Sullivan

Competing for the president's seat in the Class of 1984 are Kelli Coleman, Sean Sullivan, and Steve Shaheen. Running for vice president are Bill Daponte, Joan Williams, and Steve Shaheen. Running for president and treasurer, respectively, are Bill Daponte and Joan Williams. Joan Williams is also vying for the position of vice president. Judy Schultz, Ed Pilkington, and Paul McVicker are hoping to win the office of treasurer.

Colonel's Corner Catches College Crowd

There's something going on in the basement of Raymond Hall almost every weekend. If you walk to the bottom of a long flight of stairs, adjust your eyes to the low lights and your ears to the loud music, you'll realize you are at a Colonel's Corner party. "Everyone has a good time. It's a blast," said Jeff Hanson and Pat O'Brien, dorm officers for Guzman Hall. Along with other officers, they are responsible for organizing, running and cleaning up after the parties their dorm sponsors in the Colonel's Corner.

The work involved in putting on a Colonel's Corner party primarily falls on the four dorm officers before the party. But the rest of the residents also help. They are responsible for organizing, running and cleaning up after the parties their dorm sponsors in the Colonel's Corner.

The Dorm Council is working on changing the present policy so that freshmen will be able to participate without drinking. Grant said the change is "being held up now because of Fr. Duffy's recent resignation. It's not too hopeful for this year."

It was also suggested that the administration consider raising the maximum number of tickets sold from 150 to 200. In the four years since it has opened, Colonel's Corner has been a unique alternative to crowded mixers and bars. The officers of each dorm have worked hard to make the parties enjoyable for everyone.

"I've always had a good time there," said one Meagher resident. "It lets you get closer to people in your dorm while meeting other people. It's a good change from the usual mixers because it's small and comfortable."

Currently, there's a good tape system which most of the dorms use. However, it is also equipped to accommodate bands. "That will probably be a thing for the future," said Hanson.

There are several other changes being planned for Colonel's Corner in the future. According to Kate Grant, treasurer of the dorm council, plans are being made with the art department to repaint the inside and to paint some type of mural in the stairway. Plans are also being made to fix up the furniture, renovate the bar, and install speaker boxes for the stereo system.

There's also been some controversy over the need for a wristband policy. Currently, no one under 19 is allowed into the Corner. An Aquinas resident mentioned that, "The purpose of Colonel's Corner is to provide resident students with someplace to go on campus. Without a wristband policy, they're locking out a third of the residents."

O'Brian commented, "You do a lot of work and you have a good time, too. You couldn't really have a party like this anywhere else."

Last week, the Resident Board held a lottery in which the dorm officers chose from among the remaining weekend dates for this semester. These dates are only tentative and one dorm can trade or combine dates with another dorm. The dates chosen were:

Aquinas - March 14; Dore - March 20, April 25; Guzman - March 7, April 4, Joseph; March 6, April 3; McDermott - March 13; McVinnie - March 28; Meagher - March 27, April 24; Raymond - March 21; Stephens - February 27.

Dates which are not taken by the dorms are usually reserved for various organizations or are available for private parties. Generally, Colonel's Corner is not open during the week in compliance with the administration's request.

Around The Campus

Providence College is going to initiate a new major in the field of American Studies beginning with the academic year 1981-1982. This will be an interdisciplinary program studying the history, literature, culture and institutions that make up the American experience.

Students will be able to design their program of study according to individual needs and interests by selecting from courses currently offered in the College curriculum and by enrolling in Junior-Senior seminars on specific topics in American Studies.

American Studies majors will be required to take six hours in American History, 12 hours selected from designated College courses in the Humanities, Social Sciences or Arts, and 12 hours in the Junior-Senior seminars. These seminars will explore America from an interdisciplinary perspective, giving the concentration its special strength and character. "The only requirement for those who wish to be sophomores and wish to enroll in the coming academic year will be six hours in U.S. History (History 103-104 or any two of History 325, 326, 327, 328.) The American Studies program will provide a solid background for students interested in professional studies such as law, MBA programs, other graduate studies, or careers in government, journalism, teaching, civil service or communications.

BOG News

Now that Student Congress has passed a new amendment, the Providence College Board of Governors will be given its allocation of funds by May 1 for the following year. This will let the BOG schedule events for the next year in advance. The first two weeks of February are keeping members of the Board busy with continuous events.

The agenda includes last night's performance of "Beast From the East" at the Coffeehouse, and a Thursday night, Feb. 5 performance of one of the hottest bands to come to PC, "The Blushing Brides." Rounding out the weekend, the movie "Caddyshack" will be presented in '64 Hall at 8 and 10 p.m.

The fine arts committee will be giving PC students a chillin' night with a presentation of "Weird Tales." At 8 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 9, '64 Hall will host this chilling experience of Edgar Allan Poe stories. Sue Tranner and Cheryl Caramella are working hard to bring students more fine arts presentations.

On Tuesday, Feb. 10, Senator William Proxmire, one of the prominent senators of the U.S. Senate will speak in '64 Hall. From 4 to 5:30, Dave Anderson will entertain in the Coffeehouse.

The Thursday night feature will be "Kelly's Heroes" at the Last Resort at 8 and 10 p.m.

Language Survey

College and universities across the nation are re-examining and re-emphasizing the importance of language study and in an attempt to plan for future language programs, the department of modern languages at Providence College will conduct a survey among the student body on Friday, Feb. 6.

A short questionnaire will be placed in the student mail boxes on Thursday afternoon and Dr. Gilbert B. Cavaco, Chairman of the language department requests that the students take the two or three minutes to complete the questionnaire and place it in the language survey box which will be located in front of the gift shop.

Are You Going to Crash Parents Weekend?

As most students are aware, Friday, Feb. 6 through Sunday, Feb. 8 is Parents' Weekend. The agenda for the weekend includes the performance of the Providence College Theater Company's production of the play "Varnies," on Friday night.

There will be a basketball game on Saturday afternoon, with cocktails, dinner, and dancing that evening. A mass and a brunch is scheduled for Sunday.

Students are reminded that tickets, purchased in advance, will be necessary to enter all events. THIS YEAR THEY WILL BE COLLECTED AT THE DOOR!

Do You Need Help With Your Term Paper?

The reference staff of the Phillips Memorial Library, in an effort to better serve students engaged in serious research, is introducing a new "customized" reference service.

Students may arrange an appointment to meet privately with a reference librarian for up to a half hour of individualized instruction on research techniques and assistance in locating materials relevant to the student's particular topic. Appointments will generally be made for afternoons and evenings, Monday through Friday, but students can be accommodated in the mornings or on weekends when necessary. When making the appointment, the student will be expected to define and describe his or her proposed research topic in sufficient detail to allow the librarian to identify, in advance of the meeting, the most appropriate research materials.

Although any student is eligible to take advantage of this special service, it will probably be of most use to those enrolled in upper-level courses requiring projects involving substantial library research. The number of requests which can be accommodated is limited by the size of the reference staff and appointments will be scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis. Students wishing to make an appointment should either stop in at the library or call 2242 and ask for the reference librarian.

PC’s Theatre:
Let the Show Go On!

The possible construction of a theatre on campus has been a matter of extreme controversy over the past year. Last spring, when plans for the fieldhouse were being made, a vigorous group of theatre arts students, faculty and other interested people formed a very active lobby in order to get a theatre built within the fieldhouse itself.

Their efforts, in the end, proved to be unsuccessful, but not wasted. Fortunately, this small group did succeed in getting their voices heard. A great many people at Providence College, through their cries, realized that there was a real need for some type of theatre facility on campus.

The theatre arts program at Providence College has been producing entertaining plays for years. They have achieved favorable reviews from R.I. critics, and have become accepted in the Rhode Island area as a talented crew.

These plays are performed in the Harkins Hall auditorium — an antiquated and somewhat small facility. Chairs must be set up for seating. There is poor lighting, and the set design capabilities are limited because of size. For these reasons, the Editorial Board of The Cowl is strongly in favor of the resolution passed by the Corporation to approve construction of a theater.

Nine months ago, a 10-member theatre study group was set up to investigate all aspects of the feasibility of constructing a theater. Of course, a major stumbling block was developing a financing plan for the theatre.

However, the Editorial Board feels that the administration will work as quickly as possible to achieve this goal.

For the aforementioned reasons, the Editorial Board feels that a theatre is well deserved by PC’s fine arts students and also commends the Corporation for approving its future construction.

From the editor’s desk...

What are your plans for this summer? Is it going to be another year of traveling to work, the beach and the bars? If you are looking for something different, then look at PC’sThat’s right, the perfect summer can be found in the Providence-in-Europe program based in Pietrasanta, Italy.

This program affords students the opportunity to discover Europe during a two-month period, rather than the usual two weeks found in most tours. You’ll spend time in the culturally rich cities of London, Paris, Florence and Rome, as well as discovering the nightlife of Monte Carlo and the beerfests of Munich.

While in Pietrasanta, you will get a chance to study in one of the most historical areas of the world. Imagine studying Renaissance art history and actually seeing the artworks in person rather than in pictures. If this sounds like the chance of a lifetime — it is. However, space is limited. To sign up see Fr. McAlister in the Art Building.

All students, including seniors, are eligible to enroll!

Editorial Board Member Responds to Congress Allegations

Dear Editor:

As a member of the Editorial Board of The Cowl, I would like to respond to the recent letter from Cheryl Morrisey, newly elected vice-president of Student Congress. Morrisey demands an apology from The Cowl to the Student Congress. She claims to be insulted and baffled at the editors' misinterpretation of facts, labels a number of editorials as irresponsible, and ends by stating that "The Cowl has not done its job." The tip-ed page and the Letters to the Editor section need not become an unnecessary battleground for campus organizations. Let's try to clear the issue up and for all.

As for the issue of the irresponsibility of Cowl editorials, one can not say that editorials which gain results are irresponsible.

For example, The Cowl published two editorials, one on the off-campus shuttle service and one on the lack of adequate trash facilities on campus. Various other organizations had previously taken up both issues but without success. The conflicts stalled somewhere along the way.

Within weeks of our editorials, both issues were taken up by the appropriate committees. The issues were reviewed and acted upon and currently, both the waste receptacles and shuttle service are available for student use.

The Batshooker was in the forefront at the beginning of the school year. The clientele had dwindled to practically nothing and the facility was in danger of being closed. Off-campus clubs had become more popular than the college pub. The Cowl published an editorial encouraging the student body to support the Bat.

The following week, the Bat Staff Commission was formed and business began to pick up markedly.

The Cowl also printed an editorial supporting the Residence Office policy of "bumping" with regards to on-campus dorm rooms. As a result, the measure has been approved and no freshmen will be forced to live off campus next year.

This is not Congress' fault. They have simply done their duty by voting. It is the other 75 percent of the student body that could have either swung the vote the other way or widened the winning margin for the elected.

I suppose I should be grateful that there was a vote at all for president and treasurer since both the vice president and secretary went unopposed.

Shouldn't there be more of an ambition to lead? Shouldn't we be more concerned with who is leading us?

As a member of the Student Congress, I don't have the opportunity to make known any desires they might have concerning campus life and get something done about them! In the past, such things as President's Day, the "Bell," better food service, the off-campus shuttle, and new Store 184 have been introduced, investigated and accomplished.

I am not a member of the Student Congress but I don't have to be to understand the importance of its existence.

Kelly's Keane Comments

There's something happening that I just don't understand: so I'm opening the subject up for discussion.

Providence College is a relatively small school in which most of the students and teachers are able to work together in a more personal atmosphere than is possible at larger universities. In order to make this an easier process, students and teachers have been put in the position of police and the administration has been put in the position of the accused. What we call our "Student Congress" is in a quandary. The discipline is growing and there is talk of forming a new Student Government.

In my opinion, the discipline is growing because there have been a number of editorials as a result of which the editors of The Cowl have been made to feel that they are being criticized for their work. The editors have been criticized in the student body. Cheryl Morrisey has been critical of the editors in the student body. Cheryl Morrisey has been critical of the editors in the student body.

Counseling Center Notes

The Anti-Smoking Campaign that has been going on here at PC since September of 1979, will be ending with a luncheon on Feb. 3, 1981. The Rhode Island State Department of Health was so encouraged by the efforts that we were given an extension of time. Now time has run out, as well as our funding from HEW and the Rhode Island State Department of Health.

We feel gratified that during this time period, three surveys were conducted to find out who smokes and who does not. Two quit-smoking clinics were held - The Great American Smoke-out Day was celebrated and a luncheon was given for freshmen. The first survey was run in September of 1979, the second in March of 1980, and the third in September of 1980.

The Great American Smoke-out Day in November of 1979 was the most successful. Movies and slides were shown and students could test the amount of carbon monoxide in their lungs by using an Ecolyzer, which was borrowed from the State Department of Health.

Two stop smoking clinics were held and more will be offered if enough students request them. Just invite your counselor to the Counseling Center, Slavin 210.

The second survey showed that 41 people had quit smoking for a period of six months. We found this very heartening because when we started the American Cancer Society had told us that if we helped just one person in quitting smoking we could call the program successful. Every survey demonstrated that twice as many young women smoke as young men. This finding corresponds with the figures of the American Cancer Society. Young women were the target of this project because of the alarming statistics that lung cancer in women is up 177 percent. To all those who participated in this program, many thanks.

Inquiring Photographer

Question: Is there anything you would like to see different about The Cowl?

DAVID NADEAU '81 "I'd like to see more intercollegiate sports and less coverage of P.C. events.

JULIE FLANAGAN '82 "It's the way it is.

KAREN CRONE '82 "The formats are the least representative. They should be changed. They don't know where to go or what to do."

TRACY COGAN '82 "I like it the way it is but I think students, especially girls, get interviewed more often and with more detail."

ANNE MARIE RENZIO '82 "I enjoy it a lot, but there should be more - someone represented that exemplify the stupidity of certain students."

TOM LAVERY '81 "I think that the Inquiring Photographer should tell these stories that exemplify the stupidity of certain students."

ANNIE MARIE RENZIO '82 "I enjoy it a lot, but there should be more - someone represented that exemplify the stupidity of certain students."
Laura Foley and Roberta Motherway, two political science majors from the Class of '82, spent a wonderful week in Washington, D.C. The political science department of Providence College, under the direction of Dr. William Hudson, informed political science majors of an internship with Senator Pell of Rhode Island. The internship consisted of a week in Washington working with Senator Pell and learning about the Senate in general.

The response to this great learning opportunity was poor. The lack of interest was probably due to the financial aspect of the trip. Students were solely responsible for the monetary aspect of the trip, including transportation, shelter and food. But Laura and Roberta felt the slight financial burden would be worth their while. They were as money conscious as possible, taking a nine-hour Amtrak trip, staying at a friend’s condominium, and spending time sightseeing, visiting such spots as the Smithsonian Station. 100 to 150 booths of wine tasting and gourmet foods from restaurants all over the country were set up. (Laura and Roberta gave “equal time” to each of these booths.) Anthony’s Pier Four of Boston, was one such restaurant represented. Only the inauguration ticket holders could attend such a celebration. Yes, Laura and Roberta had tickets for America’s biggest performance, the swearing in of our 40th president.

On Sunday, the minks, the glittering jewels and the sense of being elite, carried a touch of the upper echelons of society to Laura and Roberta. As the week unfolded, one of the major lessons Roberta and Laura learned, was that the people who run our government are real, sensitive and caring individuals. The senators, like Senator Pell, start their day at 9 a.m. and are still going strong 12 hours later.

Of course, the best part of the trip had to be the official swearing in ceremony on the White House lawn. They sat in the preferred seating section and took in the totality of such a special occasion.

Laura Foley asserted that the feeling of patriotism, a certain sense of pride for the red, white and blue, was abundant and overflowing. “Of course,” Roberta added, “The anticipation of the hostage situation added to the intense excitement.”

Many people at the ceremony had radios tuned into the latest developments on our hostages.

The girls were impressed by the number of celebrities present. They were deeply touched when everyone joined in to sing “God Bless America.” Watery eyes came to all, including the President himself. Besides the thrill of the inauguration, the girls had many other great experiences. They spent time sightseeing, visiting such spots as the Smithsonian Institute. They were also present at the Right to Life meeting with Senators Pell and Chafee, both of Rhode Island. The Senators appeared before about 300 people to try to influence their fairly liberal audience on abortion. People were allowed to speak up and question them. They then attended a Senate Budget meeting, observed Vice President Bush addressing the Senate and were present at the hearing which officially confirmed the appointment of Secretary of State Haig.

Yes, the girls had quite a week. Roberta Motherway and Laura Foley would recommend the internship to all pol-sci majors — “We love it.” The pride of America and its people made the trip a learning experience giving a better insight into the “life, liberty and pursuit of happiness” we are all striving to obtain.

PC Theater Makes Curtain Call

"You haven't lived if you haven't seen Vanities at least once," states the New York Daily News about Jack Heifner's bit-tease comedy.

Vanities will open the second half of Providence College Theatre's current season. This special presentation has been planned to coincide with Parent's Weekend (Feb 6-8) and Alumni Weekend (Feb. 13-15) at the College.

Vanities is a photo-sharp chronicle of the lives of three Texas girls. In 1963, Joanne, Kathy and Mary are vivacious cheerleaders — five years later, in their college sorority house, they are nervously confronting the future. In 1974, a brief reunion in New York shows how their lives have diverged.

The characters of Joanne, Kathy and Mary will be portrayed by Patricia White, Eileen Barron and Katherine Spackman. Miss White and Miss Spackman are recent graduates of PC. Daniel P. Foster will direct Vanities. Foster is a PC alumnus and administrator.

PC Theatre's production of Vanities is being stage managed by Kathryn Farrell, development assistant with Trinity Square Repertory Company and a PC alumnus.

Vanities will be presented in Harkins Hall Auditorium for six performances; Friday, Feb. 6, thru Sunday, Feb. 8 (Parents' Weekend); and Friday, Feb. 13, thru Sunday, Feb. 15, (Alumni Weekend).

Be sure to experience this "unnervingly funny" production (Newsweek), Vanities, during Parents' Weekend, Feb. 6-8. (February vacation begins the next weekend.)

Tickets for all performances of Vanities are $3.50, general admission; $2.50 for students and senior citizens. Due to BOG subsidization, PC student tickets are only $1.50.

PC Students “Whip It” in Last Resort

By Maryann Assalone

Where can you get in a night of dancing and all you can drink for $4? Why, at PC's Last Resort, of course.

Disc jockey Peter Walsh entertained everyone with his tunes Saturday night, Jan. 31. And February was rung in with a smash!

The night began with some good oldies from Elvis to the Beatles. Then, the beat jumped to Devo's "Whip It" and the B-52's "Rock Lobster."

"Everybody down on the floor!" cried Walsh. The talented "D.J." had the dancers doing the "Hoke-Poki" before they could recuperate from Earth, Wind and Fire's "Reasons."

"The good sound system got everyone dancing. You can really feel the beat," explained one student. There was no doubting that statement when you felt the energy emanating from the dancers.

As the night progressed, smoke filled the room and the hot, sticky feeling of a crowded party was evident. As a matter of fact, it was so hot that one junior took it upon himself to entertain the crowd with a semi-striptease performance.

Walsh rounded out the night with Frank Sinatra's "Good Night My Love," and a good night it was!

Have You Been To Store 104?

By Jean Ludwig and Anne Zeleski

Store 104, the new food and variety store on the PC campus is alive and well. The manager, Paul Dascoli is very enthused about his job and the store in general. Paul is a junior accounting major and has put in many hours of work at the store. He is in charge of the day-to-day management of Store 104. He does the ordering, makes profit margins and deals personally with distributors like Hostess.

He is in charge of the day-to-day management of Store 104. He makes profit margins and deals personally with distributors like Hostess.

Paul feels that the store is good for security purposes as well as being convenient. "It's good for girls especially. This way they don't have to go off the campus at night."

Store 104 is convenient and has most of the products everyone's looking for. Stop in! The new hours are 11:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday thru Friday, and 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday. Remember, it's a lot closer than Dutchland farms and it's right here at PC.

Business is booming at Store 104.

Detectives On Patrol in Providence

By Marybeth Alto

What do you think of when you hear the word "detectives"? A group of inspector Clouseau’s comparing magnifying glasses? Kojak sucking on a lolly pop? Sherlock and Watson? Or the group, as many who have seen them, play, think of the "highly energized" band, row to the Providence area, which includes two Providence College students.

Approximately a year ago four people got together, through ads in a newspaper, to form an original and a unique-sounding band. They called themselves the Detectives, a name given at random by lead guitar player, Neil Mulligan. The group felt this name gave them an "image" to evolve into. The image the group Mulligan, but each have dabbed with a song or two. Their music is very danceable. Some of it is of the standard type, however, much of it can be "tricky sounding." Some of you may have heard the Detectives play on our radio station, WDOM. The group’s goal for the near future is to produce a tape that may evolve into their first "single" and to get their name in the limelight. But, as for a career in music, the group will "play it out as far as it goes."

Although two members of the group are students at PC, we have only had the opportunity to hear the Detectives once on campus, and only one month after their organization into a group. But you can still catch the Detectives in action on Feb. 11 at Rhode Island School of Design.

Aquinas Helps Save The Bunnies

100 snowshoe rabbits were on their way to a hunter’s party. The rabbits were supposed to be shipped from Alaska to Rhode Island for the hunting season.

An ad appeared in The Providence Journal asking for support against such destruction. People were asked to call the Governor's office or the Defender of Animals to give their name and number in hope of saving the bunnies.

Kathleen Heery and Carrie Gilroy, residents of Aquinas Hall, got the dorm involved in the save the snowshoes brigade. Aquinas girls got on the phones and expressed their opinions on the matter.

Well, the bunnies were saved. Thanks, Aquinas, for your help and concern.

THE DETECTIVES

Those of you who have been to the Livingroom, Harp’s in Newport, or Simon’s in Pawtucket, may have heard the music of the Detectives, and none could have possibly left without the feeling that they had experienced a new type of music that’s not disco, punk, or rock, but the investigative sounds of the Detectives. Possibly they could help solve the mystery of how to have a good time at PC.

Big Alice’s and Guido’s: Hope Street’s Dens of Dining Delight

Side-by-side at Hope Street sit two diverse little eateries, each abounding with flavorful dishes. Opened only a bit over a year, both Big Alice’s and Guido’s are flourishing. The many loyal patrons appreciate the flavor of fresh, homemade ice cream or a well-prepared sauce.

At Big Alice’s, you’ll find one of everybody’s favorite treats at its best. It’s sort of an ice cream parlour for Grown-Ups (or almost Grown-Ups).

Aside from the ice cream’s being made daily on the premises, the big attraction is the imaginative flavors available. They change daily, with the excursions to a few favorites, and are made for a somewhat sophisticated taste or an ice cream connoisseur.

Don’t get hooked on one though; be adventurous and try a new flavor with each visit. Choices range from “creme cookie” to “maple cinnamon” to strawberry (made with fresh fruit), and several other alternative flavors. To compliment the ice cream is a superior selection of fancies to be mixed in with your ice cream family and has an excellent display, chocolate chips, coconut, marshmallow, peanuts and several more. Choose one or many – let your imagination run wild. Fruits can also be added – peaches, strawberries, pineapple, and, of course, banana.

The atmosphere at Guido’s, relaxed and unhurried, gives the diner a feeling his food is being prepared with care – and rightfully so. The simple but tasteful dining room may be a relaxing setting for an enjoyable meal while it promises to be. The dishes served are a bit tighter than those often associated with Italian cooking, but from what I have sampled – flavorful and good. Those available include seafood, veal, chicken, and pasta. The sauces are made right in the restaurant and it is evident in their taste. The prices at Guido’s are a little higher than those of most restaurants but because you are invited to bring your own beverages, a dinner for two can still be had for about $20.

Both Big Alice’s and Guido’s serve food of quality and good taste. The people are friendly and help make a naturally enjoyable visit even better.

Continued matter how good they are. And it happened to us last Sunday, when we were down 2-0 early in the game. When we do get behind, though, I think we handle it well. In the first period at Dartmouth, we didn't take the initiative in playing our own game, which is a game of skating and hitting, so we ended up playing theirs. But by the late second and third periods we adjusted to it and began setting up more and playing the organized game which we do best."

As far as the rest of the season goes, John repeats that they will take every game as it comes—staying with their "skating and hitting" style of play.

I would like to thank John on behalf of the Sports Staff at the Cowl and wish him the best of luck in the remaining games of the season and in whatever he pursues after college.
Pucksters Make Shots Count Against Dartmouth, 6-5

By Michael Burke

Things are definitely looking up for the Pucksters as the hockey Friars came up with another come-from-behind victory at last week's Saturday night. Piccinich was the hero of this game, scoring both goals and setting up another goal for Piccinich. At first, Piccinich was charged with grabbing Panaggio. Piccinich. Jim Panaggio appeared with 5:25 remaining. And that point, making it 56-55. That was, according to Piccinich, his own call, slamming home the winning goal in addition to his other goal and assist. But Piccinich collected two goals himself. John Sullivan played an encore to his triple-play performance against Brown as he accumulated a goal and two assists. While Piccinich Orlando acted as playmaker getting assists on the play. This was quickly answered 13 seconds later by a Dartmouth goal which excited the Dartmouth fans who would soon realize that there was little hope of taking those away from Piccinich.

It was a team effort from start to finish as several PA players racked up some points. Paul Stasiuk led his own call to get the winning goal and also exceptional goalkeeping was a major factor in deciding the winner of this game.

John Sullivan answered this goal a minute later with a shot right to the center of an open net. Paul Stasiuk and Gates Orlando giving him a hand. And a minute later than that, Dan Miele made it look easy as he wheeled around a "Big Green" defenseman and casually flipped it by a surprised Dartmouth goalie.

Finally, with a minute and a half remaining in the period, Dartmouth goal at 18:24 was followed by one more double- penalty as they tried to drive home the scoring. This left the score at the end of the second period 1-1.

The third period was all PA as Paul Stasiuk, added by John Sullivan and the two goals were followed by the Friars boiling their heads. Piccinich made both of his free throws. Twice early in the second half, Panaggio did make 24 of 35 free throws, against the Dartmouth "Big Green" defenseman and casually flipped it by a surprised Dartmouth goalie.

The going gets rough for Lady Friars... The potential for the PC squad, which sent counted Dartmouth players into and over the boards. Dartmouth managed to sneak two goals by goaltender Scott Fiske in the first period. Fiske worked hard in this game, making twelve saves in the first period alone.

The Friars have game with three minutes left in the first period, when Paul Stasiuk drove one home with the help of Gates Orlando. Dartmouth was quick to reply with a power play goal at 18:34 was quickly answered 13 seconds later by a Dartmouth goal which excited the Dartmouth fans who would soon realize that there was little hope of taking those away from PA.

Seton Hall's basketball team scored seven points in the last 12 seconds Saturday night, holding off a determined Providence Lady Friars, and came out on top, 72-62, in a Big East Conference game played at South Orange, N.J.

Seton Hall had led 27-27 at the half, with the help of what amounted to eight-point play. This resulted from two and one-chances and two technical fouls, against PC with Gary Walters and one of his assistants, Wayne Skole.

Twice in the easy second half, the Pirates built double-digit leads, but the Friars got back into the game with a vicious man-to-man defense and scoring of senior Rudy Williams which helped PC close to within one point, mah 43-46. That was with 5:25 remaining. And that was as close as the Friars were to come.

The score was 43-46 when the Friars' Jim Panaggio appeared to have stolen the ball from Matt Piccinich first. Piccinich was charged with grabbing Panaggio. But then the ball was reversed, and Piccinich missed both of his free throws. Twenty-eight seconds later, the Pirates started the run of seven straight points. A layup, three free throws and a flip-in of a missed shot ended the game's scoring.

The going gets rough for Lady Friars... Each team scored 24 field goals for the game. But the Pirates made 21 of 35 free throws, against 11 of 24 for the Friars. In the second half, the Pirates made 13 of 21 free throws, while the Friars got three of five.

One of the reasons the Friars came back as they did in the second half was the tremendous defensive job done on Seton Hall guard Dan Callandrello by Panaggio and freshman Carl Hill. Panaggio guarded him most of the second half. Panaggio did an outstanding job as Callandrillo had only one field goal and a total of four points in those last 20 minutes. Callandrello would up with 15 points to lead the Pirates.

Rudy Williams led the Friars with 16 points, all in the last 14 minutes of play. Panaggio and Gates Orlando were able to create with their all-around play of Providence.

Monday night brought an even more grueling test. Five double-penalties were called on PA in the first period, when Paul Stasiuk and Gates Orlando gave him a hand. And a minute later than that, Dan Miele made it look easy as he wheeled around a "Big Green" defenseman and casually flipped it by a surprised Dartmouth goalie.

Well, the dust has long settled from the activities involved in beginning another semester, and the month of January has passed quickly by. While many students were home during vacation, many faithful PC athletes were on the road representing our school. In this issue of The Cowl, the first of a series of articles which recognizes the efforts of a Friar athlete will be printed. This week John Sullivan will receive the "Friar of the Week" honors.

Thank you.

Friar Action against Dartmouth

Sirius: Short; Lose to Seton Hall 72-62
