IRC Sends Delegation to National Assembly

This week, the Providence College International Relations Club will send a delegation to the 1966 National Model General Assembly representing the United States. The delegation consisting of Thomas Milano, Legal Committee; Robert Calabro, Political Committee; Jeremy Lord, Economic Committee; James McKenna, Political Committee; Joseph Hadley, Colonial Committee; Brian St. Germain, Political Committee; Jeremy Hosley, Legal Committee; Peter Nektarioff, Social and Humane Committee and an officer of the National Model General Assembly.

The delegation will stay at the Statler Hilton Hotel and expect to acknowledge the contribution of their committee. There will be discussions to old problems through an exercise in practical politics. An inter-collegiate discussion of pressing world affairs with a hope to find new solutions to old problems through intelligent inquiry and discussion.

Chairman Announces Commencement Plans

Patrick Gallagher, Commencement Weekend chairman, reports that Weekend planning is in its final stages. He wishes to acknowledge the contribution of his committee, consisting of Joseph Brennon, Staff Night, Rocco Caldarella, Prom; Malcolm Gill, favors; John Reed, Boat ride and outing; George Dash, picnic, and Val Lombard, Bids. In charge of bid sales are Richard Devereux and Raymond Barrett, with publicity and finance being handled by Winnet Parillo and William Liddy, respectively. Other committee members are Bill Smith and John Lynch.

The weekend will start on June 2 with stag night, complete with refreshments and entertainment. On Friday the commencement ball will be held in Raymond Hall. After much deliberation and after considering the unavailability of other suitable locations, it was felt that this was the most ideal location. This year's ball will be both formal and social, with separate facilities for the seniors and their dates. Refreshments will be available Saturday at noon. A boat will depart from Galliano on a four hour cruise around Block Island. After docking, the senior and junior classes will go to the Carlton Hotel in Narragansett where a supper will be served. This will be followed by an evening of dancing and refreshments. Sunday afternoon a picnic open to parents will be held at Bell Farm, with refreshments. Bids will go on sale shortly after Easter vacation. With this as its general outline, the committee is making every attempt to insure that the price of bids will be lower than in the past.

Dillon Club Nominations

The executive members of the Dillon Club have disclosed plans for elections to be held Monday, March 14, from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Voting will be held in the Alumni Hall cafeteria annex.

These elections will be held for all positions in the Dillon Club, from the presidency to the two representatives from each class.

All information concerning the specific qualifications for these elections has been posted on the Dillon Club bulletin board on the first floor of Harris Hall.

The executive board members have asked all Dillon Club members to participate fully in the election "to thus assure good coverage of the effects of the new grading system upon the number of students achieving desirable grades after graduation from Rhode Island College, contrary to the hopes of some of the students." The new grading system at Providence College, according to the dean's list, is designed to encourage the number of students achieving desirable grades after graduation from Rhode Island College, contrary to the hopes of some of the students. The study was made by the department of economics and finance being handled by William Parillo and William Liddy, respectively. Other committee members are Bill Smith and John Lynch.

EXAM CONFLICTS

Due to the many complaints about last semester's examination schedule, an attempt is being made to correct any flagrant error in conflict or extreme overload in study schedule. Anyone with a suggestion or complaint in the present system should see William Parillo, 68, Room 202, Meagher Hall.

Jerry McClure, the newly elected editor of the Cowl, is congratulated by Fr. Fay, the moderator of the paper.
Suggestion for Everyone

At the moment we are in the middle of a bloody and vicious war in South Viet Nam. It is a war which has caused much controversy and one which will be probably debated over and over again by the historians of the future. Yet, no matter what our political convictions may be, no matter what our feelings may be for or against the war, we all share one thing in common — and this is the fact that our fellow Americans are losing their lives in that heat infested jungle. We have lost friends or we may have known people who have lost their lives. The question remains, what can we, as students, do to help this situation?

Thanks to the efforts of Jim McKenna and the Political Union, we now have an opportunity to do something about the situation. Acting from a strictly humanitarian point of view, the Union has organized a Viet Nam "blood drive" to be held March 15 from 10 to 4 in Alumni Hall. The drive itself is being held in response to the Department of Defense request for plasma to aid U.S. troops. It is felt that the drive may secure a sacrifice on our part, but what better way can we show our appreciation for the sacrifice these men are making for us overseas.

Already the drive has had a tremendous amount of support. Organized strongly by various K.O.T.C. organizations such as the Special Forces and the Pershing Rifles, almost 200 names have been recorded for the drive. We of the Political Union hope that this drive will continue and that students and faculty alike will combine in making a success at PC what has already been a success at major campuses throughout the country.

We would also like to remind anyone who gave blood at the AED drive that the eight week interim will have expired by March 15 so that one will be able to give in the current drive. As a sidelight food will be given out following the donations and the casual attractive nurses will be there to encourage bashful boys.

A Suggestion for Seniors

Tentative plans for Senior Week have been announced. These plans include a departure from tradition in that a Prom on-campus affair held at Raymond Hall. This location has been the target of scattered criticism—all negative—none constructive. We should note that this date any ideas to change the location and make one which would be more accessible to the students would be welcomed. However, there is one suggestion the COWL would like to offer.

Last year's Junior Prom, most of us would agree, suffered from the presence of a dinner. This year, fair, the plans for this year's Prom also exclude a dinner. The thing about the situation. Acting from a strictly humanistic point of view, the question remains, what can we, as students, do to help this situation? Acting from a strictly humanistic point of view, the question remains, what can we, as students, do to help this situation?

We believe that this suggestion is both reasonable and feasible, and that it should be offered to the seniors for consideration. It would be well if a class meeting was called and thus all the seniors would be given an opportunity to comment on their weekend. Thus, all who are interested would be heard and there would be no cause for the usual last-minute and post-mortem eulogies.

Attention the Campi

Bethlehem, Pa. — (I.P.) — All juniors and seniors at Lehigh University will be exempted from the usual last-minute and post-mortem eulogies. The Spring semester will begin with a dinner and a special class attendance beginning with the Spring semester. The suggestion of the faculty-approved action was made here in response to suggestions of mature students at Lehigh. The new regulation will be well if a class meeting was called and thus all the seniors would be given an opportunity to comment on their weekend. Thus, all who are interested would be heard and there would be no cause for the usual last-minute and post-mortem eulogies.

Several Peace Corps volunteers who recently returned from foreign assignments visited the college last week and related their experiences during an informal panel discussion in the Aquinas Hall lounge. They were Mrs. Chandler Johnson, Mrs. Ginsberg, and Stephen Saunders.

Richard Deasy of the History Department introduced the volunteers and prefaced the discussion with a brief description of Peace Corps history, progress, and goals. Mr. Saunders spoke of his role in a geology project in Ghana. As a geologist, Saunders said he missed the "very intimate contact with people that a teacher or doctor might find." He also said that the tense political situation in Ghana limited his activities in community development and youth organization.

Mrs. Ginsberg was in the Philippines as a teacher. Her first and most difficult task was to "understand the country and her place within it." She stated that a major problem for her was involved in adjusting to the very slow pace of Philippine life.

Mrs. Johnson was involved in community development and home economics instruction as an organizer of "4-C" clubs, the counterpart in El Salvador of the U.S. "D-H" clubs. Mrs. Johnson's husband, who was scheduled but unable to attend Wednesday's discussion, developed hybrid tomato plants which grow in El Salvador's dry climate and introduced the butter nut squash which has a higher vitamin C content than the native squash. The couple introduced adobe brick and tile roofing to replace the grass and rice mats that the people had been using. They also taught them to use doors to keep birds and pigs from wandering into houses.

The panel members were asked why so many volunteers go back to their assignments after two-year terms of service are up. The consensus of the panel was that they wanted to see how the projects they started were carried on by the natives after they had gone. Reports that Corps returnees found it very difficult to readjust just to the American way of life were exaggerated in the newspapers, according to the panelists.

On Thursday and Friday a Peace Corps information booth was maintained in Alumni Hall. Pamphlets and Peace Corps applications were distributed. Applications can be obtained from Mr. Deasy in the History Department Office in McDermott Hall.

"It must be noted that each delegation is required to consider questions in the light of and in the framework of their country's general position. This is necessary to insure a lack of chaos in committee and the Plenary Session. As it stands now, the Providence College delegation expects to be quite successful in its movements and operations while at the N.M.G.A."

There will probably be a large feature article appearing next week dealing with the history of the Providence College delegation at this year's National Model General Assembly.

The Rev. Charles V. Fennell, O.P., also spoke at the program. Governor John H. Chafee, one of the speakers at the meeting, stressed the need for trained personnel of high caliber in the Army.

Robert A. Riemann, civilian aide to the Secretary of the Army in Rhode Island and a Pawtucket businessman, delivered the principal address.

Dr. Francis H. Horn, president of the University of Rhode Island, and the Rev. Joseph L. Lemono, O.P., also spoke at the conference.

Award Presented
To Fr. Fennell

The Rev. Charles V. Fennell, O.P., executive vice-president and bursar of the College, has been awarded a citation for service by the Rhode Island Civic Ballet.

The award was made to Fr. Fennell by Lt. General William W. Lewis, commanding officer of the First United States Army District. The citation was presented at a conference of army officers, high school guidance counselors and administrators, which was held last Saturday at the University of Rhode Island.

The citation said in part: “Father Fennell fostered a spirit of good will and understanding between the religious, lay, and military faculty. His support of extra-curricular Reserve Officers’ Training Corps activities contributed to a large degree to the development of a favorable public image of the United States Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps Program.”

The conference was designed to acquaint high school officials with the purposes of the ROTC program. Governor John H. Chafee, one of the speakers at the meeting, stressed the need for trained personnel of high caliber in the Army.

An Equal Opportunity Employer. (M/F)
Professor I. M. Bochenski Speaks To College Students

On Wednesday, March 2, Dr. Bochenski considered the topic of why a Catholic university is different from a university. He stated that autonomy consists of having one's rights in the university. Autonomy means the right to make a decision about what one wants in the university. He said that a Catholic university is a university that has a definite place in determining policies which affect themselves.

Dr. Bochenski stated that by the very concept of pluralism there is a place for varied ideas and beliefs, and a society which has no diversity ceases to be considered a pluralistic community. Further, Dr. Layten demonstrated that Catholics are communicating with and drawing them closer to other Christian religions. However, before such an ideological exchange can take place one must understand his own position; this is the role which a Catholic institution would play in the instruction of students. For example, the Catholic university is an advocate of truth, revealed by the Church and open to the future.

He emphasized that compromise will and must be made so as to bring about an adequate unity of reasons. However, he placed three limitations on all compromises: 1) the university must have its own authority (representatives of the university elected by the university); 2) the university must have its own entity (independent of the Church, so there need not be a dictated policy). Dr. Bochenski considered himself an extreme "reactionary" who desires to return to the thirteenth century concept of a university where such institutions were completely autonomous.

Concluding his lecture, Professor Bochenski, stated that autonomy is gradually coming and that the fight will be won. A question and answer period followed the lecture. The question was asked if there was a room for the Catholic University in the notion of autonomy? He responded with a very positive yes. Again returning to an historical analysis he pointed out that the thirteenth century university, which he believes as model for modern autonomy, were founded by the Church and approved by the Church. A second question asked was should the students have the freedom which is sought by the university? Dr. Bochenski replied that the students have a definite place in determining policies which affect themselves.

Defense Loans

Although there is to be a change in federal loans for college students, the students of Providence College are urged to submit applications for the year 1966-67 before April 1. The President's budget message of January 24 suggested that the aid through loans be placed upon the university. The change could not be accomplished rapidly without hardships for students in fiscal '67, hence, while the Administration has indicated that the N.D.E.A. will eventually be phased out, this phase will be effected gradually.

As for next year, the present program will be continued with a nixeditied appropriation of about $10,000. Funds allocated to the college will be less than the last appropriation. The administration has indicated that the N.D.E.A. will eventually be phased out, this phase will be effected gradually. ber of issues published by the paper. Presently the paper does not come out on days for- lowing a vacation. It was proposed that the vacation period arise an issue be composed but in a different version, perhaps four pages in length. A further proposal was made pertaining to the air traffic control program. In response to the charge that there is no substitute for and only a single university in a pluralistic society, he stated that by the very concept of pluralism there is a place for varied ideas and beliefs, and a society which has no diversity ceases to be considered a pluralistic community. Further, Dr. Layten demonstrated that Catholics are communicating with and drawing them closer to other Christian religions. Fernando Soria:
Four Years at PC

Fernando Soria is an energetic, level headed, young gentleman from Bolivia. Fernando is in Providence College's school of economics as a member of the class of '66.

Fernando lived in the small town of Cochabamba in the central portion of South America, referred to by him as the "heart of South America." There he attended La Salle High School and graduated in 1955 at the age of seventeen. He then had a choice of either going to a military school for two years or joining the army for eighteen months. He chose the service academy.

Fernando then had fulfilled his military obligation he attended St. Simon University which had been founded by Spaniards about 1610. Fernando attended this university for one and a half years while also working for the Shell Oil Company. At the university he pursued the economics field. He also joined and was quite active in the "Social Christian Party." The purpose of the party was to recognize politics around Christian thought. For at this point Communism was quite prevalent and mass forms against it had to be won by means of sheer bravery and physical force.

It was at St. Simon University that Fernando came into contact with Father Timothy Sullivan, O.P., who was instrumental in having Fernando attend Providence College. So on September 19, 1963, he came to America and began attending classes at the college as a freshman. His college career has been financed by a Richard Cardinal Cushing Scholarship. Fernando, has been working fulltime at Our Lady of Fatima Hospital for the past three years.

Fernando plans to do graduate work in the field of economics, perhaps at the University of Michigan. However, his plans are not definite.

Fernando said that America is a wonderful place in which to live. He said, "Here we have so many comforts and luxuries, where in Bolivia they have very few necessities such as running water, electricity, and the like." He compared the state of Bolivians to the state of those who live in Appalachia, making one observation distinguishing the two peoples. In Appalachia, he said, the people have hopes of a better life; in Bolivia the people have little hope, if any, for bettering their standards.

Fernando said he is "very proud, extremely happy and thankful to have such an opportunity to come to America and be educated here." But once Fernando's formal education is complete he hopes to return to his country and instruct in one of its universities in an attempt to make Bolivia a better place in which to live.

P.C. Drill Team Meets Challenge

The Providence College Drill Team, under the command of Cadet Z.L. John F. Carney, P.R. captured fourth place for its trick drill in the Ninth Annual Peter's Involuntary Drill Meet.

The St. Peter's drill meet, held in Jersey City, New Jersey according to 2nd Lt. Bryan V. Maguire, P.R. information officer, is one of the largest and most challenging meets in the nation. It is open to only the National Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D. C., he said.

The fourth place in trick drill and a thirteenth place in regular infantry drill earned Providence a fifth place in the overall standings among 21 teams.

Providence College competes again on March 19 in the Beanpot Drill Meet in Boston.
Knights Council Conducts Dance; Termed Success

The newly formed Knights of Columbus Council on campus, Friar Council, has finally begun its slate of fraternal and social activities. This past Saturday night, the Council ran its first activity since the opening of the new campus. The drive will have its culmination on March 11, 18, and 20 when the new candidates will take their first, second, and third degrees, on the respective dates mentioned above, at Rev. J. J. Boulevard Council. All applicants, before being allowed to enter Friar Council, must first get the approval of an admissions board, which allows only the best Catholic men on campus to join the council.

The K of C is also running a blood drive. In the last scene when he again meets Pavel at a railroad station, Pavel, the Eternal Husband, is married, again to a voluptuous, young woman who invites Alexey to spend a month at their villa; however, Alexey shows that he can break out of his perverse nature by refusing to visit the villa and repeat the pattern of seduction. Alexey has come full circles from his first pin and was "hissed" and "booed," for he is present a shallow outlook on the Buddhist and Christian view of life, that these acts of intercourse are to be understood at all.

However, thoughts are not the only demon of Alexey, for he is tormented by his wife's unfaithfulness. As the play progresses, doubts set in in Alexey's mind, doubts which are embodied by the strange behavior of Pavel, which vacillates between ingratitude and veiled respect, for Pavel consequent- ly undergoes a kind of mental disease and does not know what is really going on in Pavel's mind. A pattern of suspicion and jealous, of love and hate, takes place between these two characters and is culminated in a night scene in which Pavel attempts to murder Alexey. It is only at this point, at this definite act of murder on Pavel's part, that Alexey can feel freed from the demon of guilt and uncertainty, the "cure" is immediate. The change which has taken place in Alexey is made obvious in the last scene when he again meets Pavel at a railroad station. Pavel, the Eternal Husband, is married, again to a voluptuous, young woman who invites Alexey to spend a month at their villa; however, Alexey shows that he can break out of his perverse nature by refusing to visit the villa and repeat the pattern of seduction. Alexey has come full circles from his first pin and was "hissed" and "booed," for he is present a shallow outlook on the Buddhist and Christian view of life, that these acts of intercourse are to be understood at all.

The play is extremely forceful, and minor appearances to the occasional obscurity of the psychological scenes contribute and naively, of good and evil, of intensity of the work. Mr. Gladstone has written a smooth-running piece of theatre and has tried to work out a joint picnic this spring when I tried to discuss the issues at large. They weren't interested in a dissenting belief and didn't care to hear opposite views. I am cognizant of the fact that the administration is not to be left out. Why do they allow groups to assemble on campus with the knowledge of complete humiliation at their first utterances? There is a lack of re- spective? Even If We Outnumber Them...

B-ball, H-ball, Squash Tournaments Start

By JOE McMENIMEN

It is tournament time around the country: in Boston, Pitts- dam, and Utica, with the E.C.A.C. hockey tournament; in Blackshurg, Kent, and Whita, with the N.C.A.A. basketball tournament. Here at P.C. we have a few tournaments of our own, handball and squash are underway now, with basketball to begin shortly. All, of course, are sponsored by the P.C.I.A.A., under the supervision of Pete Louthis, director, and Bill Han- cock, head referee.

Handball and squash are being run on both a singles and doubles basis, with the basketball run on a club basis.

The basketball league looks like a repeat of the football league of last fall. Currently leading the pack are the Boston Celts, and the Albertus A clubs. Both teams are comprised of the two teams who battled it out on the gridiron for the football championship. The Cel- tes are led by footballers, Joe Tanager, Joe Twomey, Ned Ri- ley, Jim Bishop, and Dick Neal. Meanwhile Albertus A, not to be outdone, has recruited, Vinny O'Donnell, Pete Ryder, Bill Kil- les, Jack Kirk, and Ken REMI- sis.

While these two teams possess the best intramural records, there will be other teams in the pack, all capable of winning the tourney. There will be eight teams in the field, with Boston and Albertus already selected from among New Bedford, New Jersey, Waterbury, Met A, Providence, Western Mass., Phil- Chi and Tri-State. Tri-State looms as a darkhorse candidate, while the defense and goalie problems are led by a former All New Hampshire basketball player, in Baby Bill Degan from Concord.

Puckster Record Poor; But Coach Satisfied

BY TOM COVILL

The PC freshman hockey team recently wrapped up their season with a record of two wins and thirteen losses. Lack of depth, plus the loss of four players during the season were the main problems with which Coach Lou Lamoriello had to deal. Richard Johnson, one of the best prospects on the squad, was incapacitated for the entire season with a broken thumb, and three other boys were lost midway through the season due to academic diffi- culties.

Despite their dismal record, Coach Lamoriello was very satis- fied with the performance of the frosh sextet. Their record does not tell the whole story, as is shown by the fact that seven of the thirteen losses were by two goals or less. He cited the performances of Jerry Murphy, the team's high scorer, and Phil Souza, and called them "two of the best penalty killers around." The basis for this statement is that only five goals were scored against them while killing fifty penalties.

While scoring goals was the major problem for the puck- sters, the defense and goalie played well. Ron Martell, Jay Tivnan, Jack Otis, and Harry Towne were the defensive stand- outs. Towne, a graduate of Hope High School, merited high praise from his coach as the team's most improved player. He was deemed "a pleasant sur- prise" and given a good chance of making the varsity next year, along with three or four others.

By VINCENT MAROTTOLI

Take four busloads of students without chaperons, add an exorbitant amount of alcoholic beverages, mix them on a five-hour trip and you have the ingredients for a horror show that would rival the works of Edgar Allen Poe.

Unfortunately, I found myself in the midst of the setting for this short story. Perhaps it is more of a drama, since the script has been frequently reenacted, almost as if it were repertory theatre.

I am referring to the most recent incident which took place enroute to and from the Palestra last week. And the most disturbing aspect was that such conduct seems to have become the accepted thing.

The raucous conduct exhibited by most of the students involved defeated the very purpose of sponsoring such trips: to present a good image of wholesome student support of college-sanctioned events.

It is a difficult task to isolate the sources which in- stigated such conduct. But surely, the lack of super- vision of those elements who don’t know when to stop, or the perhaps good-natured intent of the drivers who stop to allow the students to furnish themselves with liquor, did nothing but fan the situation.

The cause, as I see it, originates from an assumption that such conduct is expected of a college student. It has so infected the thinking of some people that incidents of this nature will continue here and at other colleges, unless proper measures are taken.

A member of the organization who subsidizes the trip should accompany the group, equipped with the authority to curb such occurrences before they expand.

The drivers of the vehicles, as representatives of the company, should be impressed with the fact that favors such as liquor stops are not wanted, and if they continue despite the warnings, will result in a sudden loss of patronage from this institution.

And if these measures are not successful, the only other solution is to prohibit any further trips of this nature.

The responsibility lies ultimately with the individual. But, as substantiated by this and similar inci- dents, the individual often lacks the will or the wisdom to restrain himself.

Thus the responsibility is shared by those groups who sponsor the trips. If they are unable to act, I sug- gest that they use their subsidy money for better pur- poses. The college will be better off without it.

The Friars provided Providence in the Providence College story. The Friars have faced two teams in basketball with great difficulty. But he added that "they made the standings".

Coach Mullaney has said that the Friars have enjoyed a successful season. "We're losing some exceptional seniors," Mullaney has said. "But we are getting some great ones back. And the Hawk will die again!"

Game Comments

For anyone unfamiliar with the nearly gruesome details of the I.R.I. team's journey into the South, they are pretty much the same. For the Rams, the problem was mostly a height disadvantage while the Friars experienced problems with both the full and a half zone defense. Their tremendous rebounding ability, coach Jack Ramsey told the Courant, will utilized four basic defenses in the first half: the 1-2-2 and 1-2-2 zone, and 3-2 zone. He shifted to continuously avoiding potential to prevent the Rams from moving forward. He was only moderately successful in this. "We were beaten by the Hawks," said Ramsey. "They are the most talented team we have ever had. Always a team-spirational captains the sextet vice-president of the class of '66, often from the same school. Always a team-spirational captains the sextet vice-president of the class of '66, often from the same school."

Six seniors made their last appearances in Friar uniforms. They were: John Campbell, Bob Brown, Andy Branchaud, Fred Sullivan, Brian Kelly and Frank Brander. Campbell was the regular goalie this season and was primarily responsible for the win over the Huskies. Over the last 10 games "we averaged about 40 saves per game. Brown has also been a game winner, who spent most of his last season on the bench, but put in a great performance Saturday when he came on in the second period after Campbell had been ejected for fighting. "Bonnie" allowed only one goal in 28 shots.

Branchaud, from Woonsocket, was the top scorer of the seniors as he centered the "check-ins" line between wings Sullivan and Brander. While he had never been a great goal scorer, he has had his best year yet as he finished the regular season with a goal. Known better perhaps for his hustle, Sully has been tabbed the "best back-checker on the squad."

Incidentally, the team from Providence in heavy weather with a mile of 4:22, while Ray Van Eppes was 4:31. The Hawks and the Friars have a meeting place at 8:50, giving way to eventual winner Eppes by a 4:22 clocking. (Continued on Page 9)

Hockey Seniors Bow Out With Great Final Effort

By Tom Hutton Providence College's Hockey Friars came up with perhaps their best game of the season last Saturday night as they dropped a 2-0 decision to a powerful Boston University sextet at the Boston Arena. The second-ranked Terriers scored their second goal into an open net as Coach Zellio Tappaziani lifted his goalie in the last minute in favor of a sixth forward. It was the final game of the season for the pucksters as they wound up with a rather disappointing record of 7-14.

Dave Gavitt: Often Unsung - Never Outdone

By Brian Mahler

On a summer day in 1962, lady luck smiled on Providence College when Dee Rowe, athletic director at Worcester Academy, met his old classmate, Fr. St. George of Providence College. While he has been a successful high school and college athlete.

While at Peterborough High in New Hampshire, he made all-state teams in basketball and baseball. From there he went to Dartmouth where he earned three varsity letters in baseball and three in basketball. After graduation, Dave went with AT & T and worked in Washington before joining the Army. Following his discharge in the fall of 1961, he joined the coaching staff at Worcester Academy. A year later he came to PC.

During his stay at Providence, Dave has proved to be both efficient and popular. Though probably best known as Freshman basketball coach, Dave is also the coach of the varsity tennis team. As Joe Mullaney's right hand man, Dave scouts future opponents and recruits future prospects for the Friars. He has also been named liaison officer between the administration and the athletic department. During the summer months, Dave had coached in the Cape Cod Baseball League and last year he was a manager of Darien Senior Indians.

Last June Dave received his Masters Degree in History, but his future plans do not include teaching. Dave would like to be a head basketball coach, but only if the right offer comes. He has contributed to the success of P.C. and if he leaves he will be missed, for Dave Gavitt is a rare combination of ability and personality.
