Mr. Harry Scherman Announces Fellowship Directed to Seniors

A new annual writing fellowship program directed to the college senior was announced today by Mr. Scherman, Chairman of the Board of the Book-of-the-Month Club. Officially titled "The Book-of-the-Month Club Writing Fellowship Program," the project will be administered by the College English Association under a grant from the Book-of-the-Month Club.

Beginning with the academic year 1966-67, which coincides with the Club's 40th annivsary, the program calls for 14 fellowships of $3,000 each. Mr. Scherman pointed out that relatively few fellowships of this magnitude have been available in recent years. "It is our hope," he said, "that our program will serve his entire school. This shall endeavor to prove throughout the year."

For the past year Mr. Ward has been Student Congress Treasurer and Secretary of the Student Government of the Rome Center. The student body has been close to each other, and while their academic achievement has averaged 2.93, their personal convictions but rather 4.00, it was announced today by Mr. Laurent Gousie, director of the PC Junior Year Abroad Program.

Paul Giannelli looked like a confident man on election day as the result of the referendum. His victory was the fact that 97% of his campaign, he noted, to be post-adjusted for the entire government in time of war.

General Taylor gave as basic objectives the closing of South Viet Nam and the forcing of Hanoi to change its policy of aggression. South Viet Nam. The former ambassador claimed that "it is our hope to be in South Viet Nam, the general said that our sense of justice as a nation on his side. He further explained that we would work our way for the government to given to an ally under attack." He listed three reasons why we must help South Viet Nam: 1) to help us fulfill our obligation to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, and 2) to oppose the Peking-Hanoi conquests. The general firmly believes that South Viet Nam and we would undermine the safe-guards of the rest of Southeast Asia. In illustrating the importance of our defense in Viet Nam, General Taylor quoted United States Secretary of State John Kennedy: "The great battle of our time is in the movie "The Red Studio"]]

Substance and accident, actuality and potentiality, being and non-being, surely these are concepts familiar to all PC students. From our first days in a freshman lecture hall, for many years, we have been saturated by these terms so that they have become by now almost a part of our nature. Just how significant are these terms, and what value does this philosophy curriculum at PC have for its students?

Since anything in this world is a mixture of both good and evil, then philosophy is the study of ethics and of the soul; or rather, it is the study of the philosophical disciplines of the soul; or rather, it is the study of the philosophical disciplines of the soul. Many philosophy teachers carry on their classes in a flat manner. They remain confined to the academic level and the philosophy of the soul is not addressed according to the logic of St. Thomas it is ignored. True, St. Thomas has been one of the great masters of the classical tradition, and if there are others who have attempted philosophical systems. We do not agree with the procedure of many philosophers who, in their zeal for the subjective and personal, have been so exposed to St. Thomas that by the time he reaches his senior year he immediately closes his eyes. He then may enter American philosophy and choose his own course, also wrong on the part of the student, but maybe if he wasn't so brainwashed he would be able to listen with an open mind to the words of St. Thomas, with some degree of accuracy.

In conclusion, I do not want to dwell long on the subject of philosophy because I realize that many changes are already being planned in the near future. I simply want to point to the factors which we believe could help the philosophy department—eliminating courses which only bear a passing resemblance to philosophy, and the philosophy teachers and the over-emphasis placed on the thought of St. Thomas. Again it is the teacher who can "make or break" a course, but, according to an informal survey of students, many philosophy teachers carry on their classes in a flat manner. They remain confined to the academic level and the philosophy of the soul is not addressed according to the logic of St. Thomas it is ignored. True, St. Thomas has been one of the great masters of the classical tradition, and if there are others who have attempted philosophical systems. We do not agree with the procedure of many philosophers who, in their zeal for the subjective and personal, have been so exposed to St. Thomas that by the time he reaches his senior year he immediately closes his eyes. He then may enter American philosophy and choose his own course, also wrong on the part of the student, but maybe if he wasn't so brainwashed he would be able to listen with an open mind to the words of St. Thomas, with some degree of accuracy.

Let's Clean Up!

Welcome, all, to Lower Slobovia. Pictures of a few denizens of this "culturally depressed area" can be seen on page 6. The rest of the fauna are known as the residents of Aquinas Hall. The amount and variety of refuse and garbage deposited on the grounds in front of Aquinas Hall is so great that the general public might improve, but also that the campus might just be a little more pleasant to live on.

How about it, Fellas?

The COWL

MEMO FROM THE EDITOR

Last week as I was on my way to class I overheard a conversation in the course of which one student remarked that the Cowl prints whatever the administration desires. In his estimation the Cowl is nothing but a tool of the administration. I was, unfortunately, in a hurry and I did not have time to argue his point. Consequently, I covet this column to answering that particular student as well as many others who have voiced the same sentiment.

It is true that the Cowl does print news items that the administration has sent to us. These items are generally directed at the entire College community or some segment of it. On occasion these news items are directed at the alumni, who represent a significant percentage of our subscribers. I hasten to add that these items constitute news, not editorial opinion on the part of the administration.

The Cowl has a moderator, as do all the other clubs on campus. Our moderator attends the editorial board meetings, not to tell us what we can or cannot say editorially, but to inform us of the position of the administration on any particular question which might arise. We are free to agree or disagree with the administration as we see fit.

I cannot pretend that the administration does not have the right of censorship. A large amount of money is necessary to publish this paper every year and more than half of that money comes from the administration. Because of that subsidization, the administration does, I think, have certain rights regarding the Cowl. However, the possibility of censorship by the administration arises only when there is a possibility that an editorial statement or news story might do more harm than good. In such instances there is a full discussion of the matter during which we of the editorial board can give a complete statement on our position.

Apart from such situations, the editorial statements and the presentation of news in the Cowl is a matter of self-censorship. The members of the staff determine what will or will not be said in the Cowl.

In last week's "Memo from the Editor" I questioned why senior transcripts were being sent out so late. The matter was discussed at the Monday meeting of the Student-Administration Committee. Senior transcripts are held in the Data Processing Department until the incompletes can be removed from the transcripts. This enables the data processing department to determine each senior's rank in class, which many graduate schools require along with the marks.

The situation is being investigated to determine some method of obtaining all marks on time so that the transcripts might be processed sooner.

improvement of the advising system in all units of the University. Findings of the Committee:

The Student Complainants: The students feel that they have inadequate contact with faculty.

The advising system in some parts of the University is working very poorly. Students frequently encounter lack of concern on the part of the advisers. Many find the present system of quizzes, grading and requirements to be stifling. They feel the exams are used only to grade, and not at all to instruct. They complain that too many courses require excessive memorization and little understanding, and too many exams call for a regurgitation of facts and figures recently memorized. Some students look to the University for answers to profound problems of existence. The advising system is to be changed so that students feel that they can turn to an adviser for help.

in the southern half of the globe... in which a battle we cannot afford but to take sides...

He said that the "pull out" suggestion to foreign capitals as it did last December.

A second alternative is a military man. General Taylor gave a critical analysis of four alternatives to the present policy in Viet Nam. He said that the "pull out" would not be feasible. Pulling out of Viet Nam would mean a retreat to Honolulu. Proceeding this way would further mean an abandonment of our word, our policy, and our objectives. A second alternative is the "hold back" policy. This entails the use of power almost exclusively. General Taylor said that President Johnson's "hold back" policy claim that our forces under present fighting conditions cannot be used as defensive weapons, but the General definition of that policy is more than just the military in Viet Nam. He said that even if the capital were burned, Viet Nam and withdrawing our forces would be a concession with pulling out altogether.

As an answer to the fourth alternative of going to the United Nations or Geneva in a peace parley General Taylor gave three reasons why this is impossible. First, the United Nations does not want to get involved. Second, the United Nations does not have the means and power to handle the problem. And, third, Peking and Hanoi will not listen to the United Nations.

In regard to "how to proceed," General Taylor offered three suggestions: Do better in each of the four points in the strategy outlined above. Stop watching the clock that tells how much time we're spending watching the clock. And, third, Peking and Hanoi will not listen to the United Nations. General Taylor seemed to be unafraid of Red China and optimistic about the possibilities in Viet Nam. He feels frustrated by the early classes to just-one-more-frug at midnight... and they're guaranteed for one year's normal wear.

They stay like new forever. In a full range of colors and styles.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

During the past Dillon Club elections, an unfortunate situation arose concerning my use of the club's envelopes for mailing letters pertinent to my campaign. A formal complaint was filed by a member of the executive board in order to rectify the error. I then deemed it necessary to write this letter to apologize to the offended persons and naturally reimburse the treasurer for the cost of the envelopes. This I sincerely do with the hope that my oversight will lead to improvement of the club in this area and not merely being added confusion.

Respectfully,

Joseph Pilla

To the Editor:

The strong resentment of faculty members and the intensification of student antagonism towards the philosophy and theology curricula occasioned by an editorial that appeared in the last issue of The Cowl easily outweigh any hoped-for results that the editorial may have accomplished. Indeed, any honest inquiry into the state of faculty planning prior to the formulation of the editorial would have eliminated its very need, since both curricula are in the process of significant change.

In short, The Cowl may well represent the student's right to dissent; but this voice of dissent should not be an effective mandate for apathy. We will treat my office with sincere respect and assure the students that I will sincerely thank all those students who supported my candidacy—becoming Student Congress Treasurer. I would like, at this time, to assure the students that I will treat my office with sincere efficiency and zeal; I will not take my uncontested election as a mandate for apathy. We have been fortunate to be endowed with a new administration possessing a progressive outlook. It is up to us, the students, to match and stimulate this progressivism with more intense participation in student affairs. With this thought in mind, I hope that last Thursday's election will be the last in which anyone ran unopposed. In closing I wish to sincerely thank all those students who supported my candidacy.

Respectfully yours,

Joseph P. Brum

DO YOU HAVE WHAT IT TAKES TO BE A LEADER?*

If you complete your first two years of college this spring and have not had ROTC training, you now have a special opportunity to earn an Army officer's commission in the next two years. You can qualify to fulfill your military obligation as an officer while you study for a college degree in a field of your choice.

Through a new two-year Army ROTC program you will receive leadership training and experience, and will build valuable assets for the rest of your life, in either a military or a civilian career. You will receive an allowance of $40 each month during your Junior and Senior years. If you desire, you may request postponement of your military service while you complete your studies for a graduate degree.

Most large business and industrial firms prefer the college graduate who has been trained and commissioned as an officer—who has the ability to organize, motivate and lead others—and who has had experience in accepting responsibilities.

You owe it to yourself to investigate this important opportunity.

For complete information on the new two-year Army ROTC program see the Professor of Military Science on campus.

The Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra presented the sixth concert of the season on Saturday evening, March 26, 1966, at 8:30 o'clock at Veteran's Memorial Auditorium.

The program for the first part lacked refinement of taste in both selection and presentation. A more uninspiring piece of music than Berlioz's overture, "The Flight to Egypt," demonstrated his imaginative power and genius. The only thing that had deserved his obscurity was the innocuous rustling of programs in the audience. "The Flight to Egypt," a more responsible programming is needed.

I must commend the beautiful playing of the orchestra, which was excellent. These works are among the best examples of the orchestral dexterity. This is in line with magnificent humor and satirical exposure of the cultural climate. Mr. Gousie said, "His effort is particularly meritorious," Mr. Gousie said. He commended the efforts of Joseph P. Dolan, who is studying at the top of his group. "The Rome group is not the only group to bring honor to the station," Mr. Dolan said. "It's an honor to have been made self-conscious in the upper third of his group."

Speaking of Mr. Dolan, Dr. Marianne Riegler, resident director of the Munich school, said, "His efforts are particularly commendable in view of the fact that many language difficulties naturally have to be overcome."

Unofficial reports are that the PC students at Fribourg are doing well also, Mr. Gousie said. He also announced the names of students approved for study abroad next year, Andrew A. Sorbo, Pasco C. Capasso, Kenneth M. Conforto, John P. Cummins, and Joseph F. P. Ferrell will go to Rome.

To Fribourg will be Peter C. Barrett, Michael itself, Thomas A. Farrell, Dominick La Magna, Stephen R. Dolan, and John H. Pelrine. I.E.S. is James M. Harkins.

Freshmen are advised to begin considering the Junior Year Abroad Program now.

Engineer Plans Study Of Traffic On Campus

Arthur Newton, the director of student affairs, has announced that a traffic study is being presently made as a traffic control problem on campus.

The study is being coordinated with the general development program for the entire College.

A recommendation has already been made to replace the police officers who were on duty on campus with a law enforcement agent. It is hoped that "Keep Right" signs would be located on the island.

The engineer will make a report to the administration sometime in the future.

The station will broadcast an interview with the newly elected Student Congress officers after the performance of the orchestra. The station will broadcast an interview with the newly elected Student Congress officers after the performance of the orchestra.

One of the birds, Harvey, by name, said that he hoped the thoughtful students who dumped the trash in the parking lots would be around for a few years. "The present situation is marvelous," he said.

SAFE AS COFFEE
The world of sports has come a long way since the first pigskin tossed about. In fact, the twentieth century has been an era of absorption of scientific progress into the technical aspects of sports. Today's athletes have invented equipment which protects almost every vulnerable spot on a player's body—or it has developed regulations which are intended to provide maximum protection for the participants . . .

Yes . . . modern man has done much to advance the humane aspects of athletics. Yet there still remains one aspect which has not maintained parallel progress; one aspect which is very much associated with humane concerns: that is the field of racial prejudice.

Everyone knows that the Denspeys and the Graziafis and whatever other names you want, by their achievements in sports, paved the way for others of their nationality to advance in society. Today's athletes participating in a national tournament of cab drivers, for instance, are not only on Southern territory, but right in Northern bastion.

The future must be paid to the individuals who persevere despite these obstacles. Honors are frequently awarded to Negro athletes, the most recent to my attention being the all-Negro Coast All-State Basketball Team, Class "A." Why not honors on a more inductive basis: social relationships?

However, such a discussion leads to the sociological realm, and perhaps is not in my jurisdiction. But it is getting more and more difficult for me to see fans reacting to the playing field and another way in a more personal situation.
Friar Nine Opens Against Fairfield Friday

By PETE MEADE

Practise is almost over. The last traces of winter are fading away, and the 1966 Friars are ready to start the season. This first contest will be against the Stags from Fairfield University on the Connecticut campus.

Commenting on the season's outlook for Providence, Coach Nahigian placed emphasis on the development of the pitching staff. Big league hurling is needed on the Friar hurlers are nursing aches and pains, with Kev Conlon and Kev Brady being the biggest question marks.

Conlon is bothered by a shoulder injury which he suffered in his sophomore year. At that time the shoulder was separated, and he is throwing with a great deal of difficulty now. Conolly is waiting for some torn elbow muscles to heal, and his availability is still hopeful but not definite.

"If the pitching comes around, we will be one of the best teams in New England," Greg Walsh summed up the prospects for the Friars this year. "If they are on those few, but concise, words Holy Cross, or possibly even Tufts, will be the Friars' toughest test of the season.

The hitting attack of the Friars will be centered around Frank Archambault, Leo McNamara, Jim Petteruti, and Steve Leider. These men were the starting lineup in three of the past five seasons, and the Friars will be strong in the infield and outfield. Fries Brady was the starting catcher, and will fill-in at the third base spot after playing short last year.

Friars will undoubtedly play up to their coach's expectations.

Brown and PC will battle for consolation honors in the preliminaries, and the third place unit will receive medals for their efforts.

A new highlight has been added to the post game presentations in the COWL. A new Most Valuable Player plaque along with individual trophies for each member of a five man all tournament team. A board comprised of officials, the Carolan Club and the Invitational Basketball Tournament Committee, chairman materialized on the boards to equalize the one difference and New Jersey was thus able to come back with only six seconds to go.
