Classes Reveal Plans For Spring Weekends

Spring may not yet be just around the corner, but a group of students have been "thinking spring" as early as mid-November of last year. The students are class of '69, feels that the various weekend committees, consisting of about 60 students will have all plans complete by the end of the month.

Friday night will highlight a semi-formal, non-dance social. Several committees are currently working to secure the location. The junior class dance committee promises to be a mixture of madness, laughter and fun.

The senior commencement weekend will be held June 3, 4, 5. Although getting off on a late start, Gregory Smith, president of the Dillon Club, has announced that an "workshop" will be held at Raymond Hall. It is promised for all.

Joint Blood Drive To Be Sponsored By Political Union

The Political Union will sponsor a blood drive on Tuesday, March 15, in the exercise room of Alumni Hall. All students will be eligible to donate.

Final Plans Unveiled For Sophomore Ring

The Ring Committee for the class of '68, has prepared a final stage in planning its design of the ring and in preparing for its disclosures to the class. Chairman John Sylva, has announced that an informative briefing is tentatively scheduled for Tuesday, March 8, at which time the classes will be presented with the ring design and its ultimate stage in planning its finished product. Distributed at the meeting will be a leaflet explaining the ring and its procedure, and a description of the ring types available.

The committee has promised a design that will be "simple and dramatic." Its individuality will be characterized by a remoteness from the ordinary.

Chairman Doody expressed the view of the junior member committee as follows: "We feel that this is the biggest event of the year for the class; but, at the same time, we tried to keep in mind that we will have two other weekends and a Ring Dance before we leave the College. We tried to set up the weekend in such a way that we feel it will be successful yet not overdone to the point that next year's committee will feel feel excited about our design.

The purchase of 250 bids, at $20 each, is expected.

There will be 250 bills of the junior weekend is the break from tradition voting by against inclusion of the Saturday night non-dance.

Dillon Club Announces Future Social Schedule

There is great excitement in the air for Dillon Club members as upcoming activities are announced.

In a recent interview with a Dillon Club representative, Frank Esposito, plans were announced for a "Dance Party" scheduled for February 26, to be held at Raymond Hall. It is that Holy Cross is in town and it was especially planned for members who cannot get tickets to the game. This dance is for couples only.

The price for the dance is $5.00 for members and $1.50 for non-members. Proper dress is required along with student identification cards. Refreshments will be served and a good time is promised for all.

For ski enthusiasts plans are underway for a gala evening to be held at the scenic Pine top Ski Resort. The activity will commence at 5:30 p.m. The ski rentals will be $2.25 per person. However, the date has not been announced, which includes some of the film "A Thousand Days." The ski lifts will be utilized.

Tentative plans are also being made for a theatre party for some time in March. The price for this is $3.00 per person which will save each student approximately one dollar. Other theater parties are also being considered at a later date. They will feature such movies as "The Hill," "The Warren Cinema.

Other activities scheduled for the day are morning and afternoon programs, and the showing of the film "A Thousand Days." Panels will include noted members of the Democratic Party and members of Rhode Island college faculties. Discussions will cover such topics as the state legislature, Rhode Island politics, current events, Democratic Party philosophy, areas and public relations, and college federations.

Class of '68 has revealed its plans for the spring weekend. Although no surprises are contained in the four social events—except the junior class dancing committee promises to be a mixture of madness, laughter and fun. As always, the freshmen, sophomore and junior classes will hold their weekend the same dates: May 6, 7, 8.

Although getting off on a late start, Mr. Smith, president of the Dillon Club, has announced that an "workshop" will be held at Raymond Hall. It is promised for all.

Results of the recent mixer and the upcoming date dance, it seemed that the class of '60 is moving in a positive direction.

The sophomore weekend, reports Mike Doody, chairman of the entire event, is almost complete.

Starting the festivities, a semi-formal dance will be given at the Old Great Mill in Seekonk, with the Polonians providing the entertainment. On Saturday night it will be held at the Old Great Mill. Editorially Speaking

Must We Wait?

In grammar school it was waiting in line for the Saturday afternoon cartoon show; in junior high it was waiting in line to see the principal for illegal possession of that most feared of all objects — the water pistol; and in high school it was those endless hours spent in the cafeteria line for that awaited carton of milk. Of many of these actions, of course, seemed to, at the time, serve useful purposes and certainly waiting in line for a good reason is not to be attacked. The trouble occurs when one is forced to waste his time uselessly, forced to relinquish much of his valuable time in a situation which could easily be changed. I am vagely referring to two events in which every student has participated at PC.

The first needless line is the one in front of Father Peterson's office at the beginning of each semester. Sometimes one may be forced to wait in line for five or six hours at a time only to be told that the office is closing and to "come back tomorrow." In most of the cases it is not the student's fault that he has to see Father Peterson and yet it is he who suffers by missing valuable class time. There is no reason why such a situation should exist. If the Assistant Dean of Studies cannot handle all the people involved, then other assistants should be appointed to get the job done not only in less time but also more efficiently. No matter how well Father Peterson may fulfill his duty, he is only human and, until the situation is remedied, both he and students alike will continue to suffer.

The second needless line, also at the beginning of the semester, forms in the bottom of Harkins Hall in that education core of the schools' bookstores. Unlike the first semester when text books are sold separately at Raymond Hall, nothing but mass confusion exists during the months of January and February. During this time texts are sold in the same place at the "bar of soap" and, with one cash register working, the line at times gets so long that students are faced with the problem of either being late for class or leaving the line after 20 minutes. Maybe texts should be sold at Raymond Hall, but, in any case, some setup should be devised to remedy the situation.

As we said before, lines, when they serve a useful purpose, should not be criticized. When they can be avoided, however, they should be, and with this we rest our case.

Around the Campi

Ithaca, N. Y. (L. P.) — The recently released report by the Provost on the Quality of Undergraduate Instruction at Cornell University states that students across the nation have demanded that the university should "devote a considerably greater effort to making it better".

"The 19.000-word report called for special attention to the attitudes of teachers toward students and for increased emphasis on the importance of teaching. Teaching, it said, must be placed on the same level as research, publishing and public service.

"However, the report stressed, "we are convinced that the increasing contact with external affairs on the part of professors demands the development of graduate education. There is too little understanding and interest in students and people outside the University."

"The report's committee noted that the past year "was marked by mounting criticisms of the education that students were giving their undergraduates and termed its reports a "reformulation of the situation." The committee held more than 25 meetings, talked with students, faculty members and administrative officers and studied numerous written reports.

Undergraduate education at Cornell, the report said, "though generally conscientious, often very good and occasionally brilliant—command neither the attention nor the status it deserves. If the quality of our teaching is not as high as it can and should be—and this is our finding—and if the education of the young is not as useful as one of the crucial college experiences..." the report said, "at least for the great majority of our students..."

"At Cornell today there are frequent mechanisms whereby students can get the faculty and administration to give real consideration to their reactions and proposals, and with running the risk of being viewed by many as violators of good taste, or worse. But the fact that student discontent or indifference may derive in part from circumstances beyond the control of the university does not mean that institutions of higher learning have no obligation to respond to the student's problems. On the contrary, if the teaching role of the university is more than a disinterested possession of knowledge, an educational institution is charged with evoking and guiding the development of the young person's potential in judgment as well as intellect."

"In a word, the report said, that the university has "either the capacity or the obligation to play the role of educator—either the duty or the privilege of dealing with the problems of education—either the duty or the privilege of dealing with the problems of education—..." ever, the duty and the ability to provide to him teachers..."..."...

"We are convinced that the quality of teaching is not as high as it can and should be—and this is our finding—and if the education of the young is not as useful as one of the crucial college experiences..." the report said, "at least for the great majority of our students..."
Dear Sir:

While the final examination period offers too much that can be considered desirable for students, I would like to take this opportunity to make a few observations in regard to the letter of 9 February concerning the final examination period.

Having the opportunity of being somewhat closely associated with the problems of examination time through my work with the Study Plan Study, I would urge that all the facts be analyzed before any major change is made.

The nine signers of the letter speak of the "flagrant conditions" which they feel produce an "uncollegiate atmosphere" around examination time, and the authors seemingly feel that similar conditions exist on other campuses. Unfortunately, the staffing pattern in many of our centers greatly over-emphasizes the color of grass elsewhere.

For instance, of the fifteen colleges listed, at least eight are reporting a reading period at all; one has less than a day for the first semester and none for the second. Therefore, one of the letter's premises, that "most colleges have a week of pre-examination study" would seem to be refuted.

In regard to the length of the examination period; the average number of days devoted to examinations in the schools polled is 16 (range five days to a maximum of five). In these colleges where the examination period is longer, tests usually run for three to five days.

The colleges where the examination period is three of five days to a maximum of ten. In these colleges where examination period: the average number of days for examinations is four or five days: another has one day. In some of the colleges surveyed: eight have no scheduled examinations; the letter's theme is very much present in the present system.

Thus the solutions to the present problems of the final examination period is, in my opinion, not to be found in lengthening the examination time as a whole.

If a better spacing in the scheduling of examinations can be worked out and if each of us would budget our study time, most of the problems could be solved without a heavier emphasis on the importance of finals.

Respectfully,

John H. Nissen

Dear Sir:

Much has appeared in the local press and elsewhere—little has been said about the actions of your R.O.T.C. Cadets and their walkout at the Albee Theatre during the Holiday Festival.

The right to dissent and to protest has taken on national importance in recent times and our policies as a nation and a people have little to commend them.

Too much has been said about side issues—the draft resistance; the draft card burners; the self immolators—e'en the outright draft dodgers; much too little has been said about the real principles involved.

Too much has been said about our responsibility to Viet Nam and all that allegedly implies. Much too little has been said about our responsibilities to ourselves and all that that really implies.

Buried beneath a virtual avalanche of rather widespread inaccuracy are the lights of our cherished rights and freedoms which become ever dimmer as our national energy is directed elsewhere.

On one hand we commend, we exhale, we decorate, we canonize the self styled "draftees" or "Right Men" (we even applauded the draft card burners), we give to instigators of strike; we encourage civil disobedience on an ever increasing scale in the interests of "civil rights," the apologists for Watts are still busy enganging the names of the Negro's case that he be allowed to destroy the property of others or secure his own, indeed that he trample on the rights of others in reaching for his own; we elevate the "horribles parade" of a past generation into the amalga-mingly grotesque and grim) were not the leaders of the "Civil Rights Movement" never having the wall of courage but are always present for the grand finale?"

We are even willing to listen to a Martin Luther King sound the final warning on the issues of Peace and War and the credentials presumably being his name and his hypnotic effect his low lifted brothers. (Dr. King once admitted on a national television that he was and is not familiar with the Logos Act Peace Prize given to instigators of strike; we encourage civil disobedience on an ever increasing scale in the interests of "civil rights," the apologists for Watts are still busy enganging the names of the Negro's case that he be allowed to destroy the property of others or secure his own, indeed that he trample on the rights of others in reaching for his own; we elevate the "horribles parade" of a past generation into the amalga-mingly grotesque and grim) were not the leaders of the "Civil Rights Movement" never having the wall of courage but are always present for the grand finale?"

Yet, is not their right of petition as sacred? Is not the basis right to live as sacred as the right to live comfortably? Whether or not our official position on Viet Nam is right or wrong it seems to me that the real issue.

Whether or not we as individuals have a right to make our own individual positions, in my opinion, is the central question in the broad context of our American tradition. If we can agree that this is so, then I commend both Miss Collins whose lyrics (grammatical errors aside) express "Civil rights," the apologists for Watts are still busy enganging the names of the Negro's case that he be allowed to destroy the property of others or secure his own, indeed that he trample on the rights of others in reaching for his own; we elevate the "horribles parade" of a past generation into the amalga-mingly grotesque and grim) were not the leaders of the "Civil Rights Movement" never having the wall of courage but are always present for the grand finale?"

Let us not, however, in the pursuit of our own individual positions, in my opinion, is the central question in the broad context of our American tradition. If we can agree that this is so, then I commend both Miss Collins whose lyrics (grammatical errors aside) express our "Civil rights," the apologists for Watts are still busy enganging the names of the Negro's case that he be allowed to destroy the property of others or secure his own, indeed that he trample on the rights of others in reaching for his own; we elevate the "horribles parade" of a past generation into the amalga-mingly grotesque and grim) were not the leaders of the "Civil Rights Movement" never having the wall of courage but are always present for the grand finale?"

Computers Utilized To Guide Students Into Law School

West Hartford, Conn. — Colleges are being urged to go on to law school no longer have to guess which schools would be best for them.

A unique new organization, Law School Placement Service (LSPS), will guide individual students to the law schools most closely suited to their needs.

The LSPS, founded by the nation's top law schools, will provide LSPS with data and advice to helpers by the end of January. Applications may be obtained from Mrs. Lynch in the Language Learning Center, Meager Hall, Room 15.

Fr. Lennon Releases Work-Study Results

Results of a student work questionnaire, conducted by the Rev. Joseph J. Lennon, O.P., Dean of Studies, for the Educational Planning Committee, have been released.

The survey will be used by the committee in its consideration of a six-day work week.

The committee will meet under its chairman, the Rev. Frederick C. Hickey, O.P., later this year.

The questionnaire was distributed to upperclassmen through theology teachers and to freshmen through logic teachers during the first semester. Sixty-three percent of the College's 2,506 students completed the survey.

Findings showed that:

- 50% of the students are gainfully employed. 13% of those who work 4 hours; 26%; 12; 41%; 20, and 14%; 30 hours per week.

- 59% of the work is done on weekends.

- 50% reported that they would be able to continue in college without the income they receive from working.

Due to the popularity of the work-study program, the LSPS is expected to become a valuable aid to the pre-law student.

AED Sponsors First Aid Class

The first of five classes on the theory and practice of basic first aid techniques, sponsored by the AED Society, will be presented tonight at 6:30 in Harbins Hall Auditorium.

The course will be given on Wednesday evenings, is open to all Providence College students, and is free of charge. Interested students should register in the Science Office at Albertus Magnus Hall.

The Christian Family Movement has a chapter at Providence College with Rev. Frederick Jolly, O.P., as its chaplain. The movement has a "scripture-liturgy in such a meaningful way" that Father Jolly expressed it "is the lay apostolate, or Catholic action in terms of a movement thatpertains to the laity in an area of responsibility that belongs chiefly to the laity, marriage and family life." Father went on to say the lay Catholic action in its strictest sense, he meant "in the C.F. M. the laity is the principal factor as opposed to other Church organizations which laymen are only assisting the clergy in areas of responsibility that belongs principally to the priests." The Catholic Family Movement was conceived of in the early '40s at a meeting of clerics and lay Church members in Chicago. The movement began in a "scripture-liturgy inquiry"; the couples discuss a passage of scripture and some aspect of the liturgy and relate it to its application in modern life.

cert in the weekend. Instead, a boat ride is planned from 7 p.m. to midnight.

According to the Student Congress agreement, the juniors traditionally run the concert, but they do not have to participate in it—as long as the class gives the concert the necessary financial backing.

Says John Cosentino, chairman of the weekend. "At the time the class poll was taken, which decided whether participation at the concert would be upheld by the junior class, the selection of groups for the concert was felt to be not acceptable to the junior class. In the class poll, attending participation was withheld by a 6 to 5 decision. "I don't think that the junior class by not attending the concert will financially hurt the other classes," said Chairman Cosentino, "because the groups which will appear will draw many students from the Providence area."

Also on the weekend agenda is a stag party at the Eagle Home on Eddy Street on Thursday. The entertainment will be supplied by members of the class. Friday night will feature a formal prom at King Philip at Lake Pearl, Massachusetts. The Jessie Smith band, consisting of 14 pieces and one singer, will entertain. A Queen's court will also be chosen. From noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday a New England style cakewalk will be given at the King Philip Bakemaster, Inc., in Bristol. A band and refreshments are also planned. Saturday night a boat ride from Providence to Newport around Narragansett will take place from 7 to midnight. A band will be supplied. Sunday's schedule includes a 10:30 Mass at St. Joseph's Chapel followed by Communion breakfast at Mr. Truc's in Cranston. "Open house at the dormitories, including late permission to 1 a.m., will round out the festivities."

Cosentino also expressed delight in the several committees, including the junior prom committee, for their unity and concern in securing the major weekend items.

The number of students which will be sold at $25 each, to be sold out is expected to reach 400.

Jack Cullinan, president of the senior class, has made an informal announcement that the preliminary plans for this year's commencement weekend are under way.

The weekend will begin with a senior prom on Friday night, June 3. The location is tentatively set at Raymond Hall. The orchestra is yet to be announced. Saturday will spotlight a boat ride to Block Island, followed by an informal dance. Sunday will include a Balkanstrife Mass and a parents reception.

Frosh Hockey

Despite the freshman hockey team's losses, they have shown considerable improvement in the last few games. The breaks went against them and they lost a number of games that could have gone either way.

Injuries have not been too serious, although one player perhaps for the loss of the first line center Rich Johnson, who lost a broken thumb from the third game. It seems the team lacks the depth of last year's squad, but the Friars are now playing the kind of hockey that could finish the remaining games in fine fashion.

This was indicated by the 2-1 victory over BC last weekend.

I do not particularly favor Sports Illustrated Magazine either for some of its ideas or its lack of taste. But recently it carried an article which seemed to be of particular interest not only to PC fans, but to basketball fans in general. I am referring to a quote attributed to the PC mentor which the PC mentor said something to the effect that perhaps the Friars are not really the best team in the country.

I do not wish to quibble now either with the magazine for some of its tactics, or with the opinion expressed by Coach Mullaney. Rather, I am concerned more exactly with the question concerning the Friars which some PC fans brought to the Friars to enter the Friars. The Friars took the team trophy. In addition to the PC additions of an extra team and the afternoons that they're available to the Friars, they're available to the Friars.

Friars Run in Meet

Last Friday, the Friar Indoor Track Team ran in the First Annual U.S. Track and Field Federation meet held at Madison Square Garden.

The meet was composed of two sections: the afternoon and the evening.

Denny Fazekas (Soph) won his heat of the one mile run in 4:21:9. Freshman Bob Crooke also won his section of the mile in 4:21:9. Denny Fazekas (Soph) won his heat of the 400 yard run in the time of 2:18, just missing the qualifying time by 3 of a second.

The outstanding afternoon performance came when Joe Adams, running leg off leg for our One Mile Relay, ran a 69.3 quarter mile, which tied the college record for this distance.

The following wins have been the appropriate response of the Friars to the winning of the New England Championship at the NAIA Tournament in March.

The Friars have faced the same situation before in the past, with the same result. They were very worked up for the first half.

PC added to this margin, still remains: Should the ratings be replaced by another system, or should they be eliminated altogether?

My thinking leads me to believe that a substitute for the system will be difficult to find, if at all possible. On the other hand, the question whether it is the coaches' ratings or the writers' ratings, the decisions are based on schedules and personnel as well as the wins and losses.

This appears to me to be the most equitable policy. Thus I favor retention of the system presently used.

The question of the usefulness of the ratings still remains, and to this I must also answer in the affirmative. To be ranked highly has an exhilarating effect on players as well as fans. It creates a goal which is associated with national recognition as being of the cream of the crop. And furthermore, it eliminates the driftwood from the polished timber.

The pressure is a consequence to be accepted by any team which has the pretensions for national recognition. Only a certain number of teams can be ranked highly, but many seek to make the grade. PC has earned the grade.

FRIARS FINDINGS: It seems that an official whose organization makes an annual award to a top New England player. That player is lightly impressed by the performances of both Bill Blair and Jim Benedict during the Fairleigh game . . . The UCONN basketball coach recently voluntarily stated his opinion that this year's crop of Friars is the best coached team in the nation...

For the Friar hockey team, the past week of play was probably the most satisfying, and at the same time the most frustrating of the current campaign. It was most satisfying because the Friars put together two very well-balanced and hustling efforts; and it was frustrating because of the heartbreaking defeat at the hands of Boston College.

On Tuesday, February 8, the Friars, in their winning streak to 13 over Merrimack, defeated them 5-3 at Frost Arena, Lawrence, Mass. Frank Brander and John Campbell, the last of the North-of-the-border Friars, turned in star performances for the Black and White. Brander played one of his finest games of the year. He continually turned back the In- dian attack with bruising checks, and topped off the evening with a goal into an open net.

On Friday, February 11, the Friars were defeated by the re-vitalized B.C. Eagles, 5-4, at Chestnut Hill. A partisan, capacity crowd, expecting the local heroes to score freely without damping their scarlet and white brawn, were shocked into reality by Jim Umile’s goal at 1:50 of the first period. B.C. retaliated with three scores and took a 5-1 advantage to the dressing room after that period. A Friar goal at 7:45 of the second period seemed to put the game out of reach. The Eagles chipped away at the lead on goals by Branchaud and Umile. Finally Jerry Menard’s goal evened the score with just minutes to play. But the Boston Eagles, not to be side-lined on an early win, made no more goal and the Friars headed back to Madison Square Garden.

OFF AND FLYING: Jumping Jack Bill Blair, soaring over Art Kenny, is symbolic of the Friar team which took three scores and took a 3-1 advantage to the dressing room after the first period. But Friars At Hustling Best

An old wives’ tale says that evil even to occur in threes, but the fabulous Friars have reversed this old adage with three joyous events. The fans from Fairfield, St. Bonaventure, and DePaul are still wondering if the Friars carry some special evil eye and quick hands that left the defense out of control.

The other Friars who have in a row Benny was right because Walker as the most valuable player. His hot shooting began with Fairfield and has been crucial throughout the surge.
