

Delta Epsilon Sigma Inducts 40 Seniors Into Honor Society

With the induction of forty seniors into Delta Epsilon Sigma, national scholastic honor society for students of Catholic colleges and universities, last week in Aquinas Hall, the Providence College Theta chapter took its place as an active campus organization and will eventually participate in Student Congress affairs and social activities. Previously inductions had taken place at the end of the school year leaving the chapter no opportunity to function on campus as a student group.

Besides going to the seniors in the top 10% category, gold keys and scrolls of membership in the Theta chapter were presented to the Rev. Dennis B. McCarthy, O.P., vice-president for administration, and Thomas J. Bride, '27, administrator of the Department of Employment Security for the State of Rhode Island. The awards were made by Thomas Newman, chapter president, assisted by Francis Feeny, vice president, and Theodore Curtis, Jr., secretary-treasurer.

John J. Harrington and William H. Plummer, both seniors from Providence, were elected president and vice president, respectively, for the coming one year term of office in the chapter. Curtis will continue his dual office, a three year term.

Speakers at last Wednesday's induction were the Rev. Daniel M. Calliher, O.P., registrar and past national president of the honor society; the Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., president; and the Rev. Vincent C. More, O.P., vice president for the academic courses and chaplain of the Theta chapter.

Twenty-eight of the 40 seniors honored are from the Providence area, including, from Providence: John J. Cafferty, Vincent A. Boalchini, Albert A. Nutini, Ugo P. Pontrelli, John J. Harrington, John F. Penny, William H. Plummer, Herbert Gershovitz, Anthony F. Merlino, Gaetano J. Ferrante, Louis Gelumino, William Cicotte.

ROSARY GROUP
Heeding the advice of Our Lady of Fatima a group of Providence College students gather each day at 12:30 in Aquinas Chapel to say the Rosary for universal peace.

According to one of the group no pressure is being used to urge students to attend, but all free at this time are requested to join the group in a prayerful plea for peace. The undertaking is entirely student sponsored, but it has the approval of the Rev. Charles H. McKenna, O.P., chaplain.

Only Quarter Of Student Body Affected By Jitters, Poll Reveals

Glee Club Set For Monsanto Broadcast Sunday From Dorm

A program of semi-classical music will be offered by the Providence College Glee Club in a concert sponsored by the Monsanto Chemical Company of Everett, Mass., and broadcast throughout New England over the facilities of the National Broadcasting Co. next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. This is the first appearance for Providence College on the weekly series of "Songs from New England Colleges."

The program will originate from the Aquinas Hall Lounge and will include 50 invited guests from the Monsanto Chemical Co.

The Glee Club will report at 10:15 Sunday morning at which time they will rehearse with the N.B.C. engineers and the representatives from the Monsanto Co. Dress rehearsal is scheduled for 1:15.

Under the direction of Rev. Leo S. Cannon, O.P., the Glee Club has chosen the following program for next Sunday's broadcast: Alma Mater, Providence (Sebellus); Song of the Road, Malotte; Concordi Laetitia, Gregorian Chant; Shortnin' Bread, Wolfe; I Got Shoes, Cain; Liebestraum, Liszt; Desert Song, Romberg; (Lucien Olivier, Baritone Soloist) Sing Me A Chantey, Wellesley; If I Loved You, Carousell; Some Enchanted Evening, "South Pacific." Michael Healy will be the accompanist.

The program will be heard over the following stations: WBZ, Boston; WBZA, Springfield; WTC, Hartford; WJAR, Providence; WCSH, Portland; WLBA, Bangor; and WRDO, Augusta.

During the broadcast a short history of the College will be told by an NBC announcer.

AAC Proposal Favors Students

As a result of favorable action by the Department of Defense on a proposal made by the Association of American Colleges at its annual meeting held the second week in January at Atlantic City, college students will be allowed to enlist in any branch of the armed forces even if they have had their pre-induction physical examination.

The new ruling states that, regardless of draft status, students may enlist in any service during the two months before the final month of the spring term. They would be allowed to finish out the college year before being summoned to active duty. The new ruling applies to students who have already been called for pre-induction examination, as well as those who have not.

Prior to this new ruling, if a student had received notice to report for pre-induction examination, even though he inevitably received a postponement until the end of his spring term, he was property of the army and could not enlist in any other branch of service.

TO LEAD DISCUSSION

The Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O. P., president, will lead a discussion panel on "Enrollment in Catholic Institutions of Higher Learning—1951-52" at the Conference of Presidents of the National Catholic Educational Association to be held February 13 and 14 at Chicago.

172 Students Questioned; Provocative Comments Result

By Joseph M. Ungaro, '52

Jitters—the popular expression for an unsettled state of mind over world conditions—has seriously affected only about 25% of the student body, a Cowl poll conducted last week revealed. The survey also brought out that 55% are definitely optimistic about their collegiate future while the other 20% are on the border line.

Ring Discussion At Congress Meeting Stirs Investigation

Discussion on the alleged underweight and overprice of class rings was the main topic at the January meeting of the Providence College Student Congress. President Bernard Healey presided over the session which was held last Friday in Room 300 of Harkins Hall.

A report was heard from Rev. Edward H. Schmidt, O.P., moderator, on the stand of the bookstore regarding the rings. He noted that in previous years the matter of class rings has been a subject of controversy and that to allow the bookstore to handle the matter had served to eliminate trouble.

He further stated that he believed the examples of underweight rings and the so-called overpricing as compared to other schools was not typical. He indicated as his opinion that the matter should properly be handled by the class and not by the Student Congress.

On a motion to determine under whose jurisdiction the topic lay, the delegates voted unanimously in a secret ballot that the Congress should further their investigations. Robert Doherty was named chairman of the investigating committee, along with William McMahon and Charles Banfield.

Object of the committee will be to obtain information from neighboring colleges and ring manufacturers to substantiate or disprove the charges made. A report will be made at a

The poll, which consists of ten questions on student opinion concerning the world crisis, was administered to 172 students.

The questions include four on the students scholastic future, three on foreign affairs, two on personal habits, and one on favorite branch of military service.

The most sharply divided and most provocative result of the poll was on the question of foreign policy. The Administration's global policy was supported by only 35% of those polled; Taft, 26%; Hoover, 21%; while 18% were undecided. Out of 93 freshman and sophomores Taft was supported by 35; Truman, 26; Hoover, 22. The Juniors and seniors, however, approved Truman's policy by nearly three to one.

Another surprise, though not so unexpected considering the lack of positive information, was the lack of enthusiasm over the activation of an ROTC unit here. Over half those interviewed (even in the freshman and sophomore classes) believe they will not benefit by the ROTC unit being set up at the college.

Regarding the possibility of a trimester program, over half of those polled favored it but only on the condition that it be the last resort to enable them to graduate. Those who opposed, in most cases, did so because of the financial problem.

In an attempt to make the poll as scientific as possible the number of interviews for each of the various segments of the college was allotted according to the proportion of that group's representation in the entire student body. The only exception to the foregoing formula was the senior class, whose representation was limited

5th Marriage Forum To Start Feb. 11 With All "New Cast"

The Fifth Annual Lenten Series on Courtship and Marriage at the College will begin on Sunday evening, Feb. 11, at 7:30, the Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., Ph.D., announced today. The series is conducted jointly by the Sociology Department and the Office of the Chaplain at the College.

"We are encouraged enough to repeat the series this year," Fr. Clark said, "by the interest the students have manifested, and by the fact it is in keeping with the advice of Pope Pius XI's Encyclical on Christian Marriage, 'All things depend in large measure on due preparation, remote and proximate, of the parties before marriage'."

In the 1951 Series there will be a completely new "cast of characters," with the exception of Father Clark who will act as chairman of the meetings. Each meeting will consist of a formal talk of approximately a half hour and a discussion period of equal length.

The talk on February 11 will be given by the Rev. Timothy T. Shea, O.P., Dean of Men, Aquinas Hall, on "Why Prepare for Marriage?" This will be followed by "God's Law," by the Rev. Thomas H. McBrien, O.P., S.T.L., Assistant to the Chaplain and Professor of Theology. On February 25, Judge Francis J. McCabe, Chief Judge of the Rhode Island Juvenile Court, will present the case for "The Civil Law." A married couple, parents of a large family of children, will be heard on March 4 on "The Voice of Experience." On March 11, Dr. William J. Schwab, of the College Student Health Program, will present "The Doctor Speaks." The series will be concluded with a talk presented by the Rev. Paul E. Doyle, O.P., M.A., of the Theology Department, on "The Church Law."

Soliloquy

What an awful time of year. Why, oh why, do there have to be examinations? We could be so happy without them. Its so little to ask, really. Just to be let alone, without having to answer a lot of embarrassing questions. What will it get us anyway? Look at Winston Churchill, or George Bernard Shaw, or Browning, or Virginia Woolf. What about them? What about lots of people?

Examinations don't prove anything. Everybody knows that. Why anyone who put in fifteen minutes a day could do as well as some of those fellows who think they're so smart. Fifteen minutes a day. A moron could do it. Its all nonsense anyway. Who wants to know what happened a hundred years ago? Who cares at what temperature water freezes? Who? They don't prove a thing. Not a thing.

Its all very well for those professors to ask questions. Anybody can ask questions. But let somebody ask them some for a change and see what happens. See. It all depends what side of the desk a fellow is on. With the book right in front of them, too. But will they let us have a book? Hum?

Everything was going so well. Day in, day out, same room, same seat. It was pleasant, that's what it was. Homelike. But what happens? Examinations! Question's! They never give us a rest. They should know all those answers by this time without having to ask us. They should.

Whatever happens, it doesn't prove a thing. So what if we don't pass? They can't shoot us at dawn. Its a free country, isn't it? A lot of silly questions a moron could answer. A moron. The nerve of them asking us questions a moron could answer.

But wouldn't it be wonderful to pass?

A Fine Example

The fine example being set by the small group of P. C. students that meets every week-day at 12:30 p. m. in the Chapel of Aquinas Hall to say the Rosary for universal peace should stir us all to increase our devotion to Our Lady of Fatima. And what better way to do this is there than by joining this group whenever possible.

Some will point out that they already say the Rosary every evening at night prayers or in the family circle. But is that enough? Can we, who are so much immersed in material goods, pray too much? Is one Rosary a day enough to make reparation to God for the atrocities committed against His Holy Name by this pagan world?

Others will declare they are too busy during the lunch hour. Is gabbing in the cafeteria, playing ping pong in the lounge, or browsing in the library so important that we cannot leave such inconsequential pursuits for fifteen short minutes?

If we but meditate on the tumultuous state of world affairs and the admonitions of Our Lady of Fatima that if peace is to come to the world we must "Pray the Rosary . . . pray the Rosary," we cannot help but heed her warnings, we cannot help but seize every opportunity to raise our hearts to heaven with choruses of Hail Marys and Our Fathers.

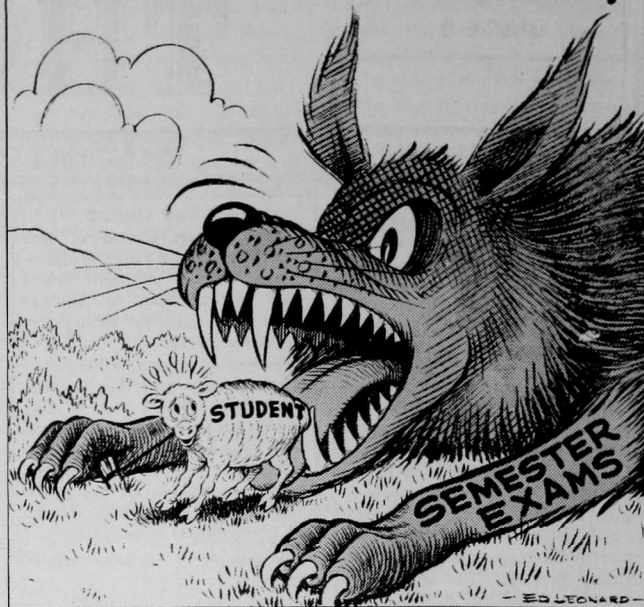

To those students who have been giving up a portion of their lunch period to saying the Rosary, we offer congratulations, and to those who have the time but who have not as yet availed themselves of this splendid opportunity to increase their devotion to Our Lady of Fatima we urge them to do so.

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD WOLF?

Literary Column

By William Plummer, '51

Americans have an idea that the French are a gay, pleasure-loving people whose rationalism tempers even their religious observances. An acquaintance with French literature, however brief, would dispel any such notions. From Gide to Simenon they are a grave, unhappy lot who seem only to be saved from complete despair by their extreme cynicism. Can there be another people in the world so conscious of evil that they almost forget the good? Even French Catholic writers cannot escape this national grief. But, by the grace of God Who has given them the Faith, they are able to see unhappiness, which is an essential part of life, as a part of God's plan, a blessing for the Christian. Nevertheless it is difficult at first to adjust to the French viewpoint, even the French viewpoint which is Catholic. This may be due to a lack in our own culture, an escapist element in the English makeup which has grown out of proportion in America; a child-like confidence that all may yet be well; a habit of self-deception. Then again it may be that we are a younger and healthier group of people, happily coarser furred. Whatever the reason the French viewpoint is completely different from ours. And whatever the reason we have as yet produced no

Catholic writers of the same calibre as the French Catholic writers.

Leon Bloy is better known today principally because of his influence on Jacques and Raissa Maritain. Raissa Maritain told (in Adventures in Grace) of how they became interested in each other through Bloy's defense of the Jews, Le Salut par les Juifs. Why his works were not more popular in his own day or why, with his splendid gifts, he was not able to write better than he did is a mystery to me. Yet his books, although they contain paragraphs of surpassing beauty and uncompromising truth, lack that unity so necessary to greatness. His descriptions are excellent and his characters well drawn, but they do not blend. They are thumbnail sketches rather than living people.

The Woman Who Was Poor, an autobiographical novel, was written in 1877 after the author had been through a moral crisis of some sort. In it he castigated the sinful city of Paris, the pseudo-intellectuals of his day, and the bourgeoisie, that unfortunate group which is so fervently and deservedly hated in France and had not at that time a St. Theresa to pray for it. Although it is not a great novel it will long be remembered because from it rises an anguished cry of truth: "There is only one unhappiness and that is not to be one of the saints."

The Theatre

The Pyramid Players presented the second production of their "experimental" season Monday night in the Student's Lounge, Harkins Hall, before a slightly less than capacity house.

The program featured excerpts from two former Broadway successes: Angel Street by Patrick Hamilton and The Showoff by George Kelley. The program was well planned, contrasting the melodramatic seriousness of Angel Street against the levity of The Showoff.

Angel Street starred Clifford Fusaro and Esther Velardi as Jack and Bella Manningham. Supporting them were Joseph Boyd as Inspector Rough and Margaret Going as Elizabeth. The excerpt was ably directed by Charles have been sufficiently reinforced militarily to be able to resist a Russian attack on Western Europe. But if China can be re-won through our aiding Chiang and the Nationalists, then Russia can be deterred, because, according to history, she has never risked a war on two fronts. Thus a friendly China on Russia's Asiatic flank would tend to discourage further Russian aggression throughout the world and would give the West time to build up its military and industrial potential.

Todd. Angel Street is at best an ambitious piece for an amateur group, but it was obvious that the group had worked hard on the production and had made possible this larger extension of the scope of their future productions.

The Showoff, starring Thomas Kelley as the fast talking, boastful Aubrey Piper, was Tom's debut, and it was the common opinion that he should be seen again soon. With him were Barbara Sullivan, Mrs. Fisher; Richard Buckley, Joe Fisher; Dorothy McNeely, Amy Fisher; and William Broderick, Mr. Fisher. This excerpt was directed by Bill McMahon.

Father Larnen, moderator and guiding hand of the Players, commented that the program was the best to date, and he stressed the fact that the Experimental Theatre was showing an upswing of not only popularity but also talent and scope.

The group is slowly overcoming the limitations of an inadequate stage area by the use of lighting effects and staging as devised by Robert Deasy, Edgar Kelley, and James Marshall.

The next edition of the Cowl will be on the stands Wednesday, Feb. 14, 1951.

POLITICAL PANACEAS

By Gerald G. Gregory, '51

Recently President Truman stated to reporters at his news conference that the United States is not formally at war, and, he added, we are carrying out our obligations to the United Nations. He also said that our government does not now have under consideration the idea of asking the U.N.'s permission to bomb Communist China.

Upon analysing the above statements it is apparent that the Administration still intends to continue the fiction that we are not formally at war despite the fact that we have sent over 120,000 men into Korea and have suffered over 50,000 casualties in carrying out our U.N. obligations. On the home-front thousands of reservists have been called back into the service and the Army continues to raise its draft quotas in order that we may have a 4,000,000 man army by June. Economically the Administration has set up the Defense Mobilization Board; the National Production Authority; the Economic Stabilization Agency; and the National Security Resources Board in order to gear the nation's economy for an all-out mobilization effort.

Yet, despite the factual evidence to the contrary, the President expects the American people to believe him when he says that we are not at war. Granted by a fiction in law the President is correct, but materially, his premise violates the logical approach to the problem. For it is obvious that we cannot hope to stop the Chinese Communists from conquering all of Korea unless our government or the U.N. declares war against Red China, thus giving Gen. MacArthur permission to bomb Manchuria and other strategic Communist military and industrial centers that are supplying the Communist armies with a continuous stream of material and manpower reinforcements.

A declaration of war against Communist China and our support of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists through the use of our navy and air force could seriously affect Mao Tse-tung's hold upon the Chinese people. I believe this to be feasible since Mao's Communist regime has not had time to consolidate the political and military fruits of its recent victories over the Nationalists. It will take some time before the Chinese masses can be successfully orientated as to the economie blessings of Communist philosophy.

Such a policy if followed would not involve the commitment of large numbers of American ground troops in Asia; and the downfall of Mao's regime would not involve any major loss of manpower on our part. For if China is to be re-won as a friend to the West the collapse of Mao's regime must come from within and must be brought about by the Nationalists themselves, and not by direct American intervention on the Chinese mainland, because the Chinese people would be inclined to resent foreign interference and eventually would rally behind Mao and his theme of American imperialism in China.

In conclusion, I doubt whether such a policy would hasten the inevitable showdown between Russia and the West since 1951 is Russia's year of destiny. And the men in the Kremlin are well aware that if they expect to conquer Western Europe this is a most opportune time. Next year and thereafter will be too late due to the rapid expansion of our defense mobilization; and the fact that within a year the North Atlantic Pact countries will

Tertiary Schedule Revised

Because of difficulty in selecting a suitable hour in which students of the day school can assemble for the monthly meeting of the P.C. Chapter of the Third Order of St. Dominic, it has been judged expedient to readjust the existing Tertiary schedule.

At a special meeting held in room 210, Harkins Hall, on Monday, Jan. 22, the Tertiaries, and aspirants, voted to fix the regular monthly meeting at some convenient period during class hours. Conflicting schedules preclude the possibility of arranging a meeting of all aspirants on the same day. Nevertheless, after discussion, it was agreed to hold the first meeting of the new program on Monday, Feb. 12, at 1:30 p.m.

The designation of an hour convenient to all students on the same day is not possible for various reasons. Formerly, the college Chapter met on Sunday afternoons, once a month, from October to May, and divided the hour between devotions in Aquinas Chapel and spiritual discussion in the lounge. Students who lived at a notable distance from the college, however, found it difficult to attend sometimes, either because of inclement weather or lack of transportation facilities. Even students resident in Aquinas Hall would leave the campus in order to spend the week-end in the family circle.

Students of the Extension School solved the problem of attendance by voting almost unanimously for a weekly meeting on Friday evening from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Since Tertiaries affiliated to a Chapter are bound by rule to attend one meeting each month, they select any Friday evening desirable to satisfy the obligation. Although not obliged by rule, a large and enthusiastic group attend each week, attracted by the beauty of the Dominican liturgy and by the illuminating conferences of the Friar Preachers. The object of the conferences is to unfold to the Tertiaries the hidden treasures of Dominican Life, dogmatic, moral, liturgical and hagiographical. The spiritual satisfaction experienced by frequent meeting of kindred souls devoted to the sublime ideals of St. Dominic is evidenced at every session.

Despite initial difficulties and problems, much progress can be reported by the Tertiaries of Providence College. They know and love things Dominican; they are able to chant the Little Office with rubrics prescribed for choral worship; they sing Compline in Latin accompanied by an organ which they donated to the college; they have experienced the deep sense of renovation engendered by Dominican retreats; they have launched upon a private, but extensive, program of good works; they have nurtured vocations for the regular and diocesan priesthood; they have spread the Rosary devotion far and wide. In a word, they are being moulded slowly but surely into the image of St. Dominic, their guiding star.

It should be remembered that the Third Order of St. Dominic is a real religious Order of the Church, but that it is designed for lay persons, married or single, of both sexes, living in the world. It should attract young college students who feel a desire to seek Christian perfection. Difficult days lie ahead. World history is becoming ever more tragic. Separation from college, home and family seems imminent for many young men to whom membership in the Third Order should prove a boon. Tertiaries share in the perpetual prayers and heroic sacrifices of the vast Dominican family until the end of time. They are bound to God, to the saints of the Order, and to Providence College by spiritual ties which can never be severed. The directors of the college chapter take this occasion to invite all P.C. students to attend the only four meetings scheduled for next semester with a view to acquiring membership.

To Hold Law Test Here February 24

Providence College has been designated as a testing center for the nationwide administrations of the Law School Admission Test on February 24, 1951, Rev. Vincent C. Dore, O.P., Vice-President for Academic Affairs, announced today.

Depending upon the law schools to which they wish to make application, college seniors, juniors, and in some instances sophomores are eligible to take the tests. Each applicant should find out from the law schools in which he is interested whether he should take the test and on what date. The Law School Admission Test is prepared and administered four times a year, in November, February, April, and August by Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey.

Application Blanks and a Bulletin of Information describing registration procedures and containing sample test questions may be obtained from the Office of the Dean of Studies, Providence College, or directly from the Law School Admission Test, Educational Testing Service, P. O. Box 592, Princeton, New Jersey. Applications must be mailed so as to be received at the Princeton office not later than ten days prior to the testing date chosen.

Scores on the Law School Admission Test are used by many law schools throughout the U. S. along with previous scholastic record and other evidences of suitable personal characteristics, as a basis for admission of applicants.

Council Postpones Team Status For Swimmers

At a recent meeting of the Aquatic Friars the following officers were elected for the year: president, Victor Formisano; vice-president, Frank LaMorge; treasurer, Frank Crooks, secretary, John Finan.

A request made by the Aquatic Friars that they be given team status was presented to the Athletic Council at its December meeting. It was reported that after considering the proposal, the Council decided that in view of the current situation, the issue would have to be tabled and reconsidered at the June meeting.

The club plans to continue practicing and strengthening its organization so that a regular group will be at hand to serve as a nucleus for the team when it is recognized as such. The club moderator is Rev. Joseph M. Sherer, O.P.

Action At Rhody Games Thursday

Jack Durkin of the P.C. Frosh goes up for a rebound in the first period. Pina (34) of Rhode Island provides the opposition. Durkin's rebounding and shooting from the center slot was one of the highlights of the freshman game.

In the second half of the yearling encounter the Friar Frosh stole the Rhody tactics of fast-breaking and ran up their point total to 93 points. Ed Ryder (21) of P.C. lays one up on a fancy pass from McQueeney (not pictured).

Ed Hole, (right) of Rhode Island State, stands helplessly by as big Jim Schlimm, (22) Friar high scorer for the evening with 21 points, takes one off in the crucial minutes in the second half against the Rams Thursday evening.

Bill Baird, (14) of the Rams, can jump high but not high enough to take the ball away from Fran Pelligrino (19) of the P.C.ers. Fred Conleton, (9) of State, looks on. It was Pelly's shot that tied the game up in the dying seconds.

Cuddymen Face St. Anselm's Tonight, Journey To Meet Fairfield U. Friday

By Gil Cipriano

The Providence College basketball team will reach the mid-way mark in the schedule this pre-exam week with two tough games on tap. Tonight, the Friars take on St. Anselm's of Manchester at Mt. Pleasant gym, then, the Cuddymen journey to Bridgeport on Friday to meet Fairfield University.

The Friar quintet deserves much credit for its inspired play against R. I. State last Thursday, but neither Cuddy nor the members of the squad believe they can relax or let down, even slightly. To make certain of this, practice was called following the day of the State game and Cuddy has continued to key the boys as if every game were as important as Rhode Island State.

Now boasting the fine record of 7-2, P. C. can make it 9-2 when the second semester begins next month. However, Cuddy won't be aiming merely for a better record when his team meets St. Anselm's and Fairfield this week.

Tonight's return engagement with the Maroons, for instance, will have a note of "sweet revenge" prevailing among the Friars who remember the 81-64 pasting handed them by the Manchester club in the latters' back yard two weeks ago. When P. C. invaded Manchester they were trying to collect themselves after their sad performance against Boston College two days before. However, the obstacles presented by a foreign court, a hot team, heated temperments and a loss in personnel proved unsurmountable for the Friars who played well but not their best.

The Friars will be out to make amends tonight. Despite the fact the St. A's will have the same tall and talented crew composed of Captain Bill O'Connor, Charley Duffley, Gus D'Orazio, Bart Lavin and Bob Williams, the P. C. squad is confident of reversing the score at Mt. Pleasant gym where the atmosphere is usually much more friendly.

O'Connor, who is a Newport boy, was high scorer in the previous game with 23 points and is the most potent point producer on the team, along with D'Orazio and Duffley. Williams and Lavin will be in the back court doing most of the passing and setting up for the visitors.

The trip to Bridgeport on Friday will be one of those "we did before, we can do again" ventures. Not only did the Friars hammer out a 81-61 win on the P. C. home court in the first meeting of the teams this year at Mt. Pleasant gym, but the Smith Hillers have yet to taste defeat at the hands of a Red Stag Club.

JUST FOR THE RECORD . . .

Just for the record let us look at a few of the statistics of the Rhode Island game. The Friars led 37-30 at halftime, and with 5½ minutes to go in the game the Rams had the advantage by 10 points. During that short space of time the Cuddymen played their most inspiring game of the season. It was that ability to come back after being down that makes a championship club. As we all know, the score when the final buzzer sounded was 62-62. In the overtime period P.C. scored 6 points to the Rams 5 markers. With the one-point lead the Cuddymen were able to keep possession of the ball for the last two minutes, and that was the ball game. Look out Holy Cross!

TONIGHT . . .

It is quite evident from Thursday's game with Rhody at the Auditorium that the Fighting Friars—who really merit the title—are contenders for any basketball team in New England. And this evening the Cuddymen are getting the opportunity to prove that they have established themselves. The Hawks of St. Anselm's come to do battle with Providence at Mount Pleasant. Should the Friars win tonight, it would avenge a previous setback administered by St. A's in Manchester, N. H., earlier in the season. On the basis of the Rhode Island game, it looks like they are going to do just that.

LAST CALL . . .

Since custom demands that seniors retire at the finish of the first semester and this is our final effort in sports writing, we would like to take the opportunity to thank a faithful and efficient sports staff—John Salesses, Charlie Entwistle, Gil Cipriano, and Phil Griffin. Thanks also to Walt Little, COWL cameraman, whose candid shots have graced these pages during the year.

New Haven 41—Donnelly Alumni 39

Displaying some of the best basketball seen in Harkins Hall this year, two of the most prominent teams fought to the last whistle in what may be classed as one of the most highly rated games. Before a rather large audience, without a doubt the largest to witness any game this year, New Haven started off fast as they built up a slight lead which they held all the way through the game. At half time the score was 23-18 New Haven, but in the second half the Alumni began to move, sparked by Jack Keating and Jerry Kirby, who ended the game with ten points apiece. New Haven, however, held on to their now diminishing lead and it took a last minute basket by Bob Conte to bring home ultimate victory. Without a doubt Bob Conte was the best New Haven star as he scored 18 points and also played great defensively.

Aquinas Friars 49—Newport 47

With "Red" Reidy putting on a one-man show the Friars just nosed out the ever pressing Newport Club. The game was nip and tuck all the way and the result could have gone the other way except for a few breaks the Friars capitalized on in the waning minutes. For the Friars it was Reidy and Ed Sullivan, who sparked the victory, while Don McDonald with 19 points was top for the vanquished.

Runners Do Well In K. of C. Meet

By John Salesses

Last Saturday night, the Providence College varsity 1-mile and 2-mile relay teams made an excellent showing against top-flight competition in the Massachusetts Knights of Columbus track meet at the Boston Garden.

Pop Johnson ran an exceptional 880 as he led the Friars to a second place in a two-mile relay race. Yale's fine team won the event with a time of 7:53.1. The Providence quartet with Bill Keenan, Bill Sherry, Frank Lusier cut their time by 16 seconds from the Washington Star games to very respectable 7 minutes, 56 seconds. Boston University and Brown placed third and fourth. Johnson's time was 1:56.6.

The 1-mile relay team with Bob and Dick Tiernan, Jack Cassidy and Jim Penler met Fordham, Penn State and N.Y.U. in one of the two feature 1-mile relays of the evening. Despite a determined team effort, they came in fourth. Fordham's very good time of 3:22.6 gave them a first place. The Coates-men were clocked in 3 minutes and 26 seconds, the fastest time for any New England college team in the meet.

Chris Lohner, Bill Newman, Bob Dugas and Gerry Absi placed third in a freshman mile relay race with Fordham and Holy Cross. The Rams of Fordham broke the tape in a very fast 3:26.4.

John McMullen in the hurdles, Dan Walsh in the 50 yard dash and Tony Vetri in the pole vault did not gain the finals in their respective events.

Tea, Dance Marks More Job Talks Veridames Weekend For Seniors Soon

Social events were held by both Senior and Junior Veridames over last weekend. On Friday night the younger group sponsored a dance in the Harkins Hall Student Lounge, while on Sunday afternoon the senior group gave their annual musicale-tea.

Mrs. Anna M. Cottam presided at the musicale, which featured the Vocal Art Society of Rhode Island, directed by Rene Viau. Lucien Olivier, a student at P. C., was featured soloist, singing the "Prologue" from "Pagliacci" and "I Got Plenty of Nothin'." He also sang in a trio number "Te Sol Quest' Anima." Mrs. Cornelius E. Sullivan was in charge of pourers.

Misses Louise Garvey, Jean Hanaway, Ann Flanagan, and Eva De Tomaso comprised the committee for the Friday evening social. Featured was Hal Corcoran's orchestra.

For the convenience of those seniors who were unable to attend the first series of Round Table placement conferences held January 17 and 18, more of these informative discussions will be held the week of February 5, Mr. Timlin, placement director, announced today.

Mr. Timlin also stated that the next conferences, which are intended to aid seniors in securing interviews with prospective employees, will be held late in the morning.

The Placement Director also declared that this time of year holds the best opportunities for job hunting and that the senior's chances get fewer as the summer approaches. He also remarked that summer is the poorest time for job-hunting.

NFCCS—A SURVEY

Overseas Service Program Performs Herculean Task

By Andrew W. Gelfuso, '52

(Last year P. C. joined the National Federation of Catholic College Students. This is the fifth of a series of articles describing the work of the Federation. This article deals with the fund raising aspects of the Overseas Service Program. Further information may be obtained from campus OSP Chairman Edward T. Kennedy, '51, or the Student Congress office.)

Probably the most urgent and meritorious task undertaken by the National Federation of Catholic College Students is that of aiding countless thousands of Catholic student displaced persons. This herculean task comes under the heading "Overseas Service Program."

In the past three years, thanks to the generous support of Catholic colleges throughout the United States and the able direction of the student OSP leaders, three-quarters of a million dollars worth of food, supplies, and scholarships has been distributed in sixteen countries of Europe and Asia.

Last year P. C. attempted to raise its share by such activities as a tag day, and a large penny jar in the cafeteria (Ed. note—lately the jar has been notably devoid of a large amount of coins). It is used to rebuild housing facilities and chapels as well as for food, clothing, and books.

Combat Communism

The OSP has a twofold aspect. Besides the demand for helping the needy prompted by Christian charity, there is also the practical purpose of helping to combat the Communist menace which is gnawing at the foundations of free society.

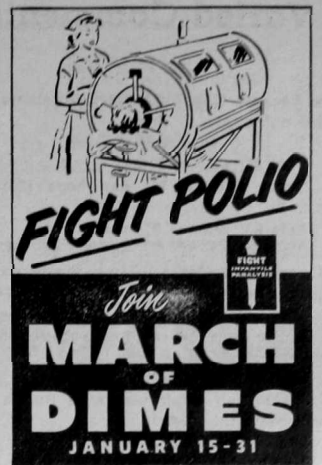

Catholicism is a vital force behind the western European struggle to remain outside the Soviet orbit. It is engaged in an earnest endeavor to arouse Europeans out of the lethargy into which they have fallen as a result of World War II.

Overseas Service Program is designed to aid the Church in this struggle. Through its financial aid students are enabled to carry on in colleges and universities, and more Catholic-trained leaders are available to help set the world back to normal.

Contributions Lag

Although World War II has been over for more than five years, the D.P. problem is still far from being solved. In one camp alone in Munich there are 40,000 people living in conditions that would make a shack seem like a Newport estate by comparison. People like these are helped by the relief program.

Unfortunately, during the past year, contributions by the colleges have dwindled to a dangerously low point.

Here on campus, chairman Edward T. Kennedy, '51, and his OSP committee have been hard at work in their fight to keep alive student interest in the affair. They are the men who plan the school's part in the organization.

At the present time OSP has nine projects which it hopes to carry through. These projects range from an allocation of funds for student scholarships in Tokyo to supporting students in dormitories in Munich. Officials are confident that they can renew interest in these undertakings and carry out the theme of the Overseas Service Program—Peace Through Christ.
