Dr. Paul van K. Thomson, Academic Vice President, has announced the new revision of general degree requirements. Dr. Thomson stated that the Committee on Administration has approved the following change in the general requirements of the B.A. and B.S. degrees:

1. English: 12 semester hours, consisting of English 101-102 and 6 additional hours selected by the student after consultation with his faculty advisor or departmental chairman. Courses that may be chosen to complete this requirement are survey courses in English or American literature, World literature, Classical literature in English translation, or advanced special area courses in English or American literature.

2. History: 6 semester hours, consisting of History 101-102, History of Western Europe.

3. Modern Languages: 12 semester hours in all programs, except Biology, Honors Science, and Business. Biology and Honors Science students are required to complete 6 semester hours.

The language requirement may, however, be satisfied, to the whole or in part, by the successful completion of a proficiency examination under the following conditions:

A. Students should be required to have a level of proficiency at the intermediate level in one modern language.

B. This proficiency will include a knowledge of the four basic skills—reading, writing, speaking, and understanding—as well as a basic knowledge of the ethnic culture and civilization connected with his chosen language.

C. This proficiency will be judged by the administering of standard examinations as determined by the Department of Modern Languages.

D. If a student has this proficiency on entering Providence College, his Modern Language requirements shall be considered fulfilled. If he is able to gain this proficiency in one year's study of a modern language, then he shall not be required to study that language further.

E. A student would be allowed to attain this level of proficiency by following approved study courses. When more than one year of language courses is necessary, students should fulfill this requirement in two consecutive sessions.

F. Science or Mathematics: 6 semester hours. All students (Continued on Page 8)

Big Brothers' Tag Day
Planned For Tomorrow

Tomorrow the PC campus will be invaded by approximately 100 students, branding containing labels "PC Big Brothers Fund." More than any other day during the year, this day bears (anything but mute) testimony to the spirit of the Big Brothers Club, and this year is not just a spirit shown in collecting necessary funds on a perennially sunny, May day. Rather, the spirit of the Big Brothers Club is lived every day by a group of students who give of their time to a group of kids at the Rhode Island State Children's Center.

This is not a statement, that "a group of students give of themselves. The members of the Club are not professional social workers; nor do they expect to work miracles. What they try to do is to participate in what the Brothers think the spirit of the Club is—interest in a little boy or girl. The Brother tries to do is to give his little brother or sister a background of friendship and understanding within which the little brother or sister may find first hand experience about loyalty and trust.

Most new big brothers are unaware of the many ways in which a one-to-one relationship can be established. It is not primarily important that the member take his little brother to the movies or to the ball field; nor is it absolutely necessary to buy him candies or take him for rides. A boy at the Center can seemly sense when some-one has a genuine interest in him. And this is what he wants most—someone to have a genuine interest in him. Thus, a big brother is fundamentally some-thing that the little brother must learn to live in a social world, however, the Club also has a program of group activities grounded on this one-to-one relationship.

First of all, like most clubs the Big Brothers have some traditions which are limited to the big brothers. These number three: the May banquet, the Thad McGeough memorial Mass, and a monthly (First Friday) Mass for the Club's intentions. The second type of group activites, many of which depend on student generosity on Tag Day, is shared by the little brothers and their big brothers. Commencement Week Plans Are Announced

"Commencement Weekend" bids have been going exceptionally well," stated Chairman Patrick Gallagher at yesterday's Commencement Weekend meeting. There are approximately 100 bids left. The final pay- ments for bids are due on May 20. The bids will also remain on sale until that date.

The weekend is to be held on June 2, 3, 4, 5. On Thursday, June 4, a Mass will be held at the Cranston K. C. hall. Refreshments and entertain- ment will be provided at this event.

The highlight of the Week- end is the Commencement Ball, which will be held on Friday evening in Raymond Hall. The ball is both formal and fun, and will be grounded on this one-to-one relation- ship. First of all, like most clubs the Big Brothers have some traditions which are limited to the big brothers. How About A Break!

The Christians of olden Rome had their lions, the early settlers their indians, the Irish had Cromwell, and even Greek taverns would toss out the infamous “P.C. Gentleman” for his is a far worse fate.

I note, faculty and administrative scapegoat, an inspiration for editorial criticism, and the subject of much abuse even from within the student body itself, the “P.C. Gent” seems to have approached the end of the line as far as I am concerned. This past last week a vociferous hue and cry went his way from all sides of the campus, all but demanding that the execution date be set so that he might be openly castigated for his conduct (or lack of it) in laughing at a Shakespearean tragedy. The example is a minor one, but it is typical.

My point is this: criticism for the sake of improvement is essential, but so is a certain amount of pride in accomplishments deserving of praise. Certain the beer-swilling imbecile who carouses through the crowd at a basketball game or a Shakespearean tragedy (and some did) is deserving of nothing but abuse, but is this the whole picture? I dare say it is not, and yet judging from the reaction of much of the student body, the “P.C. Gentleman” is the “line” we hand to the Salve or Vernon Court girls, and little else. What about the Frankfurters, the Arts and Letters Society, the I.R.C. . . . and others?

I would suggest that we put criticism when and where it is due . . . on the minority, and that we stop the decimation of this “Gentleman,” questioning needlessly the talent of so our own asset. The college is coming of age . . . let’s not prevent the “P.C. Gentleman” from doing the same.

Candidates Wanted . . .

One need only look at the class books for Student Congress and the other major Clubs, the Dillon Club for commuters and the Carolan Club for residents students. Some Clubs, as we are aware, are slowly developing a sense of apathy among many of the students.

In each of the three classes holding elections this coming school year for both class officers and Student Congress Representatives there was at least one major office in which someone was running unopposed — the Junior class had four such candidates while the Sophomore and Freshman classes had one each.

The Dillon Club fared a little better than the Carolan Club which held elections two weeks ago. The former had two major offices in which there was only one candidate running; whereas, the latter had only one (out of five) contested post.

Overwhelming Response . . .

A college bookstore is always the brunt of many jokes, and often the subject of criticism. But here at Providence we apparently enjoy the singular distinction of the perfect bookstore. For judging from the response to a plea for copies of a new column called INQUIRY, featuring store management at its first guest, PC students are either among the most satisfied or most disinterested col leagues in the area. Unfortunately, evidence points heavily to the latter judgment as more precise.

Providence has a community of over 2400 students, not one question was submitted in response to a plea for a college bookstore. For judging from the announcement of a new column entitled INQUIRY, featuring store management at its first guest, PC students are either among the most satisfied or most disinterested colleagues in the area. Unfortunately, evidence points heavily to the latter judgment as more precise.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Editor:
Perhaps this letter should simply direct itself to the problem of the campus evening dating grudge and fee for what specific purposes the money is to be used: it does not. Nor in a more forceful manner it shall be noted that the explanation of why the seniors were not informed about the eight dollar lap and gown fee it will not.

I am writing to you, Mr. Editor, concerning the letter which ran in your last edition: the letter of Messrs. Vaillee, Imbruglio, and Serio, and the editorial entitled College Students (77). Both articles seem to me to be in extremely poor taste, not only because of the rather self-satisfied and almost haughty attitude the men assume, but more importantly because, to say the least, these men are completely misinformed.

I shall not refute every line these men wrote, for it would take up too much time. Let me, however, try to dispel some of the more startling and blatant errors.

In the Letter to the Editor the men stated that the PC audience laughed so at the Brother Antonius lecture that Artie had not failed. This is not true. But at the lecture itself and later in private conversation with the students inc faculty, Brother Artie stated that he had brought everything aesthetically and virtually, and that the failure of the evening (which, by the way, was not caused or counteracted a failure) was indeed not the audience's fault. Then you write that he had brought everything aesthetically necessary, and that the failure of the evening (which, by the way, was not caused or counteracted a failure) was indeed not the audience's fault. Therefore, the men stated that the audience had failed. This is not true.

Within one month I will be part of a class of almost five hundred students graduating from PC. It greatly disturbs me to think of after making an honest and constant attempt to act in a gentlemanly manner, I am told that I should learn that my head is hanging in shame. Even if PC has given me nothing intellectually (which is far from true), it has prepared me to acquaint myself with a group of men whom I consider to be extremely gentlemanly.

Do I not believe the PC gentleman to be dead? Of course not. He never die. But if, in the eyes of those who consider them-
Is Planned by Clubs

This weekend the Carolan and Dillon Clubs will co-sponsor their first annual Parents’ Weekend. Eight events have been planned for the parents of sophomore, junior, and senior students. Beginning with a parent-faculty reception on Saturday afternoon and ending with a R.O.T.C. review late Sunday afternoon, the weekend will try to “provide an opportunity for the parents of the collegians to better acquaint themselves with Providence College.”

At the parent-faculty reception, which will last from 2 to 5 p.m. on Saturday, representatives from each scholastic department and from the administration will be present. Following the reception there will be a roast beef dinner served in Raymond Hall at 6:30. The Glee Club will be in concert under the direction of Fr. Can- non at 8:30 to entertain the parents and students. Back in Raymond Hall on the same floor there will be a formal dance. The clubs invite any student to “provide an opportunity for the parents of the collegians to better acquaint themselves with Providence College.”

GOING TO WASHINGTON ??

The Providence College Club of Washington extends its welcome to those members of the Class of '66 who will be returning to, or relocating in, the D. C. area.

With two hundred and fifty members, the Washington Club boasts the largest and most active P. C. alumni group outside Rhode Island. If we may be of service to the contact the secretary, Jerry Cobleigh '63, at 6525 Landover Road, Cheverly, Maryland, Phone 773-3627.

Big Brothers . . .

(Continued from Page 1) haben the basic, individual relationship between the big brother and his little brother, but rather bring this relationship's social end into focus. In some (we hope) beneficial way, the little brother is being helped to accept and to live in a world often uncourted about him. More specifically, though, these are some of our group activities.

First, there is the annual picnic in Lincoln Woods. If any of you have ever attended one of these picnics, you might "question" the preceding description of the purpose of a group activity. By the end of the day, the big brothers in attendance would be actually retiring from the 120 little brothers—who would be aiming eggs at their courageous suppliers. In October you have probably seen us tramping between Aquinas Chapel, Alumni Cafeteria, and A-100, in the midst of the Communion Breakfast. In February a group of 30 little brothers are taken on retreat under the direction of members of the Club's executive board.

Another Club tradition has developed under the unintended auspices of the Coca-Cola Company. During the past two autumns, the Club has collected more than 3,000 bottle-caps which have been traded for sweat-shirts and footballs. In January the Club sponsored a drive for Boy Scout uniforms and camping equipment for the Center's troop, which is partly directed by big brothers.

Early in the winter, the Club purchased new uniforms for the Center's basketball team; clinics in basketball and wrestling were sponsored during the year; a bowling league was initiated this year composed of big brother-little brother teams. At Christmas, the student body's generosity enabled the Club to purchase basketballs and ice-skates. Future plans include the contribution of new baught equipment and football uniforms to the Center.
On The Aisle

By L. BRUCE PORTER

This editorial was prompted by the letter to the editor-in-chief of Providence L. Valente '79, Anthony M. Nocito '67, and Richard R. P. '66 in The Providence Student. The Providence College newspaper, which included a comment by the student, both verbal and written, that this letter provoked.

Let us pause a moment—we are rapidly approaching the hectic ending of the academic year, and it is fitting that we take time to look back and assess its cultural implications.

No apologies need be made nor any heads hung in shame. The Providence College gentleman is alive and doing very well. Culture here is effusive but not elusive. Certainly there is the evidence of some pseudo-intellectualism; however, I strongly disagree with those who would label us boors or anti-cultural.

I make these statements in clarification of the thoughts expressed in my review of the National Players' production of Romeo and Juliet ("On The Aisle," May 4, 1966, p. 4, Cowl). In an age and society so vitally concerned with education and status, the word "culture" is often thrown around rather carelessly.

Those who castigate us and scoff at our humble but earnest efforts at achieving culture do us and our college a great disservice. We are a small college with limited resources, yet our cultural achievements have been both impressive and appreciated. So do not attempt to cast the formidable roster of speakers presented here during the past three years, for this in itself would be only a part of the larger and unknown effort made by both the administration and students to add to our college's cultural enrichment.

I say "BRAVO" to "imported talent." I both encourage and eagerly await the return of both Brother Antoninus and The National Players. The college is most fortunate to be located in a city that is so admirably endowed with cultural resources that we can readily patronize and "import." Student interest on the Providence College campus is far from apathetic in view of the considerable interest in music and art as evidenced by the sizeable representation of our student body at concerts, museums, theaters, and art shows in the area.

Speaking very sincerely, I think the presentation of a caricatured effort, "The Journal of Olneyville Moonlight," is a most encouraging and healthy sign. Certainly this endeavor can not be taken too seriously (?), yet the student and faculty response was certainly gratifying to all concerned.

The college administration is well aware of the painful, not shameful, lack of proper cultural facilities on the campus; and certainly when the financial means are available this situation will be remedied. In the meantime, and in our duty to support all cultural endeavors, even with criticism—but let us make it responsible, constructive criticism. I have sincerely tried to be fair and constructive in my criticism and at times even vociferous; however, I could never condone loud irreverence.

In my comments on the audience at Romeo and Juliet, I observed an intellectual attitude not personal manners. I do not see an essential connection between manners and intellect—I am a fine arts critic not Emily Post.

New Fight Song

Greg Smith, a representative for the Freshman Class in conjunction with the Student Congress, has announced that a "Fight Song Contest" will be held in the fall when classes resume for the "66-67" academic year. The purpose of this contest is to produce a short, catchy tune which will build school spirit on campus. Once a song has been chosen it will be played and sung at all sporting events.

The songs which will be submitted by the students will be judged by both faculty members and students well versed in the art of music. Once the selection has been made it will be presented to the student body during "Sports Week" of next year. Judgement of the winning song will be based on originality in composition and melody. There is no opportunity for all the P.C. poets and song writers to try their hand in composing the Providence College Fight Song. The specifics concerning the contest will be announced once classes have resumed next year. One important note which was pointed out by Greg was that the winning song would in no way replace or superease our cherished and sacred Alma Mater.

Florida swings in the spring—but it really swings in the summer. Lower off-season room rates are in effect. And Eastern will take you to Daytona or Ft. Lauderdale or even Miami for half-fare. So take a detour and enjoy it on your way home. Or go home first and down to Florida later.

Just use your Eastern Youth ID card, or similar card from another airline. If you don't have such a card, it's a snap to get one—provided you're under 22 and can prove it. For the specifics, stop by a Travel Agent or any Eastern ticket office.

Once you have your card, you can get an Eastern Jet Coach seat for half-fare. You can't make an advance reservation. But if there's a seat available at departure time, you can fly to any Eastern destination within the continental U.S. Including Florida.

Who's Who Policy Revised

It has been announced by Bill Struck, Chairman of the Who's Who Committee, that a revised method of nominating students to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities has been inaugurated. This procedure was agreed upon after a survey of eleven colleges and suggestions from Fr. Joseph L. Lennon, O.P., and the organization, Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

The criteria used in choosing nominees is as follows: 1) The individual must be a member of the Senior Class at the time of his nomination. 2) A cumulative scholastic index of 2.5 is necessary, unless a unanimous vote of the committee decides otherwise. 3) The nominee must be a person of reputable character whose leadership and cooperation in academic and extracurricular activities has and will continue to contribute to the development of the college. 4) No office in a campus activity necessitates that the individual automatically be named to Who's Who. This includes the selection committee.

The method of selection is as follows: 1) Each Department Chairman is requested to submit a list of the top three students in his department to the Dean of Studies by November 1 of each academic year. 2) The ROTC Department is requested to submit a list of five names by November 1 of each academic year. 3) The selection committee will be composed of the presidents of the following organizations: Student Congress, Senior Class, Cavalier Club, Dillon Club and D.E.S. The sixth man in the selection committee will be left to the discretion of the five presidents and may be a faculty member or a student. 4) The Senior Class moderator will oversee the activities of the committee and the Dean of Studies will determine the night of the meeting. 5) The nominations to this organization must be made prior to the Thanksgiving recess. 6) It is suggested that the night of the nomination meeting be kept secret.

Previews and Team Rundowns For Carolan Club Softball League Final

Spahn—Sain—and a day of rain was the combination that won the 1964 World Series for the Boston Braves in 1948. Spahn and Sain are gone as well as Bos- ton. The rain keeps falling. The rain helps the Braves, and the lack of rain has helped the Carolan Club Softball league in 1966. Rain for days probably won't come into this league and commented on the lack of rain, as it most likely will not occur.

Right behind the Pussy Galore Softball Busters, with identical 4-2-600 records is the 4:30 league. The Pussy Galore, looms as the favorite. Entering this week's play they were undefeated in six games. They combine a tough hitting unit with a tight defense and overpower their opponents. Led by Billy Myers, McLaughlin, and backed up by Dave Conte and Joe Pittanis, they have han- dled the opposition with little difficulty.

Unlike the softball league, soccer is just starting to hit its stride. Although there is a large differ- ence in the two standings at the moment, by the end of the season Dave Roberts has as- sumed the teams that they will have played five games. The final season will be played on the basis of points with two points given for a victory and one for a tie. The pressure in the league has led to many ties since the defenses is way too strong.

Trophies will be awarded to the victorious team. The winner will be determined by the case of a tie. Soccer Standings

The best part of Joe's game is his arm, while his weakness is controlling his drives. "Put- ting the two together is the key to success in golf," Joe com- mented.

When asked what has given him his biggest thrill in var- iety competition, Joe replied, "It's a thrill every time I rep- resent PC as a captain. If I was to single out any one par- ticular case it might be the victory over URI two weeks ago. We won it 3-1 and I beat them for three years."

Joe thinks that if the Friars continue to play the kind of golf that they did last week, they will be playing, they have a good shot at the New England, Champions- ships later this week at Port- land, Maine.

With an abundance of prom- ising underclassmen on the team, the future looks good for the Friars. With a couple of breaks might lead them all the way out to the NCAA championships in California.

Soccer League Seeks Balance In Standings

Unlike the softball league, soccer is just starting to hit its stride. Although there is a large differ- ence in the two standings at the moment, by the end of the season Dave Roberts has as- sumed the teams that they will have played five games. The final season will be played on the basis of points with two points given for a victory and one for a tie. The pressure in the league has led to many ties since the defenses is way too strong.

Trophies will be awarded to the victorious team. The winner will be determined by the case of a tie. Soccer Standings

The best part of Joe's game is his arm, while his weakness is controlling his drives. "Put- ting the two together is the key to success in golf," Joe com- mented.

Frisco Lose Fifth Straight to Holy Cross

By PETER MEADE

The Crusaders from Holy Cross took the measure of the Providence College Friars yesterday at Hendrickson Field by a score of 9-4. For the Friars the loss was their fifth in a row, and the tenth of the season as against four victories.

Early in the year the Friars found themselves mired in the midst of a team hitting slump with runs a scarcity, but now Coach Nahigian has been presented with another problem, other than hitting, that of who is going to pitch.

In the last three ballgames, the PC batters have shaken their slump and scored 16 runs while collecting 29 base hits. The Friars have finally found the plate, but the pitchers can no longer stop the opposition. In the last three games, PC has been in only one of them, being the 10-10 loss to Holy Cross.

For a while the Friars were up three to 1 and 12-1 to Holy in the second game of Saturday’s doubleheader, and yesterday’s losing streak continued at the hands of Holy Cross.

Against the Cross, PC jumped up to a 1-0 lead in the first two walks and a double by Jim Petetti. After the Crusaders went ahead 3-1, the Friars scored the tying runs on a two-run scoring single to left by Bill Pettingill. That was the last time the Friars had more than one run in a game. In the second game the Holy Cross batsmen knocked across four runs in the second inning and eventually put the contest out of the Friars’ reach.

Saturday’s doublesheader with Holy Cross was thus no different. The Friars game saw PC produce their second consecutive loss in the ten hit in the final game to have the pitching collapse completely. Paul Robey and Johnny Bragg both failed to the small ball attack for the Friars. Robey was credited with three runs batted in and had a home run, while O'Sullivan came up with four runs driven home and two hits in four at the plate. Steve Seradnick and captain Leo McNamara were both three for five at the plate as PC came up with their large (Continued on Page 9)

Phelan and Monahan Both Display Spirit and Talent as PC Captains

By BOB FRIED

Senior Kevin Phelan is a six foot, three inch business major hailing from Bristol, Connecticut. Potentially he might be the Friar’s biggest threat with the busiest schedule in the NEIA. He has won the Bristol doubles three years in a row in a row and the tenth of the season as against four victories.

In his sophomore year at PC Kevin’s cannonball serves paved the way towards a glittering 8-2 record. In his junior year Kevin had trouble getting untracked. He did not hit his true form until late in the season. This year high things are expected of Captain Phelan, who did indeed look impressive last week against Providence College.

Kevin’s whole game revolves around his serve, which he hits with devastating authority. He try to hang the serve and charge the net, hoping for only one or two volleys,” he revealed. When Kevin is on his game, his serve leaves his opponent completely helpless. Kevin’s main weakness is his forehand which he hopes to combat with more practice and greater concentration.

Phelan has a very high opinion of Coach Dave Gavitt: “Dave is a great coach. He understands the players and is always ready to help them when they need help.”

When asked what gave him the drive, he replied, “I’ve got to say our 5-4 victory over Spring- field in my sophomore year. In this match, Kevin teamed with the now-graduated Joe O'Sullivan to lead the Friars to victory.”

Kevin thinks that this year’s edition of the tennis Friars are well balanced. “We are a young team that should improve steadily as the season progresses.” Actually, there are only two seniors on the team. But one of them is big Kevin who has played in the number one spot for the past two years and is apple of the eye of the home crowd. And if he is on with the bomb in the next week in the New Englands, opponents beware!

Golf captain Joe Monahan is five foot nine inch 155 pounder from Nashua, New Hampshire. In his first year he did win the division. He is currently the New Hampshire CYO champion and has qualified for the Amateur Championship for the past two years. A superb athlete, Joe was a right wing on the Friar’s hockey team in his (Continued on Page 5)

WDOM Fills First Year With Increased Sports Coverage

Chris Clark, Curt Gowdy, Red Barber . . . these are three familiar names in the world of sportscasting today, but who are Ron Tarsi, Dave Monaghan, or Larry Walsh? To anyone unfamiliar with WDOM, the Providence College, these names would not ring a bell. Many students do, however, know these names.

Dave Monaghan is the students’ own Mr. Basketball. Throughout the entire basketball season Dave and the WDOM engineers were behind the mike doing the majority of the新鲜 games, both home and away. This was not entirely surprising as it had worked successfully a few years ago. The significant fact is that this work and it is now a permanent part of the basketball season.

When the varsity hockey season was winding down, there once again with Larry Walsh doing the play-by-play and Greg Walsh (no relation) handling the color. They managed to do a majority of the home games and a portion of the away games.
