BOG names new chairpersons

By Brian Otovic

Recently, the Board of Governors held their final meeting for the 1979-80 academic year in the Last Resort. Besides thanking this year's board for all the help and support they have given him, former BOG president Tom Corcoran also announced that tickets for each event during Spring Week will be available in a limited supply on the day of the event. The treasurer, Dick Gregory is in Iran, he will be replaced by Bill Alexander, a comedian/artist who will portray a student throughout his four years of college. Also, students who have previously bought a book of tickets are asked to come to each event prior to it's start, or your seat may be sold.

The new members of the Board of Governors for the 1980-81 have been chosen. The Last Resort Committee now includes Paul Malitait and Brian Otovic. Next year's Social Committee is under the direction of Bridg Collins and Peter Wolfe. The coffeehouse at the Last Resort will be run by Kelly Keane and Maura O'Brien.

The Travel Committee is comprised of Nancy Schiano and Peggy Doherty. The Film Committee welcomes Phil Orzech. Sue Transport will head the Fine Arts Committee. The Publicity Committee will be Kim Nangle, Rose Spasato and Kathy Claffitte. The Feature Committee introduces Tom Brennan and Ray Macriero. The Video Committee is under the helm of Mark Caffrey. The Ticket Manager will be Mary Ann Cogliaghi. The Concert Committee adds Nick Baver, and the Research and Development Committee will be run by Andy Kushiner. Lastly, the new Secretary will be Jerry Yapaola.

Are you in debt?

By Karen Ryder

The office of the Treasurer of Providence College has released a warning to all students who are presently in debt to the College. As stated on page 32 of the school bulletin, "All fees are payable in full and in advance, before the beginning of each semester. Indebtedness to the College automatically terminates enrollment and denies the right of a student to receive a degree or transcript."

The school issues several issues regarding the student's indebtedness, allowing ample time for payment. Underclassmen in this situation must pay all debts in full, prior to July 3, 1980. Until such time as the payment of all due bills, the student's registration is conditional. Registration will not be valid when the debt is settled.

The Treasurer's office stresses that unless the students' bills are paid by July 1, their attendance at PC will be terminated, without exception.

The College also has the right to prevent such students from taking examinations, or having any grades recorded. Seniors with outstanding debts will not be given a cap and gown. Also, their names will be neither included in the Commencement brochure, nor announced in public at the Civic Center on the day of Commencement, May 19, 1980. Thus, unless these seniors settle their accounts promptly, they will not graduate from Providence College. Rev. John S. Peterson, O.P., has stated that the College made every effort to be understanding in this matter, but can no longer afford to tolerate this situation.

McEnery chosen COA representative

Dennis J. McEnery has been selected as the new student representative to the Committee on Administration. McEnery, a member of the Class of '82, resides in Providence and is a commuter student at PC.

A business management major, McEnery will be acting as a liaison between Student Congress and Rev. Thomas R. Peterson, O.P., president of the college. The main function of the COA, which is comprised of members of the faculty and administration, is to advise Father Peterson on day to day operations of the school.

In the past, the COA has aided Father Peterson in making decisions regarding the field house, the guardhouse, and the food and variety store. PC is one of the few schools to have such a representative, reflecting the importance of student input in making decisions that affect the entire college community.

McEnery, who is replacing Bob Goudie in this position, was quoted as saying, "I hope to continue the job Bob Goudie did and help foster the relationship between Student Congress and the administration." McEnery officially started his term at the meeting of the COA today.

Mike Harris goes for a U.F.O. as Dan Gacecine and Tom Lavery close in.

Campus Council revitalized

By Doreen Popolillo

During the second week of March, the Campus Council met for the first time this semester. Under the chairmanship of Rob Giovine, the revitalized Campus Council aims to help the more than 45 clubs and organizations of Providence College deal with financial problems and future goals as an advisory committee to Council. The Council consists of representatives and members of all of the campus organizations. It hopes to influence the decision making process of Student Congress regarding such issues as student activity fees and individual club finances.

The Council will help every club meet its financial needs, club membership, and issues facing Student Congress, announced the Campus Council and future elections.

The first report was given by Peggy Doherty, the Treasurer of PC's computer finance. The Treasurer's office stresses the importance of student input in making decisions that affect the entire college community.

The last Student Congress met its financial needs, club membership, and issues facing Student Congress, announced the Campus Council and future elections.

Friar's Club chooses new members

The original purpose of the Friars Club was to serve as hosts to visiting guests of the College. It was organized on the basis of the Coreen Key Club of Dartmouth College and was intended as a welcoming organization for visiting athletes. Today, in addition to hosting visitors, the Friars Club participates in many of the College's social and academic functions.

Every year the Friars Club gives tours to interested high school students. Listed among a number of students are: organization of the Kappa Beta Sigma and the Kappa Delta. In addition, the Friars Club also works with registration, commencement, Parents' Weekend, and the freshman week. Basically, the Friars Club is a volunteer service organization. The Friars Club is a nonprofit group funded by the College. Many of their functions are done for charities, such as the John Street School and the Christian Brothers.

Students wishing to become members are interviewed and are judged on their personality and allegiance to the College. The Friars Club tries to choose those members who will best convey the spirit of the College, its purpose, value, and overall merit. The Friars Club consists of 56 members.

About the club, President James I. Elcock commented, "We are looking for people who are genuinely willing to dedicate themselves and their time to promote Providence College with enthusiasm. Our main job is to sell PC and we have to do it the best we can."

The newly elected members of the junior class include: Judy Barrett, Colleen Burns, Massim Cawley, Barbara Cort, Frank Deloss, Daniel Gaccione, Gina Genearilli, Mary Ellen Hales, Terrence Keegan, Ann Larkin, and Kathy Codega, '81. They will take over as news editor. New additions to the club will be editorial editor, Kevin Burke, '83; associate editor, Kathy Codega, '81; photo editor, Maureen Plouffe, '82; and art editor, Steve Sylvia, '83.

Financial aid survey results compiled

In an effort to appraise the employment needs of Providence College students, a survey was conducted during February by the Office of Financial Aid. The survey was administered and its data compiled by Jon Laling and Joyce Simard, administrative assistants at the Financial Aid Office. Surveys were distributed to each student through their Friar Station mail boxes. The following is derived from the subsequent data based on a 100% return of those surveyed.

Of the students surveyed, 70% are currently employed, almost half of whom are participants in the work-study program. The majority of estimated summer earnings ranged between $500 and $1500. This supports the $900 summer savings expected of each student for financial aid purposes.

The largest percentage of working students estimated that they earned between $500 and $1000 during the school year and worked between 6 and 15 hours per week. Again, these figures were closely related to the already expected by the Financial Aid Office.

Determining student awareness of the existing employment programs was a major focus of the survey. The results indicate that awareness was much lower than expected. Only half of the students were aware of the non-College Work-Study listings and the off campus work-study program.

Students were encouraged to offer comments and suggestions in regard to the employment programs. Several respondents indicated that they felt that there should be more non-College Work-Study employment opportunities on campus. Students also expressed discontent in regard to the fact that College Work-Study employees frequently work for sub-minimum wages.

Many respondents requested that information regarding the availability and functions of existing employment programs be disseminated to increase the level of student awareness.

The results of the survey are now being reviewed by the Office of Financial Aid. Following is a brief description of the off-campus College Work-Study program and the non-College Work-Study Program.

The Off-Campus College Work-Study Program is available to any recipient of College Work-Study, pending availability of funds. Students may be employed by any non-profit organization.

This would include such places as libraries, hospitals, social service agencies, and state agencies. The Financial Aid Office retains a list of available off-campus organizations that hire PC students, although students are free to apply at qualifying agencies other than those listed. The off-campus Work-Study Program is often available for the summer, thus allowing students to work close to home during the summer, even if it is not in the State of Rhode Island. During the summer of 1980, 65 students worked off campus and 89 students worked on campus. Funding for the summer of 1980 still remains tentative.

The results of the survey are now being reviewed by the Office of Financial Aid. Following is a brief description of the off-campus College Work-Study program and the non-College Work-Study Program. Any questions regarding the Off-Campus College Work-Study Program should be directed to the Financial Aid Office.

Is PC mis-programmed?

The use of computers in our society has grown significantly, now being found in homes, cars, classrooms, and offices. Ironically, this growth has not reached the academic computer center here at PC. Presently, there are no plans to expand this facility next year, while our administrative computer center has a new IBM system on order.

The Editorial Board of The Cowl feels that serious questions must be raised as to whether the administration is acting in the student body's best interest.

Since there are two separate computer centers here at PC we are forced to financially support two directors, two staffs, and the operation of two computer systems. The Cowl feels this situation warrants study to determine if a more economic means of operation exists. Possibilities include the consolidation of the two systems or the placing of the administrative function in the hands of a center outside of the college.

Additionally, The Cowl recognizes the lack of student facilities on campus. The need for new computers, whether in large systems or micro-computers, exists now. Continuing to wait does not increase student accessibility to computers but rather forces students to work with an antiquated system. We also feel that a new system with greater capabilities would increase use of computers in academic courses.

Since new technology is constantly being developed, new computers extensively it is imperative that student knowledge of their operation be increased.

The present system, in which the entire academic computer center is in one library room only causes overcrowding, whereas operating the system throughout campus could increase its efficiency. This would also allow teachers and students to work together creating a better educational environment.

For these reasons, The Cowl Editorial Board urges the administration to act swiftly to correct deficiencies in our computer systems so that students at PC can achieve a more desirable level of education.

New Athletic Board election urged

The recent Athletic Board process, coordinated by Student Congress has been surrounded by controversy. The Cowl Editorial Board feels that it is necessary to inform the PC student body of the errors surrounding this process.

The Athletic Board election was to be held on April 1 with the nomination period being March 24 through 30. Standard procedure for students who desire to run for a position is to report to the Congress office during the nomination period and obtain from any member of the Congress present nomination papers and a copy of the election rules. At this point, the member of the Congress would sign the students up as a prospective candidate and record the date and time the nomination papers were distributed. When the student returns with his or her completed nomination papers at the designated time and date, the nomination papers, and a copy of the election rules.

The ways and means committee was aware of the mistake made during the nomination period. Nevertheless, the chairman of this committee, along with the Student Congress President agreed to permit the election to be held although they were violating their own constitution.

It must be noted that the two students that did not fill out nomination papers, and were ultimately named vice president and treasurer, ran unopposed. This, of course, influenced Congress' decision to go ahead with the election, yet it does not justify their decision.

The ways and means committee ran the election incorrectly in another respect. Article IV, Section 6 of the Athletic Board's bylaws points out that the only offices that require an election on the Athletic Board are president and vice president. The positions of secretary and treasurer are appointed by the president and vice president. However, Student Congress ran the election for all four offices, again in violation of the Athletic Board bylaws.

Due to the inequities surrounding the Athletic Board election process, The Editorial Board of The Cowl feels that it would be in the interest of the student body to hold a new Athletic Board election in September. A new election is the only alternative available to Student Congress to correct its error.

Dear Editor:

I am grateful to Thomas Keegan for his insightful article, "Cords Should Hunt For Husband Material". Mr. Keegan's comments have brought to mind some inspirational—

Firstly, I agree that the prime role for the second-sex is to search for her "husband material". I believe women should not just enroll in home economics courses and TV home economics courses. This course teaches women about the many roles business and business are the practical ones. These men understand the value of the dollar. Women shouldn't worry of the right type of investment into the economics for they don't need good grades. Anyway, good grades intending men.

Secondly, I think that women emancipate themselves, and if they don't smarten up, they'll wake up one day as sad maid!! Or worse be cast into a sea, on which they don't understand logic, or mathematics systems. They hate football and cannot deal with the thorny world of business. Women pretend to adjust, to assimilate the values, that is imposed on them as an intuitive person ever understand man's tyranny and that man's power? How can a sensitive woman understand man's heroic games of war, spinning out of her frame of reference. Thomas Keegan writes: "The man must begin to play a more significant role in correcting this situation and the woman who is completely ignored.

I want to present a view of the gay male's way of life. It is not like men like who should control himself, simply because they are gay. Mr. Keegan, you must have made many women ashamed of their unfounded and rightly so! You show, without doubt, the schism between men and women. You reveal clearly the helplessness of communication with someone of your own sex.

Audrey Fontes Berry, '83

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to Thomas Keegan's article, "Cords Should Hunt For Husband Material". I want to take a long, serious look at my solution to the breakdown of the American family.

Firstly, I believe that all is the serious. Secondly, whether or not his serious, the very foundations of the family unity are on the upswing. Recent polls and surveys show that households with working mothers have stronger ties than ever. This is the result of my beginning, but most psychologists believe it will continue, eventually having great impact. This is attributed to several factors:

1) Monetary pressures (cited as the number two reason for divorce) are being alleviated due to double-earner homes, which are producing more harmonious relationships.

2) Communication (cited as the number one reason for divorce) has increased because husbands and wives are on more equal levels.

3) The necessity of husbands helping with household chores has created a spirit of teamwork.

Parent-child relationships have improved. Why? One reason is because time spent together is more limited and therefore more appreciated. Another reason is because fathers are playing more active roles in their children's lives, thereby increasing the chances that industries depending primarily on fathers, which are family-related are reporting significant increases.

I serve on elementary school children with working parents (as well as single parents) which the earlier works revealed that the children have better attitudes toward learning, higher self-esteem, greater degree of awareness and were better adjusted socially.

Jeannine Ludwig, '83

Dear Editor:

In reply to Mr. Keegan's ideas on women in college, I would like to comment on the fact that the present day business world would not be what it is if there were no women. Of course, you don't worry about the women in business, by the way. You do seriously think that there could be no innovation and progress in business without women. The future of the business world is beginning to understand the role of women. If you're in real trouble at work, I could see you throwing in cooking, housekeeping, dressing, making beds, etc.

The suggestion of husband hunting leaves a bad taste in my mouth. If the males could handle the above suggestions it would be possible for them to be more fund appropriated to their future.

Evelyn Cowl's decision in printing Mr. Keegan's blunt and charismatic \"Cords Should Hunt For Husband Material\" article reveals clearly the hopelessness of the American family, this simply a piece of poor, tasteless journalism. I would like to publicly recognize all mothers who have raised me with love and patience. During these poor men might have of the time it we could have of their time. Mr. Keegan, I think that you should take a long, serious look at my solution to the breakdown of the American family.

Dear Editor:

As a point of information regarding the March 26, 1980, Forum for Ideas column entitled "Coeds Should Hunt For Husbands, Not Careers!" was this simply a piece of poor, tasteless satire or is Mr. Keegan actually that misguided and shallow-minded that he made five columns of wasted space and an insult to the intelligence of the entire college community and women at Providence College.

Quad Party a Housing Success

By Bill Sullivan

The scene was perfect Sunday for one of the finest Quad parties that PC has had in several years. Sunny skies, WDOM, and the Busch van all contributed to a lively and energetic atmosphere that was certainly a part of that general, incapacitating, and ever-present April disease known as “spring fever.” The disease affected many: Monday form papers faded into non-existence as the Aretihe-1980 figures exploded in huge first-quarter profits. Naturally, the Beer stand up near the circle won hands-down as “the” place to be throughout the afternoon, and with the entire party was first rate.

Sunday afternoon brought out the best in everyone. I think it can be said that most of the student body at least made an appearance and many were innocently “dragged” away from an appearance and many were the student body at least made the best in everyone. I think it the entire party was first rate.

The afternoon was indeed a success for both the students and for those who worked so hard to make this annual event a great time. The Student Congress did a fine job in making sure that everything ran smoothly and their efforts are certainly appreciated.

For those who did withstand the temptation, I hope you had a good time. One can see in the library graffiti or counting the lights on the second floor.

Vacationland, U.S.A.

By Eileen Sullivan

Half of the student body of Providence College went South for Easter.

The rest of us preferred to remain North. “Who wants the exotic island of Bermuda or sunny Florida anyway, we ask?” We would much rather have missed once due to circumstances beyond her control.”

Friday was the last day the Resort was to be open for the entire night. The last Friday night when Two-Way Street played to a sell-out crowd. The dancing floor was packed with off-campus celebrating. The Resort was to be open for the next year as a social chairperson of the Last Resort, so we can expect bigger and better things for the Resort next year. Until September, we will all have to find another place that offers as much of a good time as the Last Resort. Good Luck!

Last Resort’s Two-Way finale

By Peggy Doherty

The Last Resort was the place to be last Friday night when Two-Way Street played to a sell-out crowd. The dancing floor was packed for the entire night.

For the first time since the Resort opened in January, there was not a line at the pinball machines. In fact, as soon as the Celtics game was over there was hardly a person in the game room. Everyone crowded into the barroom to listen to Two-Way Street. A surprise visit from Barcoo with his new-wave sunglasses sent the crowd into a roar. They laughed even louder when one of the performers from Two-Way Street put on a monologue.

Carol Dunphy was in rare form as she finished out the semester with a near perfect attendance record. She only missed once due to circumstances beyond her control.

Poetry & Fiction

Marge Piercey, well known author and poet, will be appearing Tuesday May 23rd at 8:00 p.m. in Aquinas Lounge. Piercey wll be reading from her astounding collection of novels and poetry, which include such titles as The Moon is Always Female, To Be Of Us, and The Twenty-Spoked Wheel Flushing. The night should certainly prove to be both interesting and entertaining, and for all the poets on campus, a chance to hear first-rate work from a first-rate poet.

King of suspense captivates PC

By Ann Zielinski

Stephen King, author of Carrie, Salem’s Lot, The Shining, and the new novel Needful Things, gave a guest lecture as part of the BOG lecture series. The lecture was well attended and the crowd enthusiastic as King went on to relate to the PC audience tales of mystery and suspense.

King spent much of the lecture relating stories and then discussed his many books. He spent much of his time talking about why he writes horror stories and the reasons people read them. He talked about horror stories because he “always liked fantasy” and wanted “the otherworldly” that he “always enjoyed scaring people.” Aside from this, King also said he derived a special pleasure in trying to create a successful scene of suspense.

It is King’s belief that people read horror stories because they enjoy being frightened. In a world where we are always surrounded by the “normal,” we want to come to know about the abnormal, of which horror is a part. King went on to tell his audience that the ideas for his horror stories have come from events that have blended together in his life through his own recollection of childhood stories.

King plans to release other works soon. His book The Shining has been made into a movie and is due to be released May 23rd. In addition, his next book Five Starters is due to come out in September and deals with certain aspects of psychic phenomena.

King spoke for about forty minutes and then fielded questions from the audience. Following the lecture, King autographed copies of his many books that listeners had brought with them. Friendly and congenial after the lecture, everyone was impressed with his presentation. King is many ways was a very capable, competent, and interesting lecturer who proved able to captivate his PC audience.

J.C. Penney opens new store in Vermont

Vermont's Two Penny Theater has announced plans for an eight-day intensive workshop that will begin on Saturday, May 24, and continue until Sunday, June 1, at Vermont College in Montpelier, Vermont. The workshop, entitled "The Energy of Comedy," will explore the dynamics of comedy in performance with an emphasis on Commedia Dell'Arte and Clowns. According to a brochure that describes the workshop, "Participants will adopt the working style of a professional theater ensemble. This includes physical warm-ups, movement classes, and improvisations in Commedia Dell'Arte and Clowns. The workshops will be open to anyone whose love is theater, including aspiring performers, serious students of theater, and those with a curiosity for the artform."

Teaching the workshop will be the six performers of the Two Penny Theater. Their theater efforts will be supplemented by a program of lecture-demonstrations, and performances by fine theater professionals. Tony Montanaro, founder of Maine's Celebration Mime Theater and a former teacher of mime, will perform with other members of his Mime Trio and will discuss the problems of mime in performance. John Emigh, Professor of English and Theater Arts at Brown University, will give a performance of his one-man show, Red Riding-Hood. Based on the "Pirate Red Riding-Hood" fairy tale, John Emigh's show explores the comic possibilities of the masks, costumes, and dance drama from the Balinese "topeng" theater tradition.

Two Penny Theater was founded by Donna and Frank Dorrman, both students of the French theater master, Jacques Livoy. In December 1972, now, seven years later, Two Penny Theater has established a solid reputation for high standards of performance and teaching in Vermont and throughout the Northeast. The troupe averages more than 100 theater engagements each year. It is assisted by grants-in-aid from the Vermont Council on the Arts and by a grant from the "Small Professional Theater Companies" program of the National Endowment for the Arts.

Tuition for the eight-day intensive workshop is $260. This includes all costs of instruction, lodging, and three meals a day. For further information, write: Nettie Forthelmann, Managing Director, Two Penny Theater, R.R. #1, Barre, Vermont 05641 or call (802)476-4177.

First glass elevator "lifts" downtown

The Biltmore Plaza Hotel, showpiece of the new downtown Providence, has finally begun operation of its "French Lift." It is the first of its kind in the country and runs from the lobby to the top floor along the outside of the building, giving a spectacular view of the State House and the East Side. The lift makes two stops, first at the third floor's "Cafe on the Terrace" greenhouse restaurant and then at the 17th floor's elegant revolving restaurant, "l'Appoge". Cafe on the Terrace is open for breakfast, lunch and dinner while l'Appoge serves lunch and dinner only. For further information or reservations call 421-0700.

J.C. Penney opens new store in Warwick

J.C. Penney, the nation's third largest retailer, has opened a new store in the Warwick Mall. It is the first Penney store in the greater Providence area and joins Jordan Marsh, Outlet and Filene's as an "anchor" tenant in the mall. Plans for the store originated in 1973, but due to changes in the economy, construction was held up until 1978. The lease between the mall and J.C. Penney had to be approved by the other mall tenants before construction began. The ownership of the building belongs to Penney while the land is leased from the mall.

The store has the latest in retailing, with point-of-sale computer terminals, "waterfall" displays racks, self-service stock- room areas and clear plastic shelving. Merchandise also reflects current trends with such clothing as "The Fox" sports wear (similar to the alligator), "Plain Pockets" denims and cords.

Getting to the Warwick Mall from PC can be done by bus or car. RIPTA busses run daily from Weybosset St., downtown, to the Warwick Mall and back. To get there by car, take Route 95 south to the Route 295 north exit in Warwick and follow the signs to the mall.

Women's track off to solid start

By Mary Gibbons

PC's women's track team is off to a solid start in their outdoor season. On Thursday, April 17, PC defeated Rhode Island College by a score of 41-26. Andrea Fiore was outstanding in that event. John Amato was certainly made their presence felt on April 12 at the UMass Relays. The day's competition was highlighted by Friar victories in both the 1500 meter and 3000 meter races, as well as a second place finish in the 10,000 meter invitational. Coach Bub Amato's 1800 tracksters were not alone, however, as two former PC stars were there to join them. Messieurs Dan Dillon and John Treacy showed up to take part in the festivities.

Dillon, now running for the Greater Boston Track Club, clocked a time of 14:15 to capture first place in the 5,000 meter race. Sophomore Ray Trow, who was second to Dan, in a mere seven seconds off the winning time. In another competition, senior Peter Crooke from Long Island ran a brilliant race in the 10,000 meter race as well, falling just eight seconds short of victory to Greater Boston member, Paul Oparowski. Pete's time of 29:47 was a personal best for him. In shorter distance races, Tony Ceone ran a 54 second quarter mile.

In the 1500 meter race, Providence graduate student John Treacy battled a strong headwind to capture top honors in that event. John's time of 3:40 is equivalent to about a 4:04 mile. However, Amato was especially impressed by the performances of freshmen Jim Fallon and Paul Maloney. Fallon took second to Treacy, running a personal best time of 3:56. Maloney ran 4:03, good enough for a credible seventh. The tracksters have one more big meet to go this year, the Pena Relays, which will be held in early May.

Amato's tracksters run well at UMass relays

Freshman Tim Farrell cradles past WNE defenseman. The Friars prevailed, 6-5.

Proving time after time their superiority in college track, the Providence College track team certainly made their presence felt on April 12 at the UMass Relays. The day's competition was highlighted by Friar victories in both the 1500 meter and 3000 meter races, as well as a second place finish in the 10,000 meter invitational. Coach Bob Amato's 1800 tracksters were not alone, however, as two former PC stars were there to join them. Messieurs Dan Dillon and John Treacy showed up to take part in the festivities.

There was one member of the track team who was not present at the UMass Relays. Senior John Berth was busy training for the famed Boston Marathon, which was run last Monday. Despite the cramps that hampered him, not to mention the 66 degree weather, John Berth still finished the grueling 26 miles 385 yard race in under three hours. The entire Cowell staff congratulates John on a job well done.

PC netmen lose 6-3 to Concordia

The Providence College men's tennis team recently competed in their third home match of the spring season and came away with a tough loss to the visiting squad of Concordia College, 6-3.

Set-backs were seen in the singles, as Peter Lyons, Bill Dinizio, Brian Chandley and Steve Charleston all lost in close three-setters. PC as well was swept in the first two doubles, but managed to hold off as the team of Chandley-Chalfen scored a point for the Friars in the third doubles position.

Concordia, which hails from the Bronx in New York, is north on their spring trip, and has already posted victories against the Bites of Wheelock College, the University of Rhode Island and Cape Cod College.

The PC net men look forward, with their record of 4-2, to upcoming matches against Holy Cross, Brown and URI as the key to a successful showing in the New England Championships at Yale University in two weeks.

Women's track off to solid start

By Mary Gibbons

PC's women's track team is off to a solid start in their outdoor season. On Thursday, April 17, PC defeated Rhode Island College by a score of 41-26. Andrea Fiore was just the first for the Lady Friars in the two mile while her teammate Janie Ladd and Debbie Dunay followed with second and third places. Jean Fiore was outstanding in that event, winning both the 100 and 200 meter races. Sharon Clegg also made a fine showing in the 440, as well as helping to clear 5 feet 6 inches for the 4 x 100 relay. Jean Fiore, Kathy Hessien, Martha Carson and Sharon Clegg raced to overcome RIC in that relay.

While these team members were doing their part to conquer the RIC runners, some of the top distance runners were at Boston College competing for individual merits. The PC runners came home with a super star in their midst as senior Janice Cataldo ran to set a meet record in the 3000 meter race with a time of 10:08. Her fellow Lady Friars, Sue Ratcliffe and Oona Mulligan finished a strong sixth and seventh, respectively, in that race.

The sprinters had their chance in the BC meet on Saturday as Sharon Fiore, and Janice Cataldo ran for PC. Clegg did well in the 440, as did Fiore in the 220 and 100. Janice Cataldo had another great day, setting a personal record of 2:17 in the 8 mile.

Double team of Chandley—Chalfen warm up before match.
Baseball team off to slow start...

By Chris Duffy

With high expectations after a fine season last year and a 6-3 record down South early this year, the Providence College baseball squad opened their 1980 campaign in a less than spectacular fashion. Don Mezzano's Friars compiled a 2-8 record before this past weekend.

In the Northern opener, Providence fell to division two Stonehill by an astronomical margin of 25-10. For the Friars it was just a case of bad fundamental baseball and a gaffe that all the Friars would like to forget. It was not a game that catcher Jack Burke would like to forget, however. The Stonehill catcher blasted three home runs and drove in nine runs in the romp.

Coach Alex Nahigian and his Crimson of Harvard were next in town. The Friars and Crimson played two tight games with each team prevailing. Providence won the first game behind catcher Steve Dellaposta's two-run homer and freshman Blaine Carroll's heroes in extra innings. Carroll singled and scored the winning run in the eighth inning.

The next game saw the Friars take a 3-1 lead on a Bob Oscarson homer, but then lost the lead and the game on late rallies by Harvard. Sophomore Scott Corliss pitched gutty baseball for the Friars, giving up only five hits over 6 2/3 innings. The winning run scored by Harvard was Marv Faber's game winner.

The University of New Hampshire Wildcats invaded Hendrick Field to take on the Friars, giving up only five hits over 6 2/3 innings. The winning run scored by Harvard was Marv Faber's game winner.

Boston College and Fairfield once again, the offense was not there. The freshman right-hander from LaSalle Academy threw 6 1/3 innings of effective ball, giving up the three runs, only one of which was earned.

The first Northern road trip of the season ended in tough losses for the Friars. The opposition was Holy Cross and the scores were 2-1 and 7-3. Shortstop Ron Perry showed the Friars that he plays baseball as well, if not better, than basketball. The All-American tripled home the tying run and scored the winning run in the first game. Paul Langfield of PC tossed a nifty four-hitter, but once again, the offense was not there.

The second game looked good for the PC cause when Keith Quinn ripped a two-run single in the fourth to give the Friars a 3-2 lead, but Perry led Holy Cross back again. After the Crusaders had tied the score in the fifth, Perry delivered a two-run single past the outstretched glove of the third baseman Ed Cahir to the cross, a lead that they would not relinquish.

The second game belonged to the friendly confines of Hendrick Field. UConn's Dennis Long made one bad pitch to Bob Oscarson (a sixth inning solo homer to left), but was in control most of the afternoon. The Huskies touched up transfer Paul Whitehead for four runs on only five hits. Two of those hits were off the bat of Westley's Tom Capalbo, who homered and tripled.

The Friars returned to the friendly confines of Hendrick Field to take on the University of Connecticut last Tuesday afternoon in a single game. The result was basically the same as was the case in the previous few games—the Friars ran into a box and were defeated. UConn's Dennis Long made one bad pitch to Bob Oscarson (a sixth inning solo homer to left), but was in control most of the afternoon. The Huskies touched up transfer Paul Whitehead for four runs on only five hits. Two of those hits were off the bat of Westley's Tom Capalbo, who homered and tripled.

The Friar bats finally came alive last Wednesday at Aldrich Doster Field at Brown University. In a game that will be continued at a later date, the Friars were leading the Bruins in a slugfest, 10-9, when the rainstorm arrived in Providence.

George Susce, last year's leading hitter, celebrated only his third game back in the lineup with a towering two-run shot over a left field fence. Steve Dellaposta homered too, being a hit to the opposite field bringing in three runs. Joe Penkala had a key single to drive in the tying run and got the first hit in that game. The remainder of the game will be played at PC preceding the PC-Brown doubleheader on May 3. (A tripleheader?)

The URI Rams made the short trip up from Kingston for a doubleheader last Thursday.

Of the surprise butchers duals as PC clobbered Rhode in the first game, 13-7, and URI retaliated in the second game, 11-4. The first game was simply the Bob Oscarson show. The sophomore second baseman went four for five, including two homers and a triple. Steve Dellaposta continued his long ball aura with a first inning grand slam. Montalban shut out Rhode over the last 4 2/3 innings. The second featured a nine run outburst by Rhode Island in the fifth inning off Mark Colenta and Langfield. But the Friars came back to within three on two-run homers by Tierney and Susce and a two-run triple by captain Ed Cahir. Chuck Bourgery of the Rams settled the issue by striking out Blaine Carroll with the tying run at the plate.

The Friar bats finally came to life and the Friars won 5-1. George Susce delivered the winning run scored by Peter Caracozza in the 6th inning and knocked out Dennis LaGasse. The junior pitcher, celebrated only his third start in the true spirit of Providence College. The team is packed with a powerhouse of players whose team effort is spectacular. There is a great deal of team spirit and cooperation that rounds out the team and gives the Lady Friars a "touch of class."

A recap of their recent games is in order, to stress their superb performances. Sundays, April 15, saw a smashing win over Brown University with a score of 11-1. This win gave them some added confidence and they were ready to face their next opponents, Bryant College. It must be said that "the college across the way" was handed an unbelievable loss, as the Friars ran by the largest fans, 17-1, a total embarrassment for the home field. Finally, in a double header with Bridgeport SOFTBALL, Page 12

In closing, I would like to point out that despite my real disagreement on the whole I am in concordance with your view of women in society. For, as Hanah Cowley once put it, "But what is woman?—only one of Nature's agreeable blunders."

three-run third inning.

While most students were enjoying the quad party on Sunday, the Friars were busy beating the Fairfield Stags in a doubleheader. The scores were 8-1 and 7-4. Paul Whitehead scattered seven hits in the first game while Bob O'Shaughnessy tied him for the record of most homers hit in one season with Pete Repucci. Former player Steve Rose each of which had seven.

Bert Montalbano turned in another stellar performance in the nightcap. The freshman gave up only three hits and four runs over the seven innings as PC completed the weekend sweep, 7-4. Steve Dellaposta and senior Ray Fontaine each drove in two runs.

STELLA ARTOIS

THE GREAT TASTE IN EUROPEAN BEER

Stella Artois (Ar-twá) is part of a brewing tradition that began more than 600 years ago in the year 1366. The robust, hearty light lager taste comes from old world brewing that patiently insists that every drop is matured a full 63 days. Today in more than 50,000 bars and restaurants across the Continent, Europe's discriminating beer drinkers ask for the great taste of Stella Artois. Now you can, too.
