of the students who are earning a part of their tuition may have an opportunity.

170 Couples At Formal

About 170 couples attired in formal dress, danced to the music of Tiny Quinn's orchestra, at the All College Dance held at Harkins Hall last Friday night. The Dance was sponsored by the Carolan Club to purchase letters for Senior varsity athletes.

The committee for arrangements announced that over two hundred dollars was turned over to the Monogram Club for that purpose. This fund will provide sweaters for all Senior and Junior lettermen at the College.

The awarding of two Hamilton wrist watches provided the climax of the evening. The ladies' watch was won by Miss Margaret Nelson of Central Falls, and the gentleman's watch was won by Richard Young, '44 of Fairfield, Conn. The orchestra entertained the dancers with parodies on leading bands.

Arranging the dance were John Yockers, '42, Dominic DiLuglio, '42, John Stonkus, '42; James Coyle, '42; Samuel Iorio, '42; William Quinn, '42; Ross Muenzen, '42; John Kispert, '42; Jerry Collins, '44; John LaVoie, '42; D. Harold Dennis, '42.

Ted McConnon Leads Team To 60-54 Win Over R. I. State

Completely outplaying the vaunted R. I. State Rams, the Fighting Friars of Providence College hit their peak form of the season, downing the Keaneymen, 60-54, in last night's encounter at the R. I. Auditorium.

Before 5000 enthusiastic fans, Ed Crotty's well-drilled charges chalked up their seventh consecutive win, maintaining their position as top team among the 33 quintets in New England.

The Keane forces held a four point advantage at half-time, by virtue of conversions from the foul stripe. Their lead was short-lived, for the Friars forged ahead soon after the second half opened. Three quick baskets by Ted McConnon gave the Friars a lead which they never relinquished. R. I. State gamely fought back, but they could not combat the clever ball-handling of the Crottymen.

Ted McConnon, the Friars' ace sniper, led the attack with 18 points to keep his place among New England's leading hoopers.

Captain Horace Marone played an inspired defensive game, and flipped 14 points through the hoop. Before leaving the contest early in the second half on personal fouls, Chet Zabek tallied 9 markers for the Friar cause.

To the guards, Larry Drew and Bob Reilly, much credit must be given for slowing the scoring pace of Rutledge, Modzelewski, and Shannon, and the other members of the State's artillery.

Stutz Modzelewski, who paced the Rams with 14 points, surpassed the record of his high-scoring predecessor at State, Chet Jaworski. His 7 points in the first half were enough to eclipse the mark. He now has tallied the incredible number of 1436 points in his collegiate career.

Bill Rutledge and Bob Applebee kept the Rams within striking distance throughout the game with their sizzling floor play.

Providence has now defeated Colby, Lowell Textile, Worcester Tech, Assumption, Siena, Springfield and R. I.

A. R. P. SCHOOL HOLDS SESSION

Conference Is Sponsored By State Council Of Defense

The Rhode Island Air Raid Precaution School for Industry and Business was held at Providence College on January 12, 13 and 14 of this week under the sponsorship of the State Council of Defense. The meeting was opened by Col. George R. Thompson, director of A.R.P. school in Rhode Island, who introduced Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., president of the College, to the group. Father Dillon extended his personal greetings and the greetings of the College to the group.

Father Dillon in his address of welcome reminded the assembly that "We are engaged in a total war—it affects each and every one of us. It is our war, a war being waged against all of us." He said that we must be prepared to face any emergency, dismissed the idea of remoteness of an air raid here, but stated that people thought that danger to Pearl Harbor was remote.

"We are willing and anxious to work together and cooperate for the success of the school. Let us ask the blessing of Almighty God on this new and important work now engaging the attention of all of us," he concluded.

The school featured lectures by many persons familiar with air raid necessities. Marc Peter, a blackout specialist, spoke on "Blackouts" at the school sessions on Monday afternoon. "Protecting the Rhode Island Target" was the subject of Col. Thompson's talk the same day.

Rev. Frederick C. Hickey, O.P., a member of the Providence College Defense Committee, spoke on "Chemistry of Fire" at the morning sessions on Tuesday. "Construction and Building Aspects of Protection" was discussed by Professor Walter C. Voss of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The closing day's session on Wednesday had a talk on "Industrial Plant, Survey Police and Guards" by Dean R. Morley of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. "Necessity of Civilian Defense" was the topic of a talk by Col. Earl C. Webster, Director of Civilian Defense of Rhode Island, on Wednesday afternoon.

Conway To Train For Air Corps

Joseph A. Conway, '43, editor of the Alembic, left Wednesday for Squantum Mass, where he will receive training preparatory to becoming a commissioned officer in the Navy Air Corps, with the rank of Ensign.

Conway is a graduate of Malden High School, Malden, Mass., and came to Providence College two years ago. Last year he was assistant editor of the Alembic and this year he was appointed editor.

WINNING THE PEACE

A noticeable theme in many of the utterances of public officials and in those of the President has been the determination to win the peace as well as the war. Such a theme being present in our war effort gives reasonable hope that this country at least has learned the lesson of the last war; that mere military victory is far from a guarantee of a lasting peace. If we have learned our lesson and are now persuaded that we must take upon our shoulders a goodly share of the responsibility for the establishment of a just and enduring peace it then follows that we must begin from this very moment to discover the basis upon which such a peace can be founded.

The history of the past fifty years has definite proof that such a peace cannot come from any desire for the acquisition of additional territory or from a spirit of revenge. Not only must the peace we seek be free of all hate and greed but it must be based upon truly Christian principles. Mere human precepts will not restore any worth to the pledges and treaties of nations. Nor will the inventions of man provide for a return to observance of international law. The man-made peace treaties of recent years offer only too convincing proof of that.

The world is not, however, lacking in standards by which to judge what shall be just for all men. Time and time again there have been laid before the leaders of nations principles upon which a just and lasting peace may be founded. In the past they have been ignored sometimes because their observance would form a barrier to economic or political injustice and sometimes because of their origin. The Holy Father in the past as in the present has not hesitated to offer his services to aid men, first in the prevention of war and later in the cessation of it.

Anyone who has read any of the messages in which these principles have been proposed or even the principles alone cannot help but realize that any peace which ignores any or all of them is doomed to a short existence depending upon the first refusal to recognize the peace treaty's validity. On the other hand the acceptance of such principles would erase within time most of the seemingly insoluble problems facing the world today. With our determination to win this war we have opened the production facilities of every factory in the nation. With such principles to work with we should be able to win the peace as well.

UNIONS VS. MUSIC

The industrial labor unions called a truce for the duration in the inter-union battle between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization a few weeks ago. Mr. Green and Mr. Murray even consented to be photographed together. They showed the world that Labor in the United States would form a solid front during the present emergency. The coal miner and the hod carrier could now say, "Peace, ain't it wonderful". But this was not so with the musician.

The musician was not involved in any inter-union war, but rather a join-the-union-campaign was being waged against him. Don't get us wrong, we belittle in unions. In fact we belong to a union ourselves. We do not believe, however, that unions should invade the field of fine arts and start silencing all who will not join the union.

Bruno Walter, the distinguished conductor, and a union musician, has been forbidden to be guest conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra during its visit to Providence next Tuesday evening because it is a non-union orchestra. The Boston Symphony Orchestra is one of the country's best symphonic orchestras, in fact it can more than hold its own with any symphony orchestra in the land. Dr. Koussevitzky has been able to do wonders with this aggregation of extremely talented musicians.

Now the Providence music enthusiasts will be prevented from hearing this orchestra under the baton of a great conductor. It revolts us to think that music is unionized. Musicians have always found it easy to get along without unions. Beethoven and Mozart did not get time and a half for overtime. True, a union would have probably secured for them a decent wage. But if they enjoyed a life of luxury there probably would have been no Fifth Symphony, no Marriage of Figaro. Unions are necessary when they can aid somebody or something. They should never become a hindrance.

The quicker musician unions realize their own powers and responsibilities, the better it will be for the unions; the better it will be for music and musicians.

THE TRUMAN REPORT

The Senate Committee investigating the defense program has finally issued its long-needed opinion on the state of affairs in defense industry and organization. It wasn't a very pleasant affair either, revealing as it did the gross inefficiency—too few planes—lobbyists, excessive fees and bonuses, staggering profits in ship repair—petty jealousies, and many other shortcomings of the defense program.

In a note of almost desperate wishful thinking, Senator Harry S. Truman, chairman of the committee, expressed the conviction that although "carelessness and inefficiency have cost us a great deal, and if, continued, can cost us much more, we will still win the war because of the sheer extent of our resources."

If this optimistic attitude was calculated to allay the apprehension of the nation, Mr. Truman has not succeeded to any great extent. If it is necessary to strip our resources to the bone to replenish the wasted material, and to make up for time lost in unpatriotic lobbying for big business, we can't see how the boys in the army and the civilian at home can put their unselfish all into the war effort. We don't see why it is so necessary to lose a myriad of lives while archaic planes and materials of war are being manufactured in order to allow big business to make as much money as it can out of our desperate war effort.

Senator Truman's committee criticized the Office of Production Management, and called for a production and procurement chief. Happily this initial step in getting down to business in our war effort has been made with the appointment of Donald M. Nelson as chief of this vital department.

The Truman report listed 13 essential steps in sweeping aside at long last some of the vicious bottlenecks which, if left unmolested, could easily choke off our confidence in the handling of our entire war effort. They were in essence:

1. Ineptness of the OPM.
2. Dollar-a-year-lobbyists serving big business.
3. Failure of the automobile industry.
4. Tremendous profits of this industry.
5. Mediocre aircraft production.
6. Excessive fees for ship repairs.
7. Unnecessary strikes.
8. Wasteful defense housing.
9. Failure of army cantonment construction.
10. Lack of planning in army recreation program.
11. Inadequate production of vital metals.

These are the tragic shortcomings which have so far characterized our defense production. We believe that the appointment of Mr. Nelson will largely counteract these vicious elements, and they must be thwarted soon.

MYOPIA

by MAX KNICKERBOCKER

Under the sponsorship of the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, a national contest calculated to encourage interest in Inter-American relations has been begun. Known by its title of "The National Extempore Discussion Contest on Inter-American Affairs" the contest has among its objectives that of implementing the "Good Neighbor" policy. Through a series of campus, district, sectional, and then national extempore discussions a number of students will be chosen because of their knowledge and speaking ability who will then make a tour of South America and Central America as a kind of good will gesture.

Since a great many political and economic observers have predicted that in the future South America will grow more and more important to us and we to them, such a movement as this contest is likely to bring about a livelier interest in our southern neighbors. There have been many of the attitude that such a thing as the good neighbor policy is all very nice, but what should they do about it? The result of this attitude has been that, outside of the government's activity and that of some few colleges and universities, little has actually been done to learn anything of the life and the problems of the Americas. If all we are going to do is to learn a little Spanish and read John Gunther's masterpiece of inaccuracy, "Inside Latin America," we aren't going to know any more about these nations than we have heretofore. And as far as South America is concerned, dim notions crowded as they are with conceptions of a semi-barbaric continent which the Spaniards once ruled with an oh-so-greedy hand are worse than no idea at all.

With all this interest now arising, there must be some concern for the basis upon which the subject should be approached. We have already indicated one instance of interest on the wrong basis, that of Mr. Gunther's book. The number of books about South America which have poured from the presses in the past few months has been tremendous. The number of them which have been written from a completely biased and inaccurate point of view does not bode good for our attempts to stock up our sadly depleted knowledge. Many of these books have been accepted as authoritative by the directors of this contest and they have been listed in the bibliography which they have suggested to participants. Admittedly most of the inaccuracies occur in the cultural and political field. Since Catholicity plays such a large part in the life of the Latin-Americans, the Church has come in for a good deal of the barbs contained in these errors as has the role of the Spaniards in the colonial period.

Because the cultural background of South America is going to be widely discussed not only during this contest but in other ways as well, Catholic students should evince an interest in our Pan-American relations that they might debunk, as it were, many of the erroneous ideas which will be circulated. They should be able to understand somewhat more at least the part that religion has played in the lives of the Latin-Americans. Already some Catholic colleges have entered this contest and it is to be hoped that many more will enter. These colleges through their participation in this contest might very conceivably prevent many false notions from gaining acceptance. And when we consider that these false notions have cost us much in friendship and respect upon the part of South Americans, to prevent the acceptance of any more such ideas would be to perform a very definite service toward the amelioration of relations between the United States and the other Americas. In a positive way they could point the way to such an amelioration.

team toured England and the continent of Europe a few years ago.

The next debate will be held January 29 in Harkins Hall when the Providence team will meet Boston University. The labor question will be debated at that time. On February 6 Harvard University will visit Harkins Hall to meet the P.C. team on a question not as yet decided.

At the last meeting of the union, John Stafford, '44, was chosen to succeed Raymond F. Flynn, '43, as manager of debate.

Due to the war the debate scheduled with West Point has been cancelled and Dartmouth and Princeton have postponed their debates because of the intensification of their scholastic programs.

GYMNASTS FADE AS FRIARS SCORE 55-47 VICTORY

Marone Stars In Final Period of Siena Contest

By JOSEPH M. RAFTERY

Two recent conquests over Siena and Springfield established Providence College as the number one team in New England.

Saturday evening hitherto unbeaten Siena played host to the Friars. Trailing 24-22 in the third period, the Providence team rallied to chalk up a 43-30 victory.

Captain Horace Marone was the mainstay of the Friar attack. It was his four consecutive field goals in the final period that put the game on ice for Providence College. Ted McConnon and Bob Reilly, with 10 and 7 points respectively, also figured prominently in the Friar scoring.

Tucker, with 11 points, was the high scorer for the home team.

The Friars were forced to come from behind to defeat a strong Springfield quintet at Harkins Hall on Tuesday evening.

The Gymnasts jumped into an early lead and held a 29-23 advantage at the

Frosh Hoopmen Trip Springfield

Overcoming a lead held by the Springfield Jayvees for the first 35 minutes, the Friar Frosh staged a desperate last-minute attack to win 49-47. Tuesday night at Harkins Hall.

The freshmen, a bit ragged during the first half because of their long absence from competition, frequently missed perfect lay-up shots and passed wildly. In desperation the Frosh became over-anxious, allowing Springfield to leave the floor at half-time with a 31-18 lead.

The Friar yearlings were a different team throughout the second half. Starting slowly but gaining momentum steadily the first-year men whittled down the Gymnast's margin. Less than five minutes before the final whistle the Crottymen took the lead for the first time.

Henri Ethier, who tossed them in from all angles, chalked up 17 points to pace the Friars. Fred Sowa played a marvelous defensive game besides scoring 14 points.

Devore Resigns To Take Post At Holy Cross

Became Famous Under Rockne Tutelage

After weeks of rumor and counter rumor, the resignation of head football coach Hugh Devore was officially announced early this week. Devore, who rose to nation-wide prominence as a flanker under Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, has accepted the end coaching berth at Holy Cross, thereby replacing Eggs Manske.

The popular and capable Devore graduated from St. Benedict's Preparatory school in Newark, and then went on to Notre Dame. Here, on one of Rock's greatest teams, he established himself among the nation's finest ends. After graduation he accepted the end coaching position at Fordham under Sleepy Jim Crowley. One of his prize pupils at that institution, the great Johnny Druze, present Notre Dame assistant, received All-American rating. At Providence, although hampered by a lack of capable reserves and an injury jinx which always seemed to arise on the eve of a crucial game, Devore managed to build teams which were always dangerous and renowned for their fighting spirit.

His teams at P. C. compiled a record of 12 wins, 19 losses, and 3 ties. These figures in no way represent the true ability of Hugh for many of the defeats could easily have been victories had the fates smiled on the Friars. The outstanding achievement of the departing coach was an undefeated slate in the annual clashes with R. I. State. A Devore-coached eleven never bowed before the razzle-dazzle attack of the Rams.

Head coach Art Scanlon of the Crusaders is a fast friend of Devore's, the two having met at a coaching school in Philadelphia several years ago. Scanlon's staff is now complete with the exception of a backfield mentor, and negotiations are said to be already in progress to fill this gap.

As to the effect of Devore's resignation combined with the three semester term and chaotic world conditions upon the football program of the college, an announcement from the athletic office is expected shortly.

7 IN A ROW

By Jim Shiel

Jumpin' Dave Carberry, forward of the Frosh quintet, had us guessing as to whether he intended to fly like Dumbo as he took to the air in the early part of the evening.

The spectators were given a good time by the two arbiters of the varsity game, Pat Kennedy of New York and Ed Boyle of Boston. They surely maintained suspense in their calling of fouls.

Adrian at the console was as deft as ever in synchronizing the console with the R. I. State and P. C. bands. The P. C. chimes added a bit of color to the rendition of The Star Spangled Banner.

Cottam, Donnelly, Gaetone & Co. kept the crowd in good spirits most of the evening by their ardent cheers and rallies for the P. C. varsity forces.

Bob Reilly put on some keen defense work and was a potent factor in the P. C. victory.

Notices of autos parked beside fire plugs; data on children who lost their mothers; up-to-the-minute scores and sundry were given by Aarom Slom, '42, announcer.

Last night's varsity victory marked P. C.'s first victory over Rhode Island State's basketball forces in eight years. Coach Crotty's charges sure gave all they had, especially in the closing moments of the encounter.

tunity to continue with week-end work.

Father Dillon also stated that at the last meeting of the College corporation the executive committee had been given full power to act during the emergency. He announced that Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O.P., assistant dean, had been appointed acting dean during the absence of Rev. Arthur H. Chandler, O.P.

Vacations will be cut short under the new plan and there will be no vacation period at mid-years and only one day at Easter. The summer session beginning on June 1 will end on August 28. College will reconvene for the fall sessions on September 21 and abbreviated commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, January 17.

Mid-year examinations for this semester, from January 19 to January 23, will be held as scheduled, and the new program will go into effect the following Monday.

Professors at the University plan to use the records in teaching European history and political science.

State and ranks as one of the leading court powers in the East. St. Anselm comes to town tomorrow night to battle the Friars at Harkins Hall.

Frosh Also Win

The Friar Frosh also outscored the R. I. State yearlings winning 74-65. The Frosh once again came from behind to preserve their undefeated slate. Henri Ethier and Ben Paglioroli scored 28 and 23 points respectively to lead the Friar point-makers. Don Donabedian contributed 27 points to the losing cause.
