Mr. Harry Scherman
Announces Fellowship
Directed to Seniors

A new annual writing fellowship program directed to the college senior was announced today by Mr. Scherman, Chairman of the Board of the Book-of-the-Month Club. The fellowship program, officially titled "The Book-of-the-Month Club Writing Fellowship Program," will be administered by the College English Association under a grant from the Book-of-the-Month Club.

Beginning with the academic year 1967-1968, the fellowship, available to the young creative talents in the year following their graduation, will be given to the gifted senior in recognition of "his outstanding achievement in the field of writing." It is our hope," according to Mr. Scherman, "that these fellowships will be available to the young creative writer. The fellowship will be given to an undergraduate student body and all those who personify the College English Association, and those who apply for it, so that the recipient will have the opportunity to develop his creative talents in the year following his graduation. This shall endeavor to prove throughout his college career. For the past year Mr. Ward has been Student Congress Treasurer.

Thomas Clarke easily defeated Edward Dunphy for the office of secretary. He received 851 votes as compared to Mr. Dunphy's 756. Mr. Clarke stated that he "could never have won this election without the tremendous support he received from the freshman class." Mr. Clarke is a member of the freshman class and Student Congress Social Chairman. Joseph Brum, the only sophomore to be elected to Student Congress office this past year, has been a sophomore representative in the Student Congress for the past year.

General Taylor
Defends Johnson
Vietnam Position

Former Ambassador to South Vietnam and General Taylor, addressed the College Monday evening. He outlined the present South Vietnam situation in terms of: 1) what we are in South Vietnam, 2) what we are doing there, 3) alternatives to our present policy, and 4) how we are to proceed to victory.

General Taylor gave as basic objectives for the U.S. in South Vietnam the reducing of aggression, the withdrawal of aggression, and the assistance of the United States. The former ambassador claimed that "the U.S. is a law-abiding country. We cannot allow our people to be killed by a third country without an ally." He listed three reasons why the U.S. cannot remain in South Vietnam: 1) to help the Vietnamese people to help themselves, 2) to fulfill our obligation to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, and 3) to oppose the Peking-Hanoi conquests.

The general firmly believes that "our policy in Vietnam would underscore the safe-guard of the rest of Southeast Asia. In illustrating the importance of our defense in Vietnam, Mr. Taylor quoted John Kennedy: "The great battle we face and our promise is . . ." (Continued on Page 3)

Film Festival Presents
Bergman Productions

On Monday, March 28, the Guild Room of Alumni Hall for four hours was the scene of the Ingmar Bergman Film Festival. Sponsored by the Arts and Let ters Society, the Bergman Film Festival represents a desire on the part of the Society to offer a more facetful cultural program. Up to this date it has sponsored lectures, the Dante Festival, the A: Cantanti Chorale, and now its first film festival. Ingmar Bergman is appreciated universally as one of the very finest directors on the contemporary scene. His productions are both art pieces in themselves, and exponents of the new wave in cinema production. His keen penchant for symbol and deep psychoanalysis are used as instruments to sway his actors into a textual and dimensional whole. His awareness of the extremities of the human consciousness occupies a primacy in his genius as a director-producer.

The first showing was "The Seventh Seal," which dealt with the crisis in Christian consciousness upon the possibility of death's absolute finality. Bergman developed his theme with a port (Continued on Page 5)

More on Courses

Substance and accident, actuality and potentiality, being and non-being, surely these are concepts familiar to all FC students. From our first days in a freshman lecture hall and from those days as seniors, we have been saturated by these terms so that they have become by now almost a part of our nature. Just how significant are these concepts, and what value does this philosophy curriculum at PC have for its students?

Since anything in this world is a mixture of both good and bad, it is of great significance to the philosophy courses taken at PC. Though many of us complain about the cold rationality and evasiveness of some of the concepts, we have, like many students at Providence College, unlike many state schools, at least given us a firm basis on which to begin our philosophical journeys in life. In logic we are taught the basic fundamentals of reasoning necessary to an intellectual analysis of any philosophical system and in metaphysics we are given the basic tools with which to work. Probably the most significant step in the right direction has been in relation to the second semester ethics course taught junior year. Unlike the two previous years where students were pod at St. Thomas, this course at least introduces one to important contemporary writers and their ideas.

This, however, is where the good points end. Though the courses as set up in the catalogue may look good, many times they fall way short of their goal. There are two main reasons for this. First, there are not enough good teachers and the over-emphasis placed on the thought of St. Thomas. Again it is the teacher who can "make" or "break" a course. And if the teacher does not answer according to the logic of St. Thomas it is ignored. True, St. Thomas has been one of the great masters, but St. Thomas was only one of the factors that are other who have attempted philosophical systems. We do not agree with the procedure of many philosophy courses, "already," that the student has been so exposed to the thought of St. Thomas that by the time he reaches his senior year he immediately closes his ears with the words of St. Thomas. The idea of any course, also wrong on the part of the student, but maybe if he wasn't so brainwashed he would be able to listen with an open mind and to the words of St. Thomas, with some degree of accuracy.

In conclusion, I do not want to dwell long on the subject of philosophy because I realize that many changes are already being planned in the near future. I simply want to point to the factors which we believe could help the philosophy department—diluting courses, taking away for the disgraceful condition of the College grounds. It is just that we is the most flagrant violation. Residents in Stephen, Joseph, and Richard have made a very great addition to the general appearance of the campus.

Let's Clean Up!

Welcome, all, to Lower Slobovia. Pictures of a few denizens of this "culturally depressed area" can be seen on page 6. The rest of the fauna are known as the residents of Aquinas Hall. The amount and variety of refuse and garbage deposited on the grounds in front of Aquinas Hall certainly describes an exceed the bounds of the imagination.

Now, this is not to say that the residents of Aquinas are the only ones to blame for the disgraceful condition of the College grounds. It is just that theirs is the most flagrant violation. Residents in Stephen, Joseph, and Richard have made a very great addition to the general appearance of the campus.

We find that the disposal of various types of bottles, plastic cups, cigarette butts, wrappers (including—shudder—the Cowl!), magazines, fruit and other bits of assorted trash is simply not in keeping with the standards of modern living.

It could be established that the students in question acted in this manner at their respective homes, then I suppose we could conclude this action here. However, we happen to think that this is not an entirely true! Therefore, it is our suggestion that this activity cease—not only so that the appearance of the campus in general might improve, but also that the campus might just be a little more pleasant to live on.

How about it, Fellas?

From the Editor

Last week as I was on my way to class I overheard a conversation in the course of which one student remarked that the Cowl prints whatever the administration desires. In his estimation the Cowl is nothing but a tool of the administration. I was, unfortunately, in a hurry and I did not have time to argue his point. Consequently, I thought I would devote this column to answering that particular student as well as many others who have voiced the same sentiment.

It is true that the Cowl does print news items that the administration has sent to us. These items are generally directed at the entire College community or some segment of it. On occasion these news items are directed at the alumni, who represent a specific interest of our subscribers. I hasten to add that these items constitute news, not editorial opinion on the part of the administration.

The Cowl has a moderator, as do all the other clubs on campus. Our moderator attends the editorial board meetings, to not tell us what we can or cannot say editorially, but to inform us of the position of the administration on any particular question which might arise. We are free to agree or disagree with the administration as we see fit.

I cannot pretend that the administration does not have the right of censorship. A large amount of money is necessary to publish this paper every year and more than half of this money comes from the administration. Because of that subsidization, the administration does, I think, have certain rights regarding the Cowl. However, the possibility of censorship by the administration arises only when there is a possibility that an editorial statement or news story might do more harm than good. In such instances there is a full discussion of the matter during which we of the editorial board can give a complete statement on our position.

Apart from such situations, the editorial statements and the presentation of news in the Cowl is a matter of self-censorship. The members of the staff determine what will or will not be said in the Cowl.

In last week's "Memo from the Editor" I questioned why senior transcripts were being sent out so late. The matter was discussed at the Monday meeting of the Student-Administration Committee. Senior transcripts are held in the Data Processing center for a time so that incomplete copies might be processed sooner. These items are generally as the president of the college. If the transcript is not completed by the year 2000, the transcript will or will not be said in the Cowl.

The purpose of Christ College is to be involved," he added. President College is a necessary corollary of the characteristic atmosphere of a Catholic college and the freedom of thought. President College is not a possibility that an editorial statement or news story might do more harm than good. In such instances there is a full discussion of the matter during which we of the editorial board can give a complete statement on our position.

Gen. Taylor Speaks on Vietnam

in the southern half of the globe... in which a battle we cannot afford but to take sides. As to what we are doing and what we can do, General Taylor listed a four point strategy. First, better ground forces convince Hanoi that we are firm in our objectives. Second, air power above the seventeenth parallel gives the people of South Viet Nam the satisfaction that they are striking back their invaders. Also the air power makes the imposition of men and supplies from North Viet Nam more difficult. Third, support of the government and the economy is most essential in the winning of the war. The General indicated that the hundred United States civilians in South Viet Nam promoting the present Saigon government are not enough. Fourth, the American diplomatic corps should continue its peace mission to foreign capitals as it did last December.

The General seemed to be a military man. General Taylor gave a critical analysis of four alternatives to our present policy in Viet Nam. He said that the “pull out” would not be feasible. Pulling out of Viet Nam would mean a retreat to Honolulu. Proceeding any way would further mean an abandonment of our word, our policy, and our objectives. A second alternative is the “hold back” policy. This entails the use of force or power almost exclusively. General Taylor said that possession of the “hold back” policy claim that our forces under present flight is a better defense as compared to other defensive weapons, but the General differed with the “hold back” policy opinion. He thought that our ground forces a necessity in the fight of the Viet Namese and that withdrawing our land forces would be the same as commensurate with pulling out all together.

An answer to the fourth alternative is the United Nations or Geneva in a peace conference. General Taylor gave three reasons why this is impossible. First, the United Nations does not want to get involved. Second, the United Nations does not have the means and power to handle the problem because of the United States. And, third, Peking and Hanoi will not listen to the United Nations.

In regard to “how to proceed,” General Taylor offered three suggestions. Do better in each of the four points in the strategy outlined above. Stop watching the clock that tells how much time we’re spending in the war. Quit debating in Washington and “roll up your national sleeve” and start to fight.

General Taylor seemed to be unforeful of Red China and optimistic about the Viet Nameese reaching a “ceiling” in their supplies and the ability to move those supplies.

In the question period, General Taylor said that the Viet Cong is not included in the peace conference because this would insult the South Vietnamese. He also stated that the Soviet Union desires a completion of the war as much as we do. He answered a question regarding free elections by stating that the South Vietnamese will support a free election.

General Taylor was very popular throughout the evening. He received the standing ovations from most of the audience, two before the address and one at its conclusion.

REMEMBER
Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
During the past Dillon Club elections an unfortunate situation arose concerning my use of the club's envelopes for mailing letters pertinent to my campaign. A formal complaint was filed by a member of the executive board in order to rectify the error. I then deemed it necessary to write this letter to apologize to the offended persons and naturally reimburse the treasurer for the cost of the envelopes. This I sincerely do with the hope that my oversight will lead to improvement of the club in this area and not merely create added confusion.

Respectfully,

Joseph Pilla

To the Editor:

To the Editor:

Last Thursday I had the privilege of being elected Treasurer of the Providence College Student Congress for the coming year. However, my election involved some unusual circumstances. I would like to take this opportunity to reach the majority of the students through the Cowl and make some remarks in order to clarify any confusion concerning my election.

Running for a school office unopposed is a very deprivating experience. A single candidate in contention for any office deprives the electorate of an individual choice and as a result they tend to view the lone candidate and his office in an air of complacency. The most deprived individual, however, is not the voter but the candidate himself. He is denied the opportunity of earning his office by matching his merits and qualifications with those of another candidate and loses the chance to become better acquainted with the student body comprehensively by not being able to partake in an active campaign.

The question that now arises is, "Why?" Indeed I had every intention of being involved in an active campaign and tight race and was looking forward to the challenge. I announced my idea of running for treasurer very early in hopes of forcing any potential opponents to do the same, thereby knowing who I had to contend with. However, no one came forth as a serious candidate except one student who later dropped out of contention. Why weren't there more candidates? Perhaps the office of treasurer isn't glamorous enough, perhaps it offers only tedious work, or perhaps the students of Providence College do not as a whole have a genuine interest in their student government. Whatever the reason, it is not a complaint to student participation at P.C.

Regardless of the circumstances, however, I have achieved the goal which I set out to secure the day that I first announced my candidacy—becoming Student Congress Treasurer. I would like, at this time, to assure the students that I will treat my office with sincere efficiency and zeal; I will not take my uncontested election as a mandate for apathy. We have been fortunate to be endowed with a new administration possessing a progressive outlook. It is up to us, the students, to match and stimulate this progressivism with more intense participation in student affairs. With this thought in mind, I hope that last Thursday's election will be the last in which anyone ran unopposed. In closing I wish to sincerely thank all those students who supported my candidacy.

Respectfully yours,

Joseph P. Bruin
The Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra presented its sixth concert of the season on Saturday evening, March 26, 1966, at 8:30 o'clock at Veteran's Memorial Auditorium. The program for the first part lacked refinement of taste in both selection and presentation. A more uninspiring piece of music than Berlioz's overture, "The Flight to Egypt," would be difficult to find. Neither the composer's imagination nor the orchestra's performance took flight on wings of imagination. The only thing that justified the performance was the innocuous rustling of programs in the hall.

The only thing that has deserved his obscurity was the innocent sentiment and justifiably so throughout the work. Black Hawks Win PC Hockey Crown

By JOE McMENIMEN

The Defunct league closed out its second year of hockey last week, as the Black Hawks won the title, climaxing a close race. The Dick Mollowney-led sextet tied the Maple Leafs in their first game, but after that were never headed off as they swept to the title, with a nine win, no loss, one tie record. The Black Hawks combined a high scoring forward line with a stingy defense to heavily outrares the enemy. Mollowney, team captain, aided by Bill Tilberg and Steve McDermott, helped to produce the highest scoring line in the brief history of the league. The defensive corps was sparked by Larry DeRito and Jim Roberts, again doing the job expected after last year's fine performance.

Ken Kimball, league president, was very pleased with this year's play and he expects the league to improve with age. As is to be anticipated with any contact sport, there were a few injuries, mostly in the line of cuts, requiring a few stitches, but luckily there were no injuries of major proportions. In looking back upon the past year, Ken expressed pleasure with the number of participants and with the improvement in the caliber of play. Looking to the future, Kimball feels that the league has a good foundation, with good men ready to step in to carry on the maintenance of the league. Kimball also said that the day is not too distant when the school will take over the league, and play will be in our own hockey rink. In closing, Ken said that he would like to thank all those who helped to make the league the success that it was.

Six-inchimer sank some club points and with O'Keefe's 13 points helped the Crusaders to hang on. The defending champion Perspiration lost to a surprisingly tough URI entry despite a fine team effort.

In the quarterfinal action held last week, Holy Cross bounced Bryant "B" 77-49 with tournament impromptu Buzzy Lagos hooping 16 points for the Friars.

gian is looking for a repeat performance from him, both in the field and at the plate. Dick Giannetti (5' 10", 170 lbs.)—Used mostly as a relief pitcher last season and should see action as a starter this year. A good defensive ball player who can go get and keep them, Dick is looking forward to a good year.

Fred Sullivan (6', 180 lbs.)—Will start in the outfield this year and swings a big bat. The coach is looking for him to have a good season at the plate.

Greg Walsh (5' 11", 190 lbs.)—Will be used as an utility infielder this season, filling in at third for McNamara or wherever else he is needed.

Dave Main (5' 9", 155 lbs.)—Utility infielder and excellent glove man. Dave will fill in at short when Pettingill is used as a relief pitcher.

Pat Meni (6', 185 lbs.)—Leading hitter from last year's freshman team and a good all around outfielder who will see action in the outfield.

Joe O'Sullivan (5' 10", 170 lbs.)—Up from the freshman team, Joe is a good defensive outfielder with excellent potential as a hitter.

Paul Rohey (5' 9", 180 lbs.)—Will be the backup catcher this year and is greatly improved over last season with the freshman team.

Ken Benusis (6' 3", 185 lbs.)—Will receive plenty of work this season as both a starting and relieving pitcher.

Randall Landry (6' 2", 193 lbs.)—A relief pitcher by trade, Buddy will see work over the course of the season.

Kevin Coulon (5' 11", 175 lbs.)—Red-shirted as a relief pitcher last year, but has been sidelined by the return of a shoulder injury suffered during his sophomore year.

Jim Jones (5' 7", 170 lbs.)—Returning letterman from last year's squad, Jim will pitch against Seton Hall on Sunday. Possessor of a good fast ball, change of pace, curve, and excellent control, Jones is looking forward to a very successful season.

Joe Twomey (6' 1", 185 lbs.)—Throws a good fast ball and a slider in addition to having good control, and will start for the Friars this spring, yet because of his skin, the situation assumes a different complexion.

I was reminded of this situation by an article which made reference to the treatment accorded to Negro athletes participating in a national tournament. The treatment was subtle—very noticeable as in the conduct of cab drivers, for instance.

It is an ironic situation indeed when people cheer Negroes on the playing fields, and jeer them on the streets. And yet the hypocrisy continues, not only on Southern territory, but right in your own backyard.

Northern bastion.

This attitude must be paid to the individuals who persevere despite these obstacles. Honors are frequently awarded to Negro athletes, the most recent to my attention being the all-Negro Coast All-State Basketball Team, Class "A." Why not honors on a more intimate basis: social relationships?

However, such a discussion leads to the sociological realm, and perhaps is not in my jurisdiction. But it is getting more and more difficult for me to see fans react in the same way on the playing field and another way in a more personal situation.

This year, the college will be represented by six runners: seniors Bob Fusco, junior Paul Harris, Bob Powers, and Al Capolesi, and sophomores John Brown and Brian Nolan. The latter two have been a pleasant surprise, holding up well under the strain of the practice.

However, all the training will not be in vain. And it appears that it won't. Coach Ray Hanlon calls this the "strongest group we've had in five years."

The runners not only have a chance at breaking the school record, but they might possibly win a team trophy with a little bit of luck. Coach Brown, being a Providence boy from Bishop Hendricken High, has shot at the Rhode Island record listed above, according to the coach.

Their outlook, then, is optimistic.

The strategy for such a grueling event centers around the pace. Each of the runners will have to concentrate on their own pace if he is to do well. And this means that there seems to be no cause for concern. Providence College has a history of sending fine runners in the event, and this year's group is in keeping with that tradition.

Practice is almost over. The last traces of winter are fading away, and the 1965 Friars are ready to start the season. The first contest will be against the Stags from Fairfield University on the Connecticut campus.

Commenting on the season’s outlook for Providence, Coach Nahigian placed emphasis on the development of the pitching staff. Bill Pettingill, who is the Friars' top returning pitcher and the best opposition.

The hitting attack of the Friars will be provided around Frank Archambault, Leo McNamara, Jim Pettingill, and Fred Sullivan, with Pettingill being counted heavily on for the run-batted-in department. The Friars will be strong in the infield and outfield. All-in-all, Coach Nahigian feels that he can do the job as starting catcher.

Frank Archambault (5’11”, 165 lbs.).—Third baseman and catcher. Jack has been switched from first base to become the main catcher, and Coach Nahigian feels that he can do the job as starting catcher.

Leo McNamara (5’9”, 190 lbs.).—Third baseman and captain. Leo is, in the words of Coach Nahigian, "the best lead-off man that we have ever coached." This season he will continue to lead-off and fill-in at the third base spot after playing short last year.

Jack O’Rourke (5’11”, 165 lbs.).—A good defensive infielder and a 300 hitter from last year’s squad, Coach Nahigian feels that he can do the job as starting catcher.

Hurlers for the Friars will be headlined by former starting catcher, Barry Milanesi (5’10”, 160 lbs.).—Barry, the Friars’ ace, should help the team有很大 supply up to their coach’s expectations.

Nahigian believes that his hurlers will be able to compete with any team in New England. Dick Neal, Jim Bishop, and Joe Twomey played together for Providence College has shown to be very good. The starting hurlers are nursing a shoulder injury which he suffered in his sophomore year. At that time the shoulder was separated, and he is throwing with a great deal of difficulty now. Conlon is bothered by some torn elbow muscles to heal, and his availability is still hopeful but not definite.

“...the pitching comes around, we will be one of the best teams in New England." Greg Walsh summed up the prospects for the Friars in their track gear and warmed up for the Florida Relays. He proved to be very worthwhile. Providence will undoubtedly play up to their coach’s expectations.

New Jersey 'A' Upsets Celtics In Overtime

The Intramural Basketball finals were held last night in Alumni Hall, with the New Jersey 'A' team upsetting the league champion Boston Celtics in overtime, 71-66.

Busty Lagos took the ball the length of the court with only 10 seconds left and sank a clutch 20 footer to send the game into overtime. The overtime period was tense, with both teams blowing chances for victory. Joe Tagney stole the ball once from Lagos but the Celtics were definitely cold shooters in the extra period. Steve Leider iced the game with a clutch rebound and shot off a Lagos desperation toss. He coolly turned it into a three point play and the Celtics were dethroned, as they were unable to come back with only six seconds left.

Boston’s superior height never materialized on the boards and New Jersey was thus able to equalize the one difference in the squads. Both John "O’Neill and especially Bert Brdy were responsible for the tough board work. Steve Bailey had several clutch baskets in the closing minutes and over the time period that kept New Jersey in it.

Boston’s big front line of Dick Neal, Jim Bishop and Joe Twomey played together for the last time. Joe Tagney was Boston’s only big gun, contributing 14 points and winning scoring honors.

Offenders for the coming year were elected at the last meet ing of the P.C.I.A.A. Elected to succeed President Val Lombardi was Bill Killas, a junior with major from Freeport, New York. Other officers elected were: Dick Sankus, vice president; Ed Morrawa, re-elected treasurer; Jack Lawlor, secretary.

Friars Romp In Florida Relays; Prepare For Boston Marathon

A chance encounter in Florida proved to be a worthy while for a pair of Friar track men.

Jerry Riordan and Barry Brown, who travelled to the University of Florida campus at Gainesville last weekend to inspect the running track, agreed to participate in the Florida Relays to be held that day.

So Jerry and Barry dunned their track gear and warmed up with the best of the Southern runners. After the Relays were run, over, the two visiting Northernners had received honors in their respective events.

Jerry came in first in a field of 14 to win the Open Mile, while Barry captured second in a field of 41 in the Two-Mile event. Barry, incidentally, was beaten by Oscar Moore, an Olympic runner, who set a new course record.

On Tuesday, April 19, a number of runners will begin their race on the stew of twelve leaving from the town hall in Hopkinton, Massachusetts. Although the scene might be described as being storybookish, it will be anything except that for the participants. Their goal will be the Prudential Tower in Boston, twenty-six miles, three hundred and eighty-five yards away. This annual occurrence is the Boston marathon. In 1965, the Boston marathon has been well represented. Back in 1933, a fast man, Leslie Elliott, began an elapsed time of two hours and thirty minutes. The 1963, the 33 race has been the fastest recorded by a Rhode Islander to date.

Providence College has shown a well in its track men, a race in which all those who begin do not necessarily manage to finish. All of the runners P.C. have gone the distance, and seven have broken the three hour mark in the past four years. Last year Tom Durie set the school record of two hours and thirty-four minutes.

Here’s The Lineup

Jim Pettingill (5’10”, 165 lbs.).—This year’s first baseman after winning his letter in the outfield last season. He is a good, run-producing hitter with excellent potential to become even a better one.

Steve Saradnicky (5’10”, 165 lbs.).—The starting second baseman and a good all-around ball player up from the freshman team of last season.

Bill Pettingill (5’11”, 165 lbs.).—A good all-around player, who will open at shortstop for the Friars and will also see action as a relief pitcher whenever needed.

Leo McNamara (5’9”, 190 lbs.).—Third year man and co-captain of the team. Leo is, in the words of Coach Nahigian, "the best lead-off man that we have ever coached." This season he will continue to lead-off and will fill-in at the third base spot after playing short last year.
