Cool Reception

Given Members
Of Peace Group

The New England Committee for Non-Violent Action sent its "peace caravan" to the College last Thursday. They were received with much less cordiality on the part of the students.

Interest was extremely high on the part of the faculty and student body as they crowded around the group of four—two men and two women—in the Guild Room in Alumni Hall. The Non-Violent Committee advocates "non-violent direct action" and they believe in the withdrawal of the military forces of the United States from Viet Nam and the destruction of draft cards by those men eligible for military service.

In an interview with one of the members of the native, Terry Sullivan, an employee of the Psychology Department in New York, the 28 year old advocate of non-violent action described the war in Viet Nam as "slaughtering of innocent people, with no possible end in sight, very vicious and stupid." Mr. Sullivan at one point paralleled the attack on Pearl Harbor with the defense of one man being attacked in the United States. He explained that the one man should not defend himself because he is going to die anyway. Using this analogy, Mr. Sullivan went on to describe the situation in the war in Viet Nam as he saw it.

Terry Sullivan said the "peace caravan" was somewhat marred by the burning of some of their literature by one of the students of the college. A similar incident occurred the previous day at Rhode Island College, where the peace caravan had stopped.

The caravan's presence on campus was sponsored by the Providence College political Union. This sponsorship in no way, however, reflects the views of the political Union.

Peace Corps to Talk
To College Students

The Peace Corps will be represented on the Providence College campus on May 4 by Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Johnson, who have just returned from assignment in El Salvador. Mr. Johnson, who received a degree in Agricultural science from the University of Rhode Island, worked in agricultural extension. He is a native of Connecticut.

Mrs. Johnson, a mathematics major from Indianapolis, worked in community development. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Alpha Xi. She was instrumental in the recruitment of the Peace Corps to the college. Mrs. Johnson will write a critical biography of Giuseppe Peano (1858-1932) a pioneer in symbolic logic and the increased interest in mathematics. Dr. Kennedy will conduct his research at the University of Turin, Italy.

A native of Florida, Dr. Kennedy received his degree in Agricultural science from the University of Florida in 1952, the M.A. degree from the University of Michigan in 1957, and the Ph.D. degree from Saint Louis University in 1961. He is a member of the Providence College faculty since 1961.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Xi, and Sigma Xi. He is a member of several mathematical associations, including the Mathematical Association of America, and he has published several articles, including one on Giuseppe Peano in the Encyclopedia Americana.

Class Gift Decided

Members of the senior class who were interviewed by the "Project 66" poll have voted to present the cash-plant gift, which proposes a $100 donation by each class member over a five-year period. Of the 82.2 per cent of seniors interviewed, 233 voted for the cash plan, 125 for the mutual and 3 for the insurance.

Class agent William Smith, chairman of "Project 66," said that each of the 29 pollers made a strong effort to contact every member of the graduating class. Unforeseen difficulties arose, however, he said. Mr. Smith said the poll had "many positive aspects because of the personal approach. In the gift picked-up overnight. We also received a good deal of constructive criticism about the gift."

A meeting of all committee members will be held tomorrow night at 6:30 in Donnelly Hall to start work on the details of the gift. Mr. Smith said the committee will consider the possibility of soliciting gifts over $100, since a few seniors have indicated that they would be willing to pledge $250 to the class gift.

Senior Class President James Cullinan urged all seniors to support the committee.

Student Parking Policy

Termed Very Successful

Although only 666 students have registered their cars this semester, as compared to over a thousand students who parked on campus last semester, Mr. Arthur Newton, director of student affairs, termed the new policy of $5 a semester parking fee as progressing "very well."

In an interview last Friday, Mr. Newton said that he thought that the students are apparently accepting the fee increase from one dollar a year to ten. "I feel that the students feel more effort has been applied to the campus parking problem. I feel that the students have accepted the change and will return to the campus in the fall."

He also pointed out many students who are not parking on campus have eliminated "tight situations" on campus. However, the increased presence of cars parked on the surrounding public highways has precipitated an interest of new offices of the Peace Corps are currently making a survey to decide what regulations are necessary where parking may interfere with driveways, corners and sidewalks.

The added money will be used to replace the amount of money taken from general fund to pay for snow plowing and main-
An Inconsiderate Group

Last week, the students of the University of Rochester were asked to evaluate their student body concerning national and international affairs. I am referring to the visit of the New England Committee for Non-Violent Action which the office of student affairs here was here to explain and defend their views. They realized, admittedly, that somewhere between 85 and 95% of the students were not present in direct opposition to their viewpoints. They merely wished to provoke "serious thought on the subject" of the war in Viet Nam and others. I am using the term war "needlessly hurts everyone concerned. At the University word "efficiency," but the fact remains that it is crude manner in which some of them carry out their jobs. They are not wardens and we are not prisoners. If speeding — the student of course had no defense; and then verbally crucify those who hold these opinions because we may not agree with them, is a sterile and isolated incident occurred in which one of our students burned a piece of their printed material shows the adoscent attitude of some of our students. We must consider those members of the faculty and student body who seriously engaged these people in debate. On the other hand, we can only condemn those whom merely was to display and deride. Indeed, a most uncomplimentary image of the College was put forth by some of the actions and language that could be seen or heard during the period.

Whether we agree or disagree with the opinions of the group does not apply in this statement. As long as we do not say anything that goes outside opinions," and then verbally crucify those who hold these opinions because we may not agree with them, is a sterile and useless exercise.

Let us hope that if and when such a situation arises again, it will be met with the cordiality and intellectual honesty that we have shown more and more. In the present case, the Administration and Political Union accomplished this quite well. The same cannot be said for the student body.

More Courtesy, Please!

Rudeness is defined either as a "lacking in social refinement" or "indifference to good form." It is something which is uncalled for in personal relations and a vice which needlessly hurts everyone concerned. At times it may be easily excused by "rude" or "rough" Cord. Certainly it means "efficiency," but the fact remains that it is rudeness all the same.

Of course we have all encountered rude people, people who, whether knowingly or unknowingly, have caused much hurt feelings. When this occurs on the personal level nothing much can be done, but when it occurs public, whether to me be called "rude" or "rude" and "wrong". The fact is that many more courtesy and an end to this situation must be made. Unfortunately, a situation similar to this exists at Providence College.

I refer to those certain "law enforcers" who have infiltrated our campus during the past few months. Though they may be, to a certain extent, efficient to their jobs, there is no excuse for the rude manner in which they have been treating the PC student and the visitor of this campus.

Examples are infinite and I will only cite a few:

Two students, merely sitting in a car talking with their dates were, for apparently no reason, "told" to leave by one of these men (with no other means to defend themselves) and then verbally crucify those who hold these opinions because we may not agree with them, is a sterile and useless exercise.

In conclusion I hope this editorial will not be taken as an intelligent protest, as long as the protester keep the realities of the world in mind.

(The Cowl) — The war in Viet Nam has generated a good deal of debate on college campuses recently. Why do these people, and others, protest and argue? Well, says the University of Oregon Daily Emerald, the present generation of college youth was born deep in the bowels of the greatest world war in history. Many of them have no living fathers who served in the military, but many others have fathers bearing the lifelong scars of battle.

Five years after the war, when most of today's students were in diapers, the protest movement was at its height. When conflict was at hand, this time in Korea. The youngest saw their older brothers drafted for battle—many of them just out of high school. Today, 12 years after the end of the Korean war and fewer years after Quemoy and Matsu, Berlin, Lebanon, and Cuba, America's college campuses have become the scene of war protest, and not without implications the world has only recently begun to imagine.

Today's college students had little or no contact with developments which led to the present situation in Viet Nam. Precious few voices were raised in question when President Eisenhower first committed American troops to Southeast Asia as early as 1956. The adults who today criticize the students for inspecting his government's policies paid pitifully little attention to the warnings sounded a decade ago about America fighting a war in Asia.

So today's student watches draft calls rise and wonder about the world he will be. He watches Sen. Wayne Morse's predications of massive war in Asia slowly become reality, and rightfully questions Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's three separate and widely-spaced forecasts that American troops will be committed by 1965. Most of all, he wonders about the real reasons for this war, 8,000 miles from home, reasons which have yet to be fully explained.

The fact is that many more college students should concern themselves with this war — more even than they are now concerned. It may be the most important problem they will ever face. Those who are vigorously debating the issue are asking questions all Americans should be asking, regardless of political belief. These students are worried. They're not kidding themselves into thinking acceptance of glib official answers given by diplomats.

Today's student would like a chance to finish school, and job, and get married, and have a family, a baby, to be torn by nuclear inferno. If his body is to be committed to war of another generation's making, then today's student has a right to demand an answer, and his right to demand them is implicit.

This, America, is why they protest.

The editorial printed above was received from the Associated Press Service, of Providence, R. I. We have reprinted it in this column because I am in agreement with the views presented.

However, many students in the protest movement whose arguments are something less than logical. A good example was the "peace caravan" which visited Providence recently. The logic behind the arguments completely disdained analysis. For example, why should anyone consider burning his draft card? This form of protest serves no purpose whatever. Change can only be effected in this country through the ballot box. Since burning one's draft card is a criminal offense, it only serves to eliminate that person a right to vote.

The protest movement is a fine thing as long as it is an intelligent protest, as long as the protestor keep the realities of the world in mind.

Two Noted Lecturers To Speak on Campus

Father Haas has invited two distinguished professors from University of Fribourg in Switzerland to lecture here tonight and tomorrow night. Dr. Norbert M. Layten will speak before the faculty tonight on the timely topic "Why a Catholic University?" The lecture will begin at 8 p.m. in Albertus Magnus Auditorium. Tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m., Professor I. M. Bochenski will discuss "The Autonomy of the University" in Harkins Hall. This lecture will be open to the public. Both men are recognized philosophers and teachers in Europe. Both are well published in their fields. And this year both are touring America.

Dr. Haas thinks that the lecture to be given by Professor Bochenski will be especially interesting. One question which certainly can be included under this title: "whether or not a Catholic University is ever intellectually independent enough to pursue its aims." This question is currently being argued and debated on a campus at a leading Eastern Catholic school. Fr. Haas mentioned that the European is capable of dropping some "bombshells" on the question.

Dr. Layten was formerly the Rector of the University of Fribourg where Fr. Haas did postgraduate work. Dr. Layten is an authority on the Philosophy of Science, Psychology, and the works of Teilhard de Chardin.

Dr. Bochenski is presently the Rector of the University of Fribourg. His interests include mathematical logic, contemporary European philosophy, and philosophy in Communist Russia. Fr. Haas wrote his doctorate thesis under Professor Bochenski at Fribourg.

The lectures are presented by the College as part of the Distinguished Lecturers Series.

MSGR. GIOVANNETTI

The Italian Society is sponsoring the lecture which is to be held in Albertus Magnus Hall at 8 p.m.

Monsignor Giovannetti will lecture on "Pope Paul VI at the United Nations." Born in Rome in 1913, Monsignor Giovannetti was ordained to the priesthood in 1935. He became a staff member of the Holy See's Secretariat of State in 1944. He served as secretary to the Vatican mission for the relief of war-ravaged Germany. He held this post from 1945 to 1948.

He is the first permanent observer to the UN from the Vatican. His current concern is the secret efforts to save the city of Rome from destruction during World War II.

Pilots Needed

Charles Mason, senior vice-president in charge of personnel for United Air Lines, has announced that pilot applicants with no flying time can qualify for training as a flight officer.

The program is aimed at college graduates between 20 and 25 years of age who have no flying time or less than the 40 hours required for a private pilot's license. In the past at least a private license was required for consideration by the airline.

The new program was instituted to meet the increasing demand for airline pilots. Applicants must be U.S. or Canadian citizens, be in excellent overall physical condition with vision correctable to 20/20 with glasses and be not less than 5 feet 7 inches tall nor more than 6 feet 4 inches tall. All applicants must pass a rigid flight aptitude test.

Interested applicants should contact United Air Lines in Chicago, Illinois.

It is hoped that something along this line could be brought forth here at the campus.

Violation of campus registration has been extremely low, said Mr. Newton, and added that the parking rate, which is limited at seven cents per school day, is not unreasonable.
Pershing Rifles Hold Bowling Tournament; Trophies Presented

Company K-12, Pershing Rifles, held an intra-Company Bowling Tournament on Washington's Birthday at the Cranston Bowl. Competition was on a squad and individual level, with trophies going to the top individuals (4) and the top squad.

The individual trophy winners were: George Flanagan (479), Edward O'Rourke (462), Gerald Dillon (460), and Andrew Gordon (459). The score was by total pin fall in three strings.

The top squad was the 2nd squad of the 2nd platoon with a 432 1/3 average.

The tournament was planned and executed by Warrant Officer Thomas C. DePalma P/R, Assistant Operations Officer.

Track News

Last Saturday night the P.C. Friar trackmen traveled to Albany, N.Y., to participate in the fourth annual Capital District Indoor Track Championships, and they emerged highly successful from their competition.

The outstanding performer of the evening was Barry Brown who, while running in his home town, made the night an impressive one as he emerged the winner of both the one mile and two mile events, setting records in both.

In the one mile run, Brown was at his best in setting a new national record for an unbanked board track of more than eight laps to the mile, and his 4:13.2 clocking also enabled him to reverse a previous defeat at the hands of Matt Cucchiara, of the Y.N.A.C. In the two mile event Brown took over with seven laps to go and set a new meet Square Garden.

Red Auerbach...

with a bland, knowing smile and a few short puffs on a victory cigar. When pressed farther he concedes that he has a definite man in mind for the job, but then quickly recedes into a hazy cloud of smoke and generality.

Although leaving his court-side duties with the Celtics, Mr. Auerbach will remain with the team in his present positions of vice-president and general manager. He does not believe in second-guessing, however, and will give the new coach complete control of the ball club, the same situation he has had while with the Celtics.

Mr. Auerbach credits the fabulous success of the Celtics over the years to the fact that they "play as a unit." One of the major reasons for this is that a ballplayer's salary doesn't depend on his scoring average, but rather on his contribution to the overall team effort.

Although still occupying their usual position atop the Eastern Division of the NBA, the Celtics are having a much tougher time of it this season than they had in the seemingly invincible years of Cousy, Sharman, and Heinsohn. Mr. Auerbach believes that this close race is primarily due to the improvement of the caliber of the rest of the league, especially that of the Eastern Division. He primarily mentioned the drafting of college players by professional clubs in reverse order of their standing, which has tended to level out the league and provide for better and closer competition.

Speaking of college basketball players in general, Mr. Auerbach turned to the Providence College Friars and Jim Walker in particular. He has seen the team play in the Holiday Festival and "a couple of games on TV," and considers them to be "a very well-coached ball club." He mentioned that he was greatly impressed by the team spirit of the Friars, as well as the intelligent performance of Walker, who he feels will make it big in the pro ranks.

Mr. Auerbach was particularly dismayed by the fact that "Walker will go early (in the pro draft)—first, second, or third in the country," and could only plaintively murmer "I wish I could get him." Whatever the rest of the future may hold for Jim Walker, he may rest assured that he will always have a job, for Mr. Auerbach has promised "he can play on my ball club anytime."

To the Editor:

After seeing the newly posted library plans, I would like to make a few suggestions concerning the proposed structure. I think that the two story building with the sand volume capacity is a short sighted mistake in the part it plans. A larger building, perhaps with six hundred thousand sand volume capacity, would be much more economical in the long run. One additional story would probably double the buildings book capacity at a minimal cost. I hope that we don't underestimate the need for library space to the same extent that we underestimate our need for Gymnasium space ten years ago. Other facilities that I hope to find in our new library include record and recording rooms, a visual arts center, typing facilities, and an exhibition room.

The inclusion of all these facilities would raise the building cost a little but would give Providence College one of the finest libraries in the country.

To the Editor:

In reply to both letters, it can be asserted that argumentation based essentially upon comparative studies is in the present context illogical. Regardless of the situation elsewhere, it is the responsibility of Providence College to attain excellence in every respect according to an objective norm. It matters not whether our College excels other colleges if these other institutions regard themselves inferior. As I see it, the attitude of mind which permits one to think only in terms of comparative excellence will often result in mediocrity.

I reply to Mr. Nissen's letter for a second reason. I respect the sincerity of his appeal, and I do not doubt that he is firmly convinced of the incontrovertible correctness of his arguments. But I object strongly to the very fact of such a letter being written by the president of a student congress. As I see it, it would have been far more appropriate for him to have first suggested that argument. For the functions of the student congress president is to reflect the views of the student body as a whole and to act as a liaison between the student body and the administration. And to the extent that Mr. Nissen has represented any college students, for students, and to the administration, he has neglected his responsibility towards the students of Providence College. In other letter written on the Cowl on February 9, Mr. Nissen accused the student congress of mediocrity. I believe that his letter reflects no more than the personal opinions of individuals; that in writing it, he was not functioning as a student representative. This, unfortunately could not be the case, because whoever reads such a public statement must inevitably make the connection between the person and his office.

Mr. Nissen might object that his letter reflected no more than the personal opinions of individuals; that in writing it, he was not functioning as a student representative. This, unfortunately could not be the case, because whoever reads such a public statement must inevitably make the connection between the person and his office.

The fact of the inadequacy of student-administration communication is a serious and insuperable problem at Providence College for too long a time. The present method of scheduling examinations at the college is obvious and inadequate and that a general revamping of the method is required. Mr. Nissen felt it incumbent upon himself to reply to the objections raised in the first letter, which in his opinion had greatly misrepresented the facts. He provided statistics to corroborate his argument that the examination situation at other colleges is not quite as bad as the first letter had suggested; and he provided an alternative solution to the problem: better spacing of the examination schedule. (I presume, within the time presently allotted for exams) and a more economic attitude on the part of the student would, according to Mr. Nissen, lead to an equitable solution.

In reply to the objections raised by Mr. Nissen, I would first suggest that the statistics mentioned in the first letter are inaccurate, his own statistics are deceptive. Any student of elementary mathematics knows that a random sampling of fifteen colleges is hardly indicative of a generally true trend. Frankly, a generally true trend of colleges throughout the east. More specifically, the statistic that the average examination space at the colleges surveyed is 7.08 days tells us nothing about the real situation in Providence College, for it would, for example, be feasible in instances where a college is scheduling that seven schools of the fifteen have an examination space of 7.08 days. Of the schools have a period of five days indicating that almost half of the schools surveyed have a scheduling system superior to Providence College.

I therefore suggest that Mr. Nissen take the initiative in this regard, in order to help the insuperable list of possible contributions which he has made to his College and in order to augment the good reputation of our school.

WDOM Expands Broadcast Time To Include FM

WDOM, in preparation for FM broadcasting, is expanding its programming schedule. This will enable the programming to be smoothed out and the new announcers to gain much needed experience on the air prior to the actual FM broadcast. WDOM will now be on from 2 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Wednesday through Saturday and then Monday through next Tuesday it will move its sign-off time from 11 p.m. to 12 p.m. In order to cover this increase in air time WDOM is again accepting the applications of all students interested in any phase of broadcast work. Previous experience is not required.

Federico Fellini’s masterpiece Juliet of the Spirits is more than just Fellini’s finest work to date. It is a landmark in the history of the cinematic art, combining brilliant photography, masterful direction, a highly developed and integrated story in a production that involves Fellini’s genius at maturity. For overall achievement the only movie I can compare it with is Michelangelo Antonioni’s L’Avventura, which is considered by many critics to be the finest movie ever made.

The technique which Fellini has mastered here makes it rather difficult to grasp the ideas upon viewing the work for the first time. It is rooted in the “stream of consciousness style” of Sterne and Joyce and the symbolism of Freud. Point of view is vital here in that we must realize that Fellini is showing us “reality” as a single human mind perceives it, exactly in the manner in which that person’s mind works. Thus we see a series of associations of thought, the workings of Juliet’s mind. If these are not always strictly logical or clear, they are not meant to be; for the human mind does not always work that way. Thus we do not so much see as we actually experience what she is going through. The effect is certainly powerfully impressive.

Especially impressive is the acting of Giulietta Masina, Fellini’s wife, who has the title role. Her part is a very demanding and difficult one. The dramatic line is sustained and carried not so much by the spoken dialogue as it is by the depth of expression that she achieves in her facial and physical movements. Her character is subtly and beautifully delineated.

Worthy of note here is the musical score. It is a rare example of what music for the cinema should be. It is never distracting but always appropriately sustaining the dramatic line.

If the effect is so impressive it is yet very difficult to describe. Juliet’s desires, inhibitions, obsessions, needs, hopes and fears confront the viewer and submerge him in the agony of her struggles to free herself from the imprisonment of her own dreams and to find her own true identity.

This is an experience that should not be missed.

Mal Brown Club Unifies Sports-Minded PC Alumni

FATHER THOMAS COLLINS, O.P., moderator of Mal Brown Club, explains the function of the organization to the Cowl.

By TOM LIESEGANG and BOB FRIED

The Mal Brown Club of Providence College was established in 1954 by recently graduated alumni as a booster club to stimulate interest in the athletic teams at the school. The club was under the Alumni Association and in 1965, the association assumed this task in an attempt to make themselves available to alumni as a booster club to stimulate interest in the athletic teams at the school, specifically the basketball and hockey teams.

The first public affair of the club was an organizational banquet held at the Narragansett Inn in Feb., 1955. This event coincided with PC's rise as a major hockey power in the East. The Alumni Hall gym was not yet constructed, so the basketball team was still playing at the Mt. Pleasant High School. The club's main purpose in these first years was to bolster the team and create an enthusiastic athletic response on the part of the alumni.

When Alumni Hall became a scene of major battles on the hardwood, the club was organized and assumed the name of Mal Brown. The name of this legendary PC basketball star symbolized the athletic aims of the club. The Mal Brown Club at this time was independent of the Alumni body.

In the spring of '66 their first big basketball game was for the N.C.A.A. Tournament, but their aspirations were for the future. With increasing interest in the Purple team, the club was set up and the present members were chosen on the athletic ability and school spirit basis.

With some support by the Athletic Office and Student Congress, sweaters and equipment were purchased but the squad was not set up on its own since then. There are no official practices but occasional home games do necessitate a pre-game get-together where new ideas are discussed and a few of the older skills are reviewed.

The cheerleaders try to make as many away games as possible, but a problem often arises because of the lack of support to provide for transportation. This year's squad, which is trying out for a cheerleading scholarship, has helped to make cheerleading a more established tradition at Providence College.

"We'll see more pressing—not so much man to man as zone because of Walker." And what does he really think of Walker? "I think he's great—he's the best player in the country. Will we have to pick up several charges in his attempt to roll toward the basket?"

Finally, how does Ramsey feel about being dragged away from the Palestra? "But we'll get the Palestra. All these mechanics are so successful!" "I'm man in the game for the layup or short jumper. Even when you front him, though, Goukas is a great passer and gets it through." So with this situation, look for either Blair to foul out or Anderson to get on the court. We'll have to pick up several charges in his attempt to roll toward the basket.

Friars Drop Two Contests
At N.Y. Hockey Weekend

By GREG WALSH

This past weekend the hockey Friars traveled to the birthplace and “cracker box” arena of Eastern College hockey, the Potsdam and Canton area of New York State.

The occasion of the visit was an event called “Suicide Weekend.” This journey occurs every two years but as far as the Friars are concerned, all Northern weekends during the winter should be spent skiing.

For the Friars, “Suicide Weekend” was a slow death. On the Friday, the Friars were manhandled by the “Golden Knights” of Clarkson College at their famous “cracker box” arena. The Friars committed the inexplicable sin of drawing first blood on Jack Dougherty’s slap shot in the first period. From that point on the Blues and White spent their time watching their brilliant goalie John Campbell hurl his body in front of enemy shots. Because of “Soup’s” performance, the Friars maintained their slim advantage until the eleventh minute of the third period, when Clarkson finally broke the scoreless tie and put the game out of reach. With five minutes to play, Bob Bumacorc replaced the exhausted John Campbell who received an unprecedented one minute standing ovation from the partisan crowd.

On Saturday, the undermanned Friars regrouped and met St. Lawrence University on the Larrie’s ice. It was another incohesive performance for the Friars as they were again manhandled by the Larries. The Friars were behind 3-0 after the first period and 4-0 after the second, with only three winning goals. Again his efforts were appreciated by the home town fans, and again he received a standing ovation.

Arnold “Red” Auerbach: Crown King of Basketball

By DAVE FREDRICKSON

“The only void would be the same as if I were coach.” With these words Arnold “Red” Auerbach, the colorful, colorful coach of the world champion Boston Celtics, expressed his belief that his previously announced retirement at the end of this season would not seriously detract from the future performance of the team. This statement appears all the more surprising in view of Mr. Auerbach’s coaching record in the Beantown, since his nine Eastern Division titles and eight world championships in the past nine years are realizations of his dreams.

The Celtics have been the most dominant team in the nation, and their success has been due to the great effort and professionalism that Auerbach has brought to the game.

The “Red” Auerbach Boston Celtics coach article discusses the coaching philosophy of one of the greatest coaches in history.

Friar Fans unfold last year’s banners in preparation for today's game, for two games with St. Joseph’s. For the records, we'll back off much quicker, while at home they'll give you a bucket or two but stay in the press. We won't know until we see whether we can handle the press — practically we know what to do but...

With this situation the Friars’ chances against Hawks are tough. They’re the type of team that can fake you out of your score if they win the "hotbed" of Eastern College hockey, Potsdam, New York.
