Mal Brown Award is Renewed After Ten Years of Dormancy

Donated By Mr. Conaty To Honor Famous P. C. Trainer

The reaffirmation of the Mal Brown Athletic Award, which was discon- tinued effective January 1, has been announced by Father Bagley, Director of Ath- letics. The award, which has been a feature of the University program since its inception, is given each year to the most outstanding athlete of the season.

The award will be given annually to the graduating senior who, during the three years of intercollegiate competition, possessed, in a manner acceptable to the committee, the qualities of Mal Brown.

Why No Entertainment?

A number of our readers have objected to the exclusion of the column “Wha’d he say?” from this paper. Our question, however, is whether a column that has such a wide following will be dropped.

The students seem to feel that the object of a college newspaper is to entertain its readers and if a column achieves widespread popularity, this should be the object of such periodicals as Life and Quick but it is not.

The reason we eliminated “Wha’d he say?” as a regular feature can be found in David Host’s current writing “Wha’d he say?” written in the CATHOLIC SCHOOL EDITORIALS. No publication can ignore its readers,” States David Host, "but to make the pleasure of the students the sole purpose of college publication, amounts to making staff members merely entertainers of the student body. At least we do not think the job of journalism and show. That is a little rough on the staff members. It was a step above the comic book level. It would also bring up the question of why should Catholic college newspapers of today, when they are financed from funds as they all have, be money, time, and effort...to support an enterprise whose primary purpose is entertaiment.

The students of Providence College wish to read a column that deals with a child’s love of reading. What is the latest joke book because the COWL does not intend to run any column whose primary purpose is entertainment.

Fundamentally, the COWL exists to help students to develop a means of communication, become aware of their society, and to intensify an enthusiastic Providence College community. That it serves as an organ is a fact, but it exists as a new organ. Nowhere in its purpose can we find justification for running a column that is a step above the comic book level.

It is the aim of every newspaper to help shape the views of its public. Even the COWL tries to shape the thought of its readers. It tries to establish an organ, will which help to broaden their background. For example, we have run articles on Catholic music, literature, politics and occasionally on drama. Some of these columns, of course, are not necessarily entertaining. However, over the criterion of whether a column is good or bad, we follow but rather on what it has to offer its readers.

The COWL does not intend to step in to do this, or to wish to do so. It is not possible to become a medium of entertainment but rather it will have a certain level to the extent that is expected of college men.

It will be the policy of the COWL to print only those columns which do wish to do so, and not to become a medium of entertainment but rather to remain as a level that is expected of college men.

Theatricals: In Choosing Morton of Movies

By Frank Williams

The new film version of “The Merry Widow” by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, now playing at the Atlas, has been very well received. Tom Kelly, president of the Players, comments.

This time, the Pyramid Players choose for their locale, "The Merry Widow," a play written by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, several years ago, "Morton" is an appropriate choice for the gala season, especially for those who have seen the fabulous Broadway hit in recent years. As a satire on "movies," "Morton" is a Hollywood burlesque and much fun.

As a whole, the play did more than an adequate job on the play. It was intelligently directed and cleverly adapted to the stage staging which, although it was an extremely difficult job, since "Morton" is technically more involved than any play which has been attempted in the Markham lounge. The play is a new adaptation of the ever-popular Marx Brothers, "The Merry Widow," with Renoir, Peno, and Mabel Normand as the stars. Tom Kelly was remarkably flexible in the direction of the play, and an outstanding production of the Marx Brothers in their original form of the play. The supporting cast was surprising, the particular favorite of the audience production. It was so well received that they brought them to their roles. And, of course, special notice must be made of the cast of "The Merry Widow," for the complete romantic comedy in the play and the book. The purple gold painted stage stoped the show as never before.

Postscript should express regret that the authors were not better ac-

From The Tower:

Senator McCarthy Book Lampooned by Columnist

On June 14, 1951, Senator Joseph R. Mc-

Carthy delivered an address in the Senate. It was a speech of some 13,000 words in length, and it represented a major effort on the part of the Senator and all those who support him to build public support for the charge that the address, the Senator announced that he was going to lay before the Senate, was a "scandalously sordid" affair and an "immense" smears. As a means of attacking this power for good emerges in the character of the Lady. In the words of the seductive gallicantin with a slyly spiced flower in his mouth, "She is a woman, dear. She is a woman."

To be sure, Greene is concerned with evil and the effects of evil upon human character. This is where some of the moral conflicts turn. To take another example, the struggle and sub-

The Bookshelf:

Graham Greene’s Writing Reveals His Awareness Of Moral Issues

By Henry Griff

For some time past I have been in the habit of reading Graham Greene's works of fiction. I have grown accustomed to consider the kind of work of this novelist. It is a kind of novel, and there is much fine work that one can be quite apparent to those who have read the book. Mr. Greene has accomplished a great deal in this novel, and this novel is a development of a new novel, a developing novel, and this novel has been the basis for his book’s success.

William Faulkner and Thomas Mann are also major novels, yet they are the kind that do not need much book’s success. The answer to this question is that Mr. Greene was the author of the Theme of the End of the Airfare, as in, indeed, of the majority of Greene's various novels is one of vital sig-

If we analyze the strategy of Greene to treat this novel, we see that many of the moral issues are second to some and this awareness coupled with his own personal belief about life and the fact that the novel is written in the style of Catholic literary artist of this century.

So it is Greene's situation. Sobel has a poem in love and becomes involved with someone and there are people who are perfect even. Greene is the one who break of this relationship. He makes an attempt to get her back, but the experience of love at ever attaining salvation, he takes his own life.

The abuse awareness of these moral problems is second to none and this awareness coupled with his own personal belief about life and the fact that the novel is written in the style of Catholic literary artist of this century.

We have recently seen some criticism of Greene to the effect that he deals too much with the morose aspects of present day life, that he is a bit too in-nervous for my tastes. But, with the morose aspects of present day life, it would seem that the novel is concerned with a collection of vice and sin with virtue and vice and Virtue and sin and sin and sin.

Certainly there is little doubt about the moral conflict in the character of The Boy in the novel. The seductive gallicantin with a slyly spiced flower in his mouth, "She is a woman, dear. She is a woman."

In the end it is she who precipitates the destruction of The Boy.

TALK ON RESEARCH IS GIVEN

A research project in advanced bacteriology presented by John M. McKenna, B.S., '50, was a feature of the New England Biology Conference held at Emmanuel College, April 16. McKenna is a senior graduate student in bacteriology, and is investigating the cause of a mold growing in a low tempearture chamber. He stated that the mold is caused by a type of fungus that is commonly found in the soil and is partially resistant to heat and low temperatures.

The research project was presented in front of a large audience that included many members of the biology department as well as several guests from other universities.

Crowning The Queen

The Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., president of the college, is shown presenting Miss Ann Lord with a beauty pageant crown and sash. She was crowned Queen of the Shermanton-Biltmore Hotel last Friday evening from 9 till 1 to the music of Art Money and his orchestra.

The affair was highlighted by the crowning of the queen, Anne Lord, of Westerfield, Conn. The Very Reverend Robert J. Slavin, O.P., president of the college, Miss Lord was crowned by Carl Doolin, a junior from Westerfield, Conn. She is a student at Simmons College, Boston, Mass. The queen's court consisted of Miss Sheila Landry, escorted by Henry James; Dorothy Corbett, escorted by Jerry Kirby; Claire Martin, escorted by John R. Sullivan; and Irene Trosby, escorted by Tom Walsh.

An honor guard of ROTC cadets, led by Cadet Captain Richard Fontaine, escorted the queen, her court, and the faculty and junior class president Bill Conway to the head of the balcony where the crowing was conducted. This was immediately followed by a dance for the queen and her court.

Some innovations noted were the tuxes which this year were miniature black and white dogs with a notation of the queen and sash written on them. This change was made with much favor from all who were present. The annual scholastic pageant which was conducted in the pageant room included music by Art Money and his orchestra, and featured Ann Lord who was crowned queen of the event. A special feature of the affair was the presentation of the queen and her court to the audience.

At the conclusion of the celebration, Art Money and his orchestra entertained the audience with a musical program featuring many of their hit songs.

Nine Battles Today: Face Tough Weekend Schedule...The Arthur Dahl School intends to schedule the Greyhounds for a later date.

Mr. Martin has quite a job on his hands for this week. His steaming tangles with Springfield today, then faces an unendurable weekend. Friday is Seton Hall day at Hendrickson Field, then the boys journey forth to meet AIT on Saturday and Barham Forge on Sunday. Seton Hall is perennially tough. AIT owns a vendetta over last year's club, and B. C. is once more a New England powerhouse. Springfield, by the way, was this area's representative at the SCAAA tourney at Omaha last year. This week will really give the boys their chance to prove themselves under fire.

The Friars acquitted themselves nobly in the opener, but the Assumption rain-out hurt. It was obvious that the club could use a little more work before facing the imposing crew of opponents that they do this week. However, their play was sparkling for so early a date, especially that of Don MacDonald and captain Howie McGuinness.

Bill McGuinness suffered from a lack of consistency and a couple of bad plays in the field, but the big right-hander had it when "the chips fell down." Bill fanned 17, a remarkable feat, particularly this stage of the season, and set ten of the Bobcats down on strikes in the last four innings. "Mighty Mo" had his shaky spots, but he was in control most of the way. Many of the hits he gave up can be attributed to a natural lack of sharpness which he acquired as the season leaves the infancy stage.

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, today announced an additional Selective Service College Qualification Test to be held May 22 at 1,880 testing centers for the benefit of students prevented by illness, emergencies, or some other reason from taking the test on December 13, 1941, or April 24 of this year.

General Hershey also has repeatedly stressed that no deferment is an exception. "A deferment is a delay or postponement," he said, "and in no way cancels the duty of the registrant to meet his obligations."

ROTC students who have not taken the test are urged to do so by the Rev. Vincent C. Duse, O.P., Dean of studies at P.C., even though they now have an ROTC deferment. He points out that at a future date they might lose their ROTC deferment.

The prize winning slogan of a contest conducted recently by the New York Yankees Drivers was, “Think Before You Book.” Such a slogan should be adopted nationally for more pleasant and probably safer driving. Is It All The Kids Fault?

An article in the New York Times recently declared that the juvenile delinquency problem of the United States is now a great one.

Some people lay the fault entirely on the parents of the child, but is that the whole problem? I feel that in some cases it is the fault of the towns and cities where these children come from. An inadequate system of recreation facilities for these youngsters, due to a lack of interest by the municipalities, has magnified the problem in some areas. This fact coupled with the lack of initiative on the part of the parents to properly care for the child brings about a distressing condition in our country; even more disturbing when you realize that the youths of today are the leaders of tomorrow.
