As we all know the cost of books are increasing. How can we lower the overall cost of textbooks?

First of all, the Bookstore cannot offer discounts on textbooks. The margin from the publisher to the Bookstore averages about 20 percent. All the cost for handling and marketing are incurred by the store. Simply stated, new textbooks are a losing proposition. You must remember that your Bookstore doesn't select the text or determine the price. Therefore, there are five alternatives to lowering textbook cost:

(1) No Books
(2) Single Adoptions
(3) Cost considerations when adopting texts
(4) Sharing and trading books
(5) Used Books

(1) No Books.— in most cases undesirable by the student and/or Professor.
(2) & (3) Single Adoptions — and cost consideration in adoptions — in almost all cases the instructor is selecting the text or texts that he or she believes will make the course and material more meaningful to the student.
(4) Sharing and Trading Books — this would be the best way to lower cost. In reality it is very difficult to accomplish especially prior to examinations.
(5) The only way a student can lower his textbook cost and still ideally have his own copy is used books.

The only true main source of used books are the students on campus. The Bookstore will buy back books at 50 percent of their list price if they are adopted for the next semester. We don't buy back all the paperbacks because experience shows that students would rather buy a new copy. This of course is not so of the more expensive paper-bound books. The average life of a textbook is three years. The best way for a student to lower his total textbook cost is to resell his books to another student. He should be getting more money from another student than he would from the Bookstore. The major difficulty is in making a connection for the sale of your book. As a result you are left holding a textbook you don't want or need.

New ID System Instituted

Following the recent course registration for the fall semester, students have been ushered into Slavin 113 to have their photos taken for their new PC ID which will be issued in September. The decision on a new ID system was made by the Committee of Administration at its March 17, 1982 meeting.

The new PC ID will resemble the old one with the exception of a few new features. The new card will be totally laminated so that it can’t be tampered with or altered. Also, the card will not be embossed for library use. Students will be issued a separate card without a photo resembling a credit card that will be used exclusively at the library. The most important feature of the new PC ID is that it will have an expiration date and will be valid for one year. The reason for this, explained Rev. John A. McMahon, O.P., Assistant Vice-President for Student Services, “is that people retain their ID cards after leaving PC and are using PC privileges and facilities.”

The new ID system is an interim with a long range goal of having a computerized identification system and ID cards that have magnetic strips. The inauguration of this system for the coming school year was voted down by the COA because it was “too great an expense on such short notice,” according to McMahon. When asked when magnetic strip cards will be issued at PC, McMahon said that, “It’s hard to say, hopefully within the next few years.” In the meantime, look for your PC ID in your mailbox when you return in September.

Liquor Licenses Halted: Cause Unrelated to Foodfight

Since the now infamous Raymond Hall foodfight, the PC campus has been abuzz with talk of what ramifications the outbreak would bring. The postponement of the Class of ’84’s “DWC” party brought a flood of opinions and rumors from students who are wondering about the policy regarding the issuing of liquor licenses at PC.

When asked to comment on the issuing of liquor licenses, Rev. Gerald McGreevey, O.P., Vice-President of Student Services, clearly stated that “the decision to stop the issuance of liquor licenses was not a result of the foodfight and had been made prior to it. It was not intended to be a campus-wide punishment for the foodfight and no blame is being put on any one group.” McGreevey explained that since April vacation he had re-quests and that the number of parties and banquets had risen during this last part of the year. Distressed faculty members had expressed concern over students cutting classes, and the administration is not pleased with the somewhat casual attitude that is pervasive on campus during a time when final exam preparation is essential.

“...the decision to stop the issuance of liquor licenses was not a result of the foodfight and was made prior to it.”

With this in mind, along with the fact that numerous events (i.e., “Spring Fling”) were already planned for the spring, the office of Student Services decided to halt the issuance of any more liquor licenses for the remainder of the semester. This decision was made on the Wednesday prior to the Quad Party.

According to McGreevey, “there are many social events already planned for the rest of the semester, and the scheduling of more events would be excessive. While having fun is a very important part of college life, I ask students not to lose sight of why we are here — that is education. With exams coming, an atmosphere that is conducive to academics is essential.”

In regard to the DWC party, Fr. McGreevey says that “it was one of several other licences that were denied. The class officers later met and made the decision to postpone the party.”

In conclusion Fr. McGreevey feels that PC “has an excellent student body” and hopes that the students “practice moderation” in social situations.

Congressional Debate?

By Marybeth Holland

Last Tuesday, April 26, Mr. Robert Pirraglia, a Democratic candidate for the Second District Seat which Providence College in order to express his views to the student body, as well as meet with the members of the various student organizations on campus. Mr. Pirraglia is vying for the RI Second District Seat which is presently filled by Representative Claudine Schneider, a Republican.

During his visit, Mr. Pirraglia, a Cranston resident, lawyer with the firm Carroll, McHugh and Pirraglia, and former legal counsel to Governor J. Joseph Garrahy, challenged his Republican opponent, Claudine Schneider, to a debate on the issue of Student Aid cuts, at Providence College, "for any other issue that the student body feels it should like to see debated," stated Pirraglia.

Pirraglia expressed his vehement opposition to all forms of proposed Reagan budget cuts in the area of Student Financial Aid, "I borrowed money under the National Defense Loan Program to attend Providence College during the late 1950's, and George Washington Law School, too. These types of loan programs have, over many years, afforded thousands of RI students the opportunity to attend college. Reaganomics is taking us back to the days when only the privileged could afford a college education.

Pirraglia would like to see an increase or continuance of pre-R Reagan spending levels of the Guaranteed Student Loan Program and the Pell Grant Program.

Pirraglia urged the students at Providence College to review both of the 'party stances' on Student Aid, along with their past voting record on student aid, and concluded, "The Democratic party candidates are true advocates of preserving student aid programs. Claudine Schneider cannot hide from this.

"I am going to hold a press conference on the day of the Brown University graduation this year. At this conference I will propose that this will be the last full class of graduating students. Average income Americans will just not be able to afford an education at a school like Brown.

Other issues of the campaign such as the US and RI economic situation, (including unemployment and Social Security cuts) and Nuclear Arms Race, the ERA, US foreign policy and Civil Rights in general.

The ERA - Pirraglia is in favor of the ERA and will vote in favor of it. "Passages of the ERA will prove that we legally support women, and will be just the beginning for the future of women arising from their minority status.

Nuclear Arms - "We have too many nuclear arms as a country now; we don't need to stockpile anymore. This will only lead us to a nuclear holocaust." He is supportive of "fair and good faith in nuclear disarmament."

US Foreign Policy - Pirraglia believes that our policy under the Reagan Administration has been too bland and undiscerning. He was unhappy with the lack of economic sanctions levied in the Poland situation.

Economic Policy (US and RI) - Mr. Pirraglia is dissatisfied with Reaganomics, and strongly believes that some major changes in economic policy must be made. If elected he would propose to close tax loopholes that do not benefit all, support a no leasing provision for corporations such as Mobil, require that corporation income taxes be designed to force corporations to reinvest their monies, as well as encourage tax credits for small business. These changes, along with others will begin to ail our failing economy.

If any student is interested in asking Mr. Pirraglia questions or aiding him with his campaign, visit 4 Kolle St.; Cranston, RI or call 467-2022 or 467-2023.

Other noteworthy Student Congress candidates include the elections for Corporation representatives and Intramural Athletic Board Officers, as well as the selection of a Committee on Administration representative.

Student representatives to the Providence College Corporation meet twice a year with the Corporation, and are involved with school-wide projects in which the Corporation functions. Two student representatives, one senior and one junior, are elected as members of Congress for these positions each year. Candidates for the ballot for the Class of 1983 Corporation representatives are; Bryan Jones, Carolyn Hogan, Leslie Tucker, and Kevin Walsh. Candidates for the Class of 1984 Corporation representative are: Robert Casey, George Balrena, and Lisa Reagan.

Corporation elections will be held this Friday, April 30, 1982, from 9:30 to 5:00 p.m. in lower Slavin. Intramural Athletic Board elections will also be held at the same time on Friday. Running unopposed for President is the current Vice-President, Frank O'Brien, '83. Candidates for Vice-President are Edward Oliver, '84 and Phil Moran, '84.

A student representative from Congress also sits on the PC Committee on Administration (COA), a committee concerned with all major academic and administrative decisions. One student is chosen by the Executive Board of Student Congress each year through an interviewing process. Interviews for next year's COA representative will be held on Friday, April 8. Interested students should sign up for an interview on Thursday, April 20 in the Student Congress office.

Residents Board held the springtime Battle of the Dorms last Wednesday on the Raymond Field. Winners of the Battle were Joseph's Hall for the men's dorms, and Aquinas Hall for the women's dorms.

In the Aftermath
Awareness Is Needed

In the aftermath of the public disgrace hailed by more than 300 Providence College students in the food fight which occurred on Saturday, April 18, in Raymond Cafe, Student Congress has been presented with a bill for $334.95 in labor and damages. Although all members of the PC community were not directly responsible for that behavior, a public awareness of the incident must be generated to the effect that it was, indeed, a disgrace. The simple fact that somewhere between 600-800 students were present, and included a variety of resident, commuter, and off-campus students, calls attention to the incident as a "PC event"; the actions of approximately 180 students who were significantly involved in the disturbance, thus necessarily represents the total corporate conduct of PC students. The incident must, in turn, be answered as a community disgrace, and all the students who make up the community hold responsible for its recompense.

It should be clear, however, that administrators do not intend to find individual group or organization responsible, and in seeking payment for damages incurred as a result, look to a general funding source not associated with any given representative body.

Rev. John G. McGreevy, O.P., Vice-President of Student Affairs, has asked Student Congress to pay the Congress controls Student Activity Fee funds. It was felt that these funds were the only neutral source of money that could be drawn upon without seeking personal reimbursement. Other possible, perhaps responsible, agents of the student body were investigated, but they were ruled unsatisfactory simply because they did not provide the same broad sense of identity with the student body, nor offered any effective public chastisement for the offense. Administrators can thus publically proclaim the incident an official disgrace, and demand the undeservedness of the entire student body as the only fair means of recompense.

At the same time, Student Congress may therefore pay the bill, as it empowered the Treasurer to do at Monday night's meeting, without accepting responsibility for the incident. In the resolution which passed, the Congress further stated that it does not condone the incident, and hopes that such irresponsible behavior will not be repeated in the future. Congress is now awaiting the student body's responsibility for payment of those damages. It is hoped that students will take responsibility of this responsibility and respect it in the future.

Local Bands Better

Dear Editor (Attention BOG):

I direct this letter to the Board of Governors concerning the selection of bands for this year's Spring weekend. Clarence Clemmons, NRBB, and Beaver Brown represent only a certain faction of musical interest at Providence College. Billboard magazine reports that all Providence students do not like Bruce Springsteen. Also, you seem to feel obligated to hire bands for the Spring weekends with major label recording contracts. As far as you may know, a major label contract doesn't always constitute talent (e.g., Frank and Frank). Other bands which we may deserve are bands (our own Detectives included) who would provide less expensive and probably more entertaining shows.

Why not be a little more open-minded and have different kinds of bands, such as jazz, "new wave," and (God forbid) yes, even raggie bands if you're willing to throw your MOR party bands! I believe you would welcome a fresh type of entertainment.

Though my sentiments are not polite, I politely urge you, the PC Board of Governors, to consider the entire PC student body as your client, not just the entertainment for future Spring weekends and social events.

PC Theatre

Jekyll and Hyde Brilliant
By S.J.J. (Veg) McGuire

In preparation for this review, the critic, no one interested in the book "Jekyll and Hyde," by Sir Robert Louis Stevenson, in my personal interpretation of the action. Innovation is not stranger to the work of Henry Curr, nor is it ever mentation. Both are evident in PC theatre's production of Dr. Jekyll and Hyde, recently on stage in Harkins Auditorium. A new adaptation by Jim Marcin of this chilling tale was Currie's choice for PC's final performance of the season, and I believe I can sum up Currie's message to his audience: PC theatre is alive and kicking and not afraid to take a chance.

Starring Wally Dunn as the scientist who braved to tread where no colleague dared, the play's entire action takes place in the Bowery Street Hospital, an insane asylum in London in the distant past. That is how to tell the mystery and depth of the art, its uniqueness. All parts, as the gruesome stories unfold, are played by incarcerated lunatics, written from role to role to depict the images, symbols, and nightmares of the storyline.

When the lunatics, whose names are not known, when they scribbled "I must know," they may be noticed by the misguided humanitarian to plunge into drug addiction to try to discover what makes up man. "Even you are made up of many personalitites... they live inside you every moment of your life." But is a good achieved when man learns to control all the parts? 21C 15C

Something of the "good" doctor's concern is Sigmund Freud. The knowledge of what is suppressed is the key to the solution of man's problems. Sparked by his colleagues, led by Dr. Lan- don (David Clements), Jekyll's haz for knowledge is parallel to the loss of Mr. Hyde. Can this be checked by reason? By the good in man?

Advised by friends Sir Danvers (John Powers) and Gabrielle Utter- son (Mary Ellen Baxter) to abandon his schemes, Jekyll hides his experiment from the world and uses himself as subject. Chemically he can remove the part of him he locked behind the process of socialization: releasing, Freud might say, part of the iceberg that flows below the surface of what appears to be (to Jekyll and others) his personality.

The transformation scene is unforgettable: Jekyll becomes Hyde (John Brewer) without ceasing to be Jekyll. Garrity here is to be applauded, and so, too, Dunn and Brewer. On the obvious level, the acting of Dunn and Brewer here is outstanding: Dunn quivers, falls to the ground while Brewer rises up; Hyde is born and the audience is spellbound. On the next level, the symbolizes forces the audience to face the question: who is Mr. Hyde? The hands of the two are the same, but the expression in their eyes — remarkably different.

Brewer's role is more simple than that of Dunn, but most slowly unfolded, the evil, the lust, the violence of Mr. Hyde. Dunn's role is to wonder, and discover that he is and he is not Mr. Hyde. Jekyll's paradoxical relationship with Hyde is frightening: Jekyll must protect himself and be himself, yet he cannot, and cannot allow the ac-

John Brewer and Wally Dunn as the notorious Mr. Hyde and Dr. Jekyll, respectively.

Laingden Praises American People
By Jane McAuliffe

Tie a yellow ribbon 'round the lamp post outside Raymond Cafe? That's right. On Tuesday night, April 20 at 8 p.m., the Board of Governors hosted the appearance of Bruce Laingden in '64 Hall. To anyone who followed the Iranian crisis of two years ago, it was refreshing to hear that freedom still reigns throughout the United States, and that in spite of our problems, we are still the best nation in the world in which to live.

Laingden's lecture, entitled "Lessons From the Hostage Experience," expressed a mixture of emotions and resentment of all the hostages who were imprisoned in Tehran for 444 days. He told of the despair that he felt at his imprisonment, especially at all the propaganda that went out to the world about the American government and promises of "beautiful treatment" by their captors. Laingden made it clear as to what he thought of this propaganda as a policy of the American people during this crisis touched the hearts of all who were taken hostage in Iran and perhaps that, besides the loving encourage- ment from their families, was the only force that kept their spirits up during the 444 day nightmare.

The main point that the former hostage tried to convey was that foreign diplomacy is our first line of defense and hopefully in a tense situation, it would be our only line of defense. He feels that as a result of this crisis a new respect may be found amongst the American people for foreign service, a branch of government that is often ignored.

Finally, Laingden, though not condemning the Iranian way of life, stated that we here in the United States are insensitive to the culture of Iran and the massive change that it was undergoing at the time of the crisis. He said that he cannot truly appreciate the value of the privilege of freedom until we are deprived of it. However, he felt that we must be more prepared for this kind of emergency in the future and keep an immediate plan of action in mind.

Laingden concluded by giving credit to President Carter for his patience, but mainly applauded Ronald Reagan for his swift action, adding that the Iranians were in- deed afraid of the power he could well have wielded.

this depicted as well as in the scene with Jekyll, Hyde, and Sara. Sara (Julie Marrinucci) is a young child whom Hyde convinces to help him look for a lost cane. Jekyll has let his assistant (Mary Farrell and Mr. Hyde, respectively) help paint this picture of the opening scene and decorates it throughout. Heaslip has understood the horror of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and the scenery (Jim Eddy and his crew) and costumes (Mary Farrell and assistants) help paint this picture of evil and madness unknowable.

The entire cast has shown to us madness and sanity; it has forced its audience to reflect, to question, and to fear. But what is there to fear? As Gabrielle Utterson whispered, what is most feared is "the unknown, Myself."
By James Tully

"The Secret Policeman's Other Ball"

Another live album dedicated to raising money for some needy cause or charity is out and like the others, has a few new songs. "The Secret Policeman's Other Ball" is a follow-up album to the critically acclaimed "The Secret Policeman's Other Ball." This album was organized by John Cleese (of Monty Python fame) and is dedicated to raising funds for the British branch of the worldwide human rights organization Amnesty International.

"The Secret Policeman's Other Ball" starts off with Sting, leader of The Police. Sting's version of "Rosencrans" and "Message in a Bottle" are interesting because he receives no back-up help at all. Sting plays guitar and sings, and that is all that is really required with these two songs. Side one also has Jeff Beck and Eric Clapton combining on three songs. These guitar wizards have their moments but were somewhat of a letdown, especially on the infamous Cream song "Crossroads." Playing live for one of the very few times since being together in the Yardbirds, Beck and Clapton seem to have a problem with who leads and who plays rhythm guitar. Despite this, "Casue We've Endded As Lovers" and "Further Up the Road" are carried off rather well. Concluding the side is Bob Geldof and Johnny Fingers of the Boonoom Raat singing "I Don't Like Mondays," their only hit.

Side two starts out great with Genesis leader Phil Collins singing his hit single "In the Air Tonight" accompanied expertly by Daryl Stuermer's acoustic guitar and banjo. This is undoubtably the best song on the album as Collins' piano combines well with Stuermer's guitar. "The Roof is Leaking" also shows off Collins' piano ability and is a likeable song. Interesting is the appearance of Donovan, a popular Bob Dylanish type of performer, circa the 1960's. Donovan seems out of place singing "The Universal Soldier" in the 1980's. He is still singing anti-war, Vietnam issues which is fine, but Woodstock was thirteen years ago, and time has passed Donovan. A reality check on Donovan seems needed.

The final song on the album is called "I Shall Be Released" by The Secret Police. No, The Secret Police is not a new band, but a nineteen piece band including Sting on lead vocals and Jeff Beck and Eric Clapton on guitars. It is a rather neat number which shows off Clapton's abilities.

Overall, "The Secret Policeman's Other Ball" was a good idea, but unfortunately never really seems to hit the mark. Beck and Clapton should have provided some spark, but it never came through. The high points on the album are Sting, but even more so, Phil Collins. Donovan is totally out of place. The potential is there; too bad the music isn't.

Soap Stars Wow PC

By Susan Young

At 3 p.m. on a typical Thursday afternoon, most PC students are watching the ever-popular soap opera, General Hospital. However, Thursday, April 22 proved to be a different story. On this day, the PC campus welcomed Clint Richie and Mary Murray, otherwise known as Clint Buchanan and Becky Lee Abbott, two stars of One Life to Live.

Loyal fans and other curious students entered '64 Hall to meet the stars. The afternoon consisted primarily of a question-answer period for students who wanted to find out what goes on behind the scenes of One Life to Live.

Clint Richie told the audience about his role as Clint Buchanan, the son of a rich oil tycoon who is in love with his former employer, Clint won his part on OLTL in love with his former employer.

Can one good man really make a difference?

In this age of turmoil, young people are deeply concerned about making their lives more meaningful, and doing more to help others.

Through faith, prayer and action, each individual can help spread Christ's message of God's love in the world. But by living and working with other like-minded members in a Catholic religious community, the Christian Brothers, there is a unique opportunity for spiritual growth and service to others.

The Christian Brothers are helping to build a better world, especially through education.

So if you want to know how much of a difference one good man can really make, talk to the Christian Brothers.

The concert was a total success, even though Bruce didn’t show up as some suspected. The next Spring Week event was the carnival Saturday, which also was a good chance to hear some good music. Three bands joined us here, each with its own style.

NRBO was disappointing, since the audience felt the band was not interested.

Beaver Brown was different, however. The lead singer was full of real and long before had the audience rocking.

Frankie and the Knockouts were very entertaining, singing their hit, "Sweetheart," which the crowd seemed to enjoy.

BOG made a wise choice in their selection of music, considering the varied musical taste that may be found at PC.

Besides the music, the carnival was also filled with food, beer, whipped cream fights, and lots of sunshine.

Spring Fling '82 was a grand success, and much credit is due to the BOG's well-organized efforts.
Netmen Prepare for N.E. Champs

The Friar netmen have been on a tear lately due in large part to the team-oriented spirit that Coach Jacques Faulise and his squad have shared throughout the season. The Friar netmen have been on a tear lately due in large part to the team-oriented spirit that Coach Jacques Faulise and his squad have shared throughout the season. The Providence College Men's Lacrosse team is entering their final week of play with a 6-6 record and visions of finishing with a winning record. The Friars have three games left—Con, College, Brandeis and Nichols. Coach Dan Calenda is confident that the team will be giving its all in order to make its mark in history as a successful team.

In the last two games the team has played, they have beaten Bryant 11-4 and the University of Hartford 8-6. John Breen and Brian Davies both scored four goals each in the two victories while Dennis McInerney and Doug Hadden added three each. In the Hartford game the left on Saturday and arrived in Hartford to sun up to the local crowd. The Laxman were faced with a difficult task but two quick goals gave them the momentum they needed. The score was tied 6-6 going into the final period but the mid-field line of Mike Walter, Brian Davies, and Jack Malley scored twice to keep the Friars ahead. The defense responded with a number of key face-offs courtesy of Tim West as Dan Macrae, Gerry Prior, Mike Adams, Phil Orzech, Tim West and Dennis McInerney. West sums up their feelings by saying, "It is really rewarding to see how much the program has grown in our four years here, and we expect that the winning tradition will continue."

For the past three years the Friar team has been fortunate to have the girls of fourth floor Meagher as their very competent scorekeepers and vocal fans. The team is pleased with the support the fans have showed to them in their relatively new sport at PC. As Jane, a fourth year student, puts it "there is nothing like watching a good poke check." Good back to the Lax players who have given their all both on and off the field.

Still Struggling
Women's Lacrosse

By Christine Merlo

Last Saturday, the Lady Friar's Lacrosse team traveled to New London, CT to play their seventh game of the season against Connecticut College. Unfortunately, the hard working Lady Friars fell victim to the Con College team as they lost 10-6. Providence now posts a record of 1-5-1, beating Pine Manor and tying Holy Cross. The second half proved to be an aggressive one as Providence picked up more momentum. At this point, the Lady Friars knew what they needed in order to beat Connecticut. Providence rallied together, trying to supply the needed goals, but unfortunately they could not overcome the Connecticut team. Before the game ended, Providence added two more goals to their score, one of which was scored by Moss O'Brien, who along with Courtney Hoff, scored a pair of goals to aid the Friar cause.

The Lady Friars will remain at home for their next three games. Their next game is on Monday when the Lady Friars will play Northeastern. Wednesday, the Lady Friars meet URI and Friday, Pine Manor.

Watch For The Special Savings During Trivia Week

The Providence College Bookstore will be buying back certain textbooks at half the list price if the books are being adopted for use in the fall semester. The Bookstore will also be buying back books not being readopted on this campus. The prices being paid for these books are set by other industry guide books and are based upon the books salability to other colleges.

Here is a PARTIAL LIST of books that the Bookstore will buy back at half the retail price. As more professors submit their book orders, this buy back list will be expanded.

Quinn, O'Flynn Star Twice

By Chris Lydon

With the UMass relay victories setting the tone, the first meet of the outdoor season was the Boston College Relays held Thursday, April 29th, at the_average track.

In the 5000 meter run, Jimmy Fallon took third in a time of 14:18, qualifying for the New England Collegiate AAA Championship. Richard Mulligan took sixth in 14:43 and Mike Reardon was just plain seventh in the second wave.

The next day held more of the same questionable fielding. It is better not to name people just for the sake of naming them. It's better that they are judged instead improvement in the fielding area. For the RIC and Stony Brook teams totalled a dozen errors in the game. The Chieftains are the masters of the one run innings. In the first, a one out single to second, a double to center, and a runner on third was killed off a single up the middle. In the second, a walk, a sacrifice fly, a one out and a ground-out added another. A one out walk in the fourth, a single and two errorers and they had it all over. Their one in six all hit that line runnings. The Friars picked up one in the first on an error and three in the third to take a 3-2 lead. Tim Cavanaugh walked and John Pakenal sacrificed him to second. Kevin Quinn then singled to push runners on the corners. Pakecame in to pinch run with a double on Pakecame. Ernie P. Quiney led off the fifth for a home run with two doubles, two singles, a triple, three runs batted in and two runs scored. He did not look back as he breezed the last two innings in the ninth however and for the second straight game he was in the field in extra innings with one out. Pat Rizaloq reached base on an error and moved to second on a hit by Steve Seaver. He scored on a hit by Steve Seaver. A fly out ended the inning.

A triple by Rizaloq and a sacrifice fly by Brian Mulligan brought the runners home. Mulligan also scored in the third inning on a single by Joe DeAngelis who had a double in the third run of the inning. The Aldad hit a sacrifice fly to left to bring in Quinn. Tierney walked. Ken Leahey bunted for a base hit to first.
