Consorial Parlor Set Up In Aquinas Fortress

Jack Mordente of New Haven, Conn., "Snipper" Par Excellence, Conducts Local Emporium

By JOHN BUCKLEY

"Hear Ye! Hear Ye! All ye men of P.C. whose hair is coursing over thy ears and on whose chins lay a few days' growth of bristles! Wend thy way to room 319 in the dorm and have this situation taken care of at 'Jack's Barbershop,' an by Jack Mordente, a freshman who hails from New Haven, Conn.

Really, we doubt if you have heard of a "plug" though it could be stated once such an institution does exist in the dorm. All the customers to the shop are welcomed by this sign:

"Jack's Barbershop"

Haircuts — $.35

Shave — $.15

Hours by Appointment.

"In God We Trust Only."

Stepping through this portal one finds himself in the room of a typical college man with the usual array of papers, pipes, textbooks and how could we overlook the customary sprinkling of female pictures. Jack cleverly improvises on short order a barber chair and presently we are undergoing the time worn operation of having one's hair shorn. To any who wonder concerning his clientele we have only to mention that three members of the faculty and the third order porter rank among his many customers.

Of all the many and varied means by which college men have earned spending money, this appears to rate high among the more unusual ones on the list. However Jack is not the first dorm barber, for two years ago another student, one Moe Bouchard, ran a shop on a similar basis.

The dorm barber, is now a 2nd term freshman. Jack is enrolled in the pre-natal course. After quizzing him yesterday while having our hair cut, we discovered many interesting bits of information, so drag up a seat and we will try to account what we unearthed.

Jack picked up the art of barbering down at his uncle's shop in New Haven. Though he never worked there he learned it as a side line in his spare moments.

Debating Union Forms Jayvee Team

A Junior Varsity debating group was organized by the Debating Union yesterday morning in Room 19. Plans for intramural and intercollegiate debates were discussed. An intramural debate on the topic, Resolved: "That the United Nations should form a permanent federal union after the war," has been scheduled for next week in Harkins Hall.

John Davitt, president of the Debating Union, urged that the present members encourage their fellow students to engage in this extra-curricular activity. He said that candidates are still eligible to try for positions.

BLOOD DONORS ARE SOUGHT

College Helps St. Joseph's Hospital Blood and Plasma Bank

Providence College students have been asked to volunteer a pint of blood for the St. Joseph's Hospital Blood and Plasma Bank. Volunteers have been asked to register from Monday to Wednesday at the News Bureau or the Assistant Dean's office.

Members of the faculty have already volunteered to do their part and several have already been examined. Students will be examined during the latter part of the week by Drs. Edwin B. O'Reilly and Frederic J. Burns. They will check the student's blood pressure and record the hemoglobin content of the blood in the Student Health office.

Students under 18 will have to secure parental consent in order to be able to volunteer. After the individual has been pronounced fit to donate his blood by the physicians, he will visit St. Joseph's Hospital for the actual blood taking process.

College authorities expect a ready response on the part of the entire student body to this appeal for blood.

More P.C. Men Join U.S. Services

Five more Providence College students answered the army's call this week and laid aside their books to take an active part in the military services. They are John Gerhard, William Gray, Gilbert Camille, John Gilfillan and Raymond Walsh.

Gerhard, a senior in the Arts department, was an honor graduate of La Salle Academy. He was editor of the Alembic and sports columnist on the Cowl.

Gray was a junior Philosophy student. He was a member of the track team in high school. Camille was a freshman enrolled in the Arts department. While at high school, he was a member of the baseball and football teams.

John Gilfillan and Raymond Walsh were both freshmen, Gilfillan being a Business student, and Walsh a Science student majoring in Chemistry.

Gerhard and Gilfillan reported to Fort Devens Reception Center yesterday morning. Gray and Camille will report tomorrow. Walsh is scheduled to leave next Tuesday.

All five men are graduates of La Salle Academy.

Dr. O'Neill Labors Despite Injury

Dr. Daniel J. O'Neill reported yesterday that his condition should be sufficiently improved within ten days to permit the removal of the cast, which he has been proudly displaying since his recent fall on Aquinas Walk.

This information will undoubtedly relieve the minds of those students who have so graciously been taking the place of Dr. O'Neill's right arm at the board.

The seniors recently received further proof of the Doctor's well known versatility, when examination papers were returned to them, corrected in a somewhat uncertain, but nevertheless legible left-handed script.

McConnon and Reilly To Be Feted Tonight

PHYSICAL EXAMS

All January freshmen will take their physical examinations at the Student Health Center next Monday and Tuesday, the Rev. Frederick C. Foley, O. P., asst. Dean announced yesterday.

Exams will begin at 9:30 Monday morning. Freshmen are advised to consult the official bulletin board for further information.

MASSO TO PLAY AT TROLLEY HOP

Bizarre Electric Car Atmosphere Planned By Chairman Cavanagh

Tommy Masso and his orchestra will play at the All-College Trolley Dance to be held on Friday evening, February 19th, it was announced today.

Paul Cavanagh, chairman of the dance to be held Friday, said that preparations are being made to "burlesque" the whole affair. So that the younger members of the student body would not receive the wrong impression, Mr. Cavanagh hastened to explain that a "burlesque" is that which tends to excite laughter by extravagant contrast or caricature.

He said that the dance would correspond to a Trolley in many ways. A conductor will collect tickets at the door, which, by the way, will have an entrance similar to the regulation street car. Posts to be placed in the hall will be emblazoned with yellow bands like the regular car-stops. Upon entering this king-sized Trolley, the car bell will clang and the dance will begin. The seating arrangements give the most authentic ring to the whole idea.

As usual, the men will grab all the available seats while the ladies lurch back and forth on specially provided straps. In the midst of the pandemonium, the orchestra will play an original composition.

"No Smoking" signs will be erected, but these will be disregarded, and chewing-gum, cigarette butts, and week-old newspapers will be spread about liberally to give the affair that certain air. Everyone will enjoy the community sing, and the cafeteria is being approached to stay open for the food-lovers.

Tickets for the dance will go on sale this morning.

JUNIORS RECEIVE OFFICER BALLOTS

Nomination ballots for Junior class officers were distributed yesterday. Nominations will take place this coming Tuesday.

It is expected that the candidates chosen will agitate for the continuance of the social activities generally conducted by the Junior Class. At present the Juniors have pledged support to the forthcoming All-College Trolley Dance.

Ace Basketballers Will Play In Last Game Before Reporting to Army

Ted McConnon and Bob Reilly, Friar basketballers, will be honored tomorrow night at the Harvard Naval game in the auditorium at Harkins Hall. The evening has been designated as "McConnon-Reilly Nite," because the two Dominican hoop luminaries will be playing their last game for the college before going into the U. S. Army.

McConnon is an Arts student, majoring in Education. He has not limited his talents to basketball, but has also spent three years playing first base in baseball.

He graduated from St. Raphael's Academy in Pawtucket, and has coached basketball there this season. Ted has been called as a member of the Enlisted Reserve Corps, U. S. Army, to report to Camp Devens tomorrow.

Bob Reilly, co-captain of the 1942-43 team with Chet Zabek, and also a member of the Enlisted Reserve Corps, will report on February 18 to Camp Upton, N. Y. Reilly graduated from St. Michael's High School in Brooklyn.

He was a student in Business Administration and added to his stellar basketball laurels by working behind the bat for two years on the P. C. Varsity nine. He has been a member of the Ship and Scales Club, and the Carolan Club.

The loss of both McConnon and Reilly will be keenly felt. McConnon established an all-time high score record for Providence College last year when he ended his first Varsity season with the enviable total of 309 points in 20 games.

This year's figures on the performances of both McConnon and Reilly follow:

	McConnon	Reilly
Field goals	80	23
Foul attempts	18	33
Fouls made	13	17
Personal fouls	10	25
Points	173	63

Book Reviewers Join 'Guide' Staff

The Rev. Vincent Kienberger, O. P., retired instructor in the History Department, at Providence College, and Professor Riley Hughes, head of the college publicity bureau and an assistant professor in the English Department, have accepted appointments to the editorial staff of Books On Trial, a nationally circulated reading guide, it was announced in the current issue.

A professor in religion and history at Providence College from 1920 to 1925, Fr. Kienberger was made book editor of Emmanuel, the organ of the Priest's Eucharistic League, and served in that capacity for 16 years. He is the author of a recently published book, The Way of the Blessed Christ. In 1934 he delivered a series of addresses over the Catholic Hour radio program.

Mr. Hughes, who has been at the college since last May, is an alumnus of Providence College and of Brown and Yale Universities.

JUST A PINT

Students at Providence College have not yet been called upon to shed their blood for their ideals. As a group, the student body has not been called upon by the government to make very many sacrifices. Our alumni have been doing the fighting and the sacrificing. There are some of them heeding the bugle call today; there are others who will put on the panoply of war tomorrow.

We at the college have been asked to prepare. We, nevertheless have a chance to do our part. The contribution of blood to aid the Blood and Plasma Bank at St. Joseph's Hospital is a charitable and just work. It gives us all a chance to pursue our work at the college and yet not feel like pikers.

Blood is as necessary in this war as weapons. Red Cross and Army Medical reports attest to the value of a satisfactory blood plasma supply. It is up to us to assure our civil authorities that we will see that our civilian needs will be taken care of.

Let the Providence College student show that he is a good civilian. Good civilians usually make the best soldiers. We all are destined to be soldiers in the battle for ideals under the banner of The Ideal

Americans were greatly cheered when they heard General Henri Honore Giraud and General Charles DeGaulle, meeting at Casablanca, shook hands. Newsreels of that event, however, soon dampened their enthusiasm. In them, they saw these two French leaders rise from their seats on each side of Roosevelt and indifferently shake hands. Both were very sober-faced, as if fearful of expressing themselves in the presence of the other.

Behind each generals unsmiling face, there was a mind representing a side in a struggle as old as the French Republic. It is a struggle that has deep significance for every American. It concerns the very issue we are fighting for—statism versus democracy.

As is the case today, this issue was often represented by a military personality. In the past there was General MacMahon, General Boulanger, Captain Dreyfus, and more recently General Delarogue. When the Third Republic was formed amid the strife following the Franco-Prussian War, it was violently opposed by certain groups. One of these was represented by MacMahon.

This violence never diminished. When ever an issue arose, the Republic antagonists used it to try to end the Republic. Distortion of actual questions was great. Slight political problems inevitably resolved into attempts on the part of a few to end the Parliament. Every personal scandal was used as a bat to beat out the spirit of republicanism. Frequently a military figure was, wittingly or unwittingly, the front.

About 1892 hostility of the opposing groups reached such intensity Leo XIII counseled all Catholics to recognize the legitimate government. Still the violent opposition continued on the part of a few.

These formed a group publishing the newspaper, "L'Action Francaise," in which they continued their campaign. Under the clever writers Maurras, Leon Daudet, and Bainville, this paper led to further anti-republicanism. This group once attacked the politics of democracy. Now it turned on democracy's philosophy. As a substitute, it accepted basically German philosophy with a statism similar to Nazism. Where once anti-republicanism attacked a political form, Maurras lead it against the democratic concept of man.

These excesses brought excommunication to all Catholics associated with the publication. Because the word associated is a relative term, few of the group suffered greatly. They merely moved to another publication.

There they continued the same line of propaganda until France was split into two widely separated camps. These are today symbolized by Giraud, the anti-republican, and DeGaulle, who wants a Fourth Republic. And there is no doubt as to which we favor.

Among us there are many who hold the choice is entirely France's problem. They maintain it is undemocratic to interfere. Considering the extent to which we are interfering in Germany for the same purpose, this argument seems absurd.

It is true the problem is largely France's, but we can be no more indifferent to statism in Paris than in Berlin. The United Nations are fighting for a philosophy respecting man's nature. They must safeguard such a philosophy in the French Empire.

If this is not done, the French Empire threatens to become another battleground in this conflict of statism versus democracy. With French Equatorial Africa under DeGaulle, and Algeria and French West Africa under Giraud, two world camps might form each supporting an opposing ideals. The victorious side will determine whether the peace will be just or unjust. A stalemate may mean war for another decade between these divisions of the old French Empire.

It is with great concern then that Americans watch the Administration in Africa. Although for the past few days Giraud has given evidence of liberal tendencies, the African reports by their terseness signify an uneasiness, a lack of confidence in the outcome. But there is one hope. Perhaps in the heat of the present strife, a French political body may be moulded to be the nexus of these opposing forces. Intelligence and justice can resolve France's seventy-year old struggle into an integrated state. It is hoped the next French military personality that arises will personify this ideal.

COLLEGE CAPERS

COLLEGE GOSSIP

By JACK BRADY

Larry Drew, Ted McConnon, Joe Bagaglia, Shorty Lee and Dave Carber attended a party at the Elms in Goff Falls, N. H., after the St. Anselm's basketball game last Saturday Nite.

They received permission from Father Begley and Coach Crotty to tobogganing, skiing and skating. They had planned to take advantage of recent snowfall but when they arrived at the Elms it was raining, making impossible for outdoor sports.

The gloom was soon forgotten when they received an invitation to local party.

The fellows seemed to make a hit when they conversed in basketball terminology.

Ted McConnon's, "I just missed a foul shot," seemed to get the laughs. All the local belles called him "Lord Byron." Larry Drew's nickname was "Shoulders." (Oh, Larry.)

All in all, they seemed to have a good time.

AFTERMATH:

While waiting for the Lowell train, Al Palmieri decided to get a hair at South Station, Boston. After the haircut, the barber asked if he wanted his hair wet. Al answered, "Yes." To his amazement, Al received a shampoo instead. Included also was a manicure.

John Burke inspired the Sophomores by his studying Chemistry at the St. Anselm's game, instead of going out.

Coach Crotty was taking no chances of Fred Sowa and Al Palmieri walking through the corridors in blankets again. His room was right opposite theirs.

HERE AND THERE:

Ted Mulcahy, popular Junior Philosophy student, is the only remaining member of his class from Pawtucket West High. Most of the other fellows have enlisted or have been drafted. Ted now has to argue alone with Michelletti over which has the better basketball team, Pawtucket East West.

Dan Mooney is home on leave from the Navy this week. Dan is visiting all his old friends before entering Advanced Training School next week. He has received an appointment to the R. C. A. Radio Training School in New York City.

John Affleck visited the school yesterday. John reports that the members of his class in the Army Reserve are leaving Saturday for their regular training before going to Officers Training School. (Included in the group: Howard Kenney, Jack Sharkey, Matt Kelly and Israel Moses.)

Jim Scanlon was seen pulling a toy cart through the halls yesterday. (Guess he'll use it for Transportation to the Trolley Dance.)

Charley Goodman had a date last week-end at Wellesley College. (For the life of a college boy.)

Felix Sarcione was accepted by Tufts Medical School last week.

MORON STORIES:

Father Clark tells the story about the little Moron who was in jail. His cell there was only a bench and a saw. So he took the saw and saw the bench in half.

Since two halves make a hole, he climbed out of the hole and escaped. Oh, well, I thought it was funny—AND SO UNTIL NEXT WEEK? KEEP LISTENING.

P.C. ENJOYS WEEK-END WITH TWO VICTORIES

Chalk Up Impressive Wins Over Lowell and Hawks

The Friar five made the past week-end a complete success by downing both Lowell Textile and St. Anselm's by decisive scores. Lowell was taken into camp Friday night, 53-31, and Coach McClellan's Hawks were conquered on Saturday evening by a 40-38 count.

The Crottymen experienced little difficulty in scoring their second triumph over the Massachusetts lads. The reserves carried much of the scoring burden as the first team received hard-earned rest.

Jimmy Lee really came into his own as he paced the Dominicans with a 17-point total. In the short while that he was in action, this recent graduate from the ranks of the disbanded Jayvee squad completely dominated play, scoring both on long toms and layups and playing a sizzling floor game.

The following night the Black and White forces, although hampered by a slippery floor which slowed down the Friars' fast breaking attack and caused frequent loss of the ball, turned on the beat toward the end

LEAGUE BOWLERS GET UNDERWAY

Eight Teams Compete On Opening Night

The bowling league got off to a very successful start last Tuesday night at the R. I. Recreational Center with eight teams in competition. Because of unforeseen circumstances two of the matches had to be postponed, but will be played off sometime next week.

Since John Gerhard, organizer of the league, was called into the Army, the managerial duties were taken over by Austin Matthews, a member of the Cowl sports staff.

Before the matches next Tuesday, all teams must elect a captain to represent them at any meetings which may be called, and to handle the team's finances.

As there are 14 teams in the league, it will be impossible for each team to meet every other club. Because the schedule might thereby work out more favorably for some clubs than for others, a playoff system will probably be used near the end of the semester, to be determined by the standing of the teams at that time.

The management of the Recreation Center has been very cooperative. They will return five per cent of the league's expenditures in prizes when the league disbands, and will make signs for the individual teams to be suspended over the alleys being used.

If last week's scores are a good indication, the league race will be close, for, with a few exceptions, the team averages all are very close.

Intra-Murals

By JOHN E. KIRBY

MONDAY NIGHT

The Intramurals entered into its third week with the undefeated Merc's Boys overcoming the La Salle club 25-15. Johnny Sheils and Charlie Aubin led the winners. "Hago" Harrington and Ed Mara stood out for the losers.

Joe's Boys for a second straight time trounced the No Name Club 24 to 10. Tom McNamara, with 14 points, and Jake Buegman, with eight points, led the winners. Bob Rhinehardt played his usual steady game for the losers, scoring six points.

TUESDAY NIGHT

Tuesday evening the Aquinas Rockets jumped back on the victory path by thumping Guzman 29-27. The game was packed with thrills from beginning to end and was one of the best exhibitions of real basketball this year. The Aquinas lads started with a quick basket by Don Murphy and ran up a 10-0 lead by end of the first quarter. Aquinas led at the half by a 18-12 score and at the third quarter 23-17. The fourth quarter was the one that made history for the Aquinas lads. Dick Kirby ran wild all over the court scoring 15 points, followed by Lou Siy with nine and Al Vitello with eight for Guzman.

In the last minutes Gene Scussel was ejected from the game and Guzman had to play with four men. With 10 seconds to play Lou Siy zipped one through to put his team into the lead 27-26. With but seconds left before the final gun, it fell to John Clifford to be the hero of the game when he arched a clean shot through the hoop to lead, 29 to 27. The Rockets regained possession of the ball and froze it. Hats off to both teams and also to referees Bob Reilly and Ted Medzejewski for handling the game.

Second Game

In the second game of the evening the Blackstone A. C. squeezed out a 22-20 victory over the Dirty Shirts. The valley lads had a comfortable lead for the first three quarters but in the fourth stanza the Shirt lads crept to within hailing distance. John Driscoll led the losers with eight points while Pete Louthis and Ed Johnson starred for the winners.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Bay Staters led by "Rooster" Carroll and lanky Tom Morris topped the Philimusians 32-12 in a slow game, Wednesday night. Carroll pumped 14 points through the hoop while George Reilly and Bob Morris starred for the losers. Joe Duschau, and Ray Bagley scored six points apiece for the winners while Johnny Crook played a swell defense game.

Teamwork by the Nags Club produced a timely victory over the scrappy Fighting Five team 18-13 in Wednesday's second game. Taylor and Scott were standouts for the winners. The game started slow with Fighting Five in the lead, 3-2, and 7-5 in the first and second quarters. In the last period the Nags came from behind to take the verdict.

Quintet Meets Harvard Naval At Harkins Tonight

To Be Guests of Seton Hall Tuesday Evening, Feb. 16

With two of their greatest stars making final appearances in Harkins Hall, the fighting Friars meet a strong Harvard Naval Training Station quintet at home tonight.

The Friars face a busy week for they also journey to Seton Hall next Tuesday to engage what is always one of the country's outstanding fives.

Tonight has been officially designated "McConnon and Reilly night." A large gathering of the Friar stars' friends is expected to be on hand to wish them Goodspeed in their work on a new team, Uncle Sam's Army.

The farewell tribute has been planned to take place between the halves.

The Harvard Naval team is led by Sol Nechtem, formerly one of New England's top hoopmen while competing for Boston University.

Seton Hall, although no longer in the undefeated ranks is nevertheless a powerful foe which the Friars, weakened by losses to the armed services, will have to be at top to defeat.

Tonight's probable lineup:

HARVARD N. PROV. COL.
Nechtem, f. f, McConnon
Donovan, f. f, Martin or Sowa
Pauler c. Palmieri or Pagliaroli
Davis, g. g, Reilly
Vocke, g. g, Drew

DORM DIARY

Joe Anlauf

That oldest of old men, Uncle Sam, has done it again. After months of bargaining he and Bob Reilly have agreed on a deal and signed a contract that will send Bob to the big leagues to play ball on Mr. and Mrs. America's all-star team. The Brooklyn Bomber really ended his college career with a bang up at St. Anselm's but the next time he sees stars let's hope they will be on his shoulders instead of in his head. And so to a great guy and a gentleman athlete all Smith Hill says, "Best of Luck."

For the fourth year in a row Les Condon has won the title of "Mr. Big" in his particular field. The other night one of the flock serenaded Father Mac with his guitar to the tune of "I Love You Truly." Delicatessen Dan Donovan is again doing a thriving business. The gruesome twosome of Halloran and Monteleone have finally collaborated on a deal—a red headed colleen from Ireland no less. Walter Martin pulled a Ray Connolly recently and strange as it seems it worked. Father McDermott was last seen walking around the halls, flashlight in hand, looking for an honest man.

Guzman Hall has challenged Aquinas to a ping-pong tournament. Quote

Basil Fitzpatrick, "He's a pheasant." Table number 5 is becoming the hazard of all the waiters, wonder why? Chief rooter for the Hills intramural basketball quintest is Father Zvirblis who nightly cheers his boys on from the balcony. The first meeting of the Carolan Club was held Tuesday night in the recreation room under the auspices of Father McKenna. Charley Fallowell smiled the other day and broke five teeth in the front of his mouth.

Doc O'Neill got a terrific welcome last Sunday night when he arrived after lights out. Bill Ryan, Jack Young, and Tom Condon were sworn into the Friars Club this week. Ted Mesejewski's brother, an alumnus of P.C., came back to see his alma mater this Monday in the uniform of a Second Lieutenant, United States Army Air Force. George Pfersich is due back next week after recovering from an attack of appendicitis.

Big Ed Foley is still waiting for his ship to come in with the doctor aboard so that he can have the cast taken off his leg. Jack Carragher has volunteered to do the job but Ed's a bit afraid. That's all for this week so until this time next week, be good.

Science Group Shows Movies

Two motion pictures were shown at a meeting of the Albertus Magnus Society last night in the Physics lab.

The films, "Posture and Exercise" and "Mechanics of Breathing," were viewed by members and guest biology students.

of the first half and left the floor at halftime with a 23-17 markin.

Ted McConnon, who makes his final appearance in Friar togs tonight against Harvard Naval, led a well-balanced Providence attack hooping 13 points and setting up a score of others by dazzling pass-work with his forward mates Palmieri and Martin.

Bob Reilly, who also makes his last appearance as a Friar hoopster in Harkins Hall tonight, in leaping for a high pass slipped on the wax-covered surface and was knocked unconscious. The game Friar captain recovered quickly however and returned to the fray.
