Amato, Irish runners major boost to PC track

By Kevin Burke

In 1971 cross-country coach Bob Amato received a suggestion from Providence soccer coach Bill Doyle saying that he should attempt to bring some boys over from Ireland to run for the Friar cross-country teams. Amato was overjoyed at the opportunity to bring in runners from Ireland and has had great success with the Irish runners since 1971. In fact, Amato has qualified easily in the NCAA Cross-Country Championships. All of the runners that have made up the Irish National Junior Cross-Country Team have been Irishmen. These have included Paul Moloney, Jimmy Fallon, and Brendan Quinn.

The Irish runners have been a major boost to the Friar cross-country team at PC. The team has made it to the NCAA Cross-Country Championships every year since 1971 and has won the New England Championships in 1972, 1973, and 1975. In 1974, the Friar cross-country team placed third in the NCAA Championships, a finish that has not been repeated since.

Amato's Irish runners have been a major factor in the Friar cross-country team's success. The team has been able to win the New England Championships every year since 1971, and has made it to the NCAA Championships every year since 1971. The Irish runners have been a major factor in the Friar cross-country team's success.

The team has been able to win the New England Championships every year since 1971, and has made it to the NCAA Championships every year since 1971. Treaty tops Friar pack at nationals

By Steve Lichtenfels

BETHLEHEM PA. — The weather was a far cry from the 12° and snowing scene of last year's NCAA Cross-Country Championships, held at Madison, Wisconsin. This year the weather was more like the 70° and sunny day that has made the Poconos in Pennsylvania such a favorite of Americans.

The race was run over the smooth, rolling hills of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, Lehigh Valley. Race times in both races by freshman Paul Moloney and Jimmy Fallon. This year Providences hopes for more success will continue for the years to come. After this fine season, rumors were out saying that this would be the year in which the Friar's streak would come to an end. After this fine season, it is doubtful any such runners will be turned around at the start of the 1980 season. Said coach Amato of his team, "I'm just proud to have been able to coach such a fine group of guys. We've got a young squad, and success will continue for the Providence College cross-country team."

Lehigh University was the host of this year's Nationals. Located at the foot of the Poconos in Bethlehem Pennsylvania, Lehigh sported a 10,000 meter course over the smooth, rolling hills of the Lehigh Valley. Race times

Gridders season ends in near miss championship bid

By John Brandolino

In September, the PC football team dug up its worn equipment, was thrown together to practice on bumpy Raymond Field, and by the end of the year, produced one of the best club football teams in the country. Even considering their financial instability, the proud and determined Friars worked hard. Hard enough to be the only team to defeat the National Champions, Lowell University.

Eleven seniors were included in the 34 man squad, but early season troubles hurt Providence in their first few games. In the opener, freshman quarterback Chris Lamendola had to start for ailing senior quarterback Paul Kelly. Lamendola worked well with receiver Andy Clarke as the Friars led early by two touchdowns, but Western New England College came back with surprising late scores to salvage a 14-14 tie. It was a disappointing dudlock that eventually cost PC the league title.

Nonetheless, the gridders campaigned in their next two contests by blasing the University of Hartford, 28-7, and downing the strong Stonehill, 14-3. Against Hartford, Providence utilized its razzle-dazzle as Bob Landers threw a halfback touchdown pass for one score and faked the pass to easily run in for another. Chuck Fox took advantage of a Hartford fumble to tie the match.

Travelling to Stonehill, Bob Faro and Kelly O'Laughlin kept the opposing quarterback under control while Jo Jo DelRosso, filling in for the injured Bob Landers, supplied most of the offense and the gridders upheld their record to 2-4-1. The only defeat of the regular season came against Assumption. P.J. Kelly and his runners obviously outplayed the Assumption squad, but a missed field goal and a controversial play from the one-yard line (where the referee ruled that a PC runner had stepped out of bounds) before he went in to the end zone gave the opposition a 7-6 upset.

From that game, on, the Friars picked themselves up to prove to everyone what they were really capable of doing. The Gridders crushed St. Michael's of Vermont, 41-0, and just about everyone was involved in the scoring. After a deserved two-week break, the Ponces State fell prey to Providence.

Trecy: PC tradition runs on

By Ellen Harrington

In 1970, in the town of Villers-town in Waterford, Ireland, two young boys began running. They were going to school and wanted to do something after school to keep busy. Almost ten years later, both of these boys are still running, and between them they hold such honors as the World Cross-Country Championship, the Olympic Games, the European Championship, the NCAA Championship, and the Irish 10,000 meter title, and the New England and NCAA district Cross-Country Champions.

If you haven't already guessed, it's Ray and John Treacy, who hold all of these titles. Ray, 23, is a sophomore at Providence, majoring in marketing, and is the 1979 New Englad and NCAA district cross-country champion along with holding the Irish 10,000 meter crown. John, 22, is presently working toward his M.B.A. at PC and has been reigning World Cross-Country champion for the last two years.

It is a remarkable, rather quiet young man, at first hesitant to speak, but later opening up. "As a kid, I was looking for something to do so I started to run. John and I started when I was thirteen and he was twelve, and we've been running ever since."

Ray worked for two years in a bank in County Cork before coming to school at PC. Right now he is on a four year leave of absence to study and run in the United States, and he works at the bank during the summer.

Ray Darby, "John was pretty influential in me choosing to come to Providence. There's a good running program here, and I wanted to give myself every opportunity to achieve my potential."

Ray mentioned that he really enjoys the atmosphere at PC, and that he enjoys running with the team. At home he did most of his running on his own. Ray also commented, "I think I probably appreciate being here more than most kids because I worked before I came to school."

Ray feels that coach Bob Amato, cross-country and track mentor, has been very instrumental in developing his potential as a runner. "Coach Amato is very, very good. He takes each runner individually; he backs off a runner rather than pushing him. You can really talk to him if you feel that there's a problem, and he's always willing to try and compromise. He's rather ready to maybe take it easy for a while and come along slowly rather than trying to get the best out of you over a short space of time."

Ray felt that his most memorable moments included winning the New England and NCAA races this season, and of course, holding the Irish 10,000 meter title. He doesn't like to dwell on his accomplishments though; he'd rather look to the future. "My goal now is to make the Irish Olympic team. That will involve a trial run either at the Irish Marathon Championship in May or the Boston Marathon in April. Ireland will only send about ten or fifteen runners to the Olympics. There's a very strong standard that one must reach and it's very difficult."

After graduation, Ray plans to return to his job in Ireland.

One might think that having a brother who is the reigning World Cross-Country Champion would add pressure, but Ray takes it all in stride. "I'm use to people asking about John all the time and I've just learned to live with it. People know we both run, but they expect great things of John, and I think that puts a little extra pressure on him."

Whether practicing for a Friar dual meet, running in a NCAA championship, or competing for a berth in the Irish Olympic team, you can be assured that Ray Treacy will be giving his all. Don't be surprised if you see Ray flashing across the TV screen next summer via satellite from Rome; he's up there with the best of them.

(Syracuse University, which returns four starters this year, including 6-1 center Roosevelt Bouie from last year's 26-4 team, has been selected by the basketball coaches of the Big East as the conference's number one team in its final season poll of 1978-79. In gaining the top spot, the Orange received four first place votes on one ballot, and three first place votes on another ballot, and received a pair of third place votes in gaining a high of 44% points.

John's, which finished second with 42 points, received one first place vote, while Georgetown, which placed third with 37% points, received one first place vote and shared another vote with St. John's. John's in finishing second, reflected great consistency as they received six second place votes in addition to their one first place vote. Georgetown, which although it received more first place attention, was picked as low as fourth on two ballots and third on two others.

Connecticut, with its outstanding 6-8 sophomore Cornelius Thompson, was a solid fourth with 33 points while Boston College placed fifth with 19 points. Simon Hall narrowly edged out Boston College's Jon Robinson (who finished last year's season with 12 points), while the Friars finished last with 17 points.

The Big East Conference, which is in its first season of competition, will play as a regular double round of round robin this year, but in years to come it will play a regular double round of round robin. This year's Big East post season tournament will be held at the Providence Civic Center on February 28, 29, and March 1. Syracuse—February 2, 8:00.

SYRACUSE
February 2, 8:00, Home

Last winter they played to packed houses and money rave reviews. This season, with a slightly different supporting cast, and an added year of experience, Syracuse University's "Louisville Show" is back for an encore. If past performances are any indication, the duo of co-captains Louis Orr and Roosevelt Bouie will help coach Jim Boeheim turn a second straight smash hit for the Orangemen. Bouie, a 6-11 center, and Orr, a 6-4 forward, are the heart of the Syracuse offensive attack.

Bouie has got to rank with the greatest center in the nation in field goal percentage last year, hitting on 63% of his shots. Roosevelt is best known for his defense, and has been credited with 256 blocked shots. Orr, a smooth forward, has been a model of consistency and court savvy throughout his career. He has scored 1076 career points, 745 rebounds, and ranked 4th in the nation in field goal percentage last year, hitting on 63% of his shots. Roosevelt is best known for his defense, and has been credited with 256 blocked shots.

On offense, Syracuse has a good balance of players and has the ability to score from everywhere on the court. The Orangemen have one of the most balanced offenses in the country.

Syracuse had a banner year last year, finishing with a 24-6 record and a championship in the Big East Conference. This season, the team is expected to be even better, with the return of many starters from last year's team.

Dillon and sophomore Clay Johnson, both of whom started at various times a year ago. Coach Thompson will probably add new faces to the roster soon.

Forwards Rich Skrigely (5-11) and Chris Fox (5-9), and guards Dvon Chandler (5-8) and Mike Bonner (5-11) are other returning scorers who should help. Seven-foot Ron Crevier, a sophomore who played with the Canadian national team over the summer, will also be ready to step in and fill out the backcourt.

John Thompson is hoping to attract one of the top field goal percent­age shooters in the country this year. Duren is considered as one of the most consistent free throw shooters in the country. Duren, a member of the U.S. Olympic basketball team this summer, was also a 21-9 year. Adams averaged 24 points and 17 rebounds per game so far at New Jersey. He is a high-mental player who gives a team a dimension that it lacked the past couple of years. Adams and Bagley, an extremely quick backcourtman, will both vie for starting positions.

Charles Miller and Bob Deloises, teammates at Hoboken High in New Jersey, also begin careers at the Heights. Miller, a 6-4 guard-forward swingman, averaged 17 rebounds a game in his senior year, while averaging 79% of his field goal attempts. Deloises broke the Hoboken career assist record but was held to a 20-5 record. Jeff Neera of Watlham, MA, could be the most impressive of the five freshmen. Neera started as the point guard for Worcester Academy, averaging 17 points per game. He will provide important backcourt depth.

SETON HALL University Basketball is considered relatively young last season, with only two seniors and one freshman rounding out their starting unit. It doesn't seem possible, but coach Bill Raffel will probably find an even younger squad this year.

The Pirates senior leaders are Marc Coleman and standout guard Rick Davis, who both drafted by the pros, leaving behind sophomores Dan Callandrillo, Howard McNell and Clark Young from last year's 16-11 team.

McNeil, a 6-6 forward, averaged 12.5 points and eight rebounds a game in his rookie season. Callandrillo was close behind with 11 points, four assists and three steals a game. Young wound up scoring nine points and grabbing five rebounds a game. They'll be aided by experienced veterans Tony Mauro and Rich Browne. Raffel's hope for five recruits will be able to contribute in a hurry. Three guards, Ray Ortiz, Matt Piccinich, and Steve Civco, were expected to give the team the needed backcourt depth. Two big men, 6-10 Dan Clark of Farmingdale State, a 6-6 forward, should be sold additions up front.

Ortiz, a veteran among the top 100 recruits in the nation at Mt. St. Mary's High School in Jersey City, New Jersey, was an All-American at Bergen Community College, so the Pirates should be set in the backcourt.

Devero was an All-Region choice last season at Mercer Community College, while Durne managed 15 points and 15 rebounds a game for Lutheran High School, despite being slowed by annoying illnesses. Youth could be served this year if Seton Hall's young team progress enough by tournament time.

When Don Lamoriello speaks of the Providence College hockey program and what he has achieved in building that program, he says we... this is not the royal we, which monarchs use in describing their actions, but a we... that is meant to convey a feeling of plurality, that the success of the Providence College hockey program over the last few years has been the work of many people, of the efforts of all.

The Friars have been given votes in the prestigious NCAA rankings.

The picture was not always quite so rosy for the Providence College hockey program. In 1964, the Friars qualified for the NCAA tournament, and that winter they defeated in both games of the tournament, Providence College hockey was on the rise.

Lamoriello, who has built a reputation here at Providence College as one of the top athletic directors in the country, is confident that the Friars now have the ability to be the best teams we have ever been in the picture, we were. This is not the royal we, which monarchs use in describing their actions, but a we... that is meant to convey a feeling of plurality, that the success of the Providence College hockey program over the last few years has been the work of many people, of the efforts of all.

Dan Kennedy, captain of the 73-74 Friars and fine scorer, played second fiddle to Ron Wilson. "Ron is the hockey coach," says Lamoriello of his approach to coaching at the college level. Lamoriello, in his 12 years of coaching at NCAR levels, has seen the benefits of the ECAC's player safety standards, which make us appreciate what we have now. We have a lot of the players, both on and off the ice, and we feel that this facility here is just an indication to them that we are proud of what we have now.

The teams that we have had here the past two years would have to be the best teams we have assembled of the past ten years, as far as overall ability. As far as team, there was a lot of competition and power plays, these were the best.

"We've had a couple of other teams over the years go to the playoffs, but they were not as good..." Lamoriello said that although he had other teams advance to the playoffs, he was not sure of the ability as he was of the squads he had the last two seasons.

In retrospect, our teams have been snowballing, playing just the way they should at the right time, Lamoriello said.

ECAC features three new divisions

By Bob Walsh

The ECAC Division hockey will be divided into three new divisions this year.

Last season 17 teams in Division I were lumped into one ranking. This year there will be three separate divisions: the Western or New England division; the East, or New England division; and the ECAC semi-finalists last March and finished fourth overall in the tournament. Each division will be made up of the five best records, and three seeds in the ECAC Tournament will be automatically one of the top seeds in the East.

Each division will be made up of the five best records, and three seeds in the ECAC Tournament will be automatically one of the top seeds in the East.

The Black Bears of Maine are the newest team in Division I this season. A very strong team in Division II, they may well fare well in Division I, but should be challenged before they can be asked to make a run at the league leaders. This should provide the Black Bears with a shot at their record do have an excellent squad. A 1-7-5 Division II record in their first season is quite good, and they should be able to make a run at the top teams this season.

The ECAC features three new divisions: the Western or New England division; the East, or New England division; and the ECAC semi-finalists last March and finished fourth overall in the tournament. Each division will be made up of the five best records, and three seeds in the ECAC Tournament will be automatically one of the top seeds in the East.

The top finisher in each division is automatically one of the top three seeds in the ECAC Tournament. The next five teams will be teams with the five best records, regardless of their division. They will be seeded fourth through eighth.

The ECAC should be exciting enough to follow this year. BU, BC, Providence, Northeastern, UNH, and New Hampshire will all compete for the ECAC semi-finals. The top three will advance to the ECAC tournament, and the team with the most points will be declared the ECAC champions.

The Bulldogs lost seven players of last year's squad, the most crucial of which is center Mark Pavlich (31-48-79). Pavlich has left the ECAC with his 190 U.S. Olympic team. They still have plenty of scoring punch in seniors Dave Driscoll (31-33-64) and sophomore Brian Ouellet (30-44).

Curt Siles was lost to graduation on the blue line, but there is plenty of depth on the books to fill the gap. Bill Perky, third in WCHA All-Star balloting, will most likely be the Bulldogs number one goaltender. UMD will be well beyond the class of this year's Brown Tourney.

Players must adjust to masks

"A player feels more protected on the face, and he will be less inhibited about jumping in front of a shot, or perhaps checking a little more recklessly," he explains. Jack Parker. "I've seen it in high school hockey, and I feel it will come through on the NCAA level too."

Also, no one wants to be the guy who suffered a paralyzing injury, nor has a major brawl marred any contest. There is little chance that the ruling will be reversed. Last April the rule was passed at a majority of the athletic directors meeting and one dissenting. Since then, the topic has brought up for discussion again. More voiced feelings about the matter, as no as of now, the ruling still stands.

When RPI played the Olympic hockey team in an exhibition earlier this year, Jack Hughes stick got hooked into the mask of an RPI player. The stick remained lodged in the mask and dangled from the helmet of the player while play continued.

"I feel that a six-month study was not enough to have spent on a question mark for this squad. It has been looked into."

Mike Addessi stated. "There are useful, and no useful circum¬ stances.

much of last season due to injury, however. Pressure will be on Costantine as a freshman, Ken Reid will be backing him up.

Nineteen lettermen are returning for the Engineers. Steve Stoyontzish (10-37-47), Larry Landon (18-27-45), and Mike McPherson (14-19-33) are all potent threats on offense. Most of the defensive lettermen are back also.

The major disappointment for the Engineers had last year's 8-1-6 ECAC season was injuries. A healthy RPI should be a much better team this year.

VERMONT

January 20, 7:30; Home

Many Friar fans may remember last year's 11-2 drubbing at the hands of the Catamounts at Vermont. Fortunately for the Friars, this year's game will be played at the home rink. Unfortunately, they will face virtually the same squad as last year.

All-American defenseman Louis Cone is one of the finest defenders in college hockey. He is one of seventeen returning lettermen for the Catamounts. These lettermen provided almost 40% of last year's Vermont goal production so that the Catamounts should have no problems in that department.

Sylvain Turcotte (4-6-10) had a fine year in goal last year and will return to do it again this year.

Although many of the top powerplay teams in the East, the Friars should watch the Catamounts closely.

January 25, Away; March 1, Home

BC got off to a rocky start last year, but wound up winning eight of their last 11 games. The Eagles have everyone returning, except All-American Joe Mullen, so if they can avoid the early season blues, they could be a major team to contend with in the East Division.

Bill O'Dwyer (9-30-39) and Bill Amidoon will be their top defensemen. Cleaver and Mike Prestridge will share the goaltending. Bryan Cleaver and Mike Prestridge will apply their experience to the center position.

All other spots are questions marks for the Knights. They will rely on their team to mature as the season progresses. This is a dubious proposition for any team, but they may have their act together by the time they meet the Friars.

DARTMOUTH

February 5, 7:30; Home

The Big Green had quite an impressive season last year, advancing to the ECAC finals and then the NCAA tournament. They will be looking to press repeat however, as many of their top performers in 1978-79 have graduated.

While the goaltending is strong with All-Ivy Bob Gaudet, the defense may be a bit shaky. Three new players will be in the lineup.

The Big Green offense will have to be more productive if they hope to repeat.

BU

February 8, 8:00; Away

BU is still one of the top teams in the ECAC and the Friar fans witnessed their 3-1 victory at Schneider Arena earlier this year. Despite the loss of Jim Craig in goal and All-American defense man Jack O'Callahan, Jack Parker still has an awesome squad.

Goal scoring and goal tending should not be too big of a problem for Terriers. Jim Weiskopf (7-23-23) will be back. Freshman Bob Barick will back him up.

Brock Tredway (31-29-60) will be one of the mainstays of the Cornell offense, which is so powerful that Tredway played on the third line last year. Tredway, tri-captain along with Steve Hennessy and Doug Berk, was a first team All-Ivy selection last year.

The Big Red boasts a young but talented defense. Brian Hayward and Mark Finn will split the netminding.

YALE

January 28, 7:30; Away

Yale made the ECAC playoffs last year with a 12-10-1 Division 1 record. They lost only four seniors to graduation so they can be expected to be in the scramble for a top four position again this year.

Paul Castronuova (15-25-40) and Danny Brugman (10-25-35)

will be back to lead the Eli's' attack. Most of the Bulldogs top scorers will be returning. Senior Keith Allain will take the majority of the goaltending work. Allain was 11-7-1 last season.

UNH

February 14, 7:00; Away

February 22, 7:30; Home

The Wildcats, usually one of the top scoring teams in Division 1, will have a slightly different look this year. Ranked either first or second in scoring for the last six years, the Wildcats will have to try to match that fast with a graduation-awarded offense. Five players who scored more than half of the Wildcats goals last year will not be returning.

While Charlie Holt is trying to rebuild up front, his defense is as strong as ever. ECAC Tournament most valuable player, Greg Morfit, will return in goal, as will seven of the eight defensemen that carried the Wildcats to last year's ECAC championship.

Unfortunately, UNH is not likely to repeat last year's championship performance, they will still be one of the top teams in the New England Division.

PRINCETON

February 19, 7:30; Home

Princeton, the doormat of the league last year, looks to have another dismal season this year. Their main problem is a lack of depth in all areas. The Tigers are a couple of good recruiting years away from a playoff spot.

Don't count them out too easily however. Spaulders can always light up front. The Golden Knights have three good lines and defensive corps will also be back.

This could be a tough one for the Friars here.

When you apply your experience to the center position, most of the Bulldogs top performers return.

Gavitt reflects on a decade of success

By Ed Ruhl

During the 1970's, Providence College has been fortunate enough to have one of the best basketball minds and top college coaches in the country, Dave Gavitt. After retiring from the head coach rank last year, Gavitt now devotes his time to the direction of the athletic program and preparation for the 1980 Summer Olympic Games, in which he will coach the United States Team.

In looking back over these years, Dave Gavitt sees them as a "decade of tremendous growth and expansion in which the athletic department has lived up to its obligation to the community of Providence College."

Some of the major developments at PC saw it change from an all-male college with seven varsity sports, little facilities and intramural programs, to a coeducational, 22 sport program with increased participation and reputation.

The appearances of Schneider Arena; Clay and Raymond recreational fields; lighting on the Raymond field and tennis courts; and the formation of the Big East Conference are the two major moves for PC in the future. "These two things were absolutely necessary to provide for the good health and well being of Providence College in the '80's."

At the present time, the existing athletic facilities are inadequate and unable to properly serve the recreational needs of students. Gavitt sees the complex as an additive to the overall quality of school life. "With this new indoor facility, student needs will be handled and their involvement in both intramural and varsity sports can be expanded."

While the sports complex promises to create new student opportunities, so will the entrance of PC into the new Big East Conference. "This conference will have great benefits not only to the basketball program, but to all our sports, including the women's athletic," says Gavitt.

As the conference provides good competition and coverage with schools similar to PC, the school's attraction as a competitor in Garcia, recognized, athletic conferences should help increase student interest and attendance in the future, a time of anticipated declining in student enrollment.

"The mark of a Providence Player is that he leaves as a better player than he came." With an impressive record of 195 wins and 73 losses over these ten years, Gavitt attributes his coaching success to these things he studied under: "You are a product of the influences upon you. In my case, I was very fortunate, with good high school coaches and especially good college coaching of Alvin "Pooh" Julian, head coach at Dartmouth. Another strong influence was that of his predecessor, coach Gavitt remembers many exciting and rewarding experiences. But the one that stands out especially is the 1973 win over Maryland that sent the Friars to the NCAA semi-finals.

"It was a great accomplishment for a small school such as Providence College, putting us in the same league with UCLA's and Indiana's. "Many thought that the PC team, led by Ernie DiGregorio and Marvin Barnes, could have won the national title had it not been for back by Barnes' injury against Indiana."

During the '70's, Gavitt-led teams would be invited to the NCAA Tournament five times, but never gained as much success as the Friars.

With such an abundance of talent over these years, who would Gavitt pick as his All-Star team of the decade? Ernie DiGregorio, Kevin Stacom, and Joe Hassett were the major changes for the '80's.

Ernie D. consults with Gavitt during the 1973 NCAA Tournament game against Maryland. Providence defeated Maryland and advanced to the Final Four. Ernie D., one of the most honored college players in 1973, was named as a First Team All American for his outstanding performance in his senior year.

The conference promises to help all sports and create new ones, such as swimming. In time, PC will be involved in Big East Championships in many sports.

The conference will also improve the Friars' potential, helping to keep the best talent in the city and state, instead of looking to western and central conventions for recognition and reputation. So, according to Gavitt, the Big East Conference is both an athletic gain for the recreational complex as an all-male college with seven years, Dave Gavitt sees them as a "decade of tremendously growing and expansion in which the athletic department has lived up to its obligation to the community of Providence College."

Fieldhouse readies PC for the future

By Ellen Harrington

Citing an increasing enrollment and a sparkled interest in physical fitness and athletics at Providence College, the Very Reverend Thomas R. Peterson, O.P., President, has announced plans to construct a new Recreation Center on the PC campus, adjacent to Alumni Hall.

In 1954, Providence College constructed its first athletic facility, Alumni Hall, which houses basketball, racquetball, and squash courts, locker rooms, training rooms, a women’s center, the ROTC headquarters, anten offices, and various other facilities. Twenty-five years ago, the facility more than adequately served the male student body of 2,600.

Now there are 3,400 students attending PC, 49 percent of which are women. The Friars currently have 20 varsity sports equally divided between men and women, and some of the varsity teams use Alumni Hall for practices and competitions. It is also evident that physical fitness and sports are a vital part of student life at PC, as 2,800 students participated in intramurals during the 1978-79 school year. Amazingly, there were 100 basketball teams, 96 softball teams, 40 volleyball teams, and 40 football teams. Weight lifting and running are also very popular among the Friars.

The new, two-level facility will join Alumni Hall and its cost is projected at $5.5 million. It will include a 220-yard indoor track; a 25-meter swimming pool, eight hand-ball/raquetball courts, and five multi-purpose courts for tennis, basketball and volleyball. Alumni Hall will also undergo renovation to facilitate access to the new building and redistribute locker room and storage space.

Father Peterson pointed out that the Recreation Center will first serve the recreational needs of the entire student body, and secondly, provide areas for varsity teams to practice. "It has been apparent for some time that there was a pressing need for a new recreational area, but we have had an established set of priorities. Under our development plan, we have concentrated during the past five years in providing the physical plant needed by our expanding academic departments. Since the College acquired the former Chapin Hospital property in 1974, we have opened a new Art Center, faculty housing, a complex for music and theater programs. And most recently, a building for the business department," Father Peterson said.

Continuing, Father Peterson added, "the committee, which spent more than a year studying the need for, and feasibility of, erecting this structure, noted in its report to the Corporation that a Recreation Center is not a luxury or a convenience, but a necessity for the quality of life on the Providence College campus."

According to Athletic Director Dave Gavitt, who is the man in charge of the over-all supervision of the project, "under Gerry Alaimo, the college’s first full-time intramural and recreation director, there were more than 2,800 students participating in the intramural program last year. We have been able to accommodate the outdoor sports with the addition of three playing fields on the Lower Campus, but we have not been able to meet the students' needs for indoor facilities."

He also added, "We feel that a new Recreation Center will complement the strong academic curriculum of Providence College, and the new facility will enable us to offer each student an opportunity to pursue physical fitness either as an individual basis, or in the framework of a team program."

From September, 1978 to May, 1979, Alaimo and the athletic department studied the activity at Alumni Hall and found that a total of 28,622 men and women used the facility over the nine month period. "Participation was extremely heavy," Alaimo said, "residents as well as commuters, along with alumni, faculty, and staff all used Alumni Hall. If we had the fieldhouse during the afternoon hours, it would operate at full capacity. The demand for space far exceeds the space available."

Women's sports expanding

By Mary Gibbons

Women's sports have grown rapidly in recent years, with some female athletes making their marks in the record books. Providence College is no exception to this rising popularity, as evidenced by the increase in female athletes on the field and on the court.

Mrs. Helen Bert, the women's athletic director, has been here since 1976. A graduate of Hunter College, Mrs. Bert was well prepared to take on the new responsibilities. She had previously held the position of Athletic Director at Cardinal Spellman High School for ten years and also acted as physical education supervisor for the Diocese of New York. Not long after she moved to Rhode Island nine years ago, Mrs. Bert was contacted by Mr. Dave Gavitt and Mr. Richard Bagge, concerning the athletics of the newly co-ed Providence College.

Mrs. Bert arrived at Providence ready and willing to meet her new challenge. She did not have much to work with, but the administration did its best to help, giving the girls a Women's Center and helping them whenever possible. The women had use of the gym for an hour and a half a week and participated in 5 inter-collegiate teams: basketball, tennis and cheerleading. The Women's Center was used to provide activities for all PC women, as exercise programs were developed.

The Women's Center is designed for both athletes and non-athletes as a place they can go to exercise or socialize. Located in Alumni Hall, the Women's Center is open to all female PC students daily from 11:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Classes such as fencing, aerobics, and dancearobics are run for the women. It houses a women's locker room, with exercise equipment, a training room, locker rooms, showers and a sauna. All women are welcome to use this facility.

Each year the women's program has added new teams. There has been a gradual evolution of new sports as they have been needed. In the past seven years of women's existence at PC, two teams have evolved. Softball came to Providence in the second year of the women's athletics. Ice hockey has been here for five years and field hockey for four years. Girls cross-country and volleyball have existed at PC for three years, and women's lacrosse is being offered this year as a varsity sport for the first time.

The ability of the coaching staff is an important factor in the success of a team. Mrs. Bert is very happy with the athletic program at PC. One may not realize how many teams PC has for such a small school. We now have 10 inter-collegiate teams and each one is doing well. Four of the women's teams qualified and entered regional competition. All the teams are very competitive in their respective sports. The women's ice hockey team is ranked second in the east, behind the massive University of New Hampshire. Providence will be hosting the first EAAW Invitational Tournament on March 7-8. Teams from all over the east will be travelling to Schneider Arena to battle for the title of regional champ.

Providence can also boast of some individual talent on the field, as the National Field Hockey Team will be featuring two of PC's own Lady Friars. Marilyn Noble and possible Olympic prospect Linda Wenge will be the only two women on the team who are still in college. Most of their teammates are recent graduates of various colleges and universities across the nation.

Mrs. Bert is anticipating the building of the new field house; with the better facilities women will be able to expand even further. She sees the possibility of a swim team upon completion of the pool in the field house.

"This could be the beginning of a beautiful relationship."

The intramural and recreational sports can be improved with the new facilities. There will be more available time so such activities can be taken care of.

Mrs. Bert feels that the major need of the women is scholarships. The first scholarships for women were given for the class of '75, who received two scholarships. That number has increased to the present four scholarships allotted to the women athletes per year. In order to meet the high level of competition our teams are facing and to maintain the outstanding quality of our women's program at PC, Mrs. Bert feels that three additional scholarships should be allotted per year.

"The administration is committed to quality in women's athletics and I am very pleased with our program. It meets the needs of the girls and we will continue to do so. I am very proud of everyone involved."
Women Harriers complete best season ever

By Barbara Casserly

In summing up this year's girls' cross-country season, coach Kathy Cerra said that it was "outstanding, best of the three years I have coached here." The season was highlighted by members of the team competing in the AIAW (Alliance for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) nationals in Tallahassee, Florida.

The team, led by senior captain Janice Cataldo, junior Sheila Barry, and sophomore Sue Racilffe, along with sophomores M. Oona Mulligan and Linda Simske placed 12th in the nation, in division two.

The competition in division two was tough, because the competitors were from schools where cross-country is a major sport. The Providence College representatives were also at a disadvantage, because they were new to the weather, and the course was very flat. Despite the handicaps, Cataldo finished 38th; Ratcliffe 41st; and Barry 48th, in a field of 139 runners.

The team compiled an outstanding 6-1 record in dual meets. When commenting on the season's success this year, Cerra said Cataldo and Ratcliffe as always having been good runners, but singled out Sheila Barry for being "the most consistent runner, she was just an all around competitor and always placed for the team in the top three."

Senior captains Janice Cataldo and Carmen Ross will, according to Cerra, "be a great loss, not only for their running ability, but because of their enthusiasm and leadership for formulating a group of individuals into becoming a team."

Moving indoors, the girls look forward to just as strong a season. The team has strong sprinters coupled with distance runners. Cerra stated that it is a team of "quality as opposed to quantity."

Expected to help out is Janice Cataldo in the mile, Sheila Barry in the half and the mile, Jean Flors, a freshman sprinter and long jumper, senior Chris Heidt, a sprinter and long jumper; and sophomore Mauna McQuire, a long jumper and high jumper.

Lady hoopsters preview

By Cheryl Gabes

Returning with a record of 21-9 from last season, the PC women's basketball team is ready for another action-packed season. Last year's squad lost to Fordham University in the Regionals, by one point. This year's squad will be weakened by the loss of two of last year's players: center Mel Buchanan and Mary Casey.

Top returnees for the Lady Friars will be Marianne McCoy, Lynn Sheedy, Madeline McCoy, Cathy Devine, and Rita Fraser, who will combine to form the strong point in the team. Their talent and ability to endure will be called upon this season to combat some tough competition in the league. Backing up these experienced Friars will be Joan Finneran, Linda Wage and Nancy Fabiano, who will add strength and experience to the squad. Rounding out the team is Sue Hudson, who took a leave of absence last year, as well as two freshmen: Peggy Eagan, a guard from New Jersey, who will add much depth and scoring ability, and Jane Benerowski, a 6-1 center, who, with time, will provide much strength to the team.

PC will have the one weakness of being smaller than many of the schools in the league, and therefore will have to concentrate on their defense and quickness. Tough competition in the league will be found in Quinnus, Fordham and Cheyney State, who all found their way into the National top 20 last season. Besides these, St. John's, UMass, Boston University, and URI will all provide the team with some tough competition, forcing them to "be on guard" at all times. The Lady Friars have, to their advantage, the fact that they are team-oriented, and will continue to work together throughout the entire season. Good luck to the Lady Friars!

In a game played under rainy conditions, on a muddy field, the Friar Big men proved that a previously undefeated Fried Friar team, to win the intramural flag football championship, 25-18.

It took a while for both teams to get rolling, but a John Formica pass to Kevin O'Connor put the Prime Time Players up, 7-0. The Fried Friars, lead by Matt Hand and Ponf Giugliamo made the score 7-0 at halftime.

In the second half, Mike Thomas greeted the Fried Friars with an interception which turned into a touchdown by John Formica, and a score of 13-6. The Friars came right back with Jimmy Wel ch, making the score 13-12.

The key play of the game came from Nick NeMattie, who turned a kick off return into a quick 6, making the score 19-12. But as before, the Fried Friars scored on the next three plays, 19-18, late in the second half, PC was up by ten. Despite two technical fouls, one on Hunger and one on coach Walters, the Friars still remained under control. Although Stonehill fought back to within two at 45-43 and later at 52-51, Providence was able to get the open shots and convert them into big points. Tucker’s quick drive down the middle and Field’s reverse lay-up pushed the lead to ten again.

With Stonehill’s big man, 6-6 Bill Zolga, out on fouls, the offensive boards opened up for the Friar big men. Aubrey Stallworth, Williams, and Scott led the attacks as PC ran out to a 73-58 lead. With four minutes to go, Walters spread things out by using the four corners offense and when the clock ran out, PC had run up an 83-62 victory.

The young Friar squad played well together, with all starters scoring in double figures. Walters led the way with 29, followed by Scott (19), Fields (14), Hunger (10), and Tucker (10). Tucker played well, proving he can handle the Friars ballhandling and control the offense with good court sense.

Pete Lyons places first in tourneys

By Brian Ottov

The PC netmen travelled to Lavalle in Quebec City, Canada, to take in an international tournament on the weekend of November 10. The team faced well, placing second behind the home team Lavalle. In his third consecutive tournament appearance, Peter Lyons once again walked away victorious by beating Jacques Dejeanais of Lavalle, 6-4, 7-5. Lyons was seeded second and Dejeanais was seeded third.

The other singles players also fared well. Bill Dinadio lost his quarter final match to the number one seed and last year’s winner of Concordia College, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, but was actually denied a possible victory. With the score tied 1-1 in the third set, the scoreboard erroneously credited Kreinsen with two extra games, making the score 3-1. It would probably have gone by unnoticed but PC had brought along two alert team managers by the names of Karen O’Connell and Lisa Caldwell who noticed the error and quickly brought it to Dinadio’s and the coach’s attention. But, due to the mechanical dependency of the scoreboard, the error remained unchanged. Therefore Dinadio lost by two games in the third set.

Chris Ditmar made it into the top 16 where he lost a tough three setter, 6-7, 7-6, 7-6. In doubles, the number two seed of Steve Charfield and Brian Shanley lost in the semi-finals, 6-3, 6-7, 6-4, to a team from Lavalle. The Lavalle duo had to overcome three set points to gain the victory.

In Concordia, New York, on the weekend of November 1, Peter Lyons won the round robin tournament for his fourth straight title. He defeated Austron Borgen, the number one ranked junior from Brazil on his way to victory. Chris Ditmar won his individual round robin in the number five slot. Bill Dinadio, Steve Charfield, Brian Shanley, and Mike Tavares all fared well under very competitive circumstances.

The doubles tandem of Dinadio and Lyons won their section at first doubles. Their key victory was over the Lavalle team, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4. Dinadio and Lyons will compete together in Europe this summer. This was their second consecutive tournament victory together. In other doubles, Steve Charfield and Brian Shanley placed third, and Mike McCarthy and Chris Ditmar placed fourth. Overall the PC team placed third behind Akron, Ohio and the University of Chatfield and Brian Shanley placed first. Peter Lyons has been practicing since last Thursday, (taking a week off Wednesday), the Friars came right back with the momentum of the win over Lavalle, making the score 13-6. But as Jimmy Welch, making the score 7-6 at halftime, 13-12.

Al Doyle picked all New England

Al Doyle, a senior forward for the Friar’s soccer team, was picked first team All New England by a college coaches poll. This is the first time in the team’s twelve year history that anyone from PC has been picked as a first team choice. Al played in an interquartu game against the other New England choices November 18 at Connecticut College.

The senior forward bounced back from a late summer season of Monoenucleosis to conclude the season’s second half playing sound soccer.

Dave Kreinsen, a fullback and the mainstay of the squads defense, was chosen second All-New England by the same poll. Dave is also a senior, although no game was played, he did receive honorable mention.

the powerplay goals and the opportunities that resulted in goals.
According to Lamoriello, “We changed the powerplay. We went back to the old way of doing it because we hadn’t been scoring on the powerplay.” This was done by having two wings wide and a man in the slot. The team as a whole moved the puck fast and took shots.

The Friars had a powerplay chance in the first period, but were stopped. Three seconds after the powerplay ended, Scotti Kleinendorst took a high shot that eluded Duffy in the Harvard net.

Last year’s expected winner, Henry Rono of WSU, had faltered poorly in Wisconsin due to a wrong turn; but was expected to move and took the lead from Salazar. By five miles, Rono had moved his position as they approached the four and a half mile mark. As the two leading runners approached the four and a half mile point, Rono made his move and took the lead from Salazar. By five miles, Rono had a fifteen yard lead on the number two man and proceeded to stretch it out as they approached the wire. Rono finished at 28:19 and Salazar at 28:28.

A penalty at 10:06 gave the Friars another chance and they did not disappoint the crowd. Late in the play, Kurt Kleinendorst gave PC a 4-2 lead. Again, accurate passing by Steve Anderson and Mike Bolzolt made the goal possible. The fans came to their feet again at the 15:05 mark, eleven seconds after another penalty to Harvard was called. Denis Martin took a slap-shot and a tip in by Miel gave him the first as A PC player.

Hoopsters beat Niagara, 60-59, in OT

By Ed Ruhl

In their second game, against Niagara University, the Friars played the same style game. Cold in the first half, they burst from the locker room and seemingly took control in the second half. But a tough Niagara team made the 7,889 Friar fans sweat it out before they were able to enjoy a 60-59 overtime victory.

While playing a tight zone defense, concerned with stopping Niagara's scoring star, 6-6 Corry Jordan, the Friars couldn't find the handle offensively. Turnovers plagued both teams in the low scoring first half, with the Purple Eagles committing 11, opposite 7 for the Friars.

With a fine point scoring binge and a stall in the final two minutes, the Friars left at the half with a slim 21-20 lead. Rudy Williams, 2 for 10, and Jerry Scott, 1 for 6, couldn't buy a basket.

But when Williams hit the floor in the second half, nothing could go wrong. Four straight jumpers lit the Friar fire, while Rich Hunger was busy blocking Niagara shots.

When Bill Fields hit the 9th of 13 second period shots for the Friars, they were up 45-37 and forced coach Dan Raskin to change a man to man defense.

Ricky Tucker and Williams capitalized with their quickness for short jumpers and placed shots against the single coverage, up the lead to 53-42 in what looked like a repeat blowout from the preceding night.

Here is where the Niagara Purple Eagles showed their strength, fighting back to a 53-50 score as Rich Hunger left the game with his fifth foul. Freshman Mike Howe started to control the boards with Hunger gone and Niagara tied things at 53, with 1:09 remaining.

PC used a control offense, under the cooly handled direction of freshman Tucker, to wind the clock down to 11 seconds before calling time out. Jerry Scott's missed jumper was tapped in by reserve Aubrey Stallworth. And it looked like a PC victory. But with one second to go, guard Don Drum threw up a one handed 10 footer that sent the game into overtime, and Friar fans back to their seats.

With Williams and Tucker both in foul trouble (four each), the situation looked bleak. After Williams' jumper put PC up 57-55, his fifth foul brought them down to a desperate situation.

With two reserves, Stallworth and Bruce McKnight, in a pressure situation, the Friars controlled the ball from the 2.15 mark down to about 0:04 when Scott put up a ten foot jump shot. Stallworth was fouled while grabbing the rebound with one second to go, and showed the composure of a veteran by sinking the first of two free throws. When his second shot fell off the rim, Niagara had no room to call a time out and PC had its second victory in as many games.

Williams led all scorers with 18 points and Fields helped out with 12. Hunger played very aggressively, blocking six shots, and Tucker again showed good court sense and leadership in directing the Friar attack. While the tight PC defense concentrated on Jordan, who managed 16 points, they also shut out the other Niagara players, only one of who scored in double figures.

Coming into their opening game of the '79-80 season, the PC hoop team was surrounded by uncertainty and inexpertise. But when the final seconds ticked off, they emerged with good team cohesiveness and a 21 point victory over Stonyhill College.

In the opening minutes, Stonyhill jumped to a quick 8-2 lead against the full court Friar press. But the tight defense lead to continued Stonyhill turnovers. Rudy Williams hit with 7:30 remaining in the period, to bring the Friars back to within one before taking the lead on a Bill Fields jumper the next down time out. The teams continued exchanging baskets before PC squeaked out two quick hoops to end the half up by 32-28.

Although in the lead, the Friars by no means dominated play. Scott and Williams collected eight each in the half while Bill Fields chipped in with six. But when Sue B-C all, Page 16

Lady Friars edge NU, 4-2...

The women's ice hockey team travelled to Boston to face Northeastern last Thursday night. Behold the outstanding performance of senior goalie Jill Spencer, the Lady Friars came away with a 4-2 victory.

Spencer thwarted the Northeastern attack, kicking out 24 shots. Sophomore Mary Ellen Riordan led the Friar offense collecting two goals.

Defender Sue Duffy opened up the scoring seven minutes into the first period. After receiving a pass from Alexis Sgobbo, Duffy flipped a backhand over the shoulder of the Northeastern net minder. Riordan scored her first goal of the game at the close of the period on a pass from Kathy Lenahan.

The lone goal of the second period came from PC's Connie Richer, and Alexis Sgobbo was credited with her second assist of the game.

Northeastern held the Friars scoreless for the remainder of the second period, but was able to tally two goals of their own. Hopeful for a shot, they were shadowed when Northeastern's Kathy Williams slipped a shot past Spencer. Donna Sorrentino followed with another Northeastern goal. Providence hailed the Northeastern comeback as Clarkson tried desperately, but the Lady Friars handed Northeastern its second loss, while improving to 1 for 6.

In their second game, against UConn, the Friars were more than competitive, holding their own in the low scoring first half while Bill Fields chipped in with six. But when

In a game played at Schneider Arena, on December 1, the Providence women's hockey team blanked previously undefeated Clarkson, scoring 15 goals, while only allowing their opponents ten shots, with two cars.

Next game is against UConn, Wednesday, December 19, 1979.
