DE Sponsors Catholic Liberal In P C Lecture

John Leo, associate editor of Commonweal and self-styled Catholic Liberal, lectured on "The Laymen in the Church" last Thursday night in the Guild Room of Alumni Hall. Mr. Leo's lecture was sponsored by the Delta Epsilon Sigma Honor Fraternity.

Having pointed out that the term "laymen" is an abstruse word, Mr. Leo gave a history of the laymen in the Church and explained why laymen are becoming extinct. He noted that the Protestant Reformation set the hierarchy of the Church against the laymen since the laymen were responsible for the mass rebellion. Also, he pointed out that even until Pope John, Catholic theology seemed to be a reaction against the laymen of the modern world.

Today Mr. Leo sees a greater participation of laymen in the governing of the Church. He thinks that the Church is becoming a bit more democratic since it hears the ideas of the laymen. Pointing out that the Sistine Chapel, according to Mr. Leo, gave the reason of a morecharismatic attitude in the Church. He feels that the gifts of the Holy Spirit are distributed in an indeterminable way so that no one is positive of the receivers of them.

The second part of the lecture was devoted to the thoughts of laymen in the Liberal Secular City. Mr. Leo described Cax as one who is in the secular world but one not participating the secular world. Mr. Leo said that many of the people are unsure if embracing the secular world would solve many of the problems of the Church, but many reasons for this proposal (Continued on Page 5)

Reverend M. Iakovos Scheduled to Speak On Orthodox Church

The Most Rev. Metropolitan Iakovos of Philadelphia of the Eastern Orthodox Church will lecture at Providence College Monday evening, March 21.

He will discuss "The Roman Catholic and Orthodox Relationship: Church, Theology and Experience" at 8 p.m. in the Harkins Hall auditorium. His talk will be the fifth in the current Robert J. Slavin Lecture Series.

The ecumenical series, named in the memory of the Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, sixth president of Providence College, consists of lectures featuring speakers from different faiths. The theme for the series is "Search for Understanding."

Iakovos, who came to the United States in 1964 after being exiled by the government of Turkey, was born in Greece in 1910. Following graduation from schools in Greece and Turkey, he ordained Deacon in 1942 and served as Archdeacon and preacher in the Archdiocese of Caucasia.

In 1946 he was appointed sub-secretary to the Holy Synod and later was appointed chief secretary to the Holy Synod by His Holiness Patriarch Athonas. Reverend Iakovos is now a member of the Holy Synod and of its committees on ecumenical affairs, doctrine and canonical law. He participated in the Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Evanston, Ill., and is now a member of the executive and central committees of that body.

He also participated in the First Pan Orthodox Conference at Rhodes in 1963 which discussed the problem of a dialogue with the Roman Catholic Church.

More on Dean's List

Last week’s issue of “The Cowl” offered an article headlined “Providence College Students Mailed New Grading System.” We stated that the new system of plus grades (B+, C+, etc.) contrary to the hopes of the Committee on Studies, “has actually resulted in an overall 2.5% increase in the number of students making the dean’s list.” Father Lennon seemed to object to the fact that 18.2% of the student body was appointed to the coveted circle (including 24.8% of the senior class) and used examples from other schools to illustrate, what he considered, large number of students on the dean’s list.

We of the “Cowl” have a few objections to the article. To begin with, the tone of the article seemed to indicate a direct cut into the intelligence and drive of our PC students. Having finished reading the article, one received the impression that the only reason one made the dean’s list last semester was because of easy teachers or the new marking system. Somehow, as students of the College ourselves, we cannot agree with such a statement. An increase in the dean list does not necessarily mean that teachers have “balled up” as the old cliche goes—it may also mean that more work was done by students who “deserved” to make the dean’s list.

Another objection we have to the article lies in the manner of its presentation. PC was compared to two schools with a lower percentage of dean’s list students; yet we do not see how the two schools could be indicative of a growing trend in limiting dean’s list students. What about Brown, Pembroke, or RISD? Surely, their percentage cannot be lower than PC’s.

As far as the new marking system itself is concerned, we believe that it represents a marked advance over any system used thus far at Providence College. There is an immense difference between the students with a 70 average and the one who is somewhere around the 70 percentage. The plus system does not do away with the injustice completely (only the “point system” which we favor could do this), but it is at least a step in the right direction. Any thoughts about going back and reviving the past system would certainly be a mistake which would hurt students and teachers alike.

Senior Suggestion Again

Last week, the Cowl offered a “Suggestion for Seniors,” a mild form for the least of our suggestions has arisen. The editorial suggested the possibility of a dinner at the Senior Prom; and encouraged the calling of a class assembly to discuss this and other suggestions—so that all the seniors would be satisfied that they are having the best possible Week-end.

Since then, we have been pelted with suggestions from all sides—suggestions which are not printable. Many members of the senior class have offered their ideas as to what could be done to make a more successful finale to our college life. These have run the gamut from a post-midnight buffet to the dance to jinking the whole thing. However, the most vociferous responses have come from the class administrative quarter. It seems they have taken offense to the mere “suggestion.”

They claim that a call went out for volunteers; but there was almost a total lack of response. Funny—I’ve searched the campus—every stall—and have not yet been able to find such a call. The only Senior announcement I have received is the Senior 30. Admittedly, I received it only a cursory glance, but even here I found no call. Even if it was there, I hardly think that an announcement made by the general body of such Juniors to bring them into our droves.

Now is the time, for all who care, to act—before it is too late. We encourage all the Seniors to take an active part in the Week-end and to help lift the burden of organizing such an affair from the shoulders of our class officers. Further, we encourage the calling of a class assembly so all can be informed of the Week-end’s progress (7) to date.
Vietnam Combat Veteran Joins ROTC Staff at PC

One of the more recent additions to the faculty of Providence College is in the person of Captain Samuel L. Lemmon, Jr., who is presently the ROTC Senior Class Instructor. Captain Lemmon, who hails from South Carolina, speaks with a noticeable Southern accent which underlines his deep insight into the problems confronting our nation today. Though his appearance denotes a pride in his uniform and accomplishments, Captain Lemmon's manner is more bedecking a studious professor rather than the tough airborne-ranger that he is.

A West Point graduate (class of 56), Captain Lemmon's duty station was at Fort Carson, Colorado, where he was with the 9th Infantry. A three-year tour in Germany was followed by a twelve-month stay with the 1st Infantry at Fort Riley, Kansas. During his assignment with the 1st Infantry, Captain Lemmon received the Army Commendation Medal for his work as Company Commander.

After spending some time learning Vietnamese in California during a leave period in Vietnam in December of 1964, Captain Lemmon was assigned to the Military Assistance Command Vietnam (MACV), Captain Lemmon also serves as an instructor and as a second lieutenant in theater. A three-year tour in Vietnam, especially in the Mekong Delta where the 21st Infantry Division (ARVN) is located. But he emphasizes the toughness of the Vietnamese people and their army. He speaks respectfully of the "good little trooper" whom he advised, and slept, and ate with for six months. Wherever there is human spirit, the Colonel reminded the reporter that the Vietnamese have been fighting for 20 years. Whereas the American knows that he only has to serve for so many months, the Vietnamese's future is a vague notion of "tomorrow's" with more fighting and only a hope for an end that is not yet in sight.

"My division (21st ARVN) operated as a part of the 9th Infantry. It is the most outstanding in Vietnam." The Captain underlines the fact that the 21st Division is taking the war to the Viet Cong and the fighting is done by the Vietnamese themselves, and that they are really winning and securing the vast Delta region. The 21st Division does not have transportation to aid the Vietnamese people, and that they are really winning and securing the vast Delta region. The 21st Division does not have transportation to aid the Vietnamese people, and that they are really winning and securing the vast Delta region. The 21st Division does not have transportation to aid the Vietnamese people, and that they are really winning and securing the vast Delta region.

Captain Lemmon had little contact with the Pacification Program but he did gain much of its results and he knows its worth. "Through pacification is the way we will win the war. We must deny the V.C. access to food, supplies, and popular support." The Captain noted that emphasis on pacification programs is growing and that coverage into the "grass roots" areas is needed.

The design of the ring for the Class of 1968 was presented to a majority of class members recently in Harkins Hall auditorium by representatives of Dieges & Clot of Providence, the contracted manufacturers.

Mr. Austin Crawford, PC 46, sales representative for the local company, and Mr. George A. Flynn, designer, spoke to the students concerning the evolution of the ring design and ordering procedures.

Using an overhead projector, Mr. Flynn explained to an audience of about 500 how the ring concept arrived at its final choice.

In preliminary remarks Mr. Crawford praised the committee for their devotion. "They have worked valiantly more than 63 hours, sacrificing valiantly every night," he said. "You can thank each of them for the class. You can taste it!"

Orders for the rings will be taken in Alumni Hall March 23, 24 and 25.

On The Aisle
By L. BRUCE PORTER

Last Saturday evening the Rhode Island Civic Chorale, under the direction of Dr. Louis Pichieri, presented one of the most impressive concerts by a local group within recent memory. A large and responsive audience was in attendance at Veteran Memorial Auditorium for this performance. The program, which was the chorale's attempt at opera-in-concert, consisted of Mascagni's Cavalleria Rusticana and Boito's Mefistofele: Prologo. This was a formidable undertaking.

In presenting the prologue from Boito's Mefistofele, Dr. Pichieri continued his practice of bringing before the public new and provocative music. In the past he presented Rhode Island premieres of Orff's Carmina Burana and a long-lost work of Vivaldi. This opera by Boito is especially interesting in that it has never attained basic repertoire status, though it is infinitely more profound than Gounod's Faust and his equally feral forces are contrasted in "sung in the heavens" where heavenly and infernal intensity. It is "sung in the heavens" where heavenly and infernal forces are contrasted in music of overpowering dimensions befitting the awesome spiritual struggle at hand.

Boito's masterpiece spoke with resounding significance in this performance. The choruses were properly balanced and delicately blended. The work of the Rhode Island Boy Choir was excellent in this number. The solo bass, Nicholas De Marzo, gave a very pleasing interpretation to the awesome portrayal of Mefistofele that the score demands. His voice was powerful and dark, and his style was refined. Even the orchestra was excellent in this work, and Dr. Pichieri had everything in absolute control.

Bio Club Holds Social Activity

The Albertus Magnus Club is sponsoring a masquerade dance on Friday, March 25, at the Hope Council, K. of C., in South Providence. The caper is the fifth one held this year-long institution. The affair, the theme of which is "Mask and Flask," has never been a thing for pretentiousness.

This year's event promises to be especially interesting with the added diversion—only couples will be permitted in the dance. The couple with the most original costume will be awarded the door prize. Entertainment will be provided again by "The Rogues" and refreshments will be included in the nominal fee of $2.00. Tickets are available from the officers and the social chairman of the club.

The Mascagni opera is an old chestnut whose performance requires considerable effort and talent if it is to sound vital and alive. The power and beauty of their voices and their fine dramatic portrayals made Rina Telli (Santuzza) and Giovanna Consiglio (Turiddu) the truly outstanding performers of the evening. The chorale did an equally splendid job here, but there were some rather rough moments on the orchestra's part.

Dr. Pichieri is to be praised for the spirit with which he attacked this herculean task and produced such truly enjoyable results. This was a most memorable evening. The Civic Chorale has grown in quantity and quality over the years under the capable direction of Dr. Pichieri, and it stands now as one of the most significant assets of the Rhode Island cultural community. It deserves the patronage of all those interested in the future of the arts.

Remember The Alamo

If a costume of some sort will be permitted at the dance, remember that the theme of which is "Mask and Flask." Admission is limited to those in costume.

John Leo...

When the question period, which was an ‘‘harangue’’ as Mr. Leo expected, the lecturer suggested that the role of the Church is primarily to teach and to free. Reasons for this are that the Catholic social institutions can not be a factor in the world’s problems since federal institutions are more capable to provide material needs and that the whole idea of the Church as a social worker is left over from the temporal idea of the Church in the Middle Ages.

Because of Mr. Leo’s poor style, he made a weak impression on much of his audience, but the lecture itself did create some serious thinking.

Students’ Blood Sent to Vietnam

The Political Union of Providence collected over 190 pints of blood yesterday for U. S. armed forces in Viet Nam. James T. McKenna, ’66, chairman of the Viet Nam Blood Drive, announced that 50 of the donors were from the ROTC’s Pershing Rifles and Special Forces groups.

Blood was taken in an American Red Cross vehicle. The Red Cross has been contracted by the Department of Defense to assist in blood donations "specifically for the use of forces in Viet Nam," according to Vincent Marcotello, assistant chairman of the PC drive.

The blood drive was suggested to the Union’s executive board earlier by its president, Jeremy Lord, ’66. Each donor gave one pint.

Pershing Rifles Hold Rifle Firing Exercise

On Saturday morning, March 12, Company K-12, Pershing Rifles, held a firing of the M-1 Rifle. After leaving P.C. at 8:30, the company moved to the Warsaw Rod and Gun Club on Route 146. There the members fired live ammunition for familiarization with the M-1, a semi-automatic weapon which was used during World War II and the Korean War.

Each member had the chance to fire for score and for effect. Firing for score involved single rounds; for effect, each firer used an eight-round clip. Each man fired approximately 35 rounds.

Despite the snow, the members did well in their scores. For many it was the first time they had ever fired live ammunition with a military weapon.

Along with the Company, under the command of Cadet Capt. Michael D. Miggins, were Capt. Paul F. Fitzpatrick, Advisor, and Staff Sergeant Donald A. Fahey, NCO Advisor.

ARMY ROTC

IF YOU ARE GOOD ENOUGH TO BE A LEADER, DON'T SETTLE FOR LESS!
By JAMES A. HUESER

In Tulsa, Oklahoma, two owners of a motor rebuilding exchange were sentenced to five years in prison for defrauding the public. What were they doing? Under the guise of exchanging motors in cars, they repaired the old motors and did not change the motor or repair it. In Miami, Florida, an automatic transmission repair shop hung a sign on a door: "Closed for Vacation." Actually it was closed because it was caught defrauding the public in the repairing of automatic transmissions. In Columbus, Ohio, three automatic transmission shops were indicted for defrauding the public. In Los Angeles several shops were indicted for defrauding the motorist publicly on repairs to their cars.

War has been declared on the many gyps in the auto repair field who make their living defrauding the public by not repairing the car according to what needs to be done; charging for work not done; or making repairs not necessary for the automobile to operate properly.

Spearheading the battle to clean up the auto repair field is the Independent Garage Owners of America, Inc., a national trade association with 5,000 members in 36 states. They have been joined by several other trade associations in the automotive field to help protect the motorist from dishonest auto repair shops.

How can these shops continue to operate? The Chicago based National Association states: "It's the public that helps keep these fraudulent repair shops in business because the public thinks it gets a bargain on car repairs when low prices are advertised for specific jobs." However: "This type of shop can be eliminated if the motorist permits it to keep a ledger of the work done during normal business hours and will not work for a diagnosis of the trouble. Many of the gyps work only in the evening because the operator works elsewhere during the day. Is the shop a member of the local Chamber of Commerce? Does the shop display membership in his trade association? Is the shop clean? How is his credit rating? It is also advisable to ask the repair firm for a list of his customers. Check with these customers. Ask about the quality of work. Was the shop ever involved in business?"

First indication of a gyp shop include location. Is the shop on a well traveled street or is it in a back yard, down an alley in a storage garage or under a shade tree? Is the work done during normal business hours or in the evening? Many of the gyps work only in the evening because the operator works elsewhere during the day. Is the shop a member of the local Chamber of Commerce? Does the shop display membership in his trade association? Is the shop clean? How is his credit rating? It is also advisable to ask the repair firm for a list of his customers. Check with these customers. Ask about the quality of work. Was the shop fair and reasonable with its prices? How many years has the shop been in business? This seems like a lot of trouble to go through just to have your car repaired right, however, your automobile is generally your second largest investment. Taking a little time to check on the person about to repair your vehicle will save you money over the years, because a reliable auto repair shop will guarantee its work and will be most anxious to give you information about the firm. The gyp will dodge the questions you ask and will try to get you to sign a blank repair order.

Each questionnaire also asks for the student's academic year, grade point average, sex, and whether the class is part of his major course of study.

The Associated Men Students, already at work on next year's "Prof-il," said the new edition will also contain a descriptive statement of the professor's style, lecture delivery, and test frequency.

As has been stated in this column before, it would be a wise and propitious move if some type of publication of this general type were to be taken and presented to the student body here at the College. In the interests of academic progression, this is the only answer that exists to the problem of improvement of the teaching level.

Notice from The Editors

In case anyone is interested (which we doubt) plans for a new field house and student union will not be printed in a future edition of the Cowl, at least not in the near future.

Furthermore, Providence College has not been sold to Chapin Hospital.

And last, but least, the Cowl will not be a daily paper unless by some accident a particularly ambitious editor is chosen sometime in the near future.

International Relations Club Attends UN Model Assembly

By ROBERT NEJAKO

Last week, the International Relations Club sent to the National Model General Assembly 15 delegates, representing the United States. Previous to the actual work of the Model General Assembly, the delegation was briefed for over two hours at the United States Mission by several heads of departments and experts on the several salient points of contention that would be likely to come up for discussion. Included were the United Nations position on Red China, Viet Nam, Uses of Outer Space and the Definition of Aggression.

Generally, according to James McKenna, Chief Delegate of the United States Delegation to the United Nations, briefing the Political, Special Political, Economic and Security Affairs Section, United States Mission to the United Nations, briefing the P.C. delegation on all current world problems in their relation to the United States position. Pictured (from left) are Joseph Piscatella, Mr. Baker, James McKenna, Brian St. Germain, Peter Nikitaidis, William Struck.

Joseph Hadley, Chairman of the Providence College delegation and chairman of the Legal Committee of the National Model General Assembly, stated that "Overall, the P.C. delegation was rated as good. The difficulties inherent in representing a major power kept the United States from doing an excellent job. This could be blamed only on a lack of experience on the part of the delegates. However, in my committee, as well as the other five, P.C. fared well in comparison with the other major powers who were generally represented by big-name, Ivy League schools."

"I was disappointed by the preparation of many colleges. more than adequate job, especially in thwarting the de-facto recognition of Red China, and in leading discussion on the Definition of Aggression, and the Problem of the Uses of Outer Space."

"Observations made by other committee chairmen showed that our performances were at least adequate and, in a few places, excellent."

"I would like to thank, on behalf of the entire delegation, Father Haas, the Student Congress, the Carolin Club, the Dillon Club, Political Union, and the St. Thomas More Club for their contributions which enabled us to attend this conference."

It is the observation of this reporter that the P.C. delegation was quite successful, considering the attacks directed at them as the representative of the United States. For all intents, the U.S. controlled the Western Bloc and was quite successful on the floor of the Plenary Sessions.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

Congratulations to the editorial staff of The Cowl! You have again succeeded in stirring up a mountain of controversy with out even helping to first construct the molehill of reality. I am referring to an editorial which appeared in last week's Cowl entitled "A Suggestion For Seniors." It is unfortunate that the Cowl editors did not see fit to examine the Commencement Weekend format before criticizing it.

The question of a dinner at the Commencement Ball is a moot one. The pros and cons of the feasibility and expense of undertaking are still under consideration by the committee. Many aspects must be considered and all suggestions presented to the committee are greatly appreciated. However, a second point brought up in your editorial is not so moot. The Cowl grossly insulted the Senior Class Officers and Weekend Committee members when it suggested that the class be allowed to plan the weekend. This was a gross insult because the officers of the Class of 1966 have encouraged ideas and suggestions from the first day they assumed office. To sample class opinion, a suggestion box for Commencement Weekend format was set up even before criticism.

lobbied for support to defeat the proposal. After a heated floor fight, and extensive lobbying on the part of Robert Calabro, the United States finally pushed through an amendment excluding the Viet Cong from being considered in the Peace Negotiations.

In the Plenary Session, the United States, along with Nationalist China and United Kingdom, defeated the proposal to allow admission of Red China to the United Nations. Apology very important question," the proposal needed a two-thirds majority. It received something just above a simple majority.

"In the Legal Committee, Mr. Miano and Mr. Hosley did a more than a little mystified as to the source of your 'factual' information. Hopefully, future comments on student activities will be preceded by a knowledge of the circumstances and planning surrounding said activities.

The basketball season is nearly a brief respite for avid sports fans. Unnoticed, working diligently behind the headlines of the completion of their intense preparation.

The basketball team is concerned. Coach Gavitt's opinion, "shows a team that only be a brief respite for the avid sports fan. Unnoticed, working diligently behind the headlines of the completion of their intense preparation.

As for the remaining varsity candidates, the returners from last year's squad will compose the nucleus of the starting team. This is due to the short length of time that the team has in which to prepare for the season opener. Coach Nahigian commented that there was too little time in which to hold varsity tryouts and that it would be too late for the probable starters enough work in their skills for the first game.

He explained that tryouts would be held after the first road trip on the first weekend in April, and all hopefuls are urged to come out at that time. According to the coach, there still are opportunities for the new candidates as the team has not set up at any position. Additional candidates for the PC team are interested in playing for PC. but several excel-""
Jerry and Barry: 7th and 8th in the Nation

The N.C.C.A. news for Providence College has not been all Bad. Last year's St. Bonaventure's game was evidenced of late by the fine representation given by two of Coach Ray Hanlon's star runners, Barry Brown and Jerry Riordan. The two competed in the N.C.A.A. Indoor Track Championships held last Friday and Saturday in Detroit, Michigan.

Brown, who qualified for the two mile by virtue of his second-place finish in the ICA's last Saturday and his current ranking of fifth among the top two-milers of the country, finished eighth in the two mile in Detroit, postng a time of 9:05.2. Although this is not his best clocking at the distance, the torrid early pace set by the unstoppable Gerry Winder of Washington State and 1964 Olympic participant (the eventual winner) accounted for the sub-par performance of many of the top-flight runners in the field.

Riordan, on the other hand, had to qualify on Friday afternoon in order to earn a spot in the finals of the mile, a chore which he accomplished admirably. He finished second in his heat, tying Ed Dean of Notre Dame and at the same time setting a new school record for the mile run with his time of 4:08.9. In the finals held on Sat. afternoon, his 4:10.01 clocking earned him seventh place among the top eight milers in the country.

Needless to say, Coach Hanlon was understandably pleased with the performance of the two, noting that this was the first time that P.C. has ever had two entries in the N.C.A.A. Indoor Championships, and commending both for their fine efforts.

The next outing for the track team will be the University of Connecticut Relays to be held next Sat. at Storrs, Conn.

Co-Capt. Blair Recalls PC Thrills and Honors

By JOHN CIEPLY

"He's good as gold!" Jim Walker's statement after last year's St. Bonaventure's game really sums up the worth of Friar co-captain Bill Blair. His reputation after four years is entirely that of a hustler, a team player, a clutch player.

His biggest thrills were all about winning. The mood of the team was always high except for the basket. Jerry Riordan and Barry Brown: 7th and 8th in the Nation

Freshman Baseball — Whenever the mood hits the coach.

Golf — When the greens dry up.

Tennis — When the clay dries up.

Bill is easily one of the best dancers on campus and his musical talents are complemented by his love of music. His tape recordings of rhythm and blues selections relax the team before every game. But this is no eccentricity, because "psyching up" is a major part of Bill's athletic philosophy. Before a game he can be seen constantly on the move. "I hate to stand still. I think it's better to get my body toned up before the game and stay that way for the whole game. Not just loosening up for five minutes and stop. That's very important to me, that's the reason for the tape recorder."

Here's the question about it, Bill is the best in the country and the fans are conditioned when the shot does not fall. What is his secret for a 91% average? "I practice a lot," he answered, "but mostly I try to push everything out of my mind except for the basket."

Brander and Kelly: Captains by Example

By TOM HUTTON

One year ago this week coach Zellio Toppazzini called a meeting of his underclassmen between pucksters for the purpose of selecting co-captains. From this meeting two junior defencemen emerged as captains-elect: Brian Kelly and Frank Brander. A full hockey season has passed since this election and it was not one of the Friars' better ones as they compiled a 7-14 record, but this was not due to a lack of leadership by Kelly and Brander. They inspired their teammates all season by their constant hustle and their never-say-die attitudes.

Brian, whose home is in Needham, Mass., came to Providence as a transfer from West Point in 1963 and entered his sophomore year. He worked out with the team his first year but was ineligible to play under N.C.A.A. rules. In his junior year, Kelly's steady play won him the nod in the election for captain. This season Brian was plucked by injuries, but he didn't allow that to stop him as he played every game with his shoulder and ankle heavily taped.

His popularity among his fellow students is evidenced by his election as Vice-President of the Class of '68. Kelly recalled that perhaps his biggest thrill playing hockey for P.C. was beating West Point last season on their own ice surface. The rink at Army is reputed to be the toughest ice surface for opponents to win on in the East.

As for the future, Kelly is still undecided but it is certain that what ever he does, he will do it well.

Frank, the rugged defenseman from Kirkland Lake, Ontario, proved to be the backbone of the defensive corps during his three varsity years. In Canada, Frank played Junior A hockey which is the next step to pro. Upon graduating high school he was faced with the decision of turning pro or going to college. A friend of his was going to college and playing hockey in the States. The friend, Rick Hesterman, told his coach, Tom Eccleston, about Franks' interest. Eccleston contacted him and in the September of 1962 Brander entered Providence College as a member of the hockey team.
