Seniors Invested At Grotto Exercises

At ceremonies held Friday morning in the War Memorial Grotto, 427 Providence College seniors, the largest number in the history of the Dominican institution, invested in wands and gowns by the Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., S.T.M., president of the college.

Assistant Father Slaven were the Reverend Fathers Charles F. Clapp, O.P., and Daniel F. Reilly, O.P. The Rev. Edward H. Gallagher, O.P., class moderator, conducted Mass prior to the investiture ceremony.

The Rev. Walter A. Morahan, O.P., in the Cap and Gown Day address, told the seniors that the caps and gowns should remind them of higher and nobler things. He urged them to apply the educational principles that they had learned at Providence College so that "they will adorn your vocation and life on this earth. Live in your work, lead you to God and thus make the world a little better place because of you."

"Your educational principles," he added, "have been directed toward and only one goal, namely to help you save your immortal soul first, duty, therefore, is to know God."

He also told them that they had "obligation of following their lives."

PC Loses Lorense Charter; Had Held Seat For Two Years

By Gay Geffrye

The New England region of the National Federation of Catholic College Students held Saturday evening its biannual fine arts convention, which also served as a report of the Providence College fine arts committee, and revealed the regional charters of three other commissions, including Lorense, which had been seated for two years.

The Glee Club, four official delegations, two alternates, and three speakers from P.C. participated at various sessions.

The P.C. committee, headed by Robert Linton, had prepared a page report on the fine arts program in the region, as well as a program work for next year. The resulting fine arts commission was added as a regional committee of Emmanuel College, the only bidder.

The forensic commission presented a woman's rights movement debate at Boston College under the chairmanship of Joseph Quinton, of P.C. Other speakers included the Rev. Charles B. Kegawa, O.P., Chaplain, and students from Assumption and Alburnus Magnus College, who participated in the regional meetings. A complete discussion was "First Get Your Anointed.

Saturday afternoon James Marshall, of the P.C. Student Council, and Quinton, were student speakers at the governor's dinner on the Providence College program.

The Glee Club sang at the closing of the conference held Friday night at the Hotel Baxter. Selections rendered included: "This Song My Heart," "William, William," "Brahms: "Vivace," and "Swing Low, Sweet Home," and the traditional "Mary Had A Little Lamb." Eunice was entertainment chairman for the program.

Reporters' Visit To Grotto

Missing in Action

The loss of the Forensic Commissions of NPSU has left a void in Providence College. For once, the Providence College is indicative of a lack of something here on our campus.

What does this show the students of Providence College? It shows a lack of spirit among us, the student body, to take part in the activities offered for us.

This distressing condition has been brought about by a lack of interest and a lack of effort on the part of the student body itself and casts a dark and unwanted shadow upon us. All student activities are instituted for the benefit of all, yet unfortunately on our campus the students have seemed to get something more than just book learning while matriculating here. Providence College resides itself on its Thothmistic teaching. A basic Thothmistic principal for the student is to involve himself, besides fulfilling the intellective desires of a man, further, to make himself known in the social and cultural fields as well. It is evident that we have not taken advantage of it.

It is time to correct this disastrous situation.

It is time that those who are obtaining an education from this College lend themselves to the spirit and purpose of the College by joining some of the student organizations. It is an indication of our intellective powers and gain the education of the whole man.

This year is not too late this year. Join now! Next year, start right from the beginning. These activities are worth our efforts to work for the school which offers more than just an increase in intelligence.

Student Congress

At the recent meeting of the Student Congress one of the senior representatives that this paper has had the privilege of passing in the Congress. It seems that both the representative and members of the regional club were laboring under the illusion that the individual student was the only one to be considered in the Congress unless he belongs to a passive member club or has a direct influence on a Congress representative. This idea is wrong.

Any Providence College student may at any time, upon petition, be a member of Congress. This representation goes much farther. If he wishes he can take part in the Congress meeting by merely asking the president for recognition. The only power that a representative of the Congress has is the privilege of introducing legislation. If a student representative, he was a passive member, has ever spoken at a Congress meeting. However, the privilege is there and it is up to the students, the student Congress, and the Cowl that any student, regardless of rank, club, or organization, which he wishes to be heard, to speak up at these meetings.

It has been the practice of the Congress president to issue notice of these meetings on the bulletin board a week in advance. And added to every notice has been a postscript that requests the attendance of all students. But, so far, the attendance has been limited to an average of 3 or 4 spectators. Perhaps this is due to the fact that the Congress president has not taken the initiative to publicize the meetings or the discussions that may arise at these meetings.

A “Dandy” Thought

If you will pause at some time during your daily duties on the campus and look around you, you will see something quite remarkable. The trees are blooming; the grass is bright, the flowers are plentiful.

But, among the beauties of spring, we always come up with one big problem—Dandy.

If you cast your eyes towards Donnelly Lawn and the quadrangle of the little yellow things adorning the lawn.

Now is the time for all the horticulturists to try their experiments. They should try to control the rapid growth of these golden yellow flowers.

Now, don’t get us wrong; it isn’t that we despise Dandelions, but too much is too much.

The Bookshelf:
“A Foreign Policy For Americans” Is Labelled A Negative Approach

By Henry Grunis

The historic peace Summit for the presidential nominating conventions ended, and the General Convention’s senator from Ohio Robert Taft left for Paris with bright spirit in political circles these days. The battle has been a highly controversial one for both parties, and has brought the Single票 option to the fore. Senator Taft also advocated a policy of all-out war against the Chinese Communist forces, while Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, the front-runner for the nomination, espoused a policy of non-intervention. General Eisenhower is a dominant and popular figure; Senator Taft is the acknowledged spokesman for the Republican Party. We can expect an all-out battle between the two parties to the time of the convention in July.

In view of the nationwide interests in this struggle, we suggest that the student body devote our time to the consideration of Senator Taft’s foreign policy, and this statement of policy entitled, “A Foreign Policy for Americans.” This slander volume has been widely condemned and is considered as coming from both the right and left factions of our political set. It is also important because it mirrors the foreign policy views of the Republican Party. It is highly probable the next president of the United States, Senator Taft has divine influence. In each of the general categories: (1) the Russian menace, posturing against the spreading Russian menace in Europe, and (3) the Russian menace in Asia. The statement on Russia first-hand doctrines, the growth of communism to its present position in the world. Remarkably, Senator Taft, in Section I, page 7, thinks that communism is a threat to freedom. In each of the general categories there is an interesting one too, from the standpoint of the foreign policy of the United States. General Eisenhower is a dominant and popular figure; Senator Taft is the acknowledged spokesman for the Republican Party. We can expect an all-out battle between the two parties to the time of the convention in July.

Letters

Dear Editor,

While perusing your paper for some semblance of literary endeavors, I came across your column, "The Bookshelf". I thought I might have something for you. It seems that a critic has chosen a worthy contemporary novel for analysis. As those of us who are familiar with the great American tradition of literary criticism can see, the ploy has worked. Later, the student body was asked if they would like to take part in the Congress meeting. This is the only way to ensure that the student body is aware of the discussions that may arise at these meetings.

The other news of import was that the Supreme Court decision (4-6) which favored the "re-

Religion's role in the schools came into the limelight on two occasions recently. The first concerns some remarks made by Dr. Charles W. Harbold, University President, before the American Association of School Administrators, who met in Boston. Speaking about private schools, religious and otherwise, Dr. Conant said that he thought "there were certain aspects of the debate over the nature of the schools. We have believed what he said, as the boss of the Massachusetts Townsend plan, that the religious aspect is a complex one. "The fact is that he is aiding to the "fragmentation" of our society. He should also be looking forward to the day when all the schools, particularly the ones over the State and thereby aing it as a really democratic institution.

Doctor Conant seems to have contended democracy with regeneration when he said that private schools key economic and religious differences alike. Sure they do, but so what? Democracy presumably means doing what you like, life as you wish, picking your friends, and worshiping as you desire. Conant's ideas may be an expression of the Protestant country where religion is viewed as poison and the ideal is to have everyone in the same boat. That is why the doctor has Communist leanings, but to follow his ways would lead to the destruction of the very principles upon which our country is founded.

At another point, the noted educator said that "the history of the schools is a history of the whole system of primary public school of a single principle of public school for all youth."

Before or when this secular idea came into being, the schools was not explained and indeed it would be a difficult thing to explain for, the Supreme Court in 1935 ruled against such an idea. In that year, the Court ruled unconstitutional, an Oregon law which tried to force all children to attend public schools. It would hardly hand down such a decision if it was not the "high and impeccable word" that was erected between Church and State, by the McCollum Case.

In a sense, this decision was rather odd for the only difference in the two cases was that in the McCollum case, religious instruction was offered to the students in public schools while in the case, the recent case the instruction took place in non-public school buildings. It would seem that only the terms "tolerant" and "tolerated" of the First Amendment was not valid and it also casts some doubt on the validity of the 1947 verdict that "religious instruction in public schools is a violation of the First Amendment." Apparently that two word—"tolerated"—carries with it an enormous meaning.
President Stressess Family's Importance

The rehabilitation of the home and its regeneration as the vital force in the molding of young lives are among the most basic of the missions to which we hope to maintain and develop healthy nation," the Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., said in his Catholic Hour lecture last Sunday.

The President of the College, speaking on "Education and Society," in his third lecture, declared that although separated and curtailed the status of the place of parents in the field of formal teaching, this is no justification for society to control all phases of education through its school system.

Father Slavin went on to point out that marriages of convenience, marriage entered into as a lark, marriage not based on the genuine love of a father, are more destructive to the stability of our country than all the flaws of tyranny that the world can muster.

They sap the foundation of our institutions and render fragile the only true support of national greatness.

The home is the keystone in the arch of the republic of these United States of America. Its protection and improvement and, where necessary, its rehabilitation is a challenge to our activity and our intelligence as it stands and as it resides.

The real hope of America then rests in a reorganization of the principles of obedience, sacrifice, and generous love.

Father Slavin's fourth talk will be on "The Mother of Teaching," which will be heard Sunday afternoon at WJAR.

Friers Host To UConn Today; Hawks Friday

Martin Sandler

The Providence College varsity baseball squad completed its first full week of competition by splitting four games. The club continued its winning streak and turned in four strong performances. The Friars' record is now 4-3.

Last Wednesday, the Friars were upset by Springfield College 7-5. The game continued into the seventh inning when the Gators broke it open with three runs. Bill Mullins hurled for the Friars and was very effective until he had control trouble in the final sixth. Ed Barnum, Brian Millis and the seventh. Tom Arroyo took over in the eighth inning and was brilliant for the Friar. Bill Quinn with two doubles and Mark McGinness with two hits in three trips led the Friars at bat.

Friday, at Rondakren Field, Hall Martin's boys played their best ball of the year and upset highly favored Seton Hall College 4-3. Sophomore Pete Deary turned in a brilliant pitching performance for the Friars. Lefty Pete had a four-hit shutout going for seven innings. He weakened in the eighth inning and the Pirates came in to safeguard the victory. The Friars sewed up the game with three runs in the fifth inning. The big blow in that frame was a long two-run home run by Barnum. Ed Barnum and Bob Greiner also gave plenty of help at the plate for the Friars. John Philpot led off his four trips while Bob got two for three.

On Saturday the Friars traveled to Springfield and played a doubleheader to American International College. Bill McGinness started for the Friars in the first game. It was another six-inning game because of arm trouble. Sophomore Fred O'Neill took over and pitched a great ball game the rest of the way. The Friars salvaged the game away with a big ninth inning. The rally was sparked by a base loaded triple by Barnum and a hit by Bob Greiner and each McGinness had two hits and both sparked affair. The victory scored a costly one however as the Friars lost the services of hard hitting catcher Bill Quinn for an indefinite period. Bill received a good bit of thanks as well as being hit with a bunt single.

The Friars closed out the week by dropping a heartbreaking 4-3 decision to Springfield College. The Eagles won the game with four unearned runs in the first inning. The Eagles took a 4-0 lead through the Friars utilised them 13 to 8. Bill Mullins started for Hall Martin's club and was relieved by Bob Greiner in the fifth. Tom Arroyo took over in the sixth and Bill Quinn in the seventh. The Eagles were held to bat by nine and unearned runs for a four run lead. "Journal" Features P.C.'s Camera Club

P.C.'s Camera Club has brought some good publicity to the College. Last Sunday's Providence Journal's Rhode Islander carried a two-page feature on its efforts to bring "college cheer to the infirm." In this program, two members of the club go each week to the house of a home-ridden person and entertain her with a 30-minute show.

The Club uses a 16 mm DeVe8 projector leased by the Providence Junior Chamber of Commerce. The program, now in its second full year, was initiated under the direction of the Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., and is now being continued under the direction of the Rev. A.A. Jurgenstift, O.P., present moderator.

The Club held a meeting Monday evening to plan future events and investigate the possibility of continuing the program during the summer.

Fr. English To Talk On "Labor" On TV

Last week's discussion, "The Rise of Industrial Capitalism," cited the tremendous influx of European immigration in the last half of the nineteenth century, brought about by the need for cheap labor to fill the ever expanding factory system.
