

Seniors Hold Cap-Gown Exercises

Father Regan Says New Philosophy of Living Will Have to Be Adopted

"How empty the V for victory will be if in our victory there has been no virtue . . . The disastrous effects of international strife can plumb much deeper than the mud, the mire, the powder and the smoke. It can twist the minds and souls of men beyond recognition," Rev. Ambrose P. Regan, O.P., said at the cap and gown exercises at the college on Monday morning.

Father Regan spoke after the investiture of the Seniors in their caps and gowns by Rev. Jeremiah T. Fitzgerald, O.P., vice-president of the college, and Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O.P., acting dean, at special exercises at Harkins Hall. The academic garb will be worn by all seniors until Commencement on May 11.

Basing his address on St. Paul's biblical admonition to "Be a man", Fr. Regan said, "You boys are going into war. Whether your personal thoughts are upon the subject, then are unimportant. Whether the war itself is a year or 10 years in duration, whether it accomplishes a good or not, whether it involves victory or defeat, is for the moment unimportant. Our consideration and yours is for the men involved."

Speaking of the war and the reconstruction period which is to follow, Fr. Regan asked if Catholic education could take up again where it had left off. "Can a wife rehabilitate the man she loves? Can a child reconstruct lost hopes and ideals in the father's mind? I don't think so. The work is too great for any human agency. I believe that unless the grace of God uses all of these as instruments, the regeneration of man will be a myth and a new revolution will be accomplished."

If you look up into the stars for the design of divine Providence, faith, hope, and love will live again. If we look into the ground like beasts, we can be soldiers walking with the dead, seeing their bodies under our feet. It is infinitely more worthwhile to be a man than just to talk about it."

Vernon C. Norton Addresses Group

Vernon C. Norton, '25, Rhode Island representative of the Office of Government Reports, spoke on "Intellectual Citizenship" at a student assembly in Harkins Hall yesterday noon.

Mr. Norton spoke affectionately of the Rev. Daniel M. Gallier, O.P., registrar, whom he had as professor of economics when he went to the college. Mr. Norton was introduced to the student body by the Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O.P., acting dean.

The government official urged the students to use their intellectual leadership in combating corruption. He condemned corporate interest in the United States and said "the power of wealth should yield to the power of democracy".

Oh, Where; Oh Where Did the Alembic Tickets Go?

It's a Novel Secret — Cowl Editors Bewildered

Once upon a time a student publication named the A----- ran a short story contest. And it had rules and prizes and everything. Except prizes. But it was a lot of fun anyhow.

The editor of the A----- is a good fellow. One of the nicest fellows you ever met, but there is a suspicion going the rounds that good old Jack is either a practical joker or else slightly inclined to innocent exaggeration. However, what is this among friends? After all, let us look at the brighter side of the situation. Supposedly, the A----- was going to conduct a short story contest. The Cowl, in true spirit of comradeship, gave wide prominence to the contest. After all, the day might come when the Alembic could do the Cowl a good turn.

And so the entries flooded in. First prize was a ticket to the Junior Prom: that was something to shoot at. Second and third prizes were tickets to the Pyramid Players production, "Tars and Feathers." Nifty prizes, indeed.

All this was about two weeks ago. Well, sir, do you know what Jack did? You'll never guess, unless you entered the contest. Why, he set a precedent, that's what he did! None of this ordinary, deep-in-a-rut stuff. Jack decided NOT to give the prizes in time to use them. He'd give out the prizes when the Prom and the play were all over. That was a stroke of genius, you've got to admit it! Where did you ever hear of it being done before? No, sir.

The effect of the stunt was astonishing. All through the school ran a roar of approval. Here was something original! Oh, that Sharkey was a card. No two ways about it. A card, heh, heh.

But some of the students hit upon what they considered a possible solution for this startling innovation. It was a military secret! Sure. Sharkey was keeping the winners secret because of the war. No one quite knew the reason why the winner of a short story contest should be shrouded in a cloak of mystery. But Sharkey maybe knew.

Oh, but wait a minute! Wait a minute! Maybe he meant next year's Prom! Sure, that was it; he meant next year's Prom. Oh, what a hot one that is. Boy, that is a quickie. That's what you call delayed action.

That was two weeks ago almost. And still no prizes have been awarded. At first a thread of suspicion was aroused when no prizes were forthcoming: maybe some of the assistant editors ran out with the prizes! Maybe there was dirty work afoot.

But no. No. Everything was on the level. All the assistant editors who went to the Prom had bought their own ticket. You could check that easy enough. And the editor was innocent. He hadn't even gone to the Prom. Couldn't blame it on any of the staff. No, everything was above board. Everybody's nose was clean.

How come then? Aw, well. You know how it is. One thing and another, and stuff piling up all over the place.

Heck!

CLARK ELECTED FRIAR CLUB PRESIDENT

Charles F. Cottam Is Made Vice - President of Hospitality Group

In one of its last meetings of this semester the Friar's Club last night elected Arthur Clark of Naugatuck, Conn., to lead the Club as president during the coming year. Charles Cottam of North Providence was chosen as Vice-President while Harold Dennis of Hamden, Conn., was installed in the office of secretary. Sophomore Ed Avery also of Hamden is the new treasurer.

Clark has been prominent in the Carolan Club and Friars Club for three years and is also a member of the New Haven Club. He served as Secretary of the Friar's Club this past year.

Charles Cottam also has been a prominent member of the Friar's Club besides engaging in many other activities about the Campus in which he has proved himself a leader.

Harold Dennis has been a member of the Friar's Club since his Freshman year, a member of the Carolan Club Board of Governors twice, a member of the Pyramid Players, Debating Union and he has also been associated with the New Haven Club.

Ed Avery, the Sophomore Officer, has been a standout in Intramural sports for the past two years, received his baseball numeral in Freshman year, has been connected with the Carolan Club, the New Haven

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS FINAL MUSICAL SHOW

F. A. Stadnicki, M. Hoffman, R. Dunn, and W. Corkery Outstanding

The Pyramid Players gave the final showing of "Tars and Feathers" last Sunday evening before a capacity audience in Harkins Hall. Francis A. Stadnicki, '43, starred in the female lead of Chlorine; Morton Hoffman, '45, played superbly the role of Mabel, Chlorine's secretary; Robert Dunn, '42, and William Corkery, '44, had leading vocal and dramatic roles.

Stadnicki authored the book for the student musical production. Kenneth F. Cayton, '42, of Taunton was musical director and author of five original tunes for the show.

Stage managers were Philip T. Genaro, '45, of Passiac, N. J.; and Phillip E. Roy, '45, of Springfield, Mass. Paul A. Cavanaugh, '44, of Providence was responsible for all set designs. Costumes were designed by Miss Glennys Marr, art teacher in Providence schools; dances were created and supervised by Miss Francesca Batistini, soloist of the Creative Dance Guild of Rhode Island; musical arrangements of the original student music were by Stanley Gershkoff, of Providence.

Principals in "Tars and Feathers" were Eugene F. Ferraro, '45, Westerly; Francis A. Stadnicki, '43, Central Falls; Robert F. Dunn, '42, New Haven, Conn.; Alfred H. Handler, '44, Central Falls; Paul E. Reges, '43,

RECORD NUMBER OF SOCIALITES ATTEND PROM

More than three hundred and seventy couples thronged the Biltmore Hotel last Monday evening to establish a new record for the Providence College Junior Prom.

Governor J. Howard McGrath led the grand march at eleven o'clock escorting Miss Mary A. Costello of Pawtucket, guest of David Joyce, '42, Prom chairman, of Providence. Immediately following the Governor and Miss Costello were David Joyce and Mrs. McGrath after whom came the officers of the class and their guests.

Following the grand march, Miss Costello was crowned queen of the Prom by Charles F. Cottam of Cranston, president of the junior class. She was presented a silver loving cup and a bouquet.

Guests at the prom included the Rev. Jeremiah T. Fitzgerald, O.P., vice-president of the College; the Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O.P., acting dean; the Rev. Charles H. McKenna, O.P., chaplain; the Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., moderator of the senior class; the Rev. J. V. Fitzgerald, O.P., moderator of the sophomore class; and the Rev. Leo E. Schnell, O.P., moderator of the freshman class.

Highlight of the prom was the nation-wide Spotlight Band broadcast of Vaughn Monroe and his orchestra from the prom at 9:30 to 9:45. Several original tunes from the original musical comedy "Tars and Feathers" produced last week in Harkins Hall were featured at the prom.

Class officers and their guests included; President Charles F. Cottam and Miss Jean Ray, Vice-President William T. Quinn and Miss Kathleen Ranking Seniors Are Announced

The names of the 17 ranking seniors were revealed to the student body by Acting Dean, Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O.P., immediately after the outdoor exercises on Cap and Gown Day, last Monday. They are Frank J. Whalen, Jr., Tiverton; Joseph T. Gimmelvo, New Bedford; James T. Murphy, Jr., Cambridge, Mass.; Thomas F. Mitchell, Lowell, Mass.; Thomas P. Connolly, Jr., New York City; James D. Coyle, Saylesville; James F. Corrigan, Pawtucket; James F. O'Connell, Pascoag; Richard A. Burke, Brooklyn; John M. Murphy, Hamden, Conn.; John P. Flynn, Hamden, Conn.; John C. Greene, Fall River; Mario Della Rosa, Francis J. Maguire, Joseph Farrell, James F. Hardiman Raymond Di Orio, all of Providence.

The ranking seniors will enjoy special class privileges. Included among these are the right to unlimited cuts for the remainder of the school year, the right to forego all final exams, and the choice of wearing the senior gowns.

Frank J. Whalen, of Tiverton, Mass., becomes the third man in the history of Providence College to graduate Summa Cum Laude.

Other Staff Members Are Appointed for 1943 Veritas

Howard A. Kenny, '43, Providence, has been chosen Editor of the 1943 Veritas, it was announced yesterday. Charles F. Cottam, '43, North Providence, president of the Junior Class, will serve as assistant editor. Walter Kane, Woonsocket, is the new business manager and Peter Koch, '43, West Warwick, is the editor in charge of photography.

Next year's copy of the yearbook will be smaller than its predecessors because of the shortage in necessary materials. The fact that the latest edition of the Veritas was reduced in numbers is a significant sign that the pinch of war is beginning to be felt. Consequently, both the edition in general and the individual copies will be smaller. The leatherette cover, standard on previous editions, will also be missing. The DuPont Corporation, the producers of the basic materials in the manufacture of leatherette, have turned their full facilities into war-time channels. It has not yet been decided of what material the cover will be made.

VERIDAMES PLAN FASHION SHOW

The Veridames, Providence College women's social organization, will present a Dessert Bridge and Fashion Show in Harkins Hall Saturday afternoon, April 25, at 2:30. The fashion show will be arranged by Chandler & Co. of Boston and will feature living models in the latest creations of spring modes.

Mrs. Eugene J. Sullivan, Jr., is general chairman, assisted by the following committees:

Cooperation

Unity can never be created or brought about as long as the people of the United States witness a lack of cooperation among the leaders of their nation. However eloquent the pleas for unity among Americans may be, they lose their effect when the eyes of Americans witness those calling for unity taking time out from their pressing work to argue with one another.

More than once there has come to the notice of the public examples of disunity at the head of our war effort. We have witnessed all too many squabbles between those who have charge of important matters of wartime government. We have witnessed a series of reports and counter-reports. We have seen subordinates contradict superiors, superiors refute subordinates, and, more serious, we have even witnessed conflicts between different government agencies.

The severe restrictions upon the material comfort of civilians will not find them grumbling too much. The willing attitude of the public to accept these curbs upon their customary existence should be in every way maintained. Certainly for that public to hear conflicting reports about what will and what will not be rationed or restricted is not good for their morale or their attitude of unity.

The stress upon the need for unity has given the people the idea that things are serious. If, however, they witness a disregard of serious appointments and duties for the sake of argument and conflict, it will be much harder to impress the public with the necessity for the further restrictions that must come. Just as it is time for us to forget petty prejudices and devote time to the job ahead, so it remains for our leaders to show us the way to unified action for victory.

The Pyramid Players join the navy and from there on it is all admirals, gobs, and gals in this most amusing and original of musical comedies that the thespians of Bradley Hill have presented in many a year. The action ran smoothly and never did interest lag.

Although the theme is nautical, most of the action occurs on land; at the Bushberry home, at the admiralty, and at the Supreme Court, all located in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Bushberry, played by Eugene Ferraro, is planning a literary tea for the admiral. (John Najarian), when she learns that the admiral will be unable to attend from the four sailors that the admiral has sent in his stead. Chlorine, (Francis Stadnicki), Mrs. Bushberry's daughter, takes a liking to one of the sailors, George, played by Robert Dunn. Sandra, (John Doyle), Chlorine's cousin and rival, appears and says sweet words to George, thinking that he is the admiral. The admiral, meanwhile, arrives and commands the sailors to leave. Despite Chlorine's insistence that they remain, the admiral's orders prevail and they depart, being told by the admiral that they leave for Iceland in the morning.

The action then switches to the admiral's office, where Chlorine with the help of about 10 girls bearing placards and rolling pins, subdues the admiral and assumes the admiralty herself, her cousin Sandra dissenting. The two take the case to the Supreme Court chamber where "nine young men" carry on with amusing antics. A night club is the scene of the following action. Here Chlorine asks the Admiral to marry her. An announcement by Chlorine at the Bushberry home that the cards have been reshuffled, concludes the action, as Chlorine appears with George and Sandra with the admiral for a delightful wedding scene, to the tune of a funeral march.

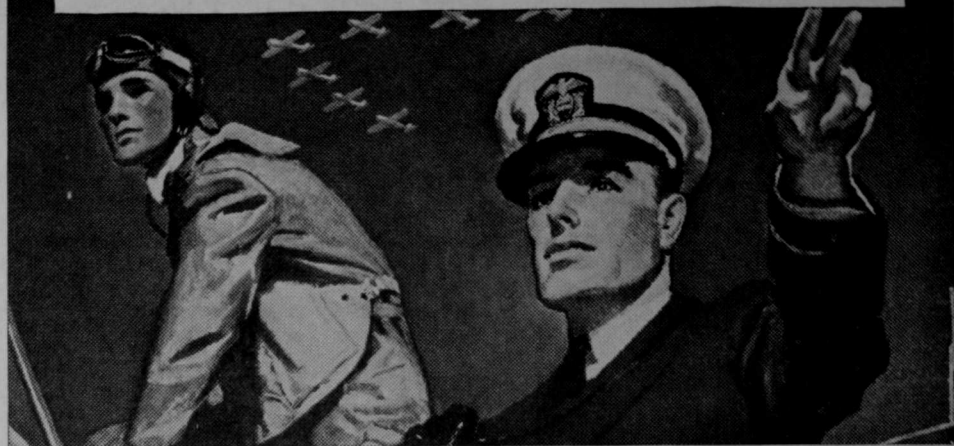

Stadnicki, who appeared for the last time in a P.C. musical because of graduation in January, played superbly the female lead. His lines and gestures gave you many a laugh as he played the naughty and fickle Chlorine. Hoffman as Mabel, Chlorine's secretary, has you in the aisles with his whispering voice and repeating of the dialogue. Others notable for their performances were John Doyle as the sly and slender Sandra; Robert Dunn as George, one of the sailors; and John Najarian as the big "rough but not ready admiral." William Corkery plays the role of Gunner excellently and is the most amiable and natural of the performers next to Stadnicki. Corkery does admirably with the vocals of "I Want a Great Big Sailor" and "No One Loves Wild Life Like I Do."

Dunn sang "Lost Without You" well and with more volume than the rest

if you are 17^{THRU} 19 and want to become a Naval Officer!

You can serve your country best by acting on this new Navy Plan now!

YOU WANT to fight for your country! Are you willing to work for it? To toughen yourself physically? To train yourself mentally for a real job in the United States Navy? If you are, the Navy wants you to enlist now. You don't have to quit college. You can stay in college, continue your studies to prepare for active duty in the air or on the sea.

And your college will help you do it! In cooperation with the Navy, it offers all freshmen and sophomores who are seventeen and not yet twenty, special training that may win for you the coveted Wings of Gold of a Naval Aviation Officer or a commission as a Deck or Engineering Officer.

How to Become an Officer

To get this special Navy training, you enlist now as an Apprentice Seaman. Then you may continue in college, but you will include special courses stressing physical development, mathematics and physics. After you successfully complete 1½ calendar years in college, you will be given a classification test.

Aviation Officers

If you qualify by this test, you may volunteer to become a Naval Aviation Officer. In this case, you will be permitted to finish the second calendar year of college work before you start your training to become a Flying Officer.

However, at any time during this two-year period, you may have the option to take immediately the prescribed examination for Aviation Officer...and, if successful, be assigned for Aviation training. Students who fail in their college courses or who withdraw from college will also have the privilege of taking the Aviation examination. Applicants who fail to qualify in this test will be ordered to active duty as Apprentice Seamen.

Deck or Engineering Officers

Those who qualify in the classification test and do not volunteer for Aviation will be selected for training to be Deck or Engineering Officers. In that case, you will continue your college program until you receive your bachelor's degree, provided you maintain the established university standards.

Those whose grades are not high enough to qualify them for Deck or Engineering Officer training will be permitted to finish their second calendar year of college. After this, they will be ordered to duty as Apprentice Seamen, but because of their college training, they will have a better chance for rapid advancement. At any time, if a student should fail in his college courses, he may be ordered to active duty as an Apprentice Seaman.

Pay starts with active duty.

It's a real challenge! It's a real opportunity! Make every minute count by doing something about this new Navy plan today.

DORM DIARY

By JERRY COLLINS, '44

No, that was not the way I ended my column last week; the rest of it got caught in the rush.

So here we go again...

The Dorm is attempting to rival the Aquino Literary Club by establishing a culture club of its own. The meetings take place twice a week when the out-of-town papers arrive in room 228. The funny papers are the subject matter of each discussion. The members of this coming threat to the Chicago Round Table are Drs. Bonte, Maguire, D. McL., J. Burke, and from Providence and environs, James Kindelin and John Marshall. These two gentlemen come all the way from Edgewood and Fall River just to get culture. Or Superman and Buck Rogers, have it your way.

HITS AND BITS

Bob Dunn broke the all-time endurance record on the pin ball machine the other day when he held down the fort for eleven straight hours; he didn't even stop for supper. As he said, after it was all over and his strength was so diminished that he could no longer tilt the machine, ain't a collech education wonderful?

Those construction companies that move houses have nothing on the boys at the Dorm. Tiny Quinn said he would set up the group if he failed to answer a question that was to be put to him. He lost, and tried to laugh off the fact that 20 thirsty young men wanted the promised drinks. So they picked him up and carried all three of him from the top of the hill to Harkins Hall. And Tiny, sport that he is, set them all up to coke. All we have to see now is an elephant fly.

Now that football is out of the way Lou Sey and General Franco have taken up golf; no fair driving over 300 yards fellows.

It yoused to be "Who put the overalls in Mrs. Murphy's chowder?" Now it's "Who put the spaghetti in Dick Young's pocket?" And when he handed it back they wrapped it around his ear.

MYOPIA

By MAX KNICKERBOCKER

We've thought it over completely and we've come to the conclusion that somebody else is sharing our place this spring. Looking back some two summers we remember how everybody was guessing what Omnipresent Adolf and his team would do. We were all on the hot seat. Remember the "war of nerves"?

When the spring returned the next year (that's 1941) we were once more in the pangs of uncertainty as to what that little man would do. We never had to worry about whether he would do anything; it was what he would do. And every time he fooled us.

But as we said above, somebody else is sharing our place this year. Somebody else has to share our hot seat and feel the warmth of expectancy. You can guess who he is. How he ever got there we're not quite sure and whether he really has anything

MAROONS EDGE P. C. IN EIGHTH

Harrington Bows to Sheldon In Mound Duel

Scoring the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning the Springfield Maroons nipped the P.C. varsity nine 4-3 Wednesday afternoon at Springfield.

The visitors took the lead in the first frame when Ferguson and Lee singled and Crowley drew a pass to jam the sacks. Ferguson trotted home as McConnon was being thrown out at first by Olson.

Springfield took over the lead in their half of the second by tallying twice on two singles, a double steal, and a Friar misplay. Greenhalgh's two-bagger and a bingle by Larson accounted for the third Maroon marker in the last of the third.

The Friars notted the count in the fifth. Charley Harrington started off the rally by reaching first on Larson's error. The P.C. hurler crossed the plate on Chet Massa's well-stroked triple to deep centre. Johnny Ferguson came through with his second safety, a liner to centre, to drive in Massa with the tying run.

In the Springfield eighth Barrett drove a towering three-bagger to centre and dented the plate with the deciding score as Greenhalgh was being retired by McGill.

Harrington pitched fine ball for the Friars giving up but seven hits and issuing nary a free ticket. Sheldon was in top form for the Maroons, being especially effective whenever the visitors threatened.

SPORT SLANTS

By JOHN A. DILLON, JR.

Football, this week, returned for one last, fleeting headline, before disappearing for the duration. No, there was no game played, the band did not strike up once more, nor did a crowd give vent to its enthusiasm; the occasion which brought back memories was the annual Cap and Gown Day ceremonies. Far from football, you may think, but it really wasn't for many of last season's team, many of the fellows without whom it will seem strange next year, made their final appearance before the entire student body. There was Joe Sullivan, the Little All-American, whose achievements have become almost legendary, for example, the day that he beat Canisius single handed,—the time that he completely ruined the State backfield. Yes, Joe was quite an end. Then there were John Stonkus and Horace Marone, Johnny who could hit a line as hard as anyone in the country, Horace who could have played good ball in any league. Several Frosh Show Promise

Coach Maguire Pleased With First Practice Results

While the varsity journeyed to Springfield to engage the Gymnasts, Coach Hugh McGuire called out freshman baseball candidates for the first practice Wednesday afternoon.

Because of the fact that several of these men are expected to take their places on the varsity in less than a month, the selection of a good frosh combination seems especially important. Although the batterymen have been working out for the past few days, this was the first official practice session for the majority of the candidates.

Several men showed up exceedingly well even at this early stage. The infield especially seems to be supplied with a host of excellent prospects. At first base, Charlie Shadoian, former Classical High athlete, stamped himself as the man to beat for that position. At third John Barchi shows real promise, his powerful throwing arm drawing the attention of fans and players alike.

The catching department is equally well supplied with talent in the persons of Scussel, Murphy, and big Red McKenna, while the outfield boasts such men as Ed Quinn, Dave Carberry, Vin Vasilakus, Johnny Gobin, and Sullivan.

The pitching staff, containing several former high and prep school stars, including Sandy Mattarazzo, former La Salle pitching mainstay, should also provide Head Coach Quirk with some good material for the next trimester's varsity team.

Providence Faces Williams In Initial Home Encounter

Coach Quirk Announces Several Lineup Changes

Busy days are ahead for the Friar diamond forces of Coach Dr. Arthur Quirk. This afternoon at 3:00 o'clock the varsity nine will meet the strong Williams College club at Hendricken Field. Tomorrow afternoon Providence travels to Kingston to do battle with their arch rivals, the Keaneymen of R. I. State. Unless a possible schedule change is made, the Friars will play host to the ever-potent Holy Cross team on Wednesday next.

Williams upset by Amherst in its last start will be out to return to the victory road at the expense of the hard-luck Friar nine. The boys from Williamstown displayed a burst of power last Saturday when they trampled the West Point Cadets under a 23-2 barrage.

Coach Quirk has announced several changes in his starting lineup for this important clash. An ankle injury suffered by Ted McConnon in the Springfield encounter will force this popular first sacker to remain out of action except for pinch hitting duty. Art McGill, a Sophomore, is Coach Quirk's choice to take over the initial sack.

Joe Brownell, former La Salle ace, will start at short for the Friars. Big Dave Tubridy, a dependable member of last fall's gridiron forces, is named to patrol the spacious reaches of left field.

The slab assignment has been given to Ernie Brousseau, clever Sophomore righthander, who hurled fine ball for last year's Frosh.

Draft Board Calls Tebbetts

George 'Birdie' Tebbetts, former star backstop at P.C., now first-string catcher of the Detroit Tigers, said Wednesday that he planned to visit his Nashua, N. H., draft board next week, but that he didn't believe that his 3-A classification would be affected.

"It isn't that I'm being summoned to any hearing," he said. "I received a letter three or four days ago from the board asking me to drop in when I was near there as they wanted to ask me some questions to see if my status had changed in the last year.

"It hasn't—and so I don't expect there'll be any change in my classification."

COWL TO HOLD CHAIR CONTEST

Theatre Tickets Will Be Given As Prizes

The next time you sit down in any of your classes, look carefully at the chair you're sitting on: it may win you a prize. If you should happen to see the "Grace Before Meals" carved into your arm-chair for the enlightenment and edification of future generations, rip your chair out of the floor and bring it straightway to the Cowl office. There it will be subjected to painstaking tests to determine the genuineness of the inscription. Ross Washburn, '42; Neal Canady, '43, and Frank Hynes, '45, will be the judges. They will examine your chair to ascertain that it is the original: reasonably exact facsimiles will not be accepted. The chair must be identified and produced at the Cowl office by 3:00 Monday afternoon. The winning student will receive two tickets to the Albee Theatre.

SPORTS SLANTS

Sam Iorio, Walt Scanlon, Ed Haponic, John Yockers, Nick Carlieri, and Joe Juges were also in the group which was invested in the caps and gowns symbolic of hard work completed and a job well done.

But as the ceremony continued, we confess, our mind was far away, at Fitton field in Worcester, last September. Remember how Holy Cross had crushed Louisiana? Remember the predictions of an astronomical score? Remember how the Crusaders were lucky to get out of the game alive? How quickly the Hoyas died down when the Friar's "paper" line threw back the first charge, and Frank Saba was carried from the field. How soon the Purple cohorts realized that P.C. really had a team when Grigas was dropped behind the line time after time.

Providence might have won that game had it not been for the old and disastrous lack of reserves. When the third period rolled around, the team was dog-tired, many of them injured, and then came their undoing. John Grigas, an All-American in every sense, began to tear through gaps in the forward wall, not for large gains it is true, but they soon added up until a Crusader back smashed into paydirt. P.C. was not finished, however, indeed they penetrated to the brink of the Cross goal before a penalty threw them back for the last time. Then Captain Sullivan, partially blocked, reached up and dragged a runner to earth only to be carried from the game when his knee collapsed.

The rest is history, the whole world tumbled around them, five minutes later the Cross scored again, a week later Canisius tied them, a month later Xavier murdered them. But how glorious that first defeat, how great a team that could stand against the best in the nation practically without relief, what a fine group of men who, with little or no recognition, could play for the love of the game alone.

CAP AND GOWN

tellectually, physically, and spiritual-ly, Fr. Regan advised, "There will be in your lives a period of training, a type of indoctrination, and the appreciation of some ideal to fight for. A new philosophy of living will become an essential part of your daily routine."

The Cap and Gown Day exercises began with the celebration of Mass for the student body by Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., faculty moderator of the seniors. After their investiture, the seniors marched in solemn procession across the campus to the spot where the class tree was dedicated. Following the blessing of the tree by members of the administration, a ranking senior, James J. Murphy of Cambridge, Mass., gave the dedicatory address.

to worry about is still another question. But there he is and there he sets wondering and wondering about (believe it or not) what we're going to do.

Just take a look at your map (I mean of the world). (Now we will wax Raymond Gram Swing-like.) From our point of view the little man from Austria can cause us trouble in Gibraltar or in Turkey or in Afghanistan or by taking over Sweden. Then, too, there always is an England in his eye. All these are those used-to-be-bogies to the Prussian militarists, the second front. The main event is still the scrap between the steppes.

No doubt some sourpuss is reading all this and smirking at our puerile wisdom. (Anybody who doesn't like this column in our considered opinion is a sourpuss.) He might be waiting for us to show where our side has Hitler on the hot chair. Well, it looks as though we're going to have to bother Der Fuehrer. Russia is getting just a little sick of carrying the ball all the time without any interference. We think that all the scuttling back and forth between here and London points to some sort of action in Western Europe. If we don't have a real hand in putting the clamps on Adolf and leave it all to our bosom pal in the Kremlin, that pal is going to be hard to deal with when it's all over.

Club and has been a member of the Friar's Club since his first year at College.

After the election of new officers Past President Ross Muenzen turned the meeting over to Clark who thanked the boys for their confidence in him and then the regular business was dispensed with.

It was decided by the Club to hold a dance sometime soon after the beginning of the Summer session; according to floor discussion the boys will spare no pains in making it a successful affair.

Father Schimidt, the Club Moderator, announced that the Friar's Club would serve in as yet undelagated positions during air raids and also that they would handle the seating and incidentals of the coming summer boxing bouts, one of the big events of the coming summer session.

1. Professors conducting defense courses will set time for examination in their respective classes.
2. Any student who brings books or papers to examination rooms, or who is seen communicating in any way, shall forfeit his examination. All writing must be done in the book which will be furnished by the professor. No student may use more than one examination book at the same time.

ATTENTION !

To the student who most closely approximates the score of the Williams-P. C. game the Cowl will present two tickets to a downtown theatre. Contestants should write their score on a slip of paper together with their name and class and drop it into the Cowl mail box before two o'clock Friday afternoon. The winner will be announced Monday morning.

IN REVIEW

of his vocals. The costumes are cleverly designed by Miss Marr, especially Stadnicki's bridal attire and Hoffman's "wad priority" skirt which had many of the feminine members of the audience tittering and giggling. While the sets were simple, yet they were effective and caused the costumes to stand out against the black drapes with the four silver streamers. Ken Cayton has some catchy tunes, notably the minuet and snappy conga. Ken did a good job with the orchestra which played a haut voix at times.

Among the dance groups "house-maid's knees" and the "conga" captured our fancy. The conga, we think, was distinctive both in regard to performance and costume. The heavy and tall fellows had a remarkable gracefulness in the rather fast minuet. The participants in the waltz added a bit of pantomime to enliven the show. Miss Batastini did a fine job in training the dancers who romp with great facility.

All in all, it was an amusing and satisfying performance. The patter was good, and although there were a few old die-hards, nevertheless they drew the most laughs. Stadnicki sang a laudable swansong both in regard to the book and the acting.

DENTISTRY IS NOT OVERCROWDED

Dentistry is the only profession that is decreasing in personnel.

More dentists are presently needed for the Army and Navy. More dentists are likewise needed for civilian service, since a greater proportion of the public is rapidly being educated to the importance of dental services.

Two years of pre-dental college studies are required for admission including: inorganic chemistry (8 sem. hrs.), organic chemistry (4 sem. hrs.), physics (8 sem. hrs.), and biology or zoology (8 sem. hrs.). No conditions on admission are allowed. Pre-dental students who will qualify by June or by September are advised to apply for admission immediately. Freshmen will begin their dental studies in an accelerated program on September 25, 1942.

Write for particulars to The Secretary of the Dental School.
