Are you in debt?

By Karen Ryder

The office of the Treasurer of Providence College has released a warning to all students who are presently in debt to the College. As stated on page 32 of the school bulletin, "All fees are payable in full and in advance, before the beginning of each semester. Indebtedness to the College automatically terminates enrollment and awards, and the right of a student to receive a degree or transcript."

The school issues several issues regarding the student's indebtedness, allowing ample time for payment. Underclassmen in this situation must pay all debts in full, prior to July 1, 1980. Until such time as the payment of all due bills, the student's registration is conditional. Registration will not be valid when the debt is settled.

The Treasurer's office stresses that unless the students' bills are paid by July 1, their attendance at PC will be terminated, without exception.

The College also has the right to prevent such students from taking examinations, or having any grades recorded. Seniors prior approval of the Student Congress, which must be gained by a majority vote. McGunagle also reported that Congress has been granted a $5000 loan by the CoA to continue the job Bob Goudie did and help foster the relationship between Student Congress and future congressmen.

McEnery chosen COA representative

Dennis J. McEnery has been selected as the new student representative to the Committee on Administration. McEnery, a member of the Class of '82, resides in Providence and is a commuter student at PC.

A business management major, McEnery will be acting as a liaison between Student Congress and Rev. Thomas R. Peterson, O.P., president of the college. The main function of the COA, which is comprised of members of the faculty and administration, is to advise Father Peterson on the day to day operations of the school.

In the past, the COA has aimed Father Peterson in making decisions regarding the field house, the guardhouse, and the food and variety store. PC is one of the few schools to have such a representative, reflecting the importance of student input in making decisions that affect the entire college community.

McEnery, who is replacing Bob Goudie in this position, was quoted as saying, "I hope to continue the job Bob Goudie did and help foster the relationship between Student Congress and the administration." McEnery officially started his term at the meeting of the COA today.
Friar's Club chooses new members

The original purpose of the Friars Club was to serve as host to visiting guests of the College. It was organized on the basis of the Coret Key Club of Dartmouth College and was intended as a welcoming organization for visiting athletes. Today, in addition to hosting visitors, the Friars Club participates in many of the College's social and academic functions.

Every year the Friars Club gives tours to interested high school students. Listed among other activities are: organization of the Oktoberfest, participation in registration, commencement, Parents' Weekend, and Family Weekend. In addition, the Friars Club also works in conjunction with the Chaplain's Office and Admission's Office.

Basically, the Friars Club is a voluntary service organization. The Friars Club is a nonprofit group funded by the College and was intended as a welcoming organization for visitors. The Ring Committee, under the guidance of chairperson Lisa Bonnardell, has completed its unique design for the school ring of the class of 1982. The design encompasses many elements that relate to their four years at Providence College. The women have a choice of two styles of dinner rings as well as a signet ring. The men are offered both a black onyx, synthetic black spinel or synthetic black sapphire stone.

Financial Aid Survey Results Compiled

In an effort to appraise the employment needs of Providence College students, a survey was conducted during February by the Office of Financial Aid. The survey was administered and its data compiled by Jon Layne and Joyce Simard, administrative assistants at the Financial Aid Office. Surveys were distributed to each student through their Friar Station mail boxes. The following section is derived from the survey data based on a 10% return of these surveyed.

Of the students surveyed, 70% are currently employed. Almost half of whom are participants in the work-study program. The majority of estimated summer earnings ranged between $500 and $1500. This supports the $900 summer savings expected of each student for financial aid purposes.

The largest percentage of working students estimated that they earned between $500 and $1000 during the school year and worked between 4 and 6 hours per week. Again, these figures were consistent with the results expected by the Financial Aid Office.

Determining student awareness of the existing employment programs was a major focus of the survey. The results indicate that awareness was much lower than expected. Only half of the students were aware of the non-College Work-Study offerings and the off campus work-study program.

Students were encouraged to offer comments and suggestions in regard to the employment programs. Several respondents indicated that they felt that there should be more non-College Work-Study employment opportunities on campus. Students also expressed discontent in regard to the fact that College Work-Study employees frequently work for sub-minimum wages. Many respondents requested that information regarding the availability and functions of existing employment programs be disseminated to increase the level of student awareness.

The results of the survey are now being reviewed by the Office of Financial Aid. Following is a brief description of the off-campus College Work-Study program and the non-College Work-Study Program.

- Off-Campus College Work-Study Program is available to any recipient of College Work-Study, pending availability of funds. Students may be employed by any non-profit organization. This would include such places as libraries, hospitals, social service agencies, and state agencies. The Financial Aid Office retains a list of available off-campus organizations that hire PC students, although students are free to apply at qualifying agencies other than those listed. The off-campus Work-Study Program is available for the summer, thus allowing students to work close to home during the summer, even if it is not in the State of Rhode Island. During the summer of 1980, 65 students worked off campus and 89 students worked on campus.

Is PC mis-programmed?
The use of computers in our society has grown significantly, now being found in homes, cars, classrooms, offices and elsewhere. Fortunately, this growth has not reached the academic computer center here at PC. Presently, there are no plans to expand this facility next year, while our administrative computer center has a new IBM system on order. The Editorial Board of The Cowl feels that serious questions must be raised as to whether the administration is acting in the student body's best interest.

Since there are two separate computer centers here at PC we are forced to financially support two directors, two staffs, and the operation of two computer systems. This situation wastes student resources since there are no plans to expand this antiquated system. We also feel that a new system with greater capabilities would increase use of computers in academic courses. Because of this, the computers extensively it is imperative that student knowledge of their operation be increased.

The present system, in which the entire academic computer center is in one library room only causes overcrowding, whereas operating the system throughout campus could increase its efficiency. This would also allow teachers and students to work together creating a better educational environment.

For these reasons, The Cowl Editorial Board urges the administration to act swiftly to correct deficiencies in our computer system so that students at PC can achieve a more desirable level of education.

New Athletic Board election urged
The recent Athletic Board process, coordinated by Student Congress has been surrounded by controversy. The Cowl Editorial Board feels that it is necessary to inform the PC student body of the errors surrounding this process.

The new Board election was to be held on April 1 with the nomination period being March 24 through 30. Standard procedure for students who desire to run for such a position is to report to the Congress office during the nomination period and obtain from any member of the Congress present nomination papers and a copy of the election rules. At this point, the student body of the errors surrounding this process.

According to the bylaws of the Athletic Board, Article III, Section 2, "it shall be the duty of the chairman of the ways and means committee of the Student Congress, and the impartial members of the said committee to conduct and supervise the annual election..."

The ways and means committee was aware of the mistake made during the nomination period. Nevertheless, the chairman of this committee, along with the Student Congress President agreed to permit the election to be held although they were violating their own constitution.

It must be noted that the two students who did not fill out nomination papers, and were ultimately named vice president and treasurer, ran unopposed. This, of course, influenced Congress' decision to go ahead with the election, yet it does not justify their decision.

The ways and means committee ran the election incorrectly in another respect. Article IV, Section 6 of the Athletic Board's bylaws points out that the only offices that require an election on the Athletic Board are president and vice president.

Due to the inequities surrounding the Athletic Board election process, the Editorial Board of The Cowl feels that it lies in the interest of the student body to hold a new Athletic Board election in September. A new election is the only alternative available to Student Congress to correct its error.

Elcock thanks Friar nominees

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those students who showed their support to the initiative in the Friar's Club. This year, as in the past, electing new Friar's nominees is a process that involves all those who were interviewed possessed understanding of what it means to be a good Friar. However, due to the type of service and responsibility that a Friar requires, it was important to us to consider the need to limit its membership.

I would like to thank all those who were not accepted not only upon this decision on their character. At this time, I would like to publicly recognize all candidates who dedicated their time and concern to the Friar nomination process at Providence College.

The Club needs the support of the entire college community. The very foundations of its existence depend not only on its membership but on the people it serves.

Personally, I feel that next year's candidates will most certainly represent the entire student body and uphold our club's tradition of service.

James L. Elcock, President

Dear Editor:

I am grateful to Thomas Keegan for his insightful article, "Cops Should Hunt For Homosexuals". I believe that the author has brought to mind some inspirational and crucial points.

First, I agree that the prime role for the second police is to search for and apprehend the perpetrators of crime. However, women should not just enroll in home economics courses and TV cooking shows. We should take biology courses and learn about the medical and biological aspects of being a woman. Men are not just interested in sports, they also want to engage in literature, drama, and the arts.

Secondly, I think that women have to limit themselves and if they don't, they will risk being killed off. Women, on the other hand, have no such limitations. They can be anything they want to be.

Quad Party a Housing Success

By Bill Sullivan

The scene was perfect Sunday for one of the finest Quad parties that PC has had in several years. Sunny skies, WDOM, and the Busch van all contributed to a lively and energetic atmosphere that was certainly a part of that general, incapacitating, and ever-present April disease known as “spring fever.” The disease affected many: Monday form papers faded into non-existence as the Atherholders moved in large and loud in huge first quarter profits. Naturally, the Perk station up near the circle won hands-down as “the” place to be throughout the afternoon. And as if the entire party was first rate.

Sunday afternoon brought out the best in everyone. I think it could be said that most of the student body at least made an appearance and many were innocently “dragged” away from their studies. The best in everyone. I think it as “the” place to be throughout the afternoon. The time-proven, “compensating effect” of alcohol had somehow turned them into hard-core partiers. I felt happy that the PC community had come together once again and had gotten caught up in that friendly, congenial, and warm atmosphere that somehow distinguishes PC from all the rest. The Quad (for all its “lawn” (Ha!) may never be the same, but we can always be assured that the enjoyable memories of events such as these are special and help to make college “what’s it all about.”

Quad party in fine form Sunday.

Vacationland, U.S.A.

Half of the student body of Providence College went South for Easter.

The rest of us preferred to remain North. “Who wants the exotic island of Bermuda or sunny Florida anyway, we ask?”

We would much rather have stayed home to celebrate Easter with our families and relatives, wouldn’t we? Sure.

We didn’t think twice about our friends who were probably backing in the bus on endless and beautiful white beaches, did we? No, of course not. We were satisfied to set up camp in our backyards.

We may have needed an unseasonable amount of those days but we somehow still managed to burth our skin a little with the hopes that it would somehow transform itself into that “Cop- perette!” that had started.

I didn’t feel the want or need of the “Prop Club” (Louie’s South) or the banana contests at “The Button” when we had our favorite bar right down the street. It may be a dive, but it is just as much fun.

And who wants to live in luxury at the Tradewinds or the Riviera when we can stay at home with Mom and Dad? They’re happy to see us and “treat us like kings and queens.” Well, for the first few hours, anyway. After that its “Get it yourself” or “Clean up your mess.” But then again, I’m sure some of you had to have jogged through the puddles or jumped over the embankment when you could have had log jammed through the puddles.

Why red wine in tall glasses under the moonlight? King went on to tell his audience that he wants to come to know about the reasons why people read horror. That King plans to release other books that listeners had brought in, autographed copies of his many works. He spent much of the lecture relating stories and then discussing the problems that the College has with poetry, which include such rate works from a first-rate poet, Marge Piercy, well known is Always Female. To He of Us.

A special thank-you should be extended to Joe Doherty, Bobby Clark and John Durkin of the BOC. The trio put in many long hours, both getting the Resort open and maintaining it once it did. Both Doherty and Clark will be leaving PC for the “real world,” but Durkin will be back next year as a social chairperson of the Last Resort, so we can expect bigger and better things for the Resort next year. Until September, we will all have to find another place that offers as much of a good time as the Last Resort.

Good Luck!

Poetry & Fiction

Marge Piercy, well known author and poet, will be appearing at Providence College at 7:00 p.m. in Aquinas Lounge. Piercy will be reading from her astounding collection of novels and poetry, which include such well written works as The Moon is Always Female, To Be Of Us, and The Twisted-Spoked Wheel Flashing. The night should surely prove to be both interesting and entertaining, and for all the poetry fans on campus, a chance to hear first-rate work from a first-rate poet. Hope to see you there.

Stephen King, author of Carrie, Salem’s Lot, The Shining, The Dead Zone and Needful Things at Providence College on Thursday, April 12, at 7:30 p.m. as a guest lecturer as part of the BOG lecture series. The lecture was well attended and the crowd enthusiastically as King went on to tell the audience about the tales of mystery and suspense.

King spent much of the lecture relating stories and then discussed his many books. He spent much of his time talking about why he writes horror stories and the reasons why people read them. He literally would story-tell horror stories because he “always liked fantasy” and that he “always enjoyed scaring people.” Aside from this, King also said he derived a special pleasure in trying to create a successful scene of suspense.

I was King’s belief that people read horror stories because they enjoy being frightened. In a world where we are always surrounded by the “normal,” we want to come to know about the abnormal, of which horror is a part. King went on to tell the audience that the ideas for his horror stories have come from events that have blended together in his life through his own recollection of childhood stories.

King plans to release other works soon. His book The Shining has been made into a movie and is due to be released May 23rd. In Addition, his next book Five Starters is due to come out in September and deals with certain aspects of psychical phenomena.

King spoke for about forty minutes and then fielded questions from the audience. Following the lecture, King autographed copies of his many books that listeners had brought with them. He was friendly and congenial after the lecture, entertaining everyone as he was preparing his presentation. King in many ways was a very capable, competent, and interesting lecturer who proved able to captivate his PC audience.

J.C. Penney opens new store in Vermont

J.C. Penney, the nation's third largest retailer, has opened a new store in the Warwick Mall. It is the first Penney store in the greater Providence area and joins Jordan Marsh, Outlet and Filene's as an "anchor" tenant in the mall. Plans for the store originated in 1973, but due to changes in the economy, construction was held up until 1978. The lease between the mall and J.C. Penney had to be approved by the other mall tenants before construction began. The ownership of the building belongs to Penney while the land is leased from the mall.

The store has the latest in merchandise, with point-of-sale computer terminals, "waterfall" display racks, self-service stock-room areas and clear plastic shelving. Merchandise also reflects current trends with such clothing as "The Fox" sportswear (similar to the alligator), "Plain Pockets" denims and cords.

Getting to the Warwick Mall from PC can be done by bus or car. RIPTA buses run daily from Weybosset St., downtown, to the Warwick Mall and back. To get there by car, take Route 95 south to the Route 295 north exit in Warwick and follow the signs to the mall.

Vermont's Two Penny Theater has announced plans for an eight-day intensive workshop that will begin on Saturday, May 24, and continue until Sunday, June 1, at Vermont College in Montpelier, Vermont. The workshop, entitled "The Energy of Comedy," will explore the dynamics of comedy in performance with an emphasis on Commedia Dell'Arte and Clowns. According to a booklet that describes the workshop, "Participants will adopt the working style of a professional theater ensemble. This includes physical work, movement classes, and improvisations in Commedia Dell'Arte and Clowns." The workshop will be open to anyone whose love is theater, including amateur performers, serious students of theater, and those with a curiosity for the experience. Teaching the workshop will be the six performers of the Two Penny Theater. Their teaching efforts will be supplemented by a guest artist, demonstra-tions, and performances by five noted theater professionals. Tony Montanaro, founder of Maine's Celebration Mime Theater and a teacher of mime, will perform with other members of the Mime Trio and will discuss the problems of mime in performance. John Emigh, Professor of English and Theater Arts at Brown University, will give a performance of his one-man show, Red Riding-Shawl. Based on "The Little Red Riding Hood" fairy tale, John Emigh's show explores the comic possibilities of the masks, costumes, and dance drama from the Balinese "topeng" theater tradition.

Two Penny Theater was founded by Donna and Jimmie Dunton, both students of the French theater master, Jacques Lecoq, in December 1972. Now, seven years later, Two Penny Theater has established a solid reputation for high standards of performance and teaching in Vermont and throughout the Northeast. The group averages more than 100 theater performances each year. It is assisted by grants from the Vermont Council on the Arts and a grant from the "Small Professional Theater Companies" program of the National Endowment for the Arts.

The Providence College men’s lacrosse team lost a closely fought game at home to an evenly matched Boston College team last Tuesday. After dominating some of the first half, the team allowed four goals to go unanswered in the fourth quarter, bringing the final score to 5-3, in favor of BC.

The hard rubber ball first found its way into the Providence College zone with the Friars’ offense wanting no time in testing the BC defensive team in the opening minutes of the game. The game got rougher, though, as the Eagles started fighting back, until finally a slashing penalty was called on an Eagle defender. The Friars promptly capitalized on this power play chance with a goal by attacker Tim Farrell. In the next play, a one-on-one situation arose in the Providence end, but defender Doug Calenda put an end to that threat with a check that swiftly sent the oncoming attacker to the ground.

Calenda put an end to that threat with a check that swiftly sent the oncoming attacker to the ground. But, as BC regained full strength, they began putting pressure on the Friars’ defense, forcing goalie Jim Porell to make some very good saves. They finally scored midway through the second period.

Late in the third quarter the Eagles received two more penalties for tripping and slashing. Then, one minute into the fourth quarter, Dennis McInerney scored what was to be BC’s final goal, though the Eagles were not finished yet. They exploded for four more goals in the last quarter, bringing the final score to 5-3, BC, in spite of Porell’s fine goal tending.

In another home game last Saturday, the lacrosse team came up on top of a 6-5 match against Western New England. WNE was the first to put a number on the scoreboard late in the first quarter to take a 1-0 lead, but BC attack Dave Hallahan evened it up less than a minute into the second quarter. More goals in the second quarter by Jack Malley, Brian Davies, and Jeff Pierce gave the Friars a lead of 4-1 by halftime.

WNE came back with two unanswered goals in the third quarter and pulled to within one goal. But the Friars did not leave the door open, scoring four more goals in the last quarter, making the score 2-0, Providence.

Baseball team off to slow start...

By Chris Duffy

With high expectations after a fine season last year and a 6-3 record down South early this year, the Providence College baseball squad opened their 1980 campaign in a less than spectacular fashion. Don Mezzanotte’s Friars compiled a 2-8 record before this past weekend.

In the Northern opener, Providence fell to division two Stonehill by an astronomical margin of 23-10. For the Friars it was just a case of bad fundamental baseball and a pitcher that all the Friars would like to forget. It was not a game that catcher Jack Burke would like to forget, however. The Stonehill catcher blasted three homers and drove in nine runs in the romp.

Coach Alex Nahlgian and his Crimson of Harvard were not in town. The Friars and Crimson played two tight games with each team prevailing. Providence won the first game behind catcher Steve Dellaposta’s two-run homer and freshman Blaine Carroll’s heroes in extra innings. Carroll singled and scored the winning run in the eighth inning.

The setecap saw the Friars take a 3-1 lead on a Bob Ocasaron homer, but then lost the lead and the game on late rallies by Harvard. Sophomore Scott Corriss pitched gutsy baseball for the Friars, giving up only five hits over 6 2/3 innings.

The winning run scored by Harvard was a result of poor fielding.

The University of New Hampshire Wildcats invaded Hendrick Field at Brown University and took the PC nine. The Wildcats clawed the Friars twice, 7-3 and 3-1, to sweep the doubleheader. Right-hander Charlie Jones of UNH limited the Friars to just one hit in the first game (a Dellaposta single off the base of the wall). Providence bats remained dead in the second game of the twinbill, as Tom O’Sheen of UNH gave up only three hits and stymied PC, 3-1. Providence’s Bert Montalban showed signs of promise in the second game, though. The freshman right-hander from LaSalle Academy threw 6 1/3 innings of effective ball, giving up the three runs, only one of which was earned.

The first Northern road trip of the season saw the Friars suffer some tough losses for the Friars. The opposition was Holy Cross and the scores were 2-1 and 7-3.

Shortstop Ron Perry showed the Friars that he plays baseball as well, if not better, than basketball. The All-American tripled home the tying run and scored the winning run in the first game. Paul Langfield of PC tossed a nifty four-hitter, but once again, the offense was not there.

The second game looked good for the PC cause when Keith Quinn ripped a two-run single in the fourth to give the Friars a 3-2 lead, but Perry led Holy Cross back again. After the Crusaders had tied the score in the fifth, Perry delivered a two-run single past the outstretched glove of the third baseman Ed Cahir to the cross, a lead that they would not relinquish.

HC’s Neil Solomon doubled home two more runs to put the contest out of reach.

The Friars returned to the friendly confines of Hendrick Field to take on the University of Connecticut last Tuesday afternoon in a single game. The result was basically the same as was the case in the previous few games—the Friars ran into a hot pitcher and were defeated.

UC’s Dennis Long made one bad pitch to Bob Ocasaron (a sixth inning solo homer to left), but was in control most of the afternoon. The Huskies touched up starter Paul Whitehead for four runs on only five hits. Two of those hits were off the bat of Westerly’s Tom Capalbo, who homered and tripled.

The Friar bats finally came alive last Wednesday at Aldrich-Dexter Field at Brown University. In a game that will be continued at a later date, the Friars were leading the Bruins in a slugfest, 10-9, when the rainstorm arrived in Providence.

George Susce, last year’s leading hitter, celebrated only his third game back in the lineup with a towering two-run shot over a left field fence. Steve Dellaposta homered too, being hit by the opposite field bringing in three runs. Joe Penkala had a key single to drive in the tying and go-ahead runs. The remainder of the game will be played at PC preceding the PC-Brown doubleheader on May 3.

A tripleheader?

The URI Rams made the short trip up from Kingston for a doubleheader last Thursday. The games were anything but friendly confines. But the Friars came back to within three on two-run homers by Tierney and Susce and a two-run triple by captain Ed Cahir.

Lady’s softball: A spirited squad

By Cheryl Gabes

The Lady Friars have gotten their season off to an impressive start in the true spirit of Providence College. The team is packed with a powerhouse of players whose team effort is spectacular. There is a great deal of team spirit and cooperation that runs out across the team and gives the Lady Friars a “touch of class.”

A wrap-up of their recent games is in order to stress their superb performances. Sundays, April 13, saw a smashing win over Brown University with a score of 11-5. This win gave them some added confidence and they were ready to face their next opponents, Bryant College. It must be said that “the college across the way” was handed an unbelievable loss, as the Friars won by the large score of 19-4. The Lady Friars have entered into the Spring season with a bang, as they have won their first four games.

The Lady Friars are an important part of the college fabric and are a vital part of their community. They provide a source of inspiration and motivation to the young people who watch them play. The team’s success is a testament to the dedication and hard work of the players, coaches, and support staff. They are a shining example of what hard work and teamwork can achieve.

Bert Montalbano turned in another stellar performance in the nightcap. The freshman gave up only three hits and four runs over the seven innings as PC completed the weekend sweep, 7-4. Steve Dellaposta and senior Ray Fontaine each drove in two runs.
