THE MARQUEE
Congress Elections Announced

A schedule of elections for all student organizations was presented to Congress by the Legislative Committee at Sunday night's meeting. Student Congress Executive Board Elections will take place during the next nine days, and all other elections will follow consecutively. Nomination papers for students running for the Executive Board will be available beginning tomorrow, Thursday, March 4, in the Student Congress Office between 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

All nomination papers must be completed and handed in to the Student Congress Office by 4 p.m. on Monday, March 8. The campaign period for the Executive Board elections will run from Tuesday, March 9, through Thursday, March 11. Elections will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., in Slavin Center on Friday, March 12.

All elections for other student organizations will follow those for the Executive Board of Congress, and have been listed below as scheduled for the next two months. In addition to changes made in election rules last November, which included the use of sandwich boards and a button worn only by the candidate, the Legislative Committee recently revised campaigning rules for the day of the election. It was decided prior to Sunday night’s meeting that verbal campaigning would be allowed on the day of the elections, but not in Slavin Center.

Further, campaigning off campus will be allowed throughout the campaign period. A complete copy of election rules will be available to interested students and will be distributed with nomination papers beginning tomorrow in the Student Congress office.

Reagan Proposes Devastating Cuts: Nations' Coeds Will Suffer

In what one of them termed a "historic" gathering, representatives of the largest and most important college groups in the land joined in Washington last month to preview a $1.6 billion, politically sensitive — President Ronald Reagan and the 1983 education budget that would carry the country, to Congress to pass.

The representatives of state schools, private universities, community and junior colleges, students and faculty members bitterly predicted that as many as two million college students would be hurt. Thousands of them may be driven from campus altogether.

"Deep cuts have already been made in appropriations for student foundations," said Dr. Henry L. Holmey, lobbyist for the U.S. Student Association (USSA). "Further cuts are going to keep the students from returning to college next fall, and others will never get to attend college at all.

The spokespersons, solemnly facing an audience of reporters and association staffers in a House committee hearing room, said the Reagan education budget would affect all federal student aid programs.

Vast Grants

According to numbers leaked to the press, the administration wants Congress to cut Pell Grants by 40 percent. Only students from families earning less than $14,000 a year could get the grants, compared to a limit of $27,000 this year. So the grant, moreover, would be $1400, down from $1670 this year.

Supplemental Educational Opportunities

SEOGs, which currently serve some 615,000 college students, would be eliminated entirely from financial aid programs.

National Direct Student Loans

Under the NDSL program, created during the Eisenhower administration, 250,000 students now get low-cost loans to pay for some college expenses. Congress died to end all funding for NDSLs.

College Work-Study Program

The Reagan budget calls for a 27 percent funding cut for this program, which the federal government helps colleges pay students working their way through school. Some $350 million in grants, however, would be $675 million, down from $156 million in 1982.

Guaranteed Student Loans

About 4.5 million students took GSLs this year, but the administration wants to cut all 600,000 guaranteed student loans from the GSL program by 30 percent. This year, some 250,000 students will lose their jobs as a result of the cut.

State Student Incentive Grants

The SSIG fund matches grants made to students by the states. The administration wants to cut the entire program, which this year serves 300,000 students.

Students Without Federal Aid

Reagan's Action Committee has already done a mass mailing to college officials, warning them of the consequences of the budget cuts,

Nations' Students Organize Protests

"They got their heads handed to them," groused one Missouri financial aid official of last year's college budget battle between the Reagan administration and the higher education lobby entrusted with protecting college program funding.

"Reagan cut education because he thought educators were politically weak," and he was right. Colleges got bent.

It won't happen again, according to Bob Aaron, spokesman for the American Council on Education, the largest association of U.S. colleges and universities.

Still eroding from the 12 percent cut in college funds imposed for the 1982 fiscal year budget, college lobbyists have organized an aggressive national campaign that included a national Day of Protest this past Monday, March 1, to beat the even more drastic cuts President Reagan wants to make for fiscal 1983.

Four major lobbying groups, for example, have formed an Action Committee in the capital to help the group's own 800 members, to coordinate nationwide efforts to escape the cuts.

The U.S. Student Association (USSA) is sponsoring its annual lobbying conference, which some 400 student government leaders from across the country are attending, in conjunction with Monday's protest effort. Lobbyists hope to speak with lawmakers to vote against the Reagan cuts.

Monday's day of protest was sponsored by the Coalition of Private College and University students.

Aaron's Action Committee has already done a mass mailing to college officials, warning them of the consequences of the budget cuts, giving them materials to place in local media, and getting "them to tell alums what's going to happen.

The Committee also aims to form "campus committees of students, faculty and staff members to sit down with the editorial boards of their local newspapers, do talk shows, and get people to write their congressmen," Aaron says.

The committee will help mobilize "the resentment of the young people who say, 'I just received a $600 tax cut and a bill for $5,000 in tuition because my kid no longer qualifies for financial aid,'" Aaron hopes.

The Action Committee will have regional coordinators to oversee what Aaron calls "the grassroots activities."

Aaron has a campaign in mind, too, to demonstrate that "this is bad for the country as a whole.

He says, "We'll be pointing out that students are the people. When we push people out of college, we're eating our own college, and we mean, we want to make our economy more productive, so we cut all those graduate students who do the research that it makes more productive. They want a stronger military. Who, do they think is going to design all these weapons systems for them if they close down university research?

With all protest systems going, Aaron hopes to generate "the same sort of reaction as there was when Reagan tried to cut Social Security.

The ambitious plans, along with careful organization and sophisticated press materials, were

PC Congress Organizes Efforts:

Join Nationwide Response

The cuts in federal college programs made last year really won't be felt until this fall. The PC administration is already reeling from the already changed campus life in some areas. The student migration from private to public colleges has begun; out-of-state students are going home to school; administrators are trying to figure out how they will be able to keep some minority students dropping out in record numbers; there are fewer students at most private colleges; and campus personnel are even worried that stress levels are definitely higher.

In this issue of The Cowl, these news stories focus on exploring the effects of the Reagan administration's budget cuts as they effect private college students and college officials organize in protest and response to the crisis here on campus.

By Cathy John

As students and college officials across the country continue to confront the increasing danger of President Reagan's proposed budget cuts to the national education budget, students and financial aid administrators increasingly are their own efforts to deal with the impending legislation.

As one college congress meeting held this past Sunday evening, Mr. Herb D'Arcy, PC Financial Aid director, made a presentation to Congress members concerning the implications of the proposed cuts.

PC Congress Organizes Efforts:

Join Nationwide Response

By Tom McGair

"Our most immediate concern is President Reagan's proposed budget proposal of 1983-84, which calls for a 47% overall reduction of student aid," said Mr. D'Arcy, director of financial aid, here at Providence College.

There are several ways to pay for the escalating costs of higher education. Most students at PC receive some sort of financial aid in the form of grants or scholarships. Some can make it by working.

Under the proposed Reagan budget cuts, the Pell grants, which can range anywhere from $200 to $1800 per year, would be reduced by 33% and the ever popular college work-study programs would be cut by 64%.

"If all of these are approved, part of our problem is some students not to leave PC, but we must remember, this is only a proposed budget, said D'Arcy.

Over 80% of the students here at PC receive financial assistance from the government. Approxi-mately 40% or 1500 students receive some form of aid. The need for aid is greater than ever before.

If Reagan's budget proposal should be approved, this would affect more students into borrowing larger amounts of money and working longer hours to help compensate for the loss of financial aid they might suffer.

"Fortunately education is maintained at a high priority in the social structure of the country," said D'Arcy.

One way we can deter these financial aid reductions is to make aware of the impact. Mr. D'Arcy suggested that students support the continuation of financial aid, write local senators at the following addresses: Senator John Chafee (D), 301 John O. Pastore Feld, Room 227, Providence, R.I., and Senator Claiborne Pell (D), 418 Fell. Bdg., Providence, R.I.

Rhode Island's Representatives may be reached at the following addresses: Claudine Schneider (R), 307 John O. Pastore Feld, Room 5219, Providence, R.I., and Rep. Ferdinand St. Germain, 200 John E. Fogarty Feld, Bdg., Providence, R.I.

D'Arcy's proposed budget cut would have not only cut off aid, but would have touched a nerve in many students. "Maybe I'm a polly anna, but the only way to deal with the cuts is to deal with the possibility. As outlined on the previous page, cuts in the Pell Grants will mean a loss of $5.5 million in grant money for Rhode Island students, with fewer than 1000 students qualifying. Elimination of the SEOG and NSLID will mean loss of another $1 million, and, respectively, to Rhode Island students. In addition, PC might "lose" 20% funding in the GSR program, according to Mr. D'Arcy, and work study funds will be cut by 43%.

"Many students may have to change their living plans," said Mr. D'Arcy admitting this will have drastic effects.

Addressing the issue of student cuts, a letter from a student quoted D'Arcy as commenting that students must write Congress and Secretary of State to let their opinions be known. "The problem is within the White House with Ronald Reagan and with a few key senators in the Republican Senate and administration who control the budget process," D'Arcy explained. Efforts at protest must be directed there, he believes.

Private vs. Public

To Cope With Cuts

Private colleges — which are supposed to suffer the worst effects of the budget cuts — are able to cope with federal cuts much better than public schools. According to a recent survey by the American Council on Education, private schools are more efficient in raising tuition fees with less difficulty than public schools.

Researchers James Henson and Pamela Robert, both of UCLA, and federal budget cuts — may be better than public schools, envious." Public and Private Higher Education — "Patterns of Funding in Private and Public Higher Education" — asserts.

While Student Congress officials are working with Mr. D'Arcy, PC has conducted a survey to voice disapproval, individual students are encouraged to send in their comments to the administration and Senators. Both Dave Mikula, Student Congress President, and D'Arcy stressed, however, that efforts be directed not at those Congressmen who are already opposed to the budget cuts, but to those who have not yet decided, or who support the cuts.

The following is a list of Congressmen who would be the key figures in supporting the cuts and to whom letters can be sent:

1) Sen. Orrin Hatch, Utah (R), Room 411.
3) Sen. Mark Hatfield, Ore. (R), Room 463.
7) Rep. Jean Schneider (R), Letter.

Letters should be addressed to Congressmen (see list above), U.S. Senate or U.S. House of Representatives (whichever corresponds), Washington, D.C. 20510 (Senate) or 20515 (House).

Private schools can likewise benefit from cuts and, after all, are perhaps stricter than public schools. After all, private colleges are more selective than public schools, and are better prepared to compensate for losses incurred by lower federal funding, the report — called "Patterns of Funding in Public and Private Higher Education" — asserts.

The most recent study, UCLA дан Eugene Weber observed that private colleges and universities have a "tradition in the area of 3.0. A student must have a 3.0 average or higher to be fairly practical in either the French or German language. But if you really want your students to go to Europe, and have only a bachelor's degree of either language, you can take a crash course to prepare you for the trip. A decent character is also looked for, after all, you would be representing Providence College in Europe. To apply, in application similar to a college application must be filled out and a short essay is required. You should apply during the fall of the sophomore year and you are notified in January as to whether or not you are chosen. There is the choice of going for a year or for a semester, but the semester program is more difficult to qualify for because more students desire it and there are fewer slots open.

Approximately 400 students are accepted for the year program and 20 for the semester. For the full year student, the 10-month pro-gram usually allows for eight months at the university and two months for travel, while the semester program allows for seven weeks for a study and a month for travel. Too expensive for your family? "No really," says Dr. Delasanta. He pointed out that the total is close to what you would spend in PC, including traveling expenses. He strongly recommends going abroad, especially to Fribourg, because more students desire it and there is the best experience of their lives. So make a dream come true for Fribourg! It's easier than you think.
College Alumni and Higher Education

By Joseph Lennon

At this time of year, many college stage homecomings and reunions for their graduates. The first question that comes to one about these activities is the tiny percentage of the college's graduates who will take part. The stay-aways are usually condemned as uncooperative and uncooperative, but one can uncover more substantial reasons for the failure of alumni associations to appeal to their graduates.

One reason may be the "professional alumni" kind of person who frequently dominates these gatherings. This person, because he may have, has never really lost his sub-urban attitude.

College chauvinism may be consulting to sentimental administrators, but it beavets an unflattering juvenility. To esteem undergraduate "the golden days" is a sure sign of arrested development.

The reading alumni at reunions and regional meetings also lost the cliche to participate. Inevitably, there is a speech by a vice-voschool that most have been willing to be held by the school's team in the coming season. The president, or the head of his office, may speak. He tells us that alumni have been given the best advice and that they should show their gratitude by giving.

The whole procedure, the oicial approach of the college to its alumni, leaves a graduate with no alma mater. The first assumption is that the only contribution an alumnus may reasonably be expected to make is a financial one. The second point is that alumni are still boys, still passionately interested in sports and local politics.

The third, that education stops, that the alumnus to be richer now than when they lived on campus. More important, they will have to deal with their social status and the simple, real obligation to their alma maters.

A Student's Response:

By Marybeth Holland

As a senior at Providence College, I must say that the idea of going back to the college, I find Fr. Lennon's article very interesting. Although Fr. Lennon does not particularly point out the reasons for not attending a weekend in his article, he expresses, as a part of the Providence College tradition, that education never ends. I must ask myself whether or not the student is old enough to drink.

The system is also effective in the future. An attending nurse need only to read a student's card to know his medical history. The computerized system will be altered. The computerized system is the only method of learning. A student who has been disassociated from the records, will be given a brand new student number from its records, once that person is disassociated from the system. What's next. Last semester it was even more important to read a student's card to know his medical history. The computerized system will be altered. The computerized system is the only method of learning. A student who has been disassociated from the records, will be given a brand new student number from its records, once that person is disassociated from the system. One long range proposal is that the college establishes a library card with a frame is a card. This can be a good opportunity in both Raymond and James M. Spellissy '83.

Who Goes to College?

By Dr. Richard Meisier

Ronald Reagan is attempting to change many of the assumptions within this country, every person who could make use of it, can have education have been working toward the goal of universal access and institutions of higher education for all qualified students, as it does in elementary and secondary school, but for several decades, the government and institutions of higher education have been working toward the goal of universal access for education to those who are qualified. We have made substantial progress.

Not everyone who deserves to go to college is able to do so, but we’ve come fairly close. If you qualify, and if you’re willing to go into debt, you can go to college. Government-sponsored loan programs have supplemented grants to allow most students to come up with the enormous sums of money now needed to go to college. Large taxes-paid public universities, with tuition charges that are considerably lower than private institutions, have grown in many states to help meet the demand for higher education. The network of community colleges is another new and constructive development.

We have not arrived at a situation where all members of the government — will pay for the higher education for all qualified students, as it does in elementary education. But in our own way, emphasizing individuality and the market economy, we’ve come a long way. The fact and the symbol that represent this progress is the widely-adopted admissions policy that makes no reference to the financial resources of an applicant. Large numbers of institutions have, for years now, admitted students without regard for their finances. They have had a number of qualified applicants, and they have assumed that an adequate package of financial aid was available for every student. And they were correct. A few students might not want to borrow large sums of money or accept work-study jobs on campus. But by and large there was enough aid to go around, and it was available through attractive programs that served the needs of students.

The growth of student-aid programs have not translated into better access to higher education for all qualified students. The financial aid that makes no reference to the income with fright may see a nation that makes no reference to the economy in critical condition, in the nation that makes no reference to the moral degenerates.

We have not arrived at a situation where the society — the government — will pay for the higher education for all qualified students.

MCV Blind Date Ball
A Time to Remember
By Jane McAuliffe

As I sit here with an ice pack on my head, I find myself reflecting upon the second annual McVinney Blind Date Ball. For those of you who are unfamiliar with this grand event the pillar of Providence holds each year, each girl must find her roommate a date. The catch? Her roommate is not supposed to know who her date is until he knocks on her door! This leaves one with lots of leeway to be as nice (or as nasty) as one pleases.

Bids were bought three weeks prior to the dance and from there on in, it was a free-for-all! Girls began buying dresses, buzzing over their hair and makeup, hunting down their dates and planning cocktail parties.

Much credit should go to these valiant women who suffered through the fear of the unknown, nail biting and tearing their hair out for a month! And, of course, let us not forget when noting the credits, the guys who went through the pains of getting into their suits, splashing on their favorite aroma, buying coordinating flowers for their dates and being blinded by their shining shoes. (Not to mention the long line they had to wait in in order to call up to their date's room! Ever see the bank on a Friday afternoon?)

Cocktails began at 7 p.m. in Raymond Cafe, followed by dinner provided by Blackstone Caterers and finally, dancing to the fabulous Mertz Brothers until one a.m. The Mertz Brothers played a variety of tunes, although it appears their personal favorite is the Beatles. The only criticism I have is the lack of slow songs and the Beatles over-play, but otherwise they did a fine job and kept the crowd moving.

All things considered, the evening was a successful endeavor. So, if around 6 p.m. this time next year you hear several girls gasping, "Oh, my God!" you'll know it's the night of the McVinney Blind Date Ball.

The leaves keep staring dumbly at me in mottled shades of brown, yellow, red and orange, as if asking me what in blazes was i looking for.

"Peace of mind!" I shouted at them, can't you see i'm trying to become whole! i wandered on thru thicket and underbrush until i saw a mirror — and no matter how many pebbles i threw in, its surface barely rippled.

The air swelled with silence, i thought to myself "So this is what it's like..." Serenity.

As i trod back the way i came, i felt my face unfolding and a sense of satisfaction course thru me.

My fists unclenched, and i no longer heard the honking of horns the wheels of buses rolling kids playing Pac-Man at the Arcade.

i only heard the crunch of leaves under my feet and my own breathing.

i had found peace.

I walked down an already beaten path, trying to "find myself" — like poets and the mid-twentieth century Americans who went before me.

The leaves keep staring dumbly at me in mottled shades of brown, yellow, red and orange, as if asking me what in blazes was i looking for.

"Peace of mind!" I shouted at them, can't you see i'm trying to become whole! i wandered on thru thicket and underbrush until i saw a mirror — and no matter how many pebbles i threw in, its surface barely rippled.

The air swelled with silence, i thought to myself "So this is what it's like..." Serenity.

As i trod back the way i came, i felt my face unfolding and a sense of satisfaction course thru me.

My fists unclenched, and i no longer heard the honking of horns the wheels of buses rolling kids playing Pac-Man at the Arcade.

i only heard the crunch of leaves under my feet and my own breathing.

i had found peace.
One never knows what to expect in Fribourg. After several months ranging from snow to rain to hail to fog, the weather has suddenly taken a more trampled turn. Any disoriented wanderer in Switzerland would believe he has stepped into spring, even though it’s only mid-February. For Fribourg residents, this sunny weather is a pleasant change from constant precipitation.

It is also somewhat ironic that such beautiful weather, with all the side effects of “spring fever,” should come now when the first semester is closing and exams due begin on February 26. One can still make the best of the situation, simply by studying outside by the natural light of the sun.

The University of Fribourg is well-settled for outdoor study. The buildings form a fine quadrangle on the side of the hill which is always open to sunshine. The two main halls are tall buildings in a parallel structure, containing classrooms, libraries, and the Hall de Sport. These two lines are bridged by overhead corridors which form the university into a self-contained unit. On the western end is an imposing Kunstkeller with a spacious lobby and auditorium, all topped by administrative offices, whose windows around the quadrangle look like a stern schoolmaster.

The atmosphere of the university is far from threatening, however. The buildings themselves are a harmonious blend of old and new structures. One only discovers the contrast between the secures once one is inside, but even the transitions are subtle and hard to detect. Despite the overall gray on the outside of the buildings, the walkways and surprisingly constant green grass serve to subdue and cleanse the impressions of gray melancholy.

Once the weekend comes to a close, one begins to think less on socializing and more on academics. Believe it or not, one does have to work to pass classes. Many Americans can now attest to the drudgery of having to write papers, submit oral reports, and, of course, begin the “crum” course of study before final exams.

Structurally, the classes are quite different from those at Providence. There is a class every once or twice a week. Classes also tend to cluster more towards Wednesday. Several students have taken what an A.C.P. student from Saint Anselm’s calls “death day” in which classes run 15 to 11 and then in the afternoon from 2 to 5. Consequently after such three day academic overloads, one approaches the long weekend, since few American students have classes beyond Thursday. Thus, “long weekends” are prime times for excursions wherever a Eurail Pass can be set to.

But at this stage in the semester, most people are “hitting the books.” The classrooms themselves are usually Vorlesung or lecture courses. There are German and French divisions with lectures in history, art history, philosophy, and the classics. There is also a small English department with linguistics and literature divided into these fields and studied in another language.

The international students by contrast are all in a “foreign” environment. In a given situation then, an American seeking to meet some Europeans is more likely to find it easier to meet other foreign students who are equally curious about meeting other people. Not that the Swiss are unfriendly, they are simply more settled in their way than foreigners who have just arrived for a university term.

One of the obvious foreign meeting places is the Mensa (dining hall). As at a PC college it is a fact, the meals served here are simply “typical institutional food.” In other words, it suffices for the foreigner on a tight budget. Obviously then, the Swiss who live around Fribourg would rather make their own meals at home, instead of eating such “institutional food.”

The city itself, the site of the “institutional” evening meal, is less of a cafeteria atmosphere, but even so, one does not meet many people.

For a more social atmosphere, one oughts to the popular Fribourg cafes: La Terrasse, Le Savauge, Chemin de Fer. For those who like to “burn the midnight oil” or “party” in another language, the Rose, expensive but good places for all-night dancing.

If you are a lover of the outdoors, you have a tough work week next week. But don’t worry — you’ll pull through with better success than you thought. Look forward to an interesting weekend. Travel is on the horizon.

Aries
(March 20 — April 20)

This week will be a particularly good one for you. Favorable news comes from all directions: school, home and love life. Keep up the good work, Aries! A Capricorn may occasionally annoy you. Patience, Aries!

Taurus
(April 20 — May 20)

This week the postal service may bring some long-awaited news that could affect your future. Stay cool — if you make the right connections things will work out in your favor. Be careful of Leo and fellow Taureans.

Gemini
(May 21 — June 20)

Relations with those dastos to you have been a bit strained lately. But the patience you showed will definitely change for the better this week. Spring is in your heart and mind, so is romance! Sagittarius figures prominently.

Cancer
(June 21 — July 22)

Cancer, watch out! You have become obsessed with your work, and it is affecting your love life. Show more attention to those you may have been neglecting. Gemini figures prominently.

An evening of Irish music in an historical setting will be presented by the History Department at Providence College in ’64 Hall, Providence Center on Tuesday, March 9, 1982, at 8:00 p.m. Participants include Drs. Paul F. O’Malley and Raymond L. Pickering, both of the History Department, and well-known balladeer, Michael Flynn. The program, entitled “Ireland, from 1798, the Year of Liberty, to the Present”, is open to the public. Admission is free.

Leo
(July 23 — Aug. 22)

Leo, you are in the week to be extra nice to your co-workers! You’ve been neglecting them lately and a little extra praise for their work will make you feel good, too! If you are in the vicinity of the pool this week, be careful — you might have an unsightly slip.

Libra
(Sept. 21 — Oct. 7)

You have some decisions to make. Carefully weigh the pros and cons, and the answer will become apparent. Take a break this week and socialize a bit more. You will be especially important in your dealings this week.

Scorpio
(Oct. 8 — Nov. 21)

You can be a fiery personality when you get going! But be careful not to let your enthusiasm for your friends or your feelings may be squelched. Turn on the mellow music for a change.

Sagittarius
(Nov. 22 — Dec. 21)

Your romantic interests have been put on the back burner for awhile. Other sunny moments in life are demanding your attention. Keep smiling! A Sagittarius will be particularly interesting — family members may figure in.

Rod Stewart is back with a new album but a familiar story line in his new album "No No No". Stewart seems to have regained his enthusiasm for rock and roll tour which runs from November 1981 to February 1982, is sponsored by Sony Tape. This is similar to the one that the Rolling Stones and Jovan agreed to earlier this year.

Stewart starts off with the title track "Tonight I'm Yours" which is climbing the charts. This song is about a one night stand which is being cut. Tuition charges will no longer be possible, Stewart's version is unique with his raspy vocals. "Tora, Tora, Tora" (Out with the Boys) tells of Stewart's idea of good fun, going out with the boys for a few. The song could be interpreted as having homosexual overtones from which Stewart has been linked to. The last two songs are "Fear It Up" and "Only a Boy".

Another footnote is the pedal steel guitar work of Jeff (Snake) Baxter who previously displayed his talent on "Doobie Brothers". He was running ram-rod throughout Alumni Weekend and those not. Many activities and lyricist Bernie Taupin (writer for Elton John). Stewart's idea of good fun, going out with the boys for a few. The song could be interpreted as having homosexual overtones from which Stewart has been linked to.

Several institutions have begun supporting for higher education are domestic programs to military purposes. Thousands of poor, working class and middle class students will drop out of college or never enter.

Dreams will be deferred for another generation. Lives will be lived that are much less rich, not quite as interesting, slightly less joyous. There will be, among us, more bitterness and a greater sense of talents wasted and potential left unrealized. A shift in public opinion will do to a portion of this generation what the Great Depression did to most of another generation.

In order to nominate oneself, a student needs only to fill out an application, and attend an information interview, in which he will have an informal conversation with a few of the Friars about himself and the organization. No nominee should have less than a 2.0 grade point average, or should be on academic probation.

Due to a limited budget, the Club must maintain its relatively small size. Therefore, the Friars seek students who can best exhibit their dedication to the College and ability and willingness to serve the school.

"A student needs only to fill out an application and attend an informal interview..."

Applications may be obtained from the Friars Office in room 302 in Slavin Center, and should be brought to the interview. Freshmen interviews will take place on Wednesday and Thursday, March 7th and 8th, from 5:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

Any freshman, sophomore or junior, who is interested in joining the organization, can nominate himself within the next three weeks. Since more than one half of the club will change every year, there will be openings for freshmen, 10 sophomores and 12 juniors.

In order to be a success, more people will have to show an interest and become involved. A meeting is being held present-ly to decide upon the future of this new trial feature.

Kelly's Keame's Comments

"No, thank you, I've already got life insurance."

"It's just not the same here without you."

"What company are you married to?"

Do these comments sound familiar? They were running ram-rod throughout Alumni Weekend which was Feb. 12-14. PC people of the past walked down newly cut walkways, gaud in attendance at the pete-son Recreation Center and many places over tigers "Lois" and "Brad."

The only difference was that they wore suits, spoke with con­difference and drove to the hot spots rather than walking or begging for rides. I wonder if this happens to "What company are you mar­difference? They were running ram-rod throughout Alumni Weekend and those not. Have you heard about Monday nights at the Rat? Since the drink­age has risen, there has been much controversy on the Pro­vision of students of all ages and those not. Many activities are always being planned in the ef­fort to keep the underclassmen here on weekends.

The Student Council decided to experiment with a non-alcoholic night at the Rathskeller on Monday, February 22. Food was brought from Mural Lounge and different seating was arranged. Entertainment was provided by Carl Barone who did his usual proficient job.

Even though this was a very good idea but unfortunately, the turnout wasn't as good as they hoped for.

For. In order to be a success, more people will have to show an interest and become involved. A meeting is being held present-ly to decide upon the future of this new trial feature.

Seven “Up” For Regionals

By Chris Lydon

With one meet left to go in the indoor track season, the women’s track team has already exceeded their most successful season. The New England Champions held last weekend marked the first time that the team had ever scored in the indoor championships.

But first, there was the success that led to a number of athletes qualifying for not only the New England Championships, but also the Regionals. At the Holy Cross Invitational, held February 14, the Lady Friars finished third in a sixteen team field. Liz Noble, Jean Flore, and the Distance Medley relay all took first place finishes.

For Flore and Noble, it was another busy day, as the two took part in five and three events respectively. After taking second place in the long jump with a leap of 5.07 meters, Flore went on to take third in the 300 meters with a fine 44.6 second performance, and then first place in the 55 meter dash in 7.4 seconds. She also ran the anchor leg of the 4 x 200 meter relay and the second leg of the 4 x 400 meter relay.

Noble got her first place in the event she does best; the high jump, with a 1.71 meter leap. She took fourth place in the long jump with a leap of 5.06 meters, and then ran the third leg of the 4 x 200 meter relay.

Another big story was the second leg of the 4 x 400 meter relay team of Sue Montambo, Mary Beth Reynolds, Sue Ratcliffe, and Julie McCrorie who won the event in 3.04.4 second.

The first two years of the Carter Administration were consumed with the economy, inflation specifically. The last part with the weakness of our national defense. The first year of the Reagan administration was concerned with the economy, first inflation and now unemployment.

The fact that there is more in our society than inflation, unemployment and national defense. Of course, these are very important aspects of our lives and should be dealt with sensitivity and dedication, but our lives should not be consumed by them. Friers Skate True to Form

Friar System uplifted the College Friers up until the Colgate Red Raiders, 7-3, on Monday night against the much-improved Colgate. What happened to Nyambui and the expected favorites before the race began? The two were in contention for most of the completely changed. The Friers covered two miles in 3:34, with Binns and Tracy behind in 8:36, and still in contention. In the second mile, the front group were together, and Tracy, trying to stay in contact with the leaders, threw in a couple of surges with Binns hanging behind him. At a mile and three quarters, Binns passed Tracy, and began to try to pull the leaders back in. The leaders, threw in a couple of surges for post season action. The top eight teams will make the first round.

Brendan Quinn heads the pack in the early stages of the Big-East 3000. Steve Binns, second here, was the eventual winner.

due to a tactical error with three Days to go, he could not get to the outside, got caught in the middle, and ended up third to Doug Padilla of Athletics West in a new American record 33:35.55, and Nick Rose of Victory Athletic Club and England, (13:21.7) which broke Smith's British mark set last year in the same race. Smith's time of 13:22.6 was four seconds faster than his time last year, when he finished third behind Suleiman Nyambui and Alberto Salazar. For Steve Binns, the pre-race strategy was to "hang with the pack for as long as I could, and then finish as strong as I could." He followed the plan to perfection, sat back, moved up over the last mile and a half, and finished third in 13:22.6. The time was an indoor personal best by 15 seconds, and only two seconds outside his outdoor best. "It was the most satisfying run I've had in about two years," (world junior record 13:27) he said. "I feel as though I've made a real breakthrough."

John Tracy was not as satisfied as his two counterparts. "I couldn't move when I had to," he said. "I let them get away from me after a mile or so." Tracy finished...

Cats Down PC—Ready Hoyas?

By Richard Testa

Hopefully, Ricky Tucker will be right. A few weeks ago, after losing to St. John's in double overtime, the Friars were out of the Big East Tournament. The man who Rick loves closest, tension-filled ball was played at the Civic Center and has been just that. Another fact the Friars have to face is that they will meet Georgetown tomorrow night at the Civic Center in a game opening round of the tournament.

Last week, the Hoyas poured PC's 60-42. Perhaps they would be better off having a rematch with the team that never blows out anyone. Villanova, especially after last Saturday's thrilling contest, which the Friars lost 54-53 after coming back from a 13-point deficit. They'll play the Wildcats in their 20th win, the Big East regular season champion, and most likely, an NCAA tournament berth.

So you want to be in pictures, eh ma? Mrs. Panaggio snares another for the record books. The hockey picture on page 12 of our 10 Feb. issue featured Friar's Mark Ostenorden and Peter Tagliantetti, not John Ciotti. Sorry for the goof, Pete.

Friars Topple Vermont, 11-1

By John Brandolino

If the Providence College Hotel-Hockey had been more close to playing a perfect game, it may have been a Friday night, Wednesday night against Vermont. Backed up by a controlling defense and a fine passing game, the Friars blanked the Catamounts, giving them their second-straight win and their recently defeated highly-ranked Boston College another loss.

"We did a lot of good things," said coach Lou Lamoriello as he reflected on his team's performance, "Every guy was doing the things we've been working on, knocking the puck in, using each other well, but what was most pleasing was the whole team and the team attitude.

Central theme of the attack was the attack. Well, 14 Providence skaters figured in the scoring — including Kurt Kleindorfer (three goals, two assists), Scot Kleindorfer (four assists), and Orlando (four assists). Mike Bolstad, Rich Costello and Paul Guay each added a pair of goals. Out of 11 scores on the night, at least one defenseman was involved in seven of them.

By rights, the contest should have been a shootout for PC goals. In the second period, the lone Catamount goal came on a defensive lapse at 8:38 of the first period when Don Crowley intercepted a wandering pass from the Catamount goalie and set up Chris Plautz for a 1-0 lead. The Providence defense is likely to be a one and one remaining in the game.

The Friars responded after Panaggio connected on a breakout shot in the first 11-16 in 11 days remaining after John Pinone "beared" his way inside for a goal that gave the team a 46-10 advantage. Ed Pinckney, the Wildcats' 6-10 freshman scored after a missed shot and was fouled. Interestingly enough, the ref called goaltending on the play (with a foul and this made Friar Coach Joe Mullaney vivid. He called time and assistants to the bench to argue the call. The ref has ministered a goal. Apparently either a foul or goaltending should have been called, but not both, according to the rules. Then the ref has ministered a goal and from that moment on PC got every call that they hadn't been getting earlier.

PC's Ron Jackson overpowers John Pinone of Villanova. In the end it would be the Wildcats who would land on all fours as the Friars came up short once again. (Photo by Kevin Burke)

The Friar players responded after Pinone connected on a breakout shot and gave Vill's biggest regret PC. Fields put in a goal fifteen minutes after the one which Villanova called time at 7:57, ahead 45-36. On the next Friar possession Ron Jackson jumped in and tied the score and on the other end Oto was fouled and connected on both shots. The Cats then immediately threw in a 20-footer and, unbelievably, PC only trailed 45-42 with 5:33 left. During the stretch the Friars scored 10 straight points and much of the credit goes to Friar Tuck who came off the bench to rejuvenate PC. Twice he forced "Nova guard Stewart Cummings into offensive foul and made two key steals.

Pinone was fouled and made both of his touches, pushing PC's lead to five. On PC's next possession, Oto's shot was blocked but goaltending was ruled and the score was 54-51. The Cats twice got the ball turned over by the Friars and on both occasions Oto was in the right place at the right time, putting PC ahead 54-51.

The old foul shooting problem that had become so apparent over the past few weeks appeared again however. McClain missed a 10 footer and Oto grabbed the rebound. Pinone was fouled but missed both of his tosses, pushing VU's lead to five. On PC's next possession, Oto's shot was blocked but goaltending was ruled and the score was 53-51.

Pinone was fouled but missed both of his tosses, pushing VU's lead to five. On PC's next possession, Oto's shot was blocked but goaltending was ruled and the score was 53-51.

The old foul shooting problem that had become so apparent over the past few weeks appeared again however. McClain missed a 10 footer and Oto grabbed the rebound. Crush Stonehill, 56-48
Lady Friars Await Tournament Pairings

By Christine Merlo

There's no question in anyone's mind that the Lady Friar basketball team has a strong chance of winning the EIAW Regionals. And with the recent overtime loss of 17-12, PC has definitely changed their style of play this year. Providence ended their regular season with an impressive 22-3 record, setting a new world record for most wins in a season. To add to their success, the Lady Friars also secured a place in the first round of the EIAW Regionals by defeating Northeastern and Stonehill earlier in the season.

In the first game, Providence traveled to Cambridge, MA to play the Terriers of Northeastern. To everyone's surprise, the Northeastern team proved to be quite a match for Providence. In the first half, the Lady Friars offense challenged the Terriers, but was unable to put together enough shots to maintain their lead. In the second half, the Lady Friars defense held the Terriers from scoring, and they ended up winning the game with a score of 2:15.82, just .31 behind the Terriers' record.

Last Saturday at the New England Championships, Jimmy Fallon came ever so close to qualifying for the finals. In the 5000, he ran a 14:10.23, just six seconds off the meet record, capturing the 3000 in a time of 8:02.4, complaining all the while that it did to his legs. He wasn't the only one to feel the effects of this, as Brendan Quinn and Richard O'Flynn, also from the 5000, also ran a 15:35.6 and 15:47.6, respectively.

Treyacy, Richard Mulligan took second in 3:53.8, Charlie Bragg was third in 3:54.6, and Jimmy Fallon took fourth in 3:54:4 to complete the sweep. Steve Binniss also set a new record for the week, scoring a 3000 in a time of 8:24, tying the all-time best of the 8:02.4. In the 3000, he also scored a 1:54.4, which he scored his 1000th point for the team and then ran a 15:47.6 to qualify for the finals. In the mile, he ran a 4:21.6 for the semi-final, and then ran a 1:54.4 for the finals held Sunday in the final.
