Revision of General Degree
Announced by Dr. Thomson
Dr. Paul van K. Thomson, Academic Vice President, has announced the new revision of general degree requirements. Dr. Thomson stated that the Committee on Administration has approved the following change in the general requirements of the B.A. and B.S. degrees:

1. English: 12 semester hours, consisting of English 101-102 and 6 additional hours selected by the student after consultation with his faculty advisor or departmental chairman. Courses that may be chosen to complete this requirement are: Survey courses in English or American Literature, World Literature, Classical Literature in English translation, or advanced special area courses in English or American Literature.

2. History: 6 semester hours, consisting of History 101-102, History of Western Europe.

3. Modern Languages: 12 semester hours in all programs, except, Biology, Honors Science, and Business. Biology and Honors Science students are required to complete 6 semester hours.

The language requirement may, however, be satisfied, to the whole or in part, by the successful completion of a proficiency examination under the following conditions:

A. Students should be required to have a level of proficiency at the intermediate level in one modern language.

B. This proficiency will include a knowledge of the four basic skills—reading, writing, speaking, and understanding—as well as a basic knowledge of the ethnic culture and civilization connected with his chosen language.

C. This proficiency will be judged by the administering of standard examinations as determined by the Department of Modern Languages.

D. If a student has this proficiency on entering Providence College, his Modern Language requirements shall be considered fulfilled. If he is able to gain this proficiency in one year's study of a modern language, then he shall not be required to study that language further.

E. A student would be allowed to attain this level of proficiency by following approved procedures. When more than one year of language courses is necessary, students should fulfill this requirement in two consecutive sessions.

F. Science or Mathematics: 6 semester hours. All students are required to complete 6 semester hours.

Big Brothers' Tag Day
Planned For Tomorrow
Tomorrow the PC campus will be invaded by approximately 100 students, branding containers labeled "PC Big Brothers Fund." More than any other day during the year, this day bears (anything but mute) testimony to the spirit of the PC Big Brothers Club. The spirit is not just a spirit shown in collecting necessary funds on a perennially sunny, May day. Rather, the spirit of the Big Brothers Club is lived every day by a group of students who give of themselves to a group of kids at the Rhode Island State Children's Center.

This is not a statement, that "a group of students give of themselves. The members of the Club are not mere social workers—or do they expect to work miracles. What they try to do is to participate in what the Big Brothers think of the spirit of the Club is—interest in a little brother; friendship and understanding within which the little brother can feel free from first-hand experience about loyalty and trust.

Most new big brothers are unaware of the many ways in which a one-to-one relationship can be established. It is not primarily important that the member take his little brother to the movies and buy him candy or take him to the movies or a drugstore; primarily important that the little brother must be interested in him. And this is what he wants most—someone to have a genuine interest in him. Thus, a big brother is fundamentally something that the little brother must learn to live in a social world, however, the Club also has a program of group activities grounded on this one-to-one relationship.

First of all, like most clubs the Big Brothers have some traditions which are limited to the big brothers. These number student generosity on Tag Day, is shared by the little brothers and their big brothers. Reflecting the spirit of the Club as a whole, these events do not in fact last but 60; 12 was the lowest, 94 was the lowest qualifying score. Those who qualified, in the order of their scoring, highest to lowest, are: William Stenson, Dennis Lord, William Laurence, Brian Albion, William Bergeron, Edward Guver, Thomas Clark, John Digney, Robert Potter, Michael D'Amore, Michael Harn, John Eisley, Larry Porter, Dennis Wenzlau, Charles Gaggard, Keith Mills, Arthur Sgallari, Jr., Clifford Johnson, Andrew Sorbo, William Mangione, Paul Galline, Joseph Giarusso, Richard Metha, Anthony Tanne, Thomas Farrell, Donald Robert, David Romand, James Bier, Charles Collici, Joseph Delli, Michael Keang, Gregory O'Connor, James Slevin, Stephen Cook, Michael Floyd, Richard Livernos, Douglas Lowe.

Commencement Week Plans Are Announced
"Commencement Weekend has been going exceptionally well," stated Chairman Patrick Gallagher at yesterday's Commencement Weekend meeting. There are approximately 100 bids left. The final payments for the bids will be due on May 30. The bids will also remain on sale until that date. The two-day event will be held at the Cranston K of C Ballroom.

The weekend is to be held on June 2, 3, 4 & 5. On Thursday, June 4, a Tag Day will be held at the Cranston K of C. Ballroom. Refreshments and entertainment will be provided at this event.

The highlight of the weekend is the Commencement Ball, which will be held on Friday evening in Raymond Hall. The ball is both formal and formal. The lead music will be provided by local bands from 9-1. An hors d'oeuvres table will be set out and coffee, and sandwiches will be served after midnight. Favors in the form of beer mugs for the seniors and brandy snifters for their dates will be distributed at this event. Both favors have the school seal in color on them.

Activities will resume on Saturday morning at Gallilee, R.I., with a boat ride. The boat will depart at 11:30 a.m. and return at 4:30 p.m. Refreshments and entertainment will be provided at this event. Upon docking the scene will shift to the Narraganset Manor Hotel where a meal will be served. Entertainment will be provided by the Cowells.

Editorially Speaking

How About A Break!

The Christians of olden Rome had their lions, the early settlers their Indians, the Irish had Cromwell, and even Great Britain was troubled over the infamous “P.C. Gentleman” for his far worse fate.

A noted faculty and administrative scapegoat, an inspiration for editorial criticism, and the subject of much abuse even from within the student body itself, the “P.C. Gent” seems to have approached the end of the line as far as Providence College is concerned. Last week a vociferous hue and cry went his way from all sides of the campus, all but demanding that the execution date be set so that he might be openly castigated for his conduct (or lack of it) in laughing at a Shakespearean tragedy. The example is a minor one, but it is typical.

My point is this: criticism for the sake of improvement is essential, but so is a certain amount of pride in accomplishments deserving of praise. Certainly the beer-swilling imbecile who carouses through the crowd at a high school ball game or a Shakespearean tragedy (and some did) is deserving of nothing but abuse, but is this the whole picture? I dare say it is not, and yet judging from the reaction of much of the student body, the “P.C. Gentleman” is the “line” we hand to the Salve or Vernon Court girls, and little else. What about the I.R.C., the Letters society, the I.R.C. . . . and others?

I would suggest that we put criticism when and where it is due . . . on the minority, and that we stop the decimation of this “Gentleman,” questioning needlessly the value of so essential an element. The college is coming of age . . . let’s not prevent the “P.C. Gentleman” from doing the same.

Candidates Wanted . . .

One need only look at the class books for Student Congress and two other major Clubs, the Dillon Club for commuters and the Carolan Club for residents, to find that there is slowly developing a sense of apathy among many of the students.

In each of the three classes holding elections this coming school year, for both class officers and Student Congress Representatives there was at least one major office in which someone was running unopposed — the Junior class had four such candidates while the Sophomore and Freshman classes had each one.

The Dillon Club fared a little better than the Carolan Club which held elections two weeks ago. The former had two major offices in which there was only one candidate running; whereas the latter had only one (out of five) contested post.

Overwhelming Response . . .

A college bookstore is always the brunt of many jokes, and often the subject of criticism. But here at Providence we apparently enjoy the singular distinction of the perfect bookstore. For judging from the response to the announcement of a new column called INQUIRY, featuring store Manager Giannelli as its first guest, PC students are either among the most satisfied or most disinterested colleges in the area. Unfortunately, evidence points heavily to the latter judgment as more precise.

For a college community of over 2400 students, not one question was submitted in response to a plea from the editor for suggestions and ideas for future columns. It can be said that this is either a sign of the bookstores, or students for one reason or another have decided that brooding over the difficulties is somehow more worthwhile than trying to solve them.

The COWL may be the “Official student publication of Providence College;” but it is in no position to cater to this type of whimsy regardless of its source. We, the COWL is willing to offer time and effort to attain some type of mutual understanding between administrator and student, but the most that is expected is a minimum of cooperation.

Very sincere appreciation can be directed to Mr. Sullivan for offering his valuable time in agreeing to answer any and all inquiries sent in by interested students. Somewhat less than a deep gratitude can be returned to “John Q Student” who apparently didn’t consider any possible beneficial results of this column worth his effort.

A reticent response to the various problems which the students face. Here is where I believe the problem lies. Does the board actually represent the entire student body? I think not. The problems which are discussed are those of immediate concern to its members. Why are these the only problems discussed? It seems to me that the answer lies in the lack of response from two groups of students: those who are ignorant of this board and those who do not really care enough to take interest.

Since I have been at Providence College, I have often heard students state that they have not had the opportunity to voice their complaints. Well, gentlemen, the opportunity is now yours. Any member of this board is more than willing to bring your grievances to the administration — providing they are reasonable and relevant.

Anyone who has a problem which he would like to bring to the attention of this board should contact Paul Giannelli, Kenneth Shey, Raymond Lagaceus, Gerald McClure, David Fretak, John Minicucci, Peter Gallogly, or Gregory Smith.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Perhaps this letter should simply direct itself to the problem of the college men'sSharedPtr. He has been grad using and for what specific purposes the money is to be used. It does not. Perhaps in a more forceful manner it should be pointed out that the explanation of why the senators were not informed about the eight dollars and gone is not.

I am writing to you, Mr. Editor, concerning a letter which appeared in your last edition: the letter of Messrs. Vallenite, Imbruglio, Segreti, and the editorial entitled College Students (77). Both articles seem to me to be in extremely poor taste, not only because of the rather esoteric and almost philosophical attitude the men assume, but more importantly because, to say the least, these men are completely misinformed.

I shall not refute every line these men wrote for, were it to take up too much time. Let me, however, try to dispel some of the more startling and blatant errors.

In the Letter to the Editor the men stated that the PC audience laughed so at the Brother Antonius lecture that An drews' joke failed. This is not true. Both at the lecture itself and later in private conversation with the students in fact, Brother-hoods stated that they had brought everything aesthetically necessary, and that the failure of the evening (which, by the way, was neither cartacted a failure) was his and not the audience's fault. Therefore, it is present at the Brothe-
's lecture that will remember that there was a large element of student apathy present. While I do not want to put the blame on the group that is helpless to speak for itself, I did notice that much of the laughing did come from members of the extension division.

A second concern of both articles was the conduct of the student body at the Riverfront Convention. I would vainly proceed to walk around June's bier in a motion closer to pro-hose and insensitivity. intellectual retrogression and moral turpitude which is helpless to speak for itself, I did notice that much of the laughing did come from members of the extension division.

Weekend for Parents Is Planned by Clubs

This weekend the Carolan and Dillon Clubs will co-sponsor their first annual Parents' Weekend. Eight events have been planned for the parents of sophomore, junior, and senior students. Beginning with a parent-faculty reception on Saturday afternoon and ending with a R.O.T.C. review late Sunday afternoon, the weekend will try to "provide an opportunity for the parents of the collegians to better acquaint themselves with Providence College."

At the parent-faculty reception, which will last from 2 to 5 p.m. on Saturday, representatives from each scholastic department and from the administration will be present. Following the reception there will be a roast beef dinner served in Raymond Hall at 6:30. The Glee Club will be in concert uner the direction of Fr. Canzon at 9 p.m. to entertain the parents and students. Back in Raymond Hall on the same night, the weekend will try to "better acquaint themselves with Providence College."

Big Brothers

(Continued from Page 1) exhibit the basic, individual relationship between the big brother and his little brother, but rather bring this relationship's social end into focus. In some (we hope) beneficial way, the little brother is being helped to accept and to live in a world often uncaring about him. More specifically, though, these are some of our group activities.

First, there is the annual picnic in Lincoln Woods. If any of you have ever attended one of these picnics, you might “question” the preceding description of the purpose of a group activity. By the end of the day, the big brothers in attendance would be actually retreating from the 120 little brothers—who would be aiming eggs at their courageous suppliers. In October you have probably seen us tramping between Aquinas Chapel, Alumni Cafeteria, and A-100, in the midst of the Communion Breakfast. In February a group of 30 little brothers are taken on retreat under the direction of members of the Club's executive board.

Another Club tradition has developed under the unintended auspices of the Coca-Cola Company. During the past two autumns the Club has collected more than 3,000 bottle-caps which have been traded for sweat-shirts and footballs. In January the Club sponsored a drive for Boy Scout uniforms and camping equipment for the Center's troop, which is partly directed by big brothers.

Early in the winter, the Club purchased new uniforms for the Center's basketball team; clinics on basketball and wrestling were sponsored during the year; a bowling league was initiated this year composed of big brother-little brother teams. At Christmas, the student body's generosity enabled the Club to purchase basketballs and ice-skates. Future plans include the contribution of new baseball equipment and football uniforms to the Center.

The Aisle

By L. BRUCE PORTER

This editorial was prompted by the letter to the editor-in-chief of Kenneth L. Valier '67, Anthony Intriligator '67, Michael McCoy '68, Anthonycairo '67, and Lawrence T. C. Weir '68.

...and eagerly await the return of Brother Antoninus and The National Players. The college with obviously limited resources, and yet our cultural achievements have been both impressive and appreciated. No attempt to list thedo not attempt to list the contributions, both verbal and written, that this letter provided.

Let us pause a moment—we are rapidly approaching the hectic ending of the academic year, and it is fitting that we take time to look back and assess its cultural implications.

No apologies need be made nor any heads hang in shame. The Providence College gentleman is alive and doing well. Culture here is effusive and not elusive. Certainly there is the evidence of some pseudo-intellectualism; however, I strongly disagree with those who would label us boors or anti-intellectual.

I make these statements in clarification of the thoughts expressed in my review of the National Players' production of Romeo and Juliet ("On The Aisle," May 4, 1966, p. 4, Cowl). In an age and society so vitally concerned with education and status, the word "culture" is often thrown around rather carelessly.

Those who castigate us and scoff at our humble yet earnest efforts at achieving culture do us and our college a great disservice. We are a small college with obviously limited resources, and yet our cultural achievements have been both impressive and appreciated. I do not attempt to list the formidable roster of speakers presented here during the past three years, for this in itself would be only a part of the larger and unknown effort made by both the administration and students to add to our campus's cultural enrichment.

I say "BRAVO" to "imported talent." I both encourage and eagerly await the return of both Brother Antoninus and The National Players. The college is most fortunate to be located in a city that is so admirably endowed with cultural resources that we can readily patronize and "import." Those who castigate us and scoff at our humble yet earnest efforts at achieving culture do us and our college a great disservice. We are a small college with obviously limited resources, and yet our cultural achievements have been both impressive and appreciated. I do not attempt to list the formidable roster of speakers presented here during the past three years, for this in itself would be only a part of the larger and unknown effort made by both the administration and students to add to our campus's cultural enrichment.

Student interest on the Providence College campus is far from apathetic in view of the considerable interest in music and art as evidenced by the sizeable representation of our student body at concerts, museums, theaters, and art shows in the area.

Speaking very sincerely, I think the presentation of a cinematographic effort, "The Journal of Gilmoreville: Moonlight," was both encouraging and healthy sign. Certainly this endeavor can not be taken too seriously (1), yet the student and faculty response was certainly gratifying to all concerned.

The college administration is well aware of the painful, not shameful, lack of proper cultural facilities on the campus; and certainly when the financial means are available this situation will be remedied. In the meantime, and it is our duty to support all cultural endeavors, even with criticism—but let us make it responsible. construclive criticism. I have sincerely tried to be fair and constructive in my criticism and at times very vociferous; however, I could never condone loud irrepressible.

In my comments on the audience at Romeo and Juliet, I observed an intellectual attitude not personal manners. I do not see an essential connection between manners and intellect.—I am a fine arts critic not Emily Post.

New Fight Song

Greg Smith, a representative for the Freshman Class in conjunction with the Student Congress, has announced that a "Fight Song Contest" will be held in the fall when classes resume for the "66-67" academic year. The purpose of this contest is to produce a short, catchy tune which will build school spirit on campus. Once a song has been chosen it will be played and sung at all sporting events.

The songs which will be submitted by the students will be judged both by faculty members and students well versed in the art of music. Once the selection has been made it will be presented to the student body during "Sports Week" of next year. Judgement of the winning song will be based on originality in composition and melody. It is the responsibility of the P.C. poets and song writers to try their hand in composing the Providence College Fight Song. The specifics concerning the contest will be announced once classes have resumed next year. One important note which was pointed out by Greg was that this fight song would in no way replace or superecede our cherished and sacred Alma Mater.

Fly half-fare on Eastern via Florida.

Florida swings in the spring—but it really swings in the summer. Lower off-season room rates are in effect. And Eastern will take you to Daytona or Ft. Lauderdale or even Miami for half-fare. So take a detour and enjoy it on your way home. Or go home first and down to Florida later.

Just use your Eastern Youth ID card, or similar card from another airline. If you don't have such a card, it's a snap to get one—provided you're under 22 and can prove it. For the specifics, stop by a Travel Agent or any Eastern ticket office.

Once you have your card, you can get an Eastern Jet Coach seat for half-fare. You can't make an advance reservation. But if there's a seat available at departure time, you can fly to any Eastern destination within the continental U.S. Including Florida.

It has been announced by Bill Struck, Chairman of the Who's Who Committee, that a revised method of nominating students to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities has been inaugurated. This procedure was agreed upon after a survey of eleven colleges and suggestions from Fr. Joseph L. Lennon, O.P., and the organization, Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

The criteria used in choosing nominees is as follows: 1) The individual must be a member of the Senior Class at the time of his nomination. 2) A cumulative scholastic index of 2.5 is necessary, unless a unanimous vote of the committee decides otherwise. 3) The nominee must be a person of reputable character whose leadership and cooperation in academic and extracurricular activities has and will continue to contribute to the development of the college. 4) No office in a campus activity necessitates that the individual automatically be named to Who's Who. This includes the selection committee.

The method of selection is as follows: 1) Each Department Chairman is requested to submit a list of the top three students in his department to the Dean of Studies by November 1 of each academic year. 2) The ROTC Department is requested to submit a list of five names by November 1 of each academic year. 3) The selection committee will be composed of the presidents of the following organizations: Student Congress, Senior Class, Carroll Club, Dillon Club and D.E.S. The sixth man in the selection committee will be left to the discretion of the five presidents and may be a faculty member or a student. 4) The Senior Class moderator will oversee the activities of the committee and the Dean of Studies will determine the night of the meeting. 5) The nominations to this organization must be made prior to the Thanksgiving recess. 6) It is suggested that the night of the nomination meeting be kept secret.

Assumption Last Test For P. C. Netmen Before New England Tourney

The varsity tennis team will try to rebound from its loss to Boston College yesterday as they take on Assumption College today on the Alumni Hall courts. The match is the last test preparation before the New England championships.

The netmen received another heart-rending victory yesterday as their bid to upset the Boston College team fell short, 6-3. Fine efforts by Kevin Phelan, Mike Tudino, and Charley Hadlock, who won their matches, did little to hearten Coach Gavitt. And he needs all the optimism he can muster as the tennis team faces its sternest test this week in the New England Tourney.

Although they will not be travelling as far as the golf team, the tennis team will head up to Amherst College this Friday, Saturday, Sunday, and Tuesday for the New England Supremacy. A good showing here will make up for some of the disappointments that have marred the season.

Coach Gavitt has not yet announced the entire four man selection. Jim Nelligan, Ron Tarsi, Mike Tudino, and Brian Mcmahon are being considered for the fourth place.

The pairings have not yet been announced since the Friars' reach. This will probably consist of both singles and doubles with things getting a bit tight for the fourth member to be named. The entire team will be made up of four players for the tourney.

Possibly the toughest loss all season came against Tufts University, 5-4. The Friars had the singles wrapped up but fell victim to two of the handiest players in the NEA.

If any team has been handicapped by the poor New England weather, it has been the Friars. Their match with the Crusaders has been cancelled twice and is now probably finished for the year. The independent, as it has been called, has no quarter, and, despite the break, will probably continue throughout the season.

Senior Kevin Phelan is a six foot, three inch business major hailing from Bristol, Connecticut. Potentially he might be the Friars' biggest threat in the NEA tennis history. He has won the Bristol doubles three years in a row in a year that was runner-up in the singles in 1965 and recently took the Ber- muda Tournay singles during Easter vacation.

In his sophomore year at PC Kevin's cannonball serves paved the way towards a glittering 8-2 record. In his junior year Kevin had trouble getting untracked. He did not hit his true form until late in the season. This year Phelan against Kev.

Kevin is the headliner in the associated two seniors on the team. But one of them is big Kevin who has played in the number one spot for the past two years. And if he is on with the bomb next week in the New England, opponents beware!

WDOM Fills First Year With Increased Sports Coverage

Chris Clark, Curt Gowdy, Red Barber... these are three familiar names in the world of sportscasting today, but who are Ron Tarsi, Dave Monaghan, or Larry Walsh? To anyone unfamiliar with WDOM, the Providence College, these names would not ring a bell. Many students do, however, know these names.

Dave Monaghan is the stu- dents' own Mr. Basketball. Throughout the entire basketball season Dave and the WDOM engineers were behind the mike, doing the majority of the fresh- man games, both home and away. This was not entirely a one-way street as it had been tried un- successfully a few years ago. The significant fact is that the Dick work and it is now a per- manent part of the broadcast season.

When the varsity hockey sea- son is over Ron Tarsi will be there once again with Larry Walsh doing the play-by-play and Greg Walsh (no relation) handling the color. They man- aged to do a majority of the home games and a portion of the away games.

"In the headlines this even- ing" column has become the trademark of Ron Tarsi, who does the sports show each weekday evening at 6:20. Ron has that "Clark sound" and this makes his show so popular. Ron is also a writer for the Cowl sports staff and this could lead to an- other innovation.

Chris Clark, fellow sport-s co- ed, has stated that he would like to establish a certain amount of cooperation between the two sports departments. Chris also feels that WDOM has a greater coverage of the campus sporting events, along with a better quality of announcing, the season.

Thus WDOM is no longer a phantom station as it has taken the campus by storm. Dave, a member of the WDOM staff, is proud of his accomplishments in broad- casting.

Walsh will be heard from a lot more as the "Frazier Broadcasting Network" matures.

Set for Weekend By PC Linksmen

Once again the weather came into play as Monday's golf match with Trinity College at the Rockledge Country Club was postponed. The course was not in the best of playing con- ditions due to a blanket of snow and afternoon thunder showers.

The game was to be one of the final matches leading in the New England's for the Friars. The New England's are presently scheduled for the twelfth and thirteenth of this month. It will be medal play (20 holes) and approximately thirty colleges, including the defending champs, URI, will compete.

Each school is allowed to send a five man team but only the scores of the four low men will be counted. Trophies are awarded on an individual and team basis. The Friar golfers have never won a team championship but last year's captain, Pat DiPacca, was second in the individual category. He was later selected to participate in the NCAA tourney which was held in Tennessee.

At the present time Coach Prisco (Vice-President of the NEA) has not picked the players who will represent the college. He did say, however, that the selection will come from among the six starters and that the announcement will be made shortly.

Last season the Friar links-man finished seventh in the New England's but Mr. Prisco is "hopeful" in regard to this year's outcome. In the back of everybody's mind is, of course, (Continued on Page 9)
