Providence P.R. Unit Named Best Company

The Friars from K proved that "Where there's a will, there's a way" as they won three trophies in the Drill Meet itself: a third place in IDR Drill, a second in Trick Drill, and a third place in the overall evaluation.

Individuals from K-12 also received recognition for their extraordinary leadership, devotion, and achievement in PERSHING RIFLES. They are Capt. Paul Harris, a junior from P.C., and is a native of Providence, R.I., appointed executive editor of The Cowl. He is a member of the class of 1967 and has as his immediate goal the establishment of a Freshman Class Weekend, which exemplifies, in its membership, the leadership, devotion, and achievement in PERSHING RIFLES.

Class Elections Held: Voting Turnout High

Class elections were held last week to decide who would represent this year's junior, sophomore, and freshman classes for the upcoming academic year. The turn out was heavy in all classes: 76% for the juniors, 85% for the sophomores, and 83% for the freshmen.

John Mimnic, President of the class of 1967, was re-elected for the past three years, ran unopposed for his office. The only contested class office was that of Vice-President. Incumbent Michael Kenny defeated John LaRocca 190 to 156. Running unopposed were Richard Petenzi for Secretary, Kevin Byrne for Treasurer, and Thomas Cavanagh and John Costentino for Social Chairmen.

The class representatives for Student Congress seem to have been elected in alphabetical order. The first six men on the ballot all scored well over 200 votes: representatives for next year are Louis Barbagallo, Brian Corey, Richard Cuffs, Stephen Hernandez, Richard Kelaghan, and Paul McDonnell.

P. C. Professors to be Evaluated

A new and fresh approach to student-faculty relations has been instituted at the college with the program of professor evaluation. The project, which will begin in approximately two weeks, involves a standardized questionnaire distributed all classes in the campus and a student's attitude towards his professor's instruction.

John Nissen, who was very instrumental in bringing the program to Providence College, stated that, "the program provided the individual professor with an opportunity to find out what the students think of them. It also has a secondary purpose in that it enables the administration to know what the students think of the program."

The plan had its beginning through efforts of student leaders, who were examining existing professor evaluation procedures as an alternative to the recommendation made by the Student-Faculty Board to Fr. Hickey, Vice-President for Community Affairs, a proposal was formulated to give students the opportunity to contribute to the evaluation of professors, and is a native of New Bedford, Mass. He is a member of the Class of 1967 of Providence College and is an English major and is a native of New Bedford, Mass. He is a member of the Class of 1967. Dick plans to go on to graduate school after P.C. and will most likely pursue a career in teaching. Peter Thompson of Ludlow, Mass., is a Modern Language (Economics) major. He was previously a member of the copy staff and joined the Cowl when he was a sophomore. He is active in the Western Massachusetts Club. Peter plans a career in diplomatic service after graduation.

The Sophomore class provided an opportunity for student-faculty relations. The seat of retiring President James Armstrong was hotly contested by strong candidates: John Champeau and Edward Dobkins, both seniors, and Peter Gallegly, a day student. Mr. Gallegly, who will live on campus next year, was easily elected, gathering 259 votes to 198 and 149 for Dobkins and Champeau, respectively.

Incumbent Vice President Peter Cougherty was defeated by William Hanley Torres, who ran unopposed. Incidently, Richard Cuffe and Thomas Fogarty were elected to the Class of 1969 at the first annual Freshman Parents Weekend. Following registration in the Alumni Hall, parents and sons were welcomed to the campus by Mr. Laurent Gousie, the chairman of the Weekend Committee. Mr. Gousie then introduced Father Halton, the Dean of Freshmen, and Father Johnson, the Freshman Class Moderator. Greg Smith, the President of the Class of 1969, welcomed the parents and expressed publicly the thanks of the class for the parents' guidance and opportunities they have given their sons.

After the opening session, parents and sons were lunched in the Raymond Hall Cafeteria. The meal, as were dinner and Sunday brunch, was very much enjoyed by the parents, perhaps to the surprise of the students.

The Saturday afternoon session, entitled, "Where is Your Son Going?" was for many parents the heart of the weekend. Parents attended discussion meetings, as were dinner and Sunday brunch, was very much enjoyed by the parents, perhaps to the surprise of the students.
Editorially Speaking

College Students??

The National Players out of Washington, D.C., visited Providence last Friday evening; and if reaction to the predominantly college audience is any indication, they may have to soon recall this.

Admittedly, their performance was not flawless; but this was still no excuse for the derisive laughter that greeted this group of young actors who did their utmost to provide a night's entertainment for a grossly un-appreciative minority. Laughter, it is said, usually proceeds from incoherency; but the immediate incongruity that the hospitality of students, supposedly cultivating aesthetic sensitivities, should be so taxed that the basic amenities of theatre-going were ignored.

That the larger part of the audience remained sincerely appreciative was evidenced by the warm applause that greeted the play's end; but that a very significant minority of students nevertheless proved themselves an embarrassment to the college is equally evidenced by the necessity of a noted Providence drama critic to comment upon it in his review.

Before someone charge that we point one accusing finger, let us point two. The responsibility here lies both upon the students, who were obviously unprepared intellectually for an evening with Romeo and Juliet, and also upon those educators who refuse to recognize that cultural and compulsory attendance is doomed to failure from the start.

It is personally regrettable that this editorial debut should be seen as a diatribe against both components of the college community (as it will, assuredly); however, it is even more regrettable when elements worthy of criticism are ignored. For if the choice is offered us between being oblivious to the defects of college life, or being wide-eyed in the hope of correcting them, we respectfully choose the latter course with the belief that enough criticism from within that will (regrettably?) make editorials such as this obsolete.

Snafu . . .

Take a multitude of confused college students, each with his own particularly exasperating problem, insert them into a relatively small waiting room where they may wall about in chaos for a few hours, and place them all under the guidance of one or two overworked faculty members, and the results will hardly be surprising. Such a situation is truly too much for any student, and it is this student who voices the offices of the Dean of Studies and the Assistant Dean of Studies at almost any time from two to three weeks preceding the initiation or termination of any semester here at Providence College. To be sure, things are better than they were, but the brunt of a full teaching load in addition to his work as Dean, the improbability of attaining any great degree of efficiency becomes only too obvious.

It is easy to criticize; solutions are far more difficult to come by. Perhaps the transfer of all activities to Alumni Hall at the beginning and end of each semester would be an answer, but this is an impossible task. The student newspaper should be a functioning arm of the entire student body. It should not be just a bulletin board, rather it should express the ideas and opinions of the students in an intelligent and responsible manner.

The Cowl is, acting in a manner befitting its dignity, attempting to do exactly this. Events have often gone unnoticed in the past, simply because we were not informed that they were to take place. We wish to appreciate it, in the future, that someone desiring publicity can not hesitate to criticize those whom it heeds deserve criticism. However, we, as the editorial board of The Cowl, realize that we will be the subject of some criticism for the opinions we express.

The Cowl has always been subject to criticism from two factions. Those who believe that the paper is a tool of the administration or the student body who have the right to have an opinion. We, on the contrary, will endeavor to serve the entire student body through the 1965-1966 academic year.

By L. BRUCE PORTER

The National Players' production of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet was presented by Providence College on Friday, April 29, at 8:30 p.m., in the Rhode Island School of Design Auditorium.

It is often not outrightly amuseth the only verdict I can give this performance. In saying this I am not attempting to further the image of the college critic. This review comes after considerable thought and analysis; the performance was obviously unsatisfactory.

It is even more so when I feel pressured to comment on the attitude of the audience. Surely everyone came to be entertained, but there is an essential difference between entertainment that is meant primarily to be diverting and that which is meant principally to engross or involve. A performance of Shakespeare implies a type of attitude, sensitivity and response on the part of an audience that is totally different from that required of an audience attending a "concert" by the Bleach Gyps. A considerable portion of Friday night's audience was just not mature or intelligent enough to make the proper response. The inappropriate and offensive laughter was an obvious reflection of their crudeness and insensitivity. This performance was far from being perfect, but it was equally far from being ludicrous. When I called this performance amateurish I meant it in the sense that it lacked the polish and perfection that one expects from a professional company of national stature. By sophomoric I meant that it lacked the polish and perfection that one expects from a professional company of national stature. By sophomoric I meant that it lacked the polish and perfection that one expects from a professional company of national stature. By sophomoric I meant that it lacked the polish and perfection that one expects from a professional company of national stature.

The logic of this can be seen in the title roles of Romeo and Juliet. Mr. Sarandon to portray the lead stories which appear each week in the sports section. He plans to become a Certified Public Accountant upon graduation.

A photographer for the 1966 Veritas, Ayotte is also a member of Delta Epilon Sigma and Phi Sigma Tau. He is a varsity basketball player and is on the dean's list.

The true worth of this company came through most clearly in the minor roles. Outstanding was Michael Murdock's portrayal of Tybalt and James Philamore as Mercutio. In general the directing and staging seemed particularly good. The audience was easily caught up in the rapid pace that led up to the climax and gave the play the appropriate atmosphere of "haste." The theme of the rashness of haste was carried through by the clever use of tolling bells and changes of lighting and costume. The costume and make-up were rather uneven in quality from one stage point to the theater. Though most of the costuming and make-up was really excellent, that of Old Capulet and Lord and Lady Montague was simply "distracting." It is indeed unfortunate and certainly not a pleasure to have to write such a review, but it...

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Let us pause a moment to compliment the largely Providence College audiences at the recent lecture of Brother Antoninus and the Romeo and Juliet for their manifest- tude and ignorance. If the people who reacted boorishly to these productions are any representation of the Provi- dence College “gentlemans,” then all PC students should hang their heads in shame and dis- honor.

Culture—an exceptionally ele- vated quality on this campus— came to Providence College dur- ing the past week only to meet a reaction of inane laughter. Ironically, since native culture is so scarce, we students were hosts to imported talent. Yet we laughed.

Brother Antoninus, an emi- nent Dominican poet, spoke on poetry, love, and Christian virt- ues. Yet the largely PC audi- ence consistently laughed, so that the Brother left feeling he had failed. Later in the week, Romeo and Juliet received the same shabby treatment. Providence College students should be the last to ridicule a per- formance of the National Players; could we ever mount a pro- grammel and assistant professor of English at Brown University, will read from his novels tomorrow evening at eight o'clock in Aquinas Lounge. He is being brought to the campus by the Arts and Letters Society. The program is open to the public.

basis for a year, before it may be one of the more intercollegiate level. This year it is being run as a spring sport, but soccer is an all year round sport and may be run both as a spring sport and in the fall. However, necessarily soccer cannot be compared with any other varsity sport. Equipment is kept to a minimum with the only prerequisite being two feet and a pair of meakers. A large number of freshmen and sophomores have joined the league, thus ensuring its continued existence.

The Friars Defeat Brown 7-4; Take on Colby Saturday

By PETE MEADE

In their game against Brown last Saturday, the Friars owed by a 7-4 margin behind sophomores lefthander Don Henderson in this year's edition. Only seven were Friars, but in the three events they entered, one, a Penn Relays record and two school records were broken. The championship two-mile field was impressive, but so was Bill Stahls' (Army record of 8:53.6). Not only was this year's race fastest in the nation, but it was also the slowest in the championship, while the second-place run at Penn, but two men broke the record.

St. Aignan of Kent State (Ohio), won the event with PCs Barry Brown also breaking the championship mark and in doing so setting a new PC record of 8:56.6. John Widom of Brown ran 3:45.6 in heavy traffic, ran a 50.4 quarter, Jerry Riordan followed with a 30.7 three-quarter leg, and Barry Brown prepared for his two mile effort with a 4:10.9 anchor mile. In the college two mile run, Hendrick ran 8:36, and Bob Fusco ran 9:00 for the Friars.

The track at Franklin Field is not the fastest in the world. On Saturday it may have been the slowest. Rain and wind kept times slow in the championship, and mile relay. Running with Riordan, Brown, Donnelly, and Gilbert, they took the clockings in a field of twenty-five teams. Georgetown won the event at 17:06, but the weatherman saw it to that Villanova's meet remains.

PC is a newcomer to the championship class, just like we were in Cross Country. Our Penn Relays performance, two records in those events, was solid and indicative of the future. Like the man says, you win your first game. Looking ahead, the team has the Quadrant Relays this week end, followed by the New England, IC4A, and the NCAA championships.

Golfers Top Merrimac; Lowell Defeats Friars

By VIN PAPI

Adverse weather conditions played a big part in enabling Lowell Tech to down the Friar Linkmen 4-3 last Thursday at the Vespers Country Club. In addition to the thirty degrees temperature, the day offered a combination of rain and sleet to all those on the fairways, a combination likely to keep the best players. Of the seven individual matches two were decided on the eighteenth hole, both going to Lowell, thus giving them the slim margin of victory. All was not bad how ever as the Friars did defeat St. Anselms, 6½-½, in the triangular meet.

Merrimac was the next victim as P.C. again took six of the seven matches at the Kirkbrae Country Club. Dennis Webster was the low man with a three over par 75, while the remaining six shot in the seventies.

This year's squad is composed of six regulars and four alternates. Coach Prisco feels that there is "no outstanding player as such. All the boys are capable golfers and any one could be number one on a certain day."
