The Student Congress meeting, held on October 21, was the scene of much action. A resolution was passed stating the disapproval of Congress in regards to a proposed move of the Security Office from Slavin Center to Joseph Hall. Sue Berg, vice president of Student Congress, supported the resolution because “Slavin is the central location on the Providence College campus, so there is no need for a move to Joe’s. The office, at present, is easily accessible to students in need of security, much more so than Joe’s would be.”

Mark Brady, president of the class of 1980, proposed a resolution by Congress to appropriate $1,000 to each class from the Student Activity budget of $8,000, over which Student Congress has control. This resolution would be in effect starting January 1, 1980, allocating $500 to each class for the spring semester. In September of 1980, the next full academic year, the $1,000 appropriation will begin.

Brady stated the following reasons for this proposal. “The four classes represent the entire student body. In previous years, the classes have had three dates which to hold money-making events. In the past two years, we have only been able to hold two events, causing a great loss of money to the classes. This is due to the decision not to hold functions on school nights and also to the increased number of clubs on campus that need dates for events. The classes need some money to fall back on.”

In conjunction with this, George West, president of the Dillon Club, stated, “The classes have no way of knowing if their events will be successful financially. The Dillon Club has had its share of success and failure, but it isn’t as crucial to us, as it is to the classes because we have had our budget to fall back on. The classes have nothing. We should recognize the classes’ right to exist and Congress should help them to do this.”

Adamently opposed to this was the Board of Governors. Tom Corcoran, president of the BOG, and Bobby Clark, chairman of the “Last Resort,” spoke against this proposal as they feel that this move would hurt the students and their right for diversified entertainment. Clark spoke on the repercussion of this proposal on the students. He stated, “The

Colonel's Corner grand opening

By Glynnis Aubrey

Last weekend, Oct. 24, brought about the grand opening of the Colonel's Corner at Providence College, located directly below Mural Lounge in Raymond Hall.

Last year this room was used by Student Affairs and when it was given a new life this year, it was turned into a bar called Colonel's Corner by the students. The room was formally fixed up so that it could be used by those resident students who wish to throw parties, but don't have the facilities to do so.

Anxiety workshops

By Judy McNamara

Those who checked out their mailboxes last week found a yellow piece of paper in it with "TENSE?!" splashed across the top. The piece of paper missed a valuable opportunity.

With Phillips' appointment as the Resident Director and Vocational Counselor of Providence College, directed a test on anxiety workshops on Tuesday, October 16 and 23, which was sponsored by the Counseling Center.

A bit of Switzerland comes to Providence

By Judy McNamara

Paul Spillmann, a native of Sion, the capital of the canton, Vaals of Southern Switzerland, owns the new corner shop, Colonel's Corner, in Raymond Hall. Paul is a participant in the European Recipient Scholarship Program, which he became interested in while performing in a stage play in Switzerland with students from "the States."

Paul attended the University of Fribourg, and in certain courses, 17 PC students are spending their junior year in Fribourg, as members of the Providence-in-Europe program. Fribourg is a bilingual university, with instruction in French and German.

Spillmann's native tongue is German, yet he speaks English fluently and is pursuing further study of the language. He acquired his ability to speak English when he studied its use in school and through his contacts with students at Fribourg, but mostly through his encounters with the language here in America.

The European scholarship program, as well as the Providence-in-Europe program, gives students the opportunity to work on a language and make great assets to language majors. Students have direct exposure to a language when it is their native tongue. Paul Spillmann received this scholarship after expressing interest in and writing essays concerning his desires and reasons for wanting to come to the United States.

Paul relates that there are significant differences between the American, English, and European college life. "People are in more of a hurry here, striving to make appointments, classes and especially in meeting deadlines," Paul feel. "But I feel that the European Universities possess a finer academic atmosphere and that students tend to take things one day at a time.

Providence-in-Europe

An organizational meeting for next year's Providence-in-Europe program will be held in the Slavin Center on October 30, at 2:30 p.m. in room 203. All sophomores interested in applying for the junior-year-abroad program at the University of Fribourg in Switzerland, the summer program in Pietrasanta, Italy, or the Portuguese study program at the University of Coimbra are invited to attend.

Poli Sci Speaker

The Political Science Club will have R.J. State Senator Stephen Fortunato as its speaker on October 24, at 7 p.m. in room 208 of Slavin Center.

"Twelfth Night"

The Theatre Arts Drama Production of "Twelfth Night" will take place on October 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, at 8 p.m. The performances will take place in Harkins Auditorium.

In an effort to solve the problem of the on-campus housing situation, Reverend Thomas R. Peterson, O.P., President of Providence College, has appointed a Housing Task Force to look into the problem. The Task Force will study the off-campus housing situation in order to ascertain the future availability of such housing. The Task Force, chaired by Donna McCaffrey, Assistant Director of Residence, is expected to present its findings sometime in November.

"As it stands now," said Father Peterson, "there are no plans to undertake construction of new dormitory facilities, mainly because of the enormous financial burden of such a project." He feels that the college has reached its residency capacity and he isn't sure whether the school should grow much larger than it already is.

A possible lottery system has yet to be worked out, according to Father Peterson. The main question is: Who will be given priority? "Freshmen and sophomores should be given preference over upperclassmen with regard to on-campus housing," said Father Peterson. This is due to the general need for juniors and seniors to move off-campus.

Concerning the possible use of the East Building as a dormitory, Father Peterson said that it would have to be decided whether it would be necessary to use the building, and if so, whether it would accommodate female dorms. He emphasized that no action will be taken until the findings of the special Task Force are reviewed. Peterson hopes to have some answers by the end of November.

Academic research practice and purpose

By Donna Bunn

The first concern of the Academic Research Committee of Student Congress is "to improve existing courses and suggest new ones," explained chairman Jim Connor. Recently, however, the committee has become involved with a new development in the academic affairs of Providence College. For the first time in ten years, Rev. Thomas R. Peterson is organizing a special committee to completely update the entire school curriculum. According to Dr. Paul van K. Thomson, vice president of Academic Administration, the special committee is designed to evaluate individual departments, to decide whether courses are structured in the best possible way, and whether graduates are finding jobs with the educational background they receive here, at Providence College. An example of the committee's past accomplishments is the Western Civilization Program, which began as a result of this evaluation eight years ago.

Treyce obtained the Point Plan System idea from a student representative from Boston College, where the system is currently in effect. However, the main problem is trying to adapt this system to the needs of Providence College.

A meeting held between Fr. Heath, Murphy and the Food and Variety Store Committee is presently being scheduled. The possible problems and benefits of adopting the system and constructing the store will be discussed at this meeting.

In a survey taken last year, students were very receptive to the idea of an alternative dining plan and a variety store. However, to date, no action has been taken.

One student representative will be appointed to the committee. According to O'Connor, each department in the school should have a faculty-student committee, in which one or several students are directly involved with the decision-making of that department. In this way, a departmental student representative could discuss specific problems and ideas with a student on the President's committee. The committee believes that this is a step in the right direction. The added information will enable the students to more accurately contribute much more, with a more accurate idea of the student's voice.

The problem that the committee has encountered is that some of the departments have not yet established a faculty-student committee. The Academic Progress Committee is in the process of contacting these department heads, asking them to appoint persons to discuss departmental matters with the students on the President's committee.

problems are being worked out and hopefully will be resolved in the near future.

The Last Resort is striving to serve as an alternative to on- and off-campus activities. A lot of time and effort has been invested in this project and it shows a great deal of promise. In order to fulfills its potential, it can offer a great alternative on any night of the week.
Administrative ability of security chief seen lacking

Most will contest to the fact that the Security Office is an invaluable part of Slavin Center. We, at the Cowl, recently discovered that Mr. James Cunningham, the newly appointed director of Security and Safety, has arranged to have the security office moved to the basement of Joseph Hall. We fail to see the necessity, or the value, of this move.

In 1973, the security office was moved from Stephen Hall to the then newly opened Slavin Center. The move was necessitated at that time so that the office could be in a more advantageous location. Security has worked effectively in its present location. It would appear that a move to Joseph Hall would not be an improvement, but a step backwards.

Sources have indicated that this change is being implemented so that the office would be in "a more central location." What could be more central than Slavin Center? They are obviously referring to geographic centrality. We hold that even though Slavin Center is not the "center of the campus," it is the center of student activity.

The security office is presently able to provide various services, due to its location. It's site allows security personnel to moderate Alumni Hall, and the parking lots, not to mention the union itself. In light of the construction of the field house, it would appear essential for them to remain within close proximity. Isolated in the basement of Joseph Hall, one of their main purposes would be defeated.

It is our guess that the department has opted for this move so that they may be in closer proximity to the rapidly growing lower campus. Again, this reasoning proves imprudent. A guard house to be manned 24 hours a day costs more than the office could be in a more advantageous location. Security has worked effectively in its present location.

"I think it (security) may be moving to Joe's. I don't know, it's still in the planning stages. You should talk to someone who knows better than I. Try Father McMahon." —Cunningham

"I was not contacted prior to the decision having been made, nor did it go to the Safety and Security Committee. No mention was made of it at all." —Father McMahon

A veil of secrecy seems to have enveloped this entire decision. When Cunningham was questioned regarding this on October 22, he explained, "I think it (security) may be moving to Joe's. I don't know, it is still in the planning stages. You should talk to someone that knows better than I. Try Father McMahon."

Upon inquiring, the Cowl found that not only was Father McMahon, chairman of the Safety and Security Committee, not consulted, but neither was supervisor of Security, Mr. James Marsland. In fact, when questioned, Father McMahon stated, "I was not contacted prior to the decision having been made, nor did it go to the Safety and Security Committee. No mention of it was made at all."

This course of events can only lead us to question the administrative ability of Cunningham, in directing the security office. It is outrageous to assert that a man in this position would not make a major decision such as this public. The Editorial Board of the Cowl demands a more prudent planning and decision making process. We remind Mr. Cunningham that our suggestions are in the best interests of the college community. We're both working for their benefit.

Silence. It is a big problem here at Providence College. The saying, "silence is golden" can only go so far — it can be deadly. The apathy and passiveness of students in the seventies is inexusable. If we, students, cannot get upset about things that are not only happening to us here at PC, but also things that are going on in the world, it is just shows that we are a generation that is concerned with nothing other than our self-centered selves.

This is a particularly timely topic, as last Friday, members of Kennedy's "Camelot Administration" warned New England high school students concerning the evils of the lack of radiation that is pervasive among students in this country.

Compared to other college campuses in the country, Providence College stands out as an example with a lack of student activism.

Last year, when social events were not allowed to be held on school nights, students were not "up in arms," although they were upset. The recent dorm council elections are an example of a lack of student involvement. Not only were the number of candidates to minimal that some of the races were uncontested, but voter turnout was unbelievable low.

When 42% of the students on campus, and 25% of off campus students were taken ill last year because of salmonella poisoning, the result was a potential boycott of dinner one evening in Raymond Cafeteria. And that was it. Students didn't seem overly upset about something that affected their physical health.

Try to initiate a boycott? The outcome is hopeless. Last year, Chris Correira tried to begin a Nestle food boycott. Beyond his own activities, it failed miserably. One can visit other college campuses and see signs of boycotts, antinuclear demonstrations, and concern over the situation in South Africa. Here at Providence College, students show no concern for what is going on in the world.

One begins to wonder if many students at Providence College even open up outside newspapers. Providence College students have the potential to have their voices heard, but they don't use it. Students can register to vote here in Providence, but they don't even bother to do that. The apathy is in ALL TOO apparent.

So what is the problem here at PC? Are we afraid to speak out? All we have to do is pull together and unify. We are potentially a powerful group, that would have to be dealt with politically. But we won't be, if we remain silent.

Silence is deadly.

PC reaffirms policy for bias suits

The procedure for redress of civil rights complaints has been reaffirmed by a college affirmative action committee headed by vice president for community affairs, Father Joseph L. Lennox, O.P. An employee, faculty member or student who believes that she has been discriminated against on grounds of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin, should first discuss "this complaint...with the chairman of the charge of the area in which the alleged discrimination occurred." The committee stated, "If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the immediate supervisor or superior, within two weeks he may consult with the affirmative action officer or Title IX officer who shall make a preliminary investigation and attempt to settle the complaint through informal means." If not satisfied, the person "may file a formal complaint in writing with the chairman of the discrimination hearing board within 60 days after the employment, faculty, or student receives notice or should have noticed of the facts giving rise to the complaint." A hearing will be heard within 30 days after that written complaint is filed by the hearing board. The complainant may have a representative or attorney present at the hearing.

The board will then make a recommendation to the president of the college who may make one of the followings: (1) agree to the recommendation, (2) disagree with the recommendation, or (3) that no funds have been allotted for bias suits.

Kelly's Keane Comments

It is now midsemester and everybody is becoming aware of the newly renovated building located on lower campus. It is planned that the building is to be used primarily for the Providence College Business Department. Much of the stop-and-go traffic ground in Harkins last year is virtually non-existent due to this new addition, which holds various classrooms, labs and offices.

What many people do not realize is HOW LONG it takes to get from one end to the other. Recently, a memo was distributed to all teachers, stating that it takes 8 minutes to walk from Harkins to Schneider Arena. See KOFFLER, Page 6

McVinney answers more

Dear Editor,

In answering the uncalled for letter to the editor in last week's Cowl, I hope my feelings without stooping to the level of the three girls in Dore.

Their letter was an attack against Kelly Keane's column whose purpose was to help improve the living conditions in Dore by pointing out the disparity between it and McVinney. Most of us have lived in both dorms, as Kelly says, and agree with her point. We don't understand why Dore would resent any help they could get. There always room for improvement.

In answer to the three girls' comments, we of McVinney have a "unified" attitude toward your Bristol sweaters and of course the bricks are a part of the exclusive sports and business schools. Really now, what difference does it make if a student eats his meals in Dore because, after all, it was Chapin Mensal Institute. Next time you see us "rolling into Raymond" remember: these hefty behabes will warm you up this winter.

Board of Governors receives, from the Student Activities budget, what is left over after other clubs are appropriated money. We were allocated $72,000 last year. Because we use money made on our events to sponsor more events, we actually programmed approximately $280,000. In essence, if we give up $4,000 to the classes, we are actually giving up $20,000 that would benefit the students.

The BOG feels that they provide such diversified entertainment, they reach virtually every member of the student body, and this loss of money would cut down on the alternatives to such things as mixers. "The BOG sponsors about 200 events per year," stated Clark, "while the classes and Dillon Club receiving their second date after the BOG will proceed according to Tom Corcoran, the new treasurer of the Student Activities budget, of the student session in the usual manner of official press conferences.

Garrahy, who was awarded an honorary Doctor of Public Administration degree by English Department, Richard J. Murphy, and professor of the class, Ted Holden, Garrahy was accompanied by Lorraine Silberthau, his press secretary. Providence College at Commencement 1979, declined from announcing his candidate preference for the 1980 presidential election.

"I hope that this is an isolated incident, but precautionary measures are being instituted on the campus to prevent similar occurrences," said Garrahy. He mentioned an increased security force and lighting. According to Garrahy, URI, like any other educational institution, is not a sanctuary from the law.
New smoke detectors very sensitive

By Ned Cumminske

“Even a fly can set off the new alarms.” This statement was made by Rev. Walter Heath, O.P., commenting on how easy it is to set off the 432 new smoke detectors in the dorms.

“We installed the detectors, that was one of the risks that we had to accept. Since they are so easy to set off, we will have to increase in the number of false alarms, either through mechanical failure or because someone is fooling with them,” added Fr. Heath.

These statements were made in reference to a slew of false alarms which occurred on campus during the past few weeks. According to Mr. James Cunningham, Director of Security, “It is very hard to tell if someone has set the alarms off, or if they have gone off by themselves, when we first arrive at the dorm. The only way that we could tell if they have been fooled with, is if they are obviously damaged. By this I mean if the cover is off, or dented, or if the entire unit is hanging from the ceiling; then we would know that it was no accident. Otherwise it’s very hard to tell,” stated Cunningham.

The problem is that these 432 detectors can be set off by the slightest thing. They are very sensitive and can pick up the slightest trace of smoke, steam from a shower, or any amount of dust can even set it off. Also, simply touching the detector, or having a ball or frisbee whack it will cause it to go off.

According to Cunningham, Father Heath, and Donna McCafferty, every resident student should be aware of this situation, and monitor their actions in the dorm hallways, especially if smoking.

“Fr. Peterson anticipated this problem before we installed the detectors but felt the added safety would more than make up for it. Since every detector is directly tied into the alarm system to the fire department, every time one detector goes off, we will have four trucks coming from the Providence Fire Department. This will present a problem if we have a number of false alarms, so it is important that we try to prevent that from happening before it starts,” said Father Heath.

The real danger of this whole problem is that if every time the fire department arrives, it’s for a false alarm, then if the real thing were to happen they might not respond as quickly.

“Up to now the situation hasn’t been any worse than in previous years, so I’ll be happy if it stays that way, but it only can if each student realizes how serious this situation is, and acts responsibly,” Father Heath commented.

Swim club proposed

By Ed Shea

Finally, implementation of a swim club might be realized here at Providence College. The several attempts made to establish such a club met with failure in the past. The ultimate decision now lies with the students.

Such was the concensus at the meeting of students interested in a swim club held October 10. Fifty-two people attended the meeting to discuss ground work and goals of the proposed swim club. The club concerned itself with the recreational aspect of the sport.

“Fr. Peterson anticipated this problem before we installed the detectors but felt the added safety would more than make up for it. Since every detector is directly tied into the alarm system to the fire department, every time one detector goes off, we will have four trucks coming from the Providence Fire Department. This will present a problem if we have a number of false alarms, so it is important that we try to prevent that from happening before it starts,” said Father Heath.

The real danger of this whole problem is that if every time the fire department arrives, it’s for a false alarm, then if the real thing were to happen they might not respond as quickly.

The success or failure of the club depends on one thing: interest shown by the students. If there is a large positive response, the club will become official; the official status will in turn enable the club to receive funds from Student Congress.

Since PC doesn’t have a pool, the club has arranged to use the Rhode Island Junior College pool, located on the Lincoln Campus, Lincoln, Rhode Island.

The facilities at the Lincoln Campus also will be available to PC students on Mondays and Thursdays, 6:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m., and on Saturdays, 2:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m. Providence College also will have exclusive use of the swimming facility on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The swim club will charge an activity fee of $1.00 per person, and provide free transportation. The next outing to the pool will be tonight, Wednesday, Oct. 24

When and if recreational swimming does gain official status, a decision will have to be made as to whether the club will participate on an intramural or competitive level. The swim club urges more student participation. Questions concerning recreational swimming may be referred to Frank Flaherty, Tom Pavelon, and Reverend John A. McMahon, O.P., the club moderator and PC Assistant Vice President for Student Services. The next meeting will be held in approximately one week.

Do you believe a person can really make a difference in the life of another?

WE THINK SO!

We believe it is most meaningful when we give to building institutions, starting homes, and so much more. The mission of the Church is to make our very poor and the suffering conscious of Jesus the Good Shepard.

Twelfth Night:
"unforced and uproarious fun"

By Kathleen O'Neill

Struck down by the mid-semester blues? Catch the Providence College theater's sure cure! The PC Theater's first production of the 1979-80 season is William Shakespeare's Twelfth Night. Dr. David Burt, managing director of Theater at Rhode Island College, will guest-direct the classic comedy which will be presented in the round by an energetic PC actors.

This super bright comedy spins the tale about Sebastian (Richard Lawrence), and Viola (Carol Smith), identical twins whose resemblance to one another is such, except for the difference in dress, they cannot be known apart. While making a sea voyage together, Sebastian and Viola are separated by a shipwreck. Each believes the other to be lost at sea.

Viola, an uncommon beauty, is cast ashore on the coast of Illyria where she dons male attire and serves the Duke Orsino (Joseph Menino) as a page under the name of Cesario. The Duke is well-pleased with the fine appearance of Cesario. The Duke is well-pleased with the fine appearance of Cesario. The Duke serves the Duke Orsino (Joseph Menino) as a page under the name of Cesario (Viola), and Viola begins to fall in love with Orsino.

The comedy of the play is enhanced even further when Sebastian shows up in Illyria and is mistaken for Cesario.

The play's action is masterfully complimented by the superb craftsmanship displayed in the set. Technical direction and lighting is by R. Scott Yuille, with scenic design by Carl F. Guilmém. Costume designer is Mary Farrell. Martha Reynolds is the stage manager.

The collection of characters in Twelfth Night is Shakespearean to the heart. Unforced and uproarious fun have been combined with a beautiful vein of poetic feeling to form an enchanting presentation sure to captivate an audience.

Twelfth Night will be presented in Harkins' Auditorium for five (5) performances, October 24th thru 28th. Curtain time is 8:00 p.m. Tickets for all performances are $1.50 for PC students. The box office, located in the rotunda area of Harkin's Hall, is open from 5:00 p.m. till curtain on the evenings of performance. Ticket reservations and information may be obtained at 855-2277. Tickets will be available at the door.

SEE YOU THERE!

Visiting professorship

The Providence College Chemistry Department has received a 1979 visiting professorship, sponsored by the American Association for Clinical Chemistry. Dr. John Savoy of the Department of Pathology at the University of Virginia Medical Center, visited Providence College and area hospitals during the week of October 14th.

Dr. Savoy addressed students and staff members in the various medical programs at Providence College and area hospitals and toured laboratory facilities at Providence College and Roger Williams, Miriam, and Rhode Island Hospitals. This program allows a distinguished authority in the field to review and consult with the students and faculty of these facilities in a constructive, cooperative effort to integrate the local academic programs in health related disciplines.

Dr. Savoy was also the guest speaker at two local scientific society meetings. On Wednesday, see PROFESSOR, Page 9

Big Brothers & Sisters

By Roberta Capuano

Providence College is comprised of an extraordinary student body. Not only academically proficient, they are extremely ambitious.

In order to succeed at Providence College, an extensive amount of time must be applied to studying. However, that does not inhibit the students from getting involved in extra-curricular activities.

Almost all the students are involved in one or more activities, depending on other responsibilities. Some students are involved in athletics, some in class politics, and others belong to various clubs.

Some of these organizations receive more recognition than others, but this does not make them more important. An example of a fairly unknown but important organisation is an important club is the Big Brothers and Sisters. The Big Brothers and Sisters began twenty-five years ago. Fr. Paul James was and today is the advisor. The organization has expanded considerably over the years. About 700, it is composed of about 120 members. The president of the club is Nick Wood. Jane Vieria is the vice president, the secretary is Sharon Maher, and Jane Pechulis, who was interviewed, is the treasurer. These elected officials work together with the club members to help underprivileged children.

"I'd love to. Really." I closed my notebook. "But I was just leaving..."

Jane Pechulis said that each member is assigned a specific "little person" to spend the day with. Their basic task is to fill the gaps in the lives of the children. "Mostly, the children are just looking for someone to talk to or someone that the feel is interested in them," Jane said clearly that the students are not trying to analyze the children, but they will give them guidance if necessary.

The club members are well organized. They meet with children from different organizations 4 days a week and entertain them.

On Monday's, the children from Chad Brown come to Providence College. They meet with the children of Chad Brown on the same day. Before they leave, they eat in Alumni Cafe.

On Tuesday's students who possess the ability to speak sign language go to the Rhode Island School for the Deaf. Their main objective is to communicate with these children. Most of them are in desperate need of attention.

When or not the students play with the children is unimportant.

On Wednesday's, the children from the Fiskville Center in Cranston come to PE and Saturday's bus trip to New York City. With an early morning departure, two bus trips to New York City. Hello from Europe

By Peter G. Walsh
Fribourg Correspondent

"Bonjour monsieur. Entrez s'il vous plait..." And so I was greeted as the door by my new Swiss landlady in a barrage of ninety-mile-per-hour French. She spoke no English. Wow. At the time of this writing, we have been in Europe for eight days: four in Germany and four here in our new hometown of Fribourg, Switzerland. What we have experienced so far, I can only attempt to put into words.

We took off from Kennedy Airport at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, September 29. Seven hours later, we arrived in Frankfurt, Germany where it was morning. Voila jet lag. We were then driven by bus south, to Heidelberg, Germany, and we spent the night at a hotel just outside of the city. Heidelberg is famous for its university and its majestic castle, but we will always remember it as our first experience with a totally foreign culture.

From Heidelberg we travelled southeast to Munich, where the Oktoberfest, yes, the real Oktoberfest, was in its final week of celebration. The Oktoberfest is an annual tradition in Munich. It began back in the time of King Ludwig, to celebrate his marriage. And what a celebration it is!

Oktoberfest is a huge carnival, with all kinds of amusements and rides, but the highlight of the whole occasion is the eating and drinking in the enormous beer halls. Each one is about the size of a hollow Schneider Arena. Every brewery around Munich is given a beer hall at the fest, and they each decorate their respective hall.

For example, the Lowenbrau Hall constructed a giant lion above its entrance, and every minute the lion would lift a mug and roar, "LOW-EN-BRAU!" Beer was served by the liter in tall glass mugs at $3.50 per mug.

Each hall is packed, so packed that it's difficult to find a place to sit. Dan Flynn and I found two seats at a table with some German girls and a couple of Austrian mountain climbers. The girls spoke a little English, and they translated our English for the Austrians. We sang and drank all night, and became great friends.

Oktoberfest is the time of year when the usually reserved Germans "go wild." Such parties you have never seen, and lasts for about twenty days.

After two days and nights in Munich, we travelled southwest to the resort town of Lindau, Lindau is a picturesque tourist town in southern Germany. We spent one night there in a fancy hotel on the edge of a lake. At 9 a.m. the next morning, we departed for Fribourg, Switzerland, our home for the next ten months. Fribourg is a small, yet historic city, with orange colored roofs on the houses, sloping hills, and cobblestone roads. One of the most magnificent pieces of architecture we have seen in Europe is the St. Nicolas Cathedral in Fribourg. It was built sometime in the 12-1400's, and towers above the city.

Part of the Fribourg population speaks German, but all of our group is living in the French speaking section around the university. We are in a sort of sink-or-swim situation with the French language. Most of our landlords do not speak English, mine does not, and we are forced to speak French every day. It's very challenging, and sometimes quite comical, as we struggle through the language. You cannot help but laugh when your landlord describes the location of the shower, the mailbox, etc., and five minutes later you're in your room, scratching your head, wondering where the heck the bathroom is.

Donnelly to speak on advertising careers

By Sean Donovan

On October 30, the Marketing Club of Providence College invites you, both business and non-business majors, to attend an enlightening lecture given by Mr. William F. Donnelly. Donnelly, a 1951 PC graduate, started his career with W.J. Lynch Paint and Varnish Company. After rising to sales promotion manager in a brief period of time, Donnelly transferred to Mercury Mail Advertising, as an aspiring sales manager. His many credits include such organizations as the PC Alumni Association and the Rhode Island Advertising Club, of which he is president. A past vice president of the Advertising Club, Donnelly has also held the esteemed position of treasurer.

This intriguing lecture should answer many questions dealing with the "real," the "outside" world. All are welcome at the lecture, and refreshments will be served.
Lady Harriers, only third year, have best season ever

The women's cross-country program is only in its third year of existence but the girls have already built a winning tradition in New England cross-country competition. The Lady Friars have won two meets already this fall and have placed well in the other meets in which they have competed.

Last fall the squad was 5-4 in cross-country competition and they are on their way to improving that mark this year. Coach Cathy Cerra has a lot of talent to work with and is utilizing it to the maximum.

Janie Cataldo, one of only three seniors on the squad, has been sharing most of the PC first finishes with sophomore All-Stater Sue Ratcliffe. Junior Sheila Barry has also been one of the squad's strong performers this fall. Credit should also be given to Carmen Ross, Linda Simshie and Oona Mulligan.

On September 22, the Lady Friars got their first chance of the year to show their stuff against some of the bigger schools of the northeast. The Lady Friars finished fifth in a field of twelve in a meet held at the University of Connecticut. Sue Ratecliffe and Janice Cataldo finished ninth and tenth respectively for the Lady Friars.

On October 4 and 6 the girls finished first in four of two separate meets. Framingham, Emmanuel, Fitchburg State, Brandeis, Williams and Assumption all fell prey to the PC runners. Janie Cataldo, Sheila Barry and Sue Ratecliffe juggled second, third and fourth place finishes among themselves in the two meets. Linda Simshie and Carmen Ross also finished high in these meets.

The high flying Friars were surprise winners when they ran into cross-town rival Brown. Brown knocked off the Friars in a dual meet held on October 13, and then tested the Lady Friars in the State Championship held on October 17. PC ran well in the States. Brown won with 26 points, URI was second with 44 and PC was third with 54. The Lady Friars are showing strong even in this loss.

Last weekend the Lady Friars competed in the New England finals at the University of Vermont. They are also slated to run in the Eastern Regionals at Westchester, Pa., on November 3 and 4. The last attempt could do well in both of these meets. They are a young team as they could provide much excitement not only in the upcoming indoor and spring seasons, but also in the years to come.

Frisbee club

Ultimate frisbee, a fast growing game on college campuses all across the country, has come to PC this fall. In a game which few people realize has become an accredited college sport, players follow rules similar to flag football. The players attempt to move the disk down a 60 yard field and into the end zone. The two 24 minute halves compose the game where wide open running and accurate passing are the keys.

Organized in the beginning of this year, the PC ultimate squad spent the first month of the season learning the rules to the game and working on offensive and defensive strategies. Their two opening matches were quite valuable in that the squad was able to pick up some real game experience as they fell to Bryant College and Brown University.

But in only their third official game, the PC squad defeated the '78 Rhode Island champions, Roger Williams, 17-13. Matt Hand and Tom Griffin were the high riders Friars, 7-0. In this runaway outburst, the precision offense of the Friars came out strong, sweeping the Crusaders.

In what was to be their biggest win, the Lady Friars beat Holy Cross, 5-2. The victory over the Crusaders was the first ever for the Lady Friars, 7-0. In this runaway contest, the scoring was so wide open that nearly every all-time season record and extended their winning streak to 68 consecutive victories.

Harriers beat Brown, URI, sweep state championships

By Kevin Burke

On Saturday, October 13, the Providence College cross-country team took advantage of two state schools as the Friars raced their way to easy victories over Brown and URI. This "State Series" meet, which was the last regular season race for PC before the New England Championship on November 5, left the Friars with a 1-0 season record and extended their winning streak to 68 consecutive victories.

There was no need for any of our guys to push themselves

Neither Brown nor URI proved to be too much of a match for the potent PC team. The Harriers easily swept the first six places. By edge, Peter Crooke and Paul Mancini all tied for first place, covering the 5.2 mile Brown course in 26:35. Next in line for the Friars were Dave Bell, Jimmy Fallon and Larry Reed. All three runners tied for second place with times of 27:02. Neither Brown nor URI proved to be too much of a match for the potent PC team. The Harriers easily swept the first six places. Field hockey squad beats Holy Cross

By Ed Ruhl

The PC girls field hockey team enjoyed an undefeated week, winning three straight games by making the most of their numbers in each game and pushing their record to 6-0. Against University of Bridgeport, the Lady Friars were trailing, 2-1, at the end of the first period. Top scorers Lynn Sheedy and Linda Wage netted the two Providence goals, but the speedy Bridgeport team was able to push three goals past netminder Marilyn Noble. In the second half, the Lady Friars came out strong, smacking in four quick unanswered goals on the Crusaders and Shandy handled the scoring again, each netting two in the four goal outburst.

Barrington College was PC's next victim as they fell to the Lady Friars, 7-0. In this runaway contest, the scoring was spread out. Sharon Clegg hit for three goals while Linda Wage and Jane Ladd scooped one each. Marilyn Noble and Judy Vanschild combined for the shutout.

The setting for the Rhode Island Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament was ideal from the Friars’ viewpoint. As was the case last year, the weather was perfect. But more important was the fact that this year the tournament was held here at Providence College.

The situation proved very advantageous for Peter Lyons, as he successfully defended his title. Lyons, the top seed in the tournament, defeated a stubborn Scott Diehl from Brown University, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

Diehl, third singles player for Brown and a tennis recruit from southern California, earned his berth in the finals by defeating fellow teammate and Brown’s first singles player, Harold Schaff, 7-5, 6-2.

Lyons took the individual honors, but Brown swept the overall team title. Brown was first with 13 points, PC was close behind with 12 points.

The rest of the PC players also fared well. Bill Donadio breezed in the first round, 6-0, 6-0, but lost to Diehl in the next round, 6-3, 6-4. Brian Shanley also fell in the second round. John Hare, another southern California recruit on the Brown squad, beated Diehl, 6-2, 6-3.

Steve Charfield lost a tough match in the second round to Mike Prete of URI, 7-5, 6-4.

In the consolation, Chris Dimler of PC was the winner, beating Mike Tavares, 6-0, 6-0. The two played all those who lost the first round, Diehl, John Kellor of Brown, 6-1, 4-6, 6-0, and Tavares lost to Diehl, 6-1, 6-1.

Coach Jacqueline Diehl was very pleased with his team. “The weather was great and, with a little bit of luck, we could have been overall winners,” Faulk said.

The fall season ended with the State Tournament last weekend. Friars were still looking ahead to their tournaments in New York and Quebec next month.

Lyons retains title in State Championship

The women’s tennis team went to New York last weekend to play five matches last week as it easily defeated Wheaton College and SMU. Both instances the Lady Friars depth was too much for their opponents as they defeated a good Wheaton team, 6-1, and a fine SMU team, 5-2.

Immediately following the SMU match, the successful women’s tennis team faced another tough test in the form of UMass., and put themselves to the rest of playing the best in New England. Fifty six schools participated in the tournament and Providence surprised many of the few onlookers by finishing 16th overall.

Paula Herbert won her first round单 lost but single in the second round to a strong Spring- field opponent. Nancy Curtin and Mary Ann McCoy teamed up in doubles and though they lost to another cross town rivals and tournament finalists, Brown University, they did defeat a strong Northeastern team and a hustling Boston State duo.

The Friars will travel across the perimeter of the campus for the remainder of the season. They have a good field for the tournament.

David Mulhern, organizer of the race, was beaten cleanly by Steve Brophy to take the honors.

The fall season ended with the State Tournament last weekend. Friars were still looking ahead to their tournaments in New York and Quebec next month.

By Ellen Harrington

Fall at Providence College always brings a multitude of activities. There is always something going on. A new soccer craze in the United States has brought the school to college campuses all over the country, and PC is no different. This season brings a new twist, however. The girls, never to be outdone by the guys, have started their own soccer club.

The idea originated last spring with a small group of girls who were told that if they could get organized and find a coach, they could take to the field. Led by team captain Sue Lind, they did just that. The faculty sponsor is Fr. Gino Bondi, and the girls are coached by Nick Baur and Vin Gulisano. According to Sue, “Soccer is my family sport. Both of my brothers play and both my parents coach. The athletic department was really good with advice. The guys’ soccer coach Bill Doyle has given us tremendous support. We’re very grateful for everything. Everyone’s really enthusiastic, and we’re looking forward to a good season.”

The girls will play a few scrimmages this fall, the first being tomorrow at Brown. They also have promises for the spring season from Salve Regina College, Bryant, and Rhode Island College.

Although the organization is run as a club, there is mandatory practice every day unless there’s a conflict in schedule. Rumor has it that the coaches have been coaching the men’s practice, and the girls are doing the same drills as the boys, along with running and skill work.

Practices are going well, and all the girls are willing to work hard, but the team right now is being plagued by a serious lack of funds. There is talk of fund raising events coming up, but there has been no definite approval yet.

Coaches Baur and Gulisano agreed that the team is coming along very well. Said Baur, “Currently, aside from the building stage, working basically on skills. We’ve got a great bunch of girls who are willing to work hard, including captains Sue Lind and Ellen Ely. We’ve got promising freshmen with Chris Murphy, Meg O’Brien, and Amy DeMerdendron. We’re psyched, and we just hope that we get strong support from everyone.”

The Providence College women’s volleyball team has been keeping quite a hectic schedule lately. In the past few days the Lady Friars have travelled to East Nazarene College, Connecticut College, and the University of Lowell in a trium­phant tourney at Yale on Saturday, Oct. 19. They beat as they had the home court advantage and support from the fans. PC nonetheless downed their opponent in two out of three games.

Their next stop was a single match at Connecticut College, where PC overwhelmed the opposition with ease. The team piled together and won three straight games in a best of five match. Team members were particularly well to place Providence over Connecticut College in that match. Junior Pete Chenette and Tournament Coordinator Curtin led the team, supported by strong plays by Sandy Racickle, Mary Smith, and Keane, the Lady Friars made a fine showing in that tournament as they have throughout the season.

The rest of the PC players also fared well. Bill Donadio breezed in the first round, 6-0, 6-0, but lost to Diehl in the next round, 6-3, 6-4. Brian Shanley also fell in the second round. John Hare, another southern California recruit on the Brown squad, bested Diehl, 6-2, 6-3. Steve Charfield lost a tough match in the second round to Mike Prete of URI, 7-5, 6-4.
