PC feels the pinch

By Karen Ryder

Rev. Thomas R. Peterson, O.P., president of Providence College, has announced yet another increase in the cost of attending PC. "This is the skyrocketing cost of energy, rapidly rising inflation, and the state of the economy," he said.

Father Peterson as last year in the National spiraling price of attaining a energy, rapidly rising inflation, O.P., president of "Providence where the Northeast clearly

"Whereas the Northeast clearly

The skyrocketing cost of

By Joyce Simard

"It's here because it's

The March 23 meeting of the Student Congress began on a bittersweet note. Capt. of the Student Congress financial report were distributed. Treasurer Ken McGunagle went over the report, noting that the Congress is presently $287 in debt. He added that to correct the deficit, the Congress will be borrowing the necessary funds from the College, a practice which, he claims, is not uncommon among student organizations.

The Congress discussed possible ways of preventing future deficits. McGunagle pointed out that the present deficit was not incurred by the Congress, and Bob Goudie emphatically said that no wrong doing caused the deficit. McGunagle proposed a five point plan as a safeguard against budget deficits.

The financial controls proposed in the plan include:

- requiring that all Congress checks bear two signatures. (Congress is the only student organization, at present, which is not required to do so.)
- adoption of a rule stating that all expenditures over a specified amount (a $250 figure was proposed) will require the approval of the entire Congress prior to issuance.
- establishment of a limit on banquet expenditures.
- re-creation of the present method of appropriation from the College.
- presentation of a treasurer's report each semester to the entire student body, via the Cowl.

As yet, no action has been taken on these proposals. The Congress also discussed the possible

PC Tuition, fees, room, board affected

hike $840

By Karen Ryder

Tuition, fees, room, and board for the year, will be raised by $600 for the year. The cost of living on campus will be raised a total of $240 for the entire year.

In regard to the recently announced increase, Father Peterson stated, "I realize that these additional costs are significant, but the expenses generated by energy and food increases are also being felt by everyone." He added that the College is committed to maintaining a balanced budget.

Student activity fee

The increase in costs will be a significant hardship for students, who will have to adjust their spending habits. The College has taken steps to mitigate this impact, offering students a variety of options to help cover the increased costs.

Federal aid cut reduces CSP

By Joyce Simard

Herbert J. D'Arcy, director of Financial Aid, has recommended the federal allocations for Providence College's Student Financial Aid Program be reduced for next year. Despite the fact that tuition and fees have increased by 10% this year, D'Arcy attributes this state-wide phenomenon to the accreditation of a recently-implemented formula process by which schools apply for financial aid.

"All the Northeast clearly understood this process and took full advantage of it last year, we are suffering reductions this year because the rest of the country has realized how the system works, and are applying for this year's money they were entitled to, but did not request last year."

While PC has had an increase in grants and loans, and has approximately the same level of funding as last year in the National Direct Loan Program, it has a significant 9.5% cut in the College Work-Study Program. This causes much concern for the Office of Financial Aid, because not only has funding been reduced, but the minimum hourly wage is being increased for 1980-81, from $2.65 to $2.90, the RI minimum wage. Whereas the average hourly wage is $3.04 now, the 12% increase in the hourly wage will boost next year's average hourly rate to approximately $3.25. These two factors pose a problem in terms of the number of students eligible for College Work-Study, because the Office of Financial Aid must increase the average award in order to accommodate the higher average wage.

In order to solve this problem, the off-campus Summer Work-Study Program will be severely reduced. By reducing this program, the Office of Financial Aid will be able to run a College Work-Study Program during the 1980-81 academic year that will be comparable to the current year, in terms of the number of people working.

Considering the increase in costs and the reduction of federal aid, D'Arcy was asked whether or not the overall need of students will be fulfilled next year in the same proportion that students' needs were fulfilled this year. He replied, "The ability to meet the increase in costs will be definitely affected by increased family incomes resulting in higher family contributions, most increases in institutional grants-in-aid (PC money), state scholarship eligibility, and increases in Basic Grant eligibility."

Commenting on the future, D'Arcy stated, "It appears that Student Financial Aid programs will not enjoy any appreciable increase in federal programs as a result of the Administration's attempt to get the economy under control."

Manning captures BOG presidency

By Lewis DiPrete

Last Thursday, an election was held in lower Slavin to select next year's BOG Executive Board. The winners are as follows: L.J. Manning, president; Mark O'Rourke, vice-president; and Liz Oleskau, treasurer. These officers will assume active responsibilities on May 1.

The BOG is an organization consisting entirely of members of the student body, which programs the broad social and cultural events for the PC community, manages the Last Resort, and oversees all activities within Slavin Center. The first order of business for the new Executive Board will be to conduct interviews for the various chairperson positions available for the coming academic year. These interviews will be held on Sunday, March 30, from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. and again in the same time slot on Monday.

Sex change proposed

By Steve Sylvia

Will there be a new women's dorm in September? According to Rev. Walter J. Heath, O.P., director of Residence, it is a very real possibility. The reasons behind such action are three: (1) There are 925 beds available to men on the PC campus. Presently, freshmen and transfers have signed up for dorm space in September. From previous experience, the Residence Office expects about 50 refunds to these upperclassmen, leaving approximately 431 spaces for incoming freshmen and transfers. The Admissions Office expects around 350 new male resident students next year, resulting in a surplus of about 81 beds. (2) There are 925 beds available for women on the PC campus. At this time, 578 of these beds have been reserved by on-campus women. Figuring in College finances Congress deficit

By Moira Fay

The March 23 meeting of the Student Congress began on a bittersweet note. Capt. of the Student Congress financial report were distributed. Treasurer Ken McGunagle went over the report, noting that the Congress is presently $287 in debt. He added that to correct the deficit, the Congress will be borrowing the necessary funds from the College, a practice which, he claims, is not uncommon among student organizations.

The Congress discussed possible ways of preventing future deficits. McGunagle pointed out that the present deficit was not incurred by the Congress, and Bob Goudie emphatically said that no wrong doing caused the deficit. McGunagle proposed a five point plan as a safeguard against budget deficits.

The financial controls proposed in the plan include:

By Steve Sylvia
McGunagle proposes five-point plan

Continued from Page 1

bility of having a moderator, an representative to the Committee on further control over the actions of the student body.

Bob Goudie, the student representathe study rooms on the second floor, and would probably be open between the hours of 7:00 and 10:00 p.m., Monday through Thursday nights. Plans for the lounge are still being formulated.

Finally, Congress President Bill Pearson said that letters have been distributed to the student body, explaining the student activity fee increase. He commended the hard work done by vice-president Marie Robitaille and treasurer Ken McGunagle, who were responsible for getting the $10 increase approved. He also commended McGunagle's work done by vice-president Marie Robitaille and treasurer Ken McGunagle, who were responsible for getting the $10 increase approved. He also commended McGunagle's work done by vice-president Marie Robitaille and treasurer Ken McGunagle, who were responsible for getting the $10 increase approved. He also commended McGunagle's work done by vice-president Marie Robitaille and treasurer Ken McGunagle, who were responsible for getting the $10 increase approved. He also commended McGunagle's work done by vice-president Marie Robitaille and treasurer Ken McGunagle, who were responsible for getting the $10 increase approved.

In other areas, the first campus council meeting was announced. It will be held Wednesday, March 26, at 7:00 p.m., in Aquinas Room I. The council hopes to up­date files of the various student organizations and eventually create a detailed listing of campus activities, including applications for membership to the various clubs. This listing would be made available to incoming freshmen.

Brian Moran, senior student representative to the Corporation, has named to the music building Catherine of Sierra Hall. He also mentioned that bids from sub-contractors for the fieldhouse are due April 23.

The Lifestyles Committee reported that plans are still being examined to create a coffee lounge in the library. If instituted, the lounge would be situated in one of the study rooms on the second floor.

Now the crunch comes into play. No, the Dominicans on the fourth floor of Harkins will not necessarily be the primary source of manpower: that task is left to you diligent and ambitious students. Please do not give the excuse of vacation recuperation or fatigue in anticipation of finals. No, the Dominicans on the fourth floor of Harkins will not necessarily be the primary source of manpower: that task is left to you diligent and ambitious students. Please do not give the excuse of vacation recuperation or fatigue in anticipation of finals. No, the Dominicans on the fourth floor of Harkins will not necessarily be the primary source of manpower: that task is left to you diligent and ambitious students. Please do not give the excuse of vacation recuperation or fatigue in anticipation of finals. No, the Dominicans on the fourth floor of Harkins will not necessarily be the primary source of manpower: that task is left to you diligent and ambitious students. Please do not give the excuse of vacation recuperation or fatigue in anticipation of finals.

The Student Congress here at Providence College will be sponsoring a Campus Clean-up Day on Saturday, April 19th. It will be a serious attempt to prove to all that underneath all of the beer cans, cigarette butts, plastic Rathskeller cups, lost Civ notes, and other debris, there is real beauty on our fair grounds. What better time to hold such an event when spring fever and that energetic drive begins to run rampant throughout our college community.

The Cowl corrects

Contrary to what was stated, this contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.

Cowl corrects error

"Do PC students have it too easy," an article appearing in the March 5 edition of the Cowl, contained several inaccuracies which warrant correction. The article dealt with the Academic Affairs Committee's discussion of the ongoing curriculum review. Contrary to what was stated, this committee, which is chaired by Dr. F. P. Mackay of the chemistry department, is an arm of the Faculty Senate.
Abrasax art show
By Maureen Plouffe

The PC Abrasax Art Club is sponsoring its First Annual Art Exhibit and Contest for Rhode Island high school students this week.

The entries, over 200 in all, were placed in six categories: drawing, painting, sculpture, ceramics, printmaking and photography.

The panel of judges, composed of faculty and student members of the art department, evaluated the entries on the basis of technical merit, imagination, and presentation. Cash prizes of $20, $10 and $5 for first, second and third places in each category were awarded at a reception and awards ceremony on Tuesday, March 25. Winners of the nine Honorable Mention awards each received an official Providence College beer stein. The judges also presented six Special Judges' Awards for entries that did not fit into any of the six categories, but which they felt merited recognition for their extraordinary appeal.

The Abrasax Club began planning the project last December. "We put a lot of work into this exhibit," commented Tom McMannion, Abrasax Club president. "And the high school kids can be extremely proud of the fine quality of their work and individual artistic abilities. We also hope that some of these students will find that PC is just the place to develop their talents."

The exhibit, which was financed by the Admissions Office, will be on display in Slavin 205 through Friday, March 29.

Mother Courage
Continued from Page 6

Lighting and costumes are being designed by Carl F. Gudenius and Peter J. Cameron, respectively. The music for the production, which resembles a series of musical parables each amplifying a major point touched on in the Brechtian fable, was originally written by Paul Dessau, and has been adapted and amplified by R.B. Haller, O.P.

Tickets for Mother Courage and her Children may be reserved by calling 865-2327. The Box Office is located in Harkins Rotunda and is open from 5 p.m. to curtain on the evenings of performance. Tickets for PC students are $1.50. Tickets will be available at the door.

Registration Procedure

Procedures for Registration, beginning April 22, will be as follows: All students will obtain their registration cards from the Department of their concentration. This card will indicate time and day of registration. The student will confer with his or her advisor and complete the card listing the courses to be pursued. The exceptions to the above directions are those students who are following an individualized program, undecided, and double majors. These students will obtain their registration cards in the Office of the Dean.

All cards must be signed by their advisor.

Students will proceed to Slavin 110 for registration.

Back to top

Stephens male-to-female change proposed
Continued from Page 1
50 refusals to these upperclassmen, this would leave about 397 dorm openings for incoming freshmen and transfers.

The Admissions Office expects about 430 women seeking residency in the fall. This creates a situation of around 33 women being forced off campus for lack of dorm space. (3) There are approximately 45 assigned quads in Meagher and Dore Halls. The task force on housing has asked that these rooms be converted to triples as soon as dorm space becomes available, making this THE top priority.

To solve these problems, a new women’s dorm is reportedly needed. The problem lies in which men’s dorm would be chosen for conversion. There are two dorms under consideration at the present time, Stephen Hall and Joseph Hall. The use of Stephen Hall would add 54 beds for female resident students, while converting Joseph Hall would add 100 beds. After de-quading the quads in Meagher and Dore Halls, about 15 spaces would be left for new incoming freshmen and transfers in Stephen Hall. In contrast, around 55 beds would be available in Joseph Hall.

This means converting Stephen Hall would increase the cash flow to the college by about $100,000 (15 new students X $6600 tuition, room and boards) while still allowing additional enrollment of new male students on campus.

Changing Joseph Hall, on the other hand, would increase the cash flow by around $360,000 (25 X $6600) but would also shut off any increase in admissions for male students.

There would also be additional costs for transferring either dorm to the women. Approximately $18,000 would be needed for the salaries of new desk personnel, money would also be needed for converting bathrooms and replacing non-locking doors with the panic bar (locking) type.

The final decision on any changes will be made before the room selection process takes place in April.
Student Congress: Singing the budget blues $837 deficit

A review of the Financial Report of the Student Congress of Providence College, released last week, has disclosed a disturbing fact regarding the finances of the present Student Congress. That is, the treasury is presently working with a deficit of $837.00 (and bills are still coming in). This is a problem which Bill Pearson and his Executive Board have unfortunately inherited from the preceding board. Based on past trends, most new congresses begin their terms with roughly $2,000 in the treasury. The fact that the 1980-81 Congress has been forced to begin their year in the red is unsettling and will be to their disadvantage, to say the least.

The fact that this deficit exists could be indicative of several explanations. It could be the case that the congress was working under, given inflation, a $2,000 deficit is no longer so much. Every check issued can be accounted for. The central question underlying this situation is, what are the priorities?

The recently issued Financial Report dispels any ill-conceived notions of outright abuse of the funds. Every check issued can be accounted for. The central question underlying this situation is, what are the priorities?

Theondo, the Student Congress Executive Board advocates a stricter system of overall controls. When paying by check, the signatories of the check must be aware that the organization should be secured. Additionally, if an expenditure exceeds a predetermined amount, the authorization of the check writer must be obtained. This system is in the process of instituting tighter financial controls. For this, they are commended.

Regrettably, this situation has been a smudge on the reputation of Student Congress as a whole. Unfortunately, Bill Pearson and his Executive Board are left to pick up the pieces. They are forced to deal with a situation for which they are not directly responsible. Hopefully, they and all organizations will learn from these past mistakes and insist on more responsible spending. When dealing with money, especially their student money, there is simply no margin for error.

Climbing down from my soap box, I would be remiss if I did not mention the efforts of the many individuals instrumental in the Cowl's production. Faculty advisor to the Cowl, Rev. John A. McMahon, O.P., has been consistently supportive and helpful. Whether, it be offering ideas or proofreading copy, Father McMahon is more than willing to provide assistance. He has been a hard-working and productive organization. Admittedly, they do deserve some form of recommendation (their effort is appreciated).

Editor's Memo

"We must hang together or we shall all hang separately." This year was unfortunately marked by discord between several PCs, major student organizations. Much more is accomplished when an air of cooperation and communication exists between groups. Hopefully, this attitude can be fostered next year. Ultimately, we're all working toward the same goal.

"So long, farewell YAHOO! (The position of circulation manager is not a glamorous one. Through time consuming and tedious work, John Deadly proved to be a dedicated worker and an asset to the Cowl staff. The aforementioned students are all graduating seniors, and their efforts have been much appreciated."

Published each full week of school during the academic year and one summer edition during June by Providence College, River Avenue and Eaton Street, Providence, R.I. 02918. Second class postage paid at Providence, R.I. Slavin Center, P.O. Box 906, 202-2141.

Editor-in-Chief
Maureen J. O'Flaherty '80

News Editor
Karen Ryder '82

Features Editor
Kathleen M. Hansen '80

Copy Editor
Maureen Plouffe '82

Sports Editor
Robert S. Walsh '80

Photography Editor
Stephen Lichtenfels '80

Business Manager
John Kennedy '80

Advertising Manager
Stephen E. Sylvia '81

Circulation Manager
John J. Deadly '80

College Advisor
John A. McMahon, O.P.

General Assignment Staff:
Joe Brandolino, Donna Bean, Lauren Card, Bill Derouin, Maureen Diggins, Moira Fay, John Garrahy, Kelly Keane, John Kusmierz, Kathy Lyons, Dawn Madden, Judy McNamara, Tim O'Keefe, Kathy O'Neill, Brian O'Niel, Glen Pacheco, Carol Peir, Marie Roberts, Karen Ryder, Bill Salome, Joyce Stander, Christopher Smith, Karen Sylvester, Judy Traficante, Tanya Trumble, Bill Vaisberg.

Sports Staff:
Kathy Allanson, Mgr Bergens, Susan Carmelli, Catherine Catt, Bob Derouin, Kathy Delong, Rich Dumas, John Farnsworth, Steve Garrahy, Nick Haddad, Karen Kusmierz, Kathy Lyons, Darleen Madden, Judy McNamara, Tim O'Hara, Kathy Ryder, Karen Sylvester, Karen Sylvester, Judy Traficante, Tanya Trumble, Bill Vaisberg.

Advertising Representatives:
Cecil Bergens, Barbara Brady

Circulation Staff:
Joe Brandolino, Terry Brown, Ann Cavanaugh, Steve Riley, Jim Smart

Art and Graphics:
Tom Mastrogiovanni, John Trubek

Sports Staff:
Joe Brandolino, Kevin Burke, Robert Burke, Mike David, Cherry Galvin, Mary O'Bryan, Ellen Harrington, Jim O'Hara, Rich Pacheco, Bill Raff, Jim Smart

Advertising Representatives:
Cecil Bergens, Barbara Brady

Circulation Staff:
Joe Brandolino, Terry Brown, Ann Cavanaugh, Steve Riley, Jim Smart

Subscriptions rate $4.00 per year by mail. Student subscriptions $4.00 included in tuition fee.
March 26, 1980 Page 5

Forum for Ideas

Coeds should hunt for husbands, not careers

By Thomas J. Keegan

To find a solution to the decreasing family life in the United States, one must begin to question marriage. These institutions are vital to the support of the learning. Basically, colleges and in a contemporary civilized society always insist on talking to you and the question once again rose of hands? I ended up speaking in my mind: Why do these guys some useless major like English, Wise choice. Sure is better than "So, Barry, what's your major?" "English." "Economics, huh?" Erghls, I gurgled, trying to say dentists are continually trying to provide stereo headphones. In true....You shouldn't. In my Sacraments class we had finally discovered a better sense. Instead, many students would enhance not only the male and female's personal relations, but also have a beneficial effect here. Parents' Weekend was "Bill" and he was famous. Cons. All loopholes were covered. I received, it's a fair price." "For everything that one receives, it's a fair price." Inquiring Photographer

What do you think about the price of the Class of '80's commencement bids?

P.J., Billy and the whole gang were my family, and poor Barry had died. P.J., Billy and the whole gang didn't help matters at all. Dad loved the game and was busy taking photographs and cartoon sketches. What more proof could you ask for?

Loopholes were covered. I had the system down pat. Every now and then I'd call home to reassure myself of which family was the one that needed to have their spirit at the Garden). We received, it's a fair price." In my "Fiar interview" last week, I was finally shocked to my senses. I wasn't expecting the question, "Doesn't your father do the Family Circus?" no, I was a little confused. This had really gotten around! It was later that night that I realized I had left without explaining the truth.

In my Sacraments class we learned that to confess our sins, we must say we're sorry to God and the community. Well, community, this was the best way we could think of to show all know. The fun is over. I am not Dolly. The next step is to call Dad and tell him he is not Bill. I hope you learned your lesson well.

...aren't I a good liar though?

I inherited the nick-name "Dolly," destroyed in two ways. The over-educated career minded female no longer wants to settle down with her children. Secondly, the male works full time and is unable to do his share of the job market by the female who only acquired her job through some company's desperate attempt to fill its government mandated quotas. These institutions of higher learning will never be able to correct the disorder that presently exists. I only suffer in a nationally structured creed curriculum. This course of study might emphasize the domestic chores of yesteryear. To add a flair of spice into the program, some lesson might also include checkbook accounting, to help a pair of nuts, daily solo opera scheduling, and theatre arts.

Presenting these courses as something totally complex would erase the females silly notions of careers in business, medicine and education. For those persistent few who will always demand a career, schools might offer degrees in nursing, design and art. My intention is not to take the color and cheerfulness out of women, so the schools might offer, the female should offer the minor role to her proper partner in life, the male. We would see the elimination of all those wasted funds allocated to female sports. Returning the female's contribution to her proper role in life would enhance not only the male and female's personal relations, but most importantly these reforms would restore the important role of the American family.

Letters

We missed you at the Garden

Dear Editor:

Would like to congratulate the hockey team and coach Lamoriello for the hard work and tremendous desire that they maintained all season long. They upheld this standard of excellence right up to the ECAC semi-finals at the Boston Garden, where fan support was lacking, to say the least. It seems hard to believe that a school such as Cornell University, which is 300 miles away, can show more fan support than the expected home crowd from Providence, which is only 50 miles away. It was quite evident that we were outnumbered and outvoiced throughout the night by "true and loyal" hockey fans from Ithaca, NY. We would also like to congratulate Mr. John Swaboda and his PC band as to why they did not see fit to be part of the spirit of the ECAC tournament (by the way, Cornell did see fit to bring their hand along which, again, exemplified their spirit at the Garden). We suppose, perhaps, that Mr. Swaboda had no knowledge that the PC hockey team was in a post-season tournament.

It is hard to understand why the PC hockey team, who works as hard if not harder than any other athletic team on campus, just does not get the support that they so justly deserve. It seems that to us it looks more like the hockey team who can show post-season results from their hard work, determination and spirit should receive as much if not more support from the entire PC "family" that turns out for other not so successful athletic teams.

In closing, we would like to commend those loyal fans who made the trip to Boston to show their support (rather than attending a St. Patrick's Day formal, planning for a Friar's Club) among other not so successful athletic teams. "If you see a football player, you'd do it. If you see a hockey player, you'd do it. Well, that's wrong. It was untimely and inconsiderate of the inquiring photographer to ask, "Are you trying out for the Friars Club?" But because the Friars Club to change its image in elite circles, most of the Friars are good kids who unselfishly volunteer a lot of their time to help out the PC community. As a unit, however, the group subjects itself to ridicule and abuse. The club should try to improve its image and the rest of the students should think about all the positive things the Friars do here.

Eileen Connor, '80 (a non-Friar)

Inquiring Photographers

What do you think about the price of the Class of '80's commencement bids?

Charlie Ricci, '80
"The price is too high. I think that PC should pay more of the cost."

Sheila O'Hara, '80
"For everything that one receives, it's a fair price."

Bradley Brown, '80
"I think that the price is respectable, considering all the options that are involved."

Mary Dananas, '80
"I find it to be high, but after talking to Father McPhail, I understand."

Jill Milvaz, '80
"I think that it's expensive, but it's good to be able to buy tickets to individual events."
Ahnh, spring...
Diverse topics, satisfied crowd

By Jeff Esposito

The PC poetry readings continued last Thursday night with the work of poet Brendan Galvin. A reading like this should have come at the end of the series since it was the stuff which terrific finales are made of. It transcended the merely profound; and even the simply sublime.

Aquinas Lounge was never so comfortably crowded. Members of the faculty were present in a less formal guise than protocol usually allows. Students were plentiful, an odd mishap for a poetry reading. We had come to hear a piece or two of fine poetry, and we knew there would be no disappointment.

Galvin read in a voice that was the sound of an uncommon familiar-ity, a voice that could be known without ever having been met. A good movie, a good piece of music, a good meal, allows you to recover the dullness of an everyday existence. This reading was even better.

The poet spoke on such diverse topics as old clothes, bats (of the blood sucking variety), children, and New England weather. All these different things brought common memories to mind. Every poem, serious or sardonic, had a quality of remembering. The imagery was tangled and that is the most striking thing about the works.

Wit and cleverness are the tools of a lesser poet. Galvin is funny. Understanding and empathy are fashionable games played by some writers. In the piece "Baits," Galvin demonstrates sympathy for the "puppy nosed things" which people mistreat.

The spring series will continue with an Alumni/Students reading April 17.

Pops to debut

John Williams will make his Providence and New England debut as conductor of the Boston Pops on Monday, April 21, when he leads the Orchestra in a concert at the Ocean State Theater at 8 p.m.

Williams, who was recently appointed the 19th conductor in the newly-five-year history of the Pops, will open the spring season in Boston's Symphony Hall on Tuesday, April 29th.

The program for Providence will include Leonard Bernstein's Candide Overture, Franz Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 with Janice Weber as soloist, selections from the Broadway musical Camelot, the Love Scene and March from Williams' own film score for the movie Superman, and Harry's M. Louis Blues March.

Tickets are $12.25, $10.25 and $7.25, available now at the Ocean State Theater box office, Rowe Ticket Agency, and Ladd Music.

By Mark Patinkin

PROVIDENCE JOURNAL-BULLETIN

PROVIDENCE (AP)—If you're a woman who's bored with Arrepge, tired of Charlie and unimpressed by Chanel, take heart. There could be a breakthrough in the fragrance world.

Sometime this year, you may be able to smell like Providence. Honest.

A Chicago perfume company called "Make'scents" is thinking of marketing a new cologne just for you—in 200 bottles for $9.

It will be called "Providence..."

"We're very excited about developing a cologne for Providence," said Jan Basers, president of Make'scents. "All we need is a local company to help us market it."

The woman is serious and has been since August. That's when she got the idea with cheap T-shirts, plastic lobsters and pink lawn flaminigoes and decided to upgrade the souvenir market with local colleagues. She shipped into downtown Providence, to Chicago, and followed up with New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Boston, Atlanta, Dallas, Houston, Miami, St. Louis, and Detroit.

The obvious choice would be for Sarge's Trellis Plant, 33 E. Delaware, but any aroma that can follow the troops in a battered wagon, and make her living by selling trendy, clothing, shoes to the children. She and her children—two sons (Peter J. Cameron and James Maher) and a mate daughter (Wilma Mondi) move through the chaos of a world, physically and morally devastated by war. Mother Courage clings to two things—her children and her cart of merchandise—and is gradually stripped of everything but the cart, and her will to go on.

Brecht tragically points out that those who make a living from war must pay for it; as misfortune upon misfortune pile up Mother Courage's back.

In the evening of this production of Mother Courage, Harkins Auditorium has received another "facet" by its designers.

Scene designer Elizabeth Peru-Delp has divided the room in half, with a roadway-like platform extending the length of the room, and upon which the various episodes will be staged. The audience will sit on either side, facing each other.

See MOTHER, Page 3

By D.P. Foster

Tonight, the PC Theatre Festival will present its final mainstage production of this season—Berthold Brecht's masterpiece of epic theatre, Mother Courage and Her Children.

Continuing in its tradition of producing plays which coincide with the college curriculum (i.e. Candide, Lysistrata, and Saint Joan.) Mother Courage represents another chance for PC students to view a dramatic presentation of a work of literature which they read in classes such as Development of Western Civilization.

The production is being staged in Harkins Hall Auditorium, and will run tonight through Sunday (March 30) at 8 p.m.

Mary G. Farrell, a new member of the Theatre Festival's Faculty this year, will be making her directing debut at PC with this production of Mother Courage.

A drop of the 17th century 30 Year's War between the Catholics and the Protestants, Mother Courage and Her Children is the story of a tough old woman, Mother Courage (Kate Farrel), who follows the troops in a battered wagon, and makes her living by selling trendy, clothing, shoes to the children. She and her children—two sons (Peter J. Cameron and James Maher) and a mate daughter (Wilma Mondi) move through the chaos of a world, physically and morally devastated by war. Mother Courage clings to two things—her children and her cart of merchandise—and is gradually stripped of everything but the cart, and her will to go on.

Breht tragically points out that those who make a living from war must pay for it; as misfortune upon misfortune pile up Mother Courage's back.

In the evening of this production of Mother Courage, Harkins Auditorium has received another "facet" by its designers.

Scene designer Elizabeth Peru-Delp has divided the room in half, with a roadway-like platform extending the length of the room, and upon which the various episodes will be staged. The audience will sit on either side, facing each other.

See MOTHER, Page 3

Want to smell like Providence?

PC preview:

Mother Courage

By D.P. Foster

Tonight, the PC Theatre Festival will present its final mainstage production of this season—Berthold Brecht's masterpiece of epic theatre, Mother Courage and Her Children.

Continuing in its tradition of producing plays which coincide with the college curriculum (i.e. Candide, Lysistrata, and Saint Joan.) Mother Courage represents another chance for PC students to view a dramatic presentation of a work of literature which they read in classes such as Development of Western Civilization.

The production is being staged in Harkins Hall Auditorium, and will run tonight through Sunday (March 30) at 8 p.m.

Mary G. Farrell, a new member of the Theatre Festival's Faculty this year, will be making her directing debut at PC with this production of Mother Courage.

A drop of the 17th century 30 Year's War between the Catholics and the Protestants, Mother Courage and Her Children is the story of a tough old woman, Mother Courage (Kate Farrel), who follows the troops in a battered wagon, and makes her living by selling trendy, clothing, shoes to the children. She and her children—two sons (Peter J. Cameron and James Maher) and a mate daughter (Wilma Mondi) move through the chaos of a world, physically and morally devastated by war. Mother Courage clings to two things—her children and her cart of merchandise—and is gradually stripped of everything but the cart, and her will to go on.

Breht tragically points out that those who make a living from war must pay for it; as misfortune upon misfortune pile up Mother Courage's back.

In the evening of this production of Mother Courage, Harkins Auditorium has received another "facet" by its designers.

Scene designer Elizabeth Peru-Delp has divided the room in half, with a roadway-like platform extending the length of the room, and upon which the various episodes will be staged. The audience will sit on either side, facing each other.

See MOTHER, Page 3

By Marie Robitaille & Mark Vogel

Mark: It happened all of a sudden. The way a lot of things have been happening lately. The first of my dreams asked if I'd like to dance with her. I told her no, I felt like, the floor. Before I could shut out a "Yes," she added thirty hours.”

With God's model of feminine perfection? I wondered... Can I satisfy this clone of Bo Derek? Then, when she said that she would pay me, I said, "Baby, for you, I'd do it for free."

Mark: When I told him that we had to get people to pledge $10, I thought I had said the wrong way. Anyways, I've always wanted to be in a marathon and the Cancer Society was certainly a good cause, so I went around to my friends for pledges and Mitch went around to his.

Mark: I couldn't believe my ears. She said that she wanted to get other people involved, like a manager of trees or something. I just asked myself, "Hasn't level-headed Marie B. turned into a wild, uncontrollable animal?" But then April 26th let loose."

For two and a half weeks I waited in anticipation of my wish coming true."

Marie: As soon as I got to her, she told me that we were going to survive the open-ended marathon. "We're very excited about this," said Ian Baxter, president of Marketing and Development of Makes Scents. "All we need is a distributor shows an interest."

Honest.

And Providence? Well, we just couldn't have a problem here. Providence? Well, we just couldn't have a problem here.

What's the problem? A shirt unbuttoned to his navel at the disco roller rink. It's a shirt unbuttoned to his navel at the disco roller rink.

By Marie Robitaille & Mark Vogel

Mark: It happened all of a sudden. The way a lot of things have been happening lately. The first of my dreams asked if I'd like to dance with her. I told her no, I felt like, the floor. Before I could shut out a "Yes," she added thirty hours.”

With God's model of feminine perfection? I wondered... Can I satisfy this clone of Bo Derek? Then, when she said that she would pay me, I said, "Baby, for you, I'd do it for free."

Mark: When I told him that we had to get people to pledge $10, I thought I had said the wrong way. Anyways, I've always wanted to be in a marathon and the Cancer Society was certainly a good cause, so I went around to my friends for pledges and Mitch went around to his.

Mark: I couldn't believe my ears. She said that she wanted to get other people involved, like a manager of trees or something. I just asked myself, "Hasn't level-headed Marie B. turned into a wild, uncontrollable animal?" But then April 26th let loose."

For two and a half weeks I waited in anticipation of my wish coming true."

Marie: As soon as I got to her, she told me that we were going to survive the open-ended marathon. "We're very excited about this," said Ian Baxter, president of Marketing and Development of Makes Scents. "All we need is a distributor shows an interest."

Honest.

And Providence? Well, we just couldn't have a problem here. Providence? Well, we just couldn't have a problem here.

What's the problem? A shirt unbuttoned to his navel at the disco roller rink. It's a shirt unbuttoned to his navel at the disco roller rink.
STELLA ARTOIS
THE GREAT TASTE IN EUROPEAN BEER

Start with a two-roomed facility and some hard-working people. Add a lot of imagination, planning, and mix with a good dose of dedication. What do you have? The Last Resort.

The Board of Governors operates The Last Resort, which is open Monday through Friday for morning coffee and doughnuts, Tuesday evenings for coffee-houses sparked with live entertainment, Sunday nights for films, and once per weekend as a social club. For more information, contact the BOG at 865-2493.

Laura Callahan and roommate enjoy the atmosphere of the coffee house.

Stella Artois (Ar-twà) is part of a brewing tradition that began more than 600 years ago in the year 1366. The robust, hearty light lager taste comes from old world brewing that patiently insists that every drop is matured a full 63 days. Today in more than 50,000 bars and restaurants all across the Continent, Europe's discriminating beer drinkers ask for the great taste of Stella Artois. Now you can, too.

This Time – Make it Stella Artois
Dance marathon
Continued from Page 6
Marie: Fortunately, I had been there before, so I knew where the building was. We walked in, registered, and we each took a cot.
Then, one of the RASP (Redheads, Are Special People) members told us there were cots for each couple, not each person.
I looked at Mitch. He looked at me, when the drool from his mouthe. I thought maybe I could use it on alternate breaks. I wasn't worried though, we were friends.
He respects my body, as well as my mind. Sure. Seven o'clock rolled around.
Mark: The dance finally began.
I don't know about Marie, but my stomach was about to take off.
All three of Providence's television stations were there and every time a camera would show up, I would try to stick a hand or an unplugged all of their equipment.
There was a good selection of bands: popular music, disco, new wave, and Southern Rock. I remember a couple of them, but for the most part, they started to sound the same. The first band, a rock group, had dedicated a Who song to Buddy Cianci. As if by divine Providence, who do you think showed up within a half hour? If you guessed John Paul II, I'd have to say "Correct!" It was the most right-on group of people he had ever met. OK, Fine.
On that note, the band started playing their next number and who do you think was on the drums, playing as if it was a disco song? Margaret Thatcher?
WRONG!
Marie: There was one band that I can honestly say I absolutely danced to it. It was new wave. Mitch and I started hanging our heads together, then some weirdo told us that we were dancing punk, not new wave. Of course, how silly of me. After two drinks, no one was allowed in the building, except the dancers and volunteers. During this time, RASP showed silent movies while they played records. There was one incident in the late morning that Mitch had with a bagel.
Mark: We were always supplied with food during our breaks, I have always had a "thing" about bagels! So I grabbed one that had cream cheese on it and headed for the cot. I couldn't finish it, so I put it on the cot and curled up for twenty winks. When I woke up, I couldn't find it, so I just went downstairs and started dancing again. Then, all of a sudden, I found it.
Marie: We were dancing, when he said to me, "Marie, I think I found the bagel." I called the missing bagel from the seat of his pants. I nearly died with laughter.
It was one of those incidents you don't have to be awake for forty straight hours to appreciate the humor. The rest of the day went by pretty much uneventfully. I was amazed that we had gone as far as we did. Then came the night time.
Mark: It was the last two hours when Marie and I started getting crazy. The animal in her was manifesting itself again. When I asked her if we could have a ride home, she said, "Mama!" When I turned white.
On the next break we ran to the phone, but to no avail. At last ditch effort I called Father Mahoney. The conversation was as follows: "Hello? Dad? Can you pick me up from my thirty hour date? Please? After a little remorse, he said, "We're having so I went back to wiggle my buns for two more hours. Marie: We reumed complete lunacy for the last hours. Even when we dropped dead, I don't think we would have been disqualified. I think the fifteen minutes had off the floor. It was so exciting.
The place was pure "Animal House" at the end. We were supposed to leave to catch our ride, but we stayed for a few minutes for the after ceremony.
Everyone got certificates. The couple that won the trip to Bermuda was half crippled. Not exhausted, but the guy had a cast on because he had strained ligaments. They raised $3,000.
Mitch and I raised $500. I still thought we had done very well. It was the first year that every couple that entered had finished. It was never to be a part of it. Both Mitch and I had a fantastic time and we plan to do it again. But not until next year.

March 26, 1980

Sign-ups for interviews for the
'80-'81 Cowl Editorial Board will begin today through April 2. Interviews will be during the week of April 13.

No prior Cowl experience is necessary.

The last hurrah
(Continued from Page 4)

Continued from Page 4

How to impress your date, eat great, and
save a few bucks
(all in one night.)

Treat her—or him—to any one of our nationally-famous specialties listed below in our money-saving coupons. Because, even when the money's a little tight, you deserve the best.

 Comm'in' on for good
Pizza Hut

$5.99 Spaghetti
Dinner for 2!

1778 Mineral Spring Avenue
North Providence 353-5560

Dig into 2 large spaghetti dinners with meat sauce, garlic bread and two salads. Beverage not included. Coupon good for one dinner, totals will vary with other coupons or specials. Other expiries: April 26, 1980.

$4.99 Pizza Dinner for 2!

1778 Mineral Spring Avenue
North Providence 353-5560

Take your pick of 2 of our huge, delicious sandwiches and two salads. Beverage not included. Coupon good for one dinner, totals will vary with other coupons or specials. Other expiries: April 26, 1980.

$4.99 Sandwich and Salad
Dinner for 2!

1778 Mineral Spring Avenue
North Providence 353-5560

2 Beers for the price of 1!
With the purchase of any large pizza.

1778 Mineral Spring Avenue
North Providence 353-5560

Dine in or Carryout.Coupon good for one dinner, totals will vary with other coupons or specials. Offer valid through April 26, 1980.
The B.O.G. News

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>The Last Resort presents</th>
<th>Tomorrow BOG &amp; Chorus present</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>“Dave Binder”</td>
<td>“BINGO”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>This Friday, March 28</td>
<td>‘64 Hall</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8 p.m.—1 a.m.</td>
<td>7:30 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Advance Tickets Only!</td>
<td>Admission — $1.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>On sale now in</td>
<td>Boards — 25¢ each</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the BOG Ticket Office</td>
<td>5 / $1.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

BOG Committee Chairperson Interviews

- Sunday, March 30 1-4 p.m. and 6-9 p.m.
- Monday, March 31 6-10 p.m.

To be interviewed you must sign-up in the BOG office by Friday, March 28, at 4 p.m.

The BOG Committees are:

- The Last Resort
- Films
- Coffeehouse
- Fine Arts
- Lectures
- Concerts
- Social
- Research & Development
- Video
- Publicity
- Travel

Interviews will also be taken for these positions:

- Ticket Manager
- Secretary
- Programmer

SIGN-UP NOW!

(no prior BOG experience is necessary)
A look back on a season of success

By Bob Walsh

The first warm breezes of spring have begun to blow through the Providence College campus. Frisbees, softballs and baseballs have begun to fill the air as students abandon their winter hibernation and revel in the warmer weather. Another spring has come, another winter gone. There are those who welcome spring as an old friend who hasn't been seen for a long time. For them, the wintry, wintry days of January and February melt away from a sharp reality to a dim memory with the first warm breeze of March, a memory best forgotten.

For others, the basketball fans and the hockey fans and all the other devotees of winter sports, spring brings a twinge of regret. Another season, successful or otherwise, has come to an end. All the hopes of last fall have either been fulfilled or relegated to a "Wait until next year" status.

Friar fans have a great deal to look back on with pride. The Providence College community was well represented by their athletes in almost every competition last winter.

When people talk Providence College sports, basketball immediately comes to mind. Though still a favorite, the Friars were bumped from the limelight this season in the history of men's hockey at PC. No Friar hockey team had ever won 20 games in a single season. This year's team won 21.

The Friar hockey team was a bit of a question mark at the beginning of the season. Standout goalminder Bill Milner was gone, as was the offensive firepower of Ahern and Bauer. Could they perform as well as they had in previous seasons or would their youth and inexperience hinder their success?

The question marks got bigger when the Friars dropped their first four contests. The Friars believed in themselves and soon did the rest of the East and the nation. After the slow start, they won seven in a row and rocketed themselves to a second place in the ECAC and a fifth place ranking in a national coaches' poll.

Youth, rather than being a problem, was the stable core of a strong team. In goal scoring and goalminding, the Friars excelled. Once again Cornell ended the Friars' season on a sour note, but that loss should not overshadow their successes. The great moments, beating Minnesota-Duluth, the dramatic comeback victory over UNH and the win at home against BC are no less sweet because of the early end of the season.

The Lady Friars' hockey team was no less successful than the men's squad. Head coach Tom Palamara built one of the finest collegiate women's hockey teams in the country. In his six years as head coach he has changed the Lady Friars' fortunes around dramatically.

The manner in which the Lady Friars won their games this year was even more impressive, to say the least. A 6-2 victory would have been a rather conservative score for this year's team. Scores of 12-1 and 15-0 were the norm rather than the exception.

Kathy Lenahan, Alexis Sgobbo, Mary Ellen Riordan, Connie Rieger and many more led the Lady Friar juggernaut this past winter. Young Jane Ford did a fine job in goal. Like the men, the ladies were downed by their perennial enemies, UNH. The Lady Friars were denied the EAIAW championship in a heartbreaking 5-2 loss to UNH at Schneider Arena.

The girls' basketball team was also quite a success. After four appearances in post season play-offs, the Lady Friars finally took the title. The girls travelled to Cambridge on the weekend of March 8 and came home with the Northeast EAIAW championship.

Moments of brilliance for the hoopers were Lynn Shively's and Mary Ann McCoy's 1,000 points, the victory over Cheyney State at the Civic Center (Albeit an empty Civic Center), and of course the championship victory of BU.

Senior co-captains Mary McCoy and Lynn Shively were without a doubt the driving force behind the Lady Friars' success this year, but it was not their efforts alone that carried the team to the NCAA playoffs. Rita Fraser, Peggy Egan, Sue Hudson, Madeline McCoy...a list of all the contributors would be their entire roster.

All this has not been meant as any slight to the Providence College men's Basketball program. Under first year coach Gary Walters, the PC basketball team was supposed to improve on last year's 10-16 record. They did posting an 11-16 record, but that statistic does not tell the entire story.

In some respects they were predictable, losing the games they were supposed to lose and winning the games they were supposed to win. The spirit of the Friars exhibited in these games was what really made their efforts worthwhile.

The Friars pledged themselves to tighter defense and played that way all year. Against Duke, Louisville, and St. John's, the Friars kept themselves in the game against superior talent by playing a strong zone defense and sound fundamental basketball.

Ricky Tucker proved to be a pleasant surprise among an otherwise dismal freshman crop. Rudy Williams was strong again as was Jerry Scott, and Rick Hunger came on strong in the second half of the season.

First year coach Gary Walters did an excellent job with the talent he had. The intensity with which he coaches and his commitment to the team promises future success for the Friars.

Join the Cowl staff!
Staff Meeting April 16
6:30 p.m.
Cowl Office Slavin 109

"From now on anybody who owns a factory that makes radioactive waste has to take it home with him to his house." - Martin Bregman

OPENING THIS MONTH
AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

---

ICELANDAIR TO EUROPE
BIG BIRD AND A LOW FARE

$499
$533

No restrictions

$499
$533

From
From

Copenhagen
London

To
To

Lisbon
London

ICELANDAIR

He loves you. Do what he says.

A MARTIN BREGMAN Production
ALAN ARKIN as SIMON
With MADELINE KAHN

Directed by MARSHALL BRICKMAN • Produced by MARTIN BREGMAN
Screenplay by MARSHALL BRICKMAN & THOMAS BAUM

Marshall Brickman

OPENING THIS MONTH
AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

---

ICELANDAIR TO EUROPE
BIG BIRD AND A LOW FARE

$499
$533

No restrictions

$499
$533

From
From

Copenhagen
London

To
To

Lisbon
London

ICELANDAIR

He loves you. Do what he says.

A MARTIN BREGMAN Production
ALAN ARKIN as SIMON
With MADELINE KAHN

Directed by MARSHALL BRICKMAN • Produced by MARTIN BREGMAN
Screenplay by MARSHALL BRICKMAN & THOMAS BAUM

OPENING THIS MONTH
AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU!
Continued from Page 12

ranked in the top ten in the nation and remained in the ranks for the rest of the season.

Three big wins against Northeastern, RPI and Vermont set the stage for an away game against division leader Boston College.

Boston College slowed the Friars down to the tune of 4-1. That did not stop the Friars' winning ways as they went on to defeat a tough Yale team away and Clarkson and St. Lawrence back home on a weekend doubleheader.

A high flying Dartmouth team defeated the Friars at home to stop their mini-streak. But four in a row, against Boston University, the University of New Hampshire away, and Princeton and the University of New Hampshire at home saw the Friars clinch a home ice berth for the upcoming playoffs. It was the first time in sixteen years that the Friars would be the host. They still had a chance for the best record in the ECAC, but the University of Maine squeaked that as they beat PC, 6-5, at home.

The second game against BC was important for the final standings and the Friars wanted to be the best. They defeated the BC Eagles, 6-2. A loss in the final game to Cornell seemed meaningless at that time.

The Friars finished second in the ECAC and had to play Colgate in the playoffs. For two periods it was anyone's game, then five third period goals gave the PC pucksters an 8-3 win. The bubble burst three days later at the Boston Garden to Cornell by the score of 6-5. This game saw Cornell come back from a 5-2 defeat with 19 minutes remaining.

The impossible dream had suddenly turned into an unforgettable nightmare. A defeat of Clarkson in the consolation game gave the Friars and their fans a flicker of hope. That flicker did not last long as Cornell and Dartmouth were sent to represent the ECAC.

So ends an unforgettable year, as the Friars had the most wins in their history—21. Thanks to Jeff White, Danny Martin, Dan Haskins, and Frank Johnson for their four years playing PC hockey.
Lamoriello's boys: a banner year

By Ron Piscione

The 1979-1980 hockey season was one that surprised many fans and disappointed those same fans. It surprised many because the Friars were not picked to finish in playoff contention. But they finished second in the ECAC behind Boston College. This was surprising to be a rebuilding year for Lou Lamoriello's young squad. The year was disappointing in the fact that the dream of playing in the Providence Civic Center for the NCAA championship never materialized. The obstacle being the Big Red of Cornell who defeated the Friars, 6-5, in the ECAC semi-finals at the Boston Garden. The hope, the impossible dream of an NCAA flag is still elusive.

The Friars of '79-'80 were a young team with only four seniors on the roster. They were young and at the beginning of the season many mistakes were made. They lost their first four games and people began to think it was going to be a long year. But then things quickly turned around as they won seven games in a row, including three big wins to capture the Brown Tournament with a 4-2 win over Brown, Captain Jeff "Booboo" Whisler was the most valuable player of the tournament. At this time people all over the country began to take notice of this surprising team. They were

Dan Dillon: Super runner gone unnoticed?

By Kevin Burke

Most students here at Providence College are familiar with cross-country coach Bob Amato's so-called "Irish Connection" and all the prize runners that have come out of that quest. Certainly, PC has had its share of great European runners. However, it was not totally necessary for Amato to travel overseas to find himself one certain runner that has matched his talent with the world's finest. Chicopee, MA was as far as the coach had to go to find Dan Dillon, a senior here at PC, who is considered by many to be one of the best cross-country runners in America. Still, how many people are aware of Dillon's great track and cross-country accomplishments? Well, I did not know just how good he was, and I wrote about the sport for the entire fall and winter seasons.

After running a 9:11 two-mile in his senior year at Chicopee Comprehensive, Dillon came to Providence. Since then he has been all uphill. In his junior year at PC, Dillon took a six month sabbatical, and then returned to Providence, making himself ineligible for competition last fall. However, Dillon took his talent elsewhere, namely to the Greater Boston Track Club. While running with men such as Bill Rodgers and Randy Thomas, he captured a fourth place in the National Cross-Country Championships in November. A second place finish to teammate Greg Meyer in the Canadian Championships was also among his many excellent achievements this past fall. In the American Cross-Country Trials in Atlanta, Dillon found himself with the fastest 3,000 meter time.

My calling Dan Dillon's 12th place finish in the World Cross-Country Championships on March 9 a "fine" performance was indeed the understatement of the year. As mentioned in my last article about the event, it is the most prestigious of all cross-country races in the world. A 12th place against the world's finest from 30 nations is incredible, especially since this young man is just 22 years old. Acknowledging my own mis-calculations of Dillon's outstanding showing, I approached him the other day in a rather apologetic manner. Dillon just has not received the kind of publicity that he rightly deserves.

Dan Dillon is a modest and soft-spoken man. Dan Dillon is the epitome of a true competitor.

Lady runners set for competition

By Mary Gibbons

The Friars dropped this tough battle to BU but then they rattled off 6 wins in a row.

The signs are here! The sun is shining, flowers will soon be budding, and PC's women's track team is once again practicing in the fresh air in anticipation of their outdoor track season. After a successful year of indoor track, the Lady Friars should fare well this spring. This winter saw Providence rise through the ranks of indoor track teams as they had their most successful season yet. With an overall record of 3-3, the Lady Friars fought off such opponents as Colby and Holy Cross. Their greatest victory, however, was a 50-47 win over Dartmouth College.

Nine women competed in the New England's in which Janice Cataldo placed sixth in the 800. Eight women competed in the Eastern's, with Sue Ratcliffe leading them with a ninth place finish in the two mile. Maura McGuire captured a 12th place in the high jump. The relay of Jean Fiore, Sharon Clegg, Mary Codbout, and Chris Headle also placed 12th.

Veteran coach Kathy Cerra is hoping for returning members of the winter track team to lead the outdoor team. Senior Janice Cataldo will be as strong in the half mile as the distance runners. Sue Ratcliffe, Shelia Barry and Gona Mulligan will be successful in the one and two mile events. Sophomore Rory Carmody will be leading the Lady Friars in the discus and shotput, Sharon Clegg will be top girl in the 400, and freshman Jean Fiore will hopefully continue her indoor success in sprints and the long jump.

One problem noted by coach Cerra is that many of their dual meets carry many of their dual meets. Coach Cerra is anticipating a very exciting season. The level of competition is tough and very close. Most of the meets should prove to be thrillers. The Lady Friars open their season April 1, with a til-met against Fitchburg and Bridge water.