Spring Just Around Corner? You Can’t Prove It On Campus

Surprise Snowstorm Hits P. C., Drops Trail Of Trouble

By Leonard J. Levin

The weather was brutal, Spring was just around the corner, the got a rude awakening Monday. Danny Nature, the weather’s executive agent was on the scene Sunday, really did itself up brown by raking winds Monday. Students of College students, after completing their customary quickie-week of letting their hair free, became aware of the fact that early morning with expectations of wheeling the bikes out of the garage or amboring over to the bus stop and gliding merrily to the hallways. And the dorm students, in a variety of states of recovery from the winter weekend, grudgingly crawled out to their beds and gazed out their windows.

They all give a big surprise. Old Man Winter, under Mother Nature’s direction, was repelling the advance of Spring and forcing the frost to stay around. A gale blowing white of snow-covered ground and more snow was coming down.

The bravest of the dozen boys ventured out of their warm homes and started what proved to be a long trudge to school. Those who really had a passion for learning and didn’t give up after trudging through mile-high drifts for new block, fought their way to buses and endured the long trip to school. Most of the main roads had been cleared, but the slurry rain of the day before had left a coat

Presidents Say Yes To Idea Of Federation

To Feature Gene Toro’s Orchestra At Freshman Dance

The presidents of 12 regional clubs voted at an open meeting of the annual convention of the association to accept the idea of the proposed federation of regional clubs. Actual acceptance of the “Bill of Participation” was postponed temporarily and the opportunity to discuss the federation with their respective fleet was given. The committee will meet again on Thursday, Feb. 26, on which time the details of the bill will be worked out.

The major portion of last Thursday’s session was devoted to the discussion of the aims, purposes and methods of the federation and the action of the special committee, the president said that the association would accept the idea to build unity among the region and be able to facilitate the smooth operation of the federation.

Murry was on to the point program which he prepared the federation would carry out. The points are: organize athletic competition among the clubs, foster social activities, facilitate cooperative efforts among the local and regional clubs, and organize better meetings for the clubs.

In regard to the federation, Murphy said, what would sponsor intramural sports in the spring and fall and ball made up of regional clubs, and would possibly award trophies to the best club.

The federation would also serve as a help in the running of joint social activities in the region. The federation would probably be able to sponsor intramural sports and plan buyout of regional clubs, and would possibly award trophies to the best club.

The papers of the federations in the region would be possible through the federation. Murry pointed out, in a plan would be made to allow the clubs to buyout of regional clubs, and would possibly award trophies to the best club.

The annual social highlight will be held at the Sheraton-Biltmore on April 25.

Sixth Annual Marriage Forum Set To Begin Sunday, March 2

Opening Speaker

Fr. Schmeider, Family Life Head, To Give First Talk

The Rev. Edgar Schmeider, O.S.B., director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, is the opening speaker at the sixth annual marriage forum, the Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., general chairman, announced yesterday.

The series of five meetings will be given on consecutive Sunday evenings at 8:30 in the chapel. The series is sponsored by the Sociology Department and the Office of the Chapel.

Each meeting will consist of a formal talk of approximately a half hour and a discussion period of equal length.

Father Schmeider, who is also a member of the faculty of St. Thomas, will make his address.

A Pressing Need

It is of common knowledge here at Providence College that our territorial clubs are the weakest link in the campus extra-curricular activity set-up.

The purpose of the regional clubs, we gather from their constitutions, is "to promulgate the social, cultural and spiritual interest of the students of Providence College from..." But do they?

Experience tells us, No.

Most of them are small, struggling and poorly organized. The members consist of social parties and more social parties.

As for activities on the cultural level by regionals, there are none.

Their record on the holding of spiritual programs is better, but not much. A majority of them are restricted, others, that most of the clubs are too small to hold any large affair of any kind or at least not enough members to say that the programs of the clubs are too limited and that many students lose interest in the clubs.

But what is to be done?

Are the regional clubs always to remain so weak?

To the above questions, we can only say that it depends on the clubs, themselves.

Before then they are a proposal to set up a federation of clubs, which would coordinate and facilitate the activities of all regional clubs. This federation is to their mutual benefit.

First, it would give them more independence, in that they would regulate themselves instead of having the Congress do it. Second, it would make possible a better and fuller social, cultural and spiritual program for all, and finally, it would be so organized that each club could efficiently cooperate in promoting such cultural programs as for example, the holding of lectures on current world problems by prominent speakers. Moreover, the individual club meetings would be improved, and there would be a constantly improving program, run, could provide, for example, advice on personal problems, almost like a "Haven," and other forms of entertainment.

In short, the possibilities of the federation are unlimited. All that is needed is the cooperation of the clubs.

Where "We" Came In

A Roman Emperor, flashed with power, de- scended from his throne, and with a gesture of di- vorce of godlike gods, and he who refused to accept such sacrifice faced the penalty of pur- pier death.

Nations and names have changed, but the penalty remains the same for those who in de- spite of the threats of the Master and valiantly perseveres to bear witness to the Son of Man.

Those words were uttered by His Eminence François Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York.

Cardinal Spellman was discussing specifically the famed "trials" and torture-induced "confessions" of Roman Catholic clergy in Iron Curtain countries.

explained the Cardinal Spellman also outlined a situation in which members of all religious faiths the world over—Christians, Jews, Muslims, Buddhists, and so on—find themselves in this second half of the 20th century.

Like the Christians of the first, second and third centuries, all believers in a Supreme Being face today a tyrannical and a merciless force. That force goes by the name of Communism. One of its chief articles of belief is that there is no personal God, no universal worship, as if he were a God, of the mortals entrusted with the social order. Communists the world over are determined to conquer the earth some day, and to strait- jacket the human will for their own use.

This, so to speak, is where we came in—when the late Cardinal Spellman in his Christmas sermon expressed a life beyond this one, and an unseen power above all visible things.

When the spiritual ancestors many times passed this way and always came out victorious.

This is the message of the late Cardinal Spellman to all religious communities, to all Catholics, to all Christians. It is the answer to this latest threat to all religions.

The answer is for all of people of all faiths to stand together in unity in resisting their common adversary, regardless of differences among themselves.

And this is one of the chief meanings of Brotherhood Week, which is being celebrated from Feb. 17 to 24 this year. But brotherhood among men should not be limited to just one week a year. It should be the year-round ex- pression of men’s love for fellow men.

Senator Taft’s Invasion Of China Held Impossible

By John Martinek

For a Lincolnian, Senator Taft is one of the most venomous assumptions that the press can make of the country. But this is a country of which the implied by the forces of Chiang Kai-Shek. It must be remembered that the situation can be accomplished, that a civil war may be precipitated, that it would not necessarily touch off another world war. Nevertheless, this is a situation that could be if it were possible, but such does not seem to be the case.

In the first place, in order to mount such an invasion, Chiang would have to have several things. He would have to have an army that is capable of meeting the enemy with some hope of victory. He does not have such an army. He would need a large fleet of landing crafts to transport his army from Formosa to the China coast. He does not have landing craft. Chiang would need an air force to supply the necessary cover for such an assault. Chiang does not have an air force of any repute. Even if he had, he would be hard-pressed by the basic requirements and the invasion could be staged, it is an invasion that would have to be supported by military aid from the U.S. In order to sustain an invading force, mountains of supplies of all types would have to be sent. The available source of these supplies would be America.

The Senate says that once such an attack was launched, a civil war would in probability break out in China. This is an old argument. The Communists have been in control of the country for over five years now, and their grip on the people is very strong. Not only that, the Communist Army is one of the most power- ful fighting machines in the world today. It is true that Chiang would get the help of the guerillas that are now organized on the mainland, but their aid would have to be balanced in favor of the Nationalists.

It is quite possible that an invasion of China would not "necessarily" mean the start of a world war. While one cannot say exactly what the result or not, the calculated risk is present. The question of whether this risk is worth taking can only be answered by a study of the total war in the East is very real because there is a very real possibility that such a war would result, and it would not take too much to plunge the rest of the Orient into war. Large scale Chinese action is not unlikely, the result cannot be answered. This much is certain. In order to protect his interests, Chiang must have American aid and if we get involved in the struggle we will be doing it alone. American aid has long been a potent tool, cultivated the idea that our country is sincere in its desire to limit the war in Korea, and in that manner keep the entire continent of Asia from erupting into war. Fighting in China would destroy that idea.

Undoubtedly the President had good motives in presenting his speech, but the fact seems to be that his thinking on the subject is rather shallow.

"I Was The Witness" is Excellent Analysis Of Communism’s Appeal

By Henry Griffin

The task of characterizing an era so paradoxical, uncertain, and utterly confusing as this post-war period appears to be, ought in all justice to be left to succeeding generations, since they alone will possess both the evidence and the necessary historical perspective for making such a generalization. However, even taking into consideration our necessarily limited viewpoint, I think that one could do no better than to turn to the title of W. H. Auden’s poem, and call it: The Age of Anxiety.

This anxiety, of course, is of many facets, and is reflected in the religious, philosophical, social, and aesthetic disturbances of the time, both as in its political impasse, but these latter are much more evident. Actually the conflict between the said world and Communist is the foundation stone underlying all of these prob- lems.

The Thursday Evening Post is currently reprinting a serial form Whittaker Chambers’ forthcoming book "Was the Witness," in which these funda- mental differences between the two ideologies are intelligently, humorously, and succinctly expressed. This book, so far as I can judge from the first two installments, is an excellent contribu- tion toward the understanding of the difficulties arising from the ascension of Communism to its present powerful position in the world.

As you undoubtedly know, Chambers is the former Time editor who brilliantly assisted his job and his reputation in order to reveal to his country the extent to which the Communists have infiltrated its go- vernment. In so doing, he necessarily had to disclose his own part in the conspiracy, which must have been a difficult and degrading experience for him; nevertheless, he accepted the humiliation and degradation, and the reason for this acceptance is greatly illustrated in this document.

Perhaps the most important contribu- tion which Chambers has made in this volume lies in his forward to it, where he takes the form of a letter to his children. Apart from the sentimental qualities of this letter, I found a good, clear, unemotional definition of Com- munist. He has discarded all the pop- ular opinions concerning it under- finge, physical coercion, revolution, anarchism, and even dialectical materialism. He has discarded them—not as effects inherent in its very structure, which he readily admits—but as its ev- ence. He sees in the essence of Com- munist a "vision" of a classless so- ciety, without God, in which man, as the most intelligent of the animals, would be the point of this happiness, using technological and scientific skill as its means. Everything else, as he con- (Continued on Page 6)

Letters to the Editor

To the Editors:

One of the biggest frustrations ever per- peitrated on Providence’s basketball fans was last Saturday night when the Friars lost to some team from Wurzburg. I forgot the name by one point, 49 to 50. If ever the Friars played a miserable game this was it. The boys from Clark (I remember the name) was supposed to be another setup for our quintet, but the Wurzburg lad forgot to lay down.

I was ever let to a team that we should have beaten by 30 points, I would never have beaten the team. The question now remains why we lost the ball game. The players were over-anxious, the ball was out of shape. (This of course doesn’t reflect on all the players since some of them always play in shape, but for some reason have a habit of coming off their elbows.) I thought the boys looked bad against Brown, but last Saturday we took the "train."

One person sitting next to me at the game complained that the coach- ing was bad. But it isn’t the coach who made those bad passes or missed the shots at the basket. At times the team literally stood around and watched the opposition dribble in for a score. While sitting in the stand I was able to hear the opposing coach say something like, "Get the ball down court now since his man wasn’t covering him."

If anyone will look at our present record they will see that we haven’t even scored a basket in the last five minutes of every game. Are we to blame the next time if we can’t get the setups, who can we beat? Ever since the "Chained Page"...
The senior class gift committee at its first meeting held last Thursday afternoon decided to postpone actual selection of a gift until complete information and the practicability of each suggestion could be ascertained. At the noon meeting scheduled for Tuesday, February 24 in Room 216 at 11:30 p.m., the committee will hear reports from sub-committees on the following suggestions: scholarship fund, student loan fund, library books, library equipment, statutes for the front of Harrison Hall, a tennis court, a hockey rink, and equipment for the proposed gym.

The committee also temporarily postponed a decision on how much should be collected from each student, but they did decide that the gifts should run in the vicinity of $150 to $180 per person of which will come from the club treasury.

Commencement Ball Group To Meet Next Tuesday

George Mehan, chairman of the Commencement Ball committee, announced yesterday that his group will meet Tuesday, February 21 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 211.

Mehan also announced that tickets will go on sale March 16, and that entries may pay for the dance in installments with a minimum of one dollar per installment.

The annual senior dinner dance will be held this year on May 29 at the Sheraton-Billmore Hotel.

100 Couples Take Part In Dorm Club Weekend Activities

Over 100 couples took part in the annual dorm weekend which was highlighted by a candlelight South Sea dance held last Friday night in the Junior Annex Hall.

The program also included a lecture on Saturday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. J. Garber, assistant professor of Greek departments; the Clark University-Providence College basketball game, same Saturday night at Mt. Pleasant Gym, which Clark won 59-44, and an open house in Akin's Annex Sunday afternoon.

The weekend opened with a lobster dinner in the dining room of Aquinas Hall. A formal dinner dance was provided by George Champagne’s Orchestral in the Lounge and Art Bar, followed by a formal dance in the same hall. Guest at the dance included: Rev. Robert J. Burke, O.P., advisor of the club and host for the weekend, as well as members of the Providence College faculty.

"Hope, History, and Hysteria," was the theme of the Thursday evening, introduced by John Cassidy, president of the Cardin Club, who said: "For the benefit of the people who are not familiar with the landmarks here at Clark, I will have to say a few words about our eminent speaker.

"Hope," he continued, "has been called many things, but this is the first time I have been."

Sunday morning the students and their guests attended the 1909 o'clock Mass, and had breakfast in the college cafeteria. The program closed with the traditional open house at the Rock.

Casey To Head NewlyFormedChem Society Chapter

The Providence College chapter of the Student Affiliates of the American Chemical Society was organically organized last week with the election of John R. Casey, '32, Cranston, as president of the group. The chapter, whose approval from the headquarters of the American Chemical Society was received several weeks ago, serves to give extra majors in Chemistry an opportunity to learn more about the profession. Here at the college, the chapter, although it is a separate organization with its own officers and officials, also handles many allied affairs with the Phi Chi Club.

Other officers elected at the meeting held last Wednesday evening, were: Eugene Mercier, '35, North Attleboro, vice-president; Thomas Stuliff, '32, Providence, secretary; and Grace Gal- lin, '34, Providence, treasurer.

The Rev. James W. Hackett, O.F.M., chairman of the Department of Chemistry, also has been appointed advisor of the chapter.

English To Speak At B. V. C. Stay Dinner Tues.

The Blackstone Valley Club will hold a dinner-stay dinner Tuesday night. Rev. Frederick T. English, O.F.M., of the college chaplain, will be guest speaker.

Admission for guests members will be $1.00 while all others may pay $1.50. The admission includes the cost of meals and refreshments.

Speakers at the affair will be the Rev. Adrian F. English, O.P., of the college chaplain, the Rev. John F. Ensign, O.F.M., O.P., club advisor; Col. John M. McGroarty, chief of state defense of the Providence College, and George Murphy, president of the Providence College Alumni Association.

Chairmen of the dinner are Bob Nolan and Bertrand Maderman.

Sextet To Pay Army Varisty Next Tuesday

By Bob Marini
Providence's hockey team will journey into the collegiate circles, once again, when they meet Army's varsity at West Point next Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 in the Ice Rink at the New York Sports Center. Army has not been up against such top-flight caliber since the Brown game (which we lost to 4-to-0 the P. C. rink), and we stand a good chance of winning this one.

In a game last Saturday the Cadets lost 11-1 to Harvard and Harvard don't appear to have any great "shakes" of a team.

More Exciting Bad News
Not to be overlooked in the fiasco of the Friars can win this one they will move in front in the Rhode Island Amateur Hockey League but if they lose tonight game the Friars will be pushed back into third place and any chance for winning the play-offs will have vanished.

This Is A Must Game
This is a must game for the Friars since it is their last game of the sea-son and third place in the league at this second point when this contest is com-pleted. (Under the play off set-up either the first or second place teams must win the play off.) Going into to-night's encounter the Smith-Hillers are carrying an impressive seven wins, two losses, and one tie record. The losses are the two games played against the Dunn-er East Siders and Burril- ville.

Large Risk
Looking ahead to the Army encoun-ter as of now are the Friar House and the Hartfiord Hilltoppers. The Donnelly Hall quake will have to beat the Coaches in the New England's, or any section's, for that matter, most proficient score in six-foot-three-inch Alan Schaab.

(Don't want it, you can have it, it's too hot for me.)

Dorm Hoop Playoffs Set For Early March

By Bill Davis
Last week's Dorm League basketball

Came to a close when the Donnelly Hall Alumni, the Friar House Five, and the Hartford Hilltoppers all notch their fifth victory of the season against nice defendt to fashion a three-way tie for number one position in the league.

After trailing the entire game, the Donnelly Hall quake was forced to figure out a victory over one of the top three teams. C. in the person of Bill Mullins. He was his last-period scoring that enabled his club to fight from behind and defeat the Biltmore A. C. by a 30-29 score. The latter played excellent basketball game and had their pins in the final minutes they might have escaped with a upset victory.

In the next couple of weeks the top club will meet: one another in which should prove to be "nurtured." The playoff will start at the beginning of March although the dates have not yet been decided and playoff se-tions shall be restricted to the top eight clubs.

The top nine clubs in the league as of now are: the Friar House Five, the Hartfiord Hilltoppers, the Donnelly Hall Alumni, the Smith-bets Club, the Aquinas Friars, the D. A. C., the Heidelberg Club, the L. A. Boys and the New Haven Club.

Friday evening, Peterotti Top in Scoring

Superior Business continued in its second place in the 11-30 division by beating Fr. Artis last week 59 to 38. As usual the Sophomore Business quintet was led by Peterotti and Moran. Other scores in last week's games were: Whiter 36, Insiders 39, Independence 48, Fr. Chemistry 36, Fr. Physics 27. The last five games were played against the Independence team. By the time the "wayward bus" returns our boys to these halls Friday afternoon they will have had their fill of Maine basketball.

At Springfield on Homecoming Day
After a brief tip-up on the home grounds our wandering basketball forces will make a comparatively short trip to Springfield to meet the Maroon and White on their homecoming day.

The starting eight on the Minutemen and the starting seven on the other side: Gymnastics a little more to incentive a change of venue from an inability to keep the opposition from scoring rather than an inability to put the weather through the iron circle. They boast a 67 point average, a boast not to be taken lightly, indeed.

Rat's Bas a Second "Mikao"
Sharpest claw in the Bobcats' paw is his big pivot man, Harry Quinley, who resembles, in appearance, George Mikao out on the court, right down to the bow-tie. Larry bills George's elongated frame and smoothness, but he's still a good drink of water and he has got a fine eye. Quinley is bound to be missed from all points or more on a few occasions this season Jim Brymer and Ken Weiler back up their captain in the scoring department.

Mr. Cuddy is optimistic about the fortunes of the Black and White on their current jockey, but they'll run into plenty of opposition before they're through. Cuddy figures on making the trip up to Kansas City this year as representative of New England in the NAIA Tourney, a journey that our own Friars made last year, and Bow-down has ambitious along that line, too. Bales isn't getting her sights on any lofty pinnacle, but her rangy ball team will give P.C. plenty of trouble. By the time the "wayward bus" returns our boys to these halls Friday afternoon they will have had their fill of Maine basketball.

Classical Review:
“Conversation Piece” Is Humorous, Entertaining Musical Comedy
By A.H. Lister
One work that has aroused considerable interest among record reviewers recently was Columbia's album, Conversation Piece, a pathetically arranged by the versatile Niel Coward, and featuring Lily Pons and Mr. Coward in the principle roles. The scene of this musical comedy is in Brighton, the famous English watering place, during the reign of His Nourishing Majesty, King George IV. The plot is relatively simple and is not likely to be attempted in a musical comedy. A penniless Frenchman, embittered aristocratic rose (played by Mr. Coward, marvellously masked behind a French accent) has brought to Brighton as equally penniless young French girl (played by Miss Pons) whom he has equipped with an imposing title and a long list of aristocratic forbears; all supposedly killed in the Revolution. He, as business partner, is counting out a husband for her.
Well, a match is made with the rise of the Duke of Shrews and all goes smoothly until this news reaches the Duke and Duchesses, who arrive swiftly upon the scene, and, confirmed in their opinions by true British common sense, they have something Fishy About the French—I'm damming the young lady with a "pique."

One-Milers To Race
In Invitations 1C-4A’s
By Jim Marshall
Providence’s classy one-milers will appear on the national scene this Saturday when they race in 1C-4A’s “Tennis Champions- ships” at New York’s Madison Square Garden. The four man team will be chosen from Jim Penler, Bob Tierman, John Cassedy, Frank Lusier and Paul Mathis.

- On Saturday afternoon the milers will run in a trial heat which will determine the qualifiers for the even... year. The fact is that this is an Olympic year the meet should be one of the finest in years. The meet should be made until Friday, and as a result it will be known when Providence will be running again until Saturday morning.
