Students Cheer Pucksters onto Victory in Boston

PC students traveled in large numbers to the Boston Garden last weekend to cheer their hockey team on. It was a great show of loyalty for a team that had drawn only fair amounts of students during the regular season.

Many of the students arrived in Boston early to spend a fun-filled day in Faneuil Hall before watching the Friars pull off a miracle on ice.

The weekend began on Friday night with a stunning upset of top-seeded Clarkson in overtime, 4-3. It was one of the most spectacular finishes in college hockey, as PC scored two goals within the last 60 seconds of the game.

The student body, along with many alumni, then returned on Saturday evening to watch the pucksters avenge previous playoff losses to Cornell. Their support proved valuable as PC whipped Cornell, 8-4. For more details see page 12.

Mike Wallace to Speak at PC's 63rd Commencement

Mike Wallace, CBS News Correspondent and co-editor of the network's top-rated newsmagazine show "60 Minutes," since its beginning 17 years ago, will deliver the keynote address on May 18, at Providence College's 63rd Commencement, it was announced on March 19 by the Very Rev. Thomas R. Peterson, College president.

Wallace also anchors "Mike Wallace at Large" on the CBS Radio Network.

The college will also confer an honorary doctorate on the veteran broadcaster. More than 90 baccalaureate and masters degrees will be awarded to members of the Class of 1981 during the 10 a.m. commencement exercises at the Providence Civic Center.

Mike Wallace's experience as a newswoman dates back to the 1940's, when he was a radio news writer and broadcaster for the Chicago Sun. After serving as a naval communications officer during World War II, he became a news reporter for station WMAQ. Chicago. Wallace joined the CBS Television Network in 1951, serving until 1956 as a broadcaster on news, feature and entertainment programs.

He left CBS in 1956 to pursue a variety of journalistic activities. From 1956-57, he headed the Channel 5 (New York City) television program, "Night Beat." "The Mike Wallace Interview" aired on the ABC Television Network from 1957 to 1960, and was carried on a syndicated basis during 1960-61.

From 1956 to 1958, Wallace anchored the Peabody Award-Winning public affairs series "Biography," which focused on a range of historical figures from Mae Tse Tung and Joseph Stalin to Helen Keller and Mark Twain.

Wallace's professional honors include a number of Emmy Awards—"60 minutes," a compilation of interviews from "Night Beat" and "Mike Wallace Interview," was published in 1955.

Wallace returned to CBS in 1963, at which time he was named a CBS News Correspondent. He anchored the "CBS Morning News" from its premiere in 1963 until July, 1966, and also anchored the "CBS Mid-Day News" during that time. In 1967, he was assigned to Vietnam.

He has covered political conventions for CBS News since 1962, reported at every convention since 1964-1976, and anchored the Eastern Regional desk for CBS News election night coverage since 1968.

BOG Elections To Be Held Next Tuesday

It was announced at last Sunday's Student Government meeting that yesterday, Wednesday, March 18, began the nomination period for next year's Board of Governors executive board. The office of president and vice-president are open only to people with previous BOG experience, while anyone is welcome to run for the office of treasurer. The position of secretary of the BOG is appointed by the new executive board. Elections will be held on Tuesday, March 24.

There were no elections this past week for the Resident Board and the Off-Campus Resident Organization, because all the candidates were unopposed.

Bob Paiva, president of the Athletic Board, noted that the board is planning several tournaments this spring. They will most likely include softball, tennis, golf, basketball and soccer. The BOG sold out the tickets for last Saturday's appearance of Bay Boston, in six minutes. The tickets went on sale at 2:30 p.m. rather than 3:30 p.m., because there were already approximately 200 people waiting in line.

Also, the BOG's scheduled trip to Montreal has been cancelled due to lack of interest.

Dennis McEnery, student representative to the Committee on Administration, noted that the College is reviewing alternatives for energy conservation.

On March 15, the Dillon Club accepted final payment for the participation of off-campus students. He said he would like primarily to work to try to get more off-campus students involved next year.

Finally, George Mulry, treasurer for OCRO, is economics major from Fire Island. N.Y. Mulry also commented that he would like to keep up the progress that Ed Flynn has begun. He feels that Flynn has accomplished a great deal this year, and hopes that they will be able to develop the organization further in the upcoming year.

Mulry hopes that OCRO might plan some activities of its own. He feels that he knows a great many off-campus students, so that he can represent them well, and he hopes to deal with many of the problems that he feels off-campus students face.

Panel From Army War College Answers Students Questions

By Kevin Burke

Could El Salvador ever become another Vietnam? How big a role should women play in the Armed Forces? These questions, along with many others concerning world and national affairs, were the type asked last Thursday evening in '64 Hall to a panel of six Lieutenant Colonels from the United States Army War College. Despite a poor showing from the student body and faculty, all those present had the opportunity to address the panel with any matter of civilian or military concern that they felt was of special interest.

Lt. Colonel William Williamson acted as spokesmen for the panel. Other members included Lt. Colonel Joseph Briggs, Lt. Colonel Charles Neccoli, Lt. Colonel James Dwire, Lt. Colonel Robert Blasius, and Lt. Colonel Thomas Sikora. A 1965 graduate of West Point, Williamson has had command of many others concerning the Boston-New England Chapter of the National Academy of the Arts, and held staff assignments in the United States, Vietnam, and Iran. With respect to the hostage situation in Iran, the Lt. Colonel noted that, "The worst thing our government could do would be to start pointing fingers at Iran and other countries. The problem has been solved and we should keep all promises that we made to the Iranian people, but always keep in mind what they put those families through."

Later into the evening, the inevitable question about El Salvador was brought up. It was the panel's own feeling that the possibility of the problem of ever developing into another "Vietnam-like" situation was indeed very slim.

Prief of all, because of El Salvador's location, it would never be like Vietnam," stated Lt. Colonel Briggs.

On the topic of women in the Army, Williamson stated that the female should not participate in combat activity. "The situation should be left as it is today," added Williamson.

In addition to the draft, El Salvador and Iran, the panel also discussed nuclear strategy, Persian Gulf contingency plans and military posture.

The Owls would like to thank Providence's ROTC program for sponsoring this event.

they will be able to ease some of the tension existing between students and their neighbors in off-campus apartments. He feels there is a great deal of unrest among neighbors of off-campus residents, and that it must be dealt with.

Duryea also has hopes that OCRO might establish some sort of a discount food plan in local supermarkets patronized by off-campus students.

Chris Servedio, the new OCRO vice-president, has a double major in management and Italian, and is from Westerly, R.I. Servedio stated only that he feels there is a great deal of work that his fellow officers will be able to do on OCRO, but that he has not really had a chance to discuss any ideas for next year himself.

Philip Bond, secretary of OCRO, is a social work major from Newton, Mass. Bond commented that he would like to see OCRO carry on the good work it has started this year, saying that they should definitely "follow in the footsteps of Ed Flynn." He believes that they might organize and sponsor their own on-campus activities to increase participation of off-campus students.

He said he would like primarily to work to try to get more off-campus students involved next year.

Study of Housing Alternatives Produces Some Surprising Findings

By Roberta Capuano

Each year around this time, students begin to make plans concerning their residence for the following year. Over the past several years, many students find themselves forced to look at off-campus apartments as a primary alternative. Besides the fact that there is limited space on campus for the number of students enrolled, the main reason given for moving off campus is, "You save a lot of money." However, based on a survey conducted by the Office of Financial Aid, it seems people do not save as much as they expect to.

The Financial Aid Office became concerned with whether or not the current budget used to assist in determining the living costs of off-campus students' eligibility for aid. The difference between living on-campus and off-campus is, "You save a lot of money." However, based on a survey conducted by the Office of Financial Aid, it seems people do not save as much as they expect to.

In comparing off-campus rent and utility costs to the on-campus room fee, the difference is $192.43. The overall saving for the average student, with no automobile, is approximately $281.43. Though not a substantial amount, the money saved is significant to the average student attempting to meet the cost of his or her education.

E.C.A.C. Hockey

Congratulations Champs!

Just after midnight on Friday, the teams converged in the back of the chairs at the Boston Garden.

Providence was losing 3-2 with four minutes left to the Clarkson University hockey team. Senior captain Steve O'Neill had been forced out of the game with an injury, and the Friars were facing a two-minute penalty. But something made us stay, so we stood with our coats on and waited, and began to yell, and the yelling became screaming.

Providence had pulled off a miracle finish to the period. They had scored two goals within the last minute to send them into overtime with an 11-10 victory. Needless to say, something made us stay, so we were forced out of the game with an injury. But Steve O'Neill had been wearing a two-minute penalty. The Friars were facing a two-minute penalty. But something made us stay, so we stood with our coats on and waited, and began to yell, and the yelling became screaming.

We sat and watched as PC warmed up amidst a wall of screaming "Big Red" alumni and students. We watched, perhaps a little too quietly, because we didn't quite know what to expect. And then our yelling became screaming again, and our fears were erased.

PC rolled over the Big Red. They simply were too much for Cornell to handle. Randy Velischek owned the corners, and the Friars were facing a two-minute penalty. But something made us stay, so we stood with our coats on and waited, and began to yell, and the yelling became screaming.

So in one game they brought home the trophy to the fans, to the students, to the season. We remembered last minute to send them into overtime with a 12-12 victory. Needless to say, something made us stay, so we stood with our coats on and waited, and began to yell, and the yelling became screaming.

Congress Confusion

The recent confusion surrounding the elections (or non-elections) of the Resident Board of the Resident Organization forced the Editorial Board of The Cowl to, once again examine the election procedures of Student Congress. Elections were to be held last Thursday for both the OCHR and the Resident Board. Both had four seats available. At the beginning of the nomination periods only one position in each organization was opposed. After the nomination period all students were informed of the election rules. These rules stipulated that anyone running for office must hold a 2.0 cum. Any student with a cum below 2.0 was asked to withdraw their nomination papers.

Two candidates running did in fact have a cumulative average below 2.0. One of the students who was ineligible attempted to obtain dispensation from college officials. He pursued this course of action because he had become aware of a ploy that had been used by a previous candidate. This student did receive positive feedback from some college officials and ultimately permission from the college. Consequently, he commenced with campaign activities.

Much to the student's dismay, he was officially notified by the executive board president that he could not run for office. This student did receive positive feedback from some college officials and ultimately permission from the college. Consequently, he commenced with campaign activities.

The resulting situation was an embarrassing one for all concerned. This state of confusion was caused by an inadequate knowledge of the Congress by-laws. They are Congress' own by-laws and only Congress has the right to modify them. In order that such a recurrence might be prevented Congress members should be made fully aware of their own by-laws, before elections take place.
Dear Editor:

I was very saddened by the letter of March 11, concerning sexist terminology. I find it unfortunate that one must waste one's time engaging in such trivial matters. For Business 465 Series II's information, "man" is a universal and traditional term. No sexism is implied when the public used it in such words as "freshman," "anchorwoman," "fireman," etc. Let me point out that even the ancient book of Genesis used the word "man" in a universal sense. I refer to Gen. 1:26-27. And he said: Let us make man in our image and likeness. And God created man in his own image: to the image of God he created them.

"A 'frosh' suggestion"

Dear Editor:

This is to solve a solution to sexist terminology at Providence College. It would appear that one place where sex exists is in hospitals. In an article dealing with sex, the patient is termed "patient." What about "patientless"? (Perhaps that is too possible?)

Rather than "upperclassmen," "upperclass" could be used. This term dismisses sexism while maintaining the root of the traditional word. These two terms could eliminate the sexist element in Business 605 is concerned over.

Marie J. Hebert

Ticket Policy Standardized

Dear Editor:

On behalf of a few upset students, I feel that it is my duty to explain the ticket situation of the Ray Bowen tickets last Thursday.

After much cooperation on the part of all, the highly demanded tickets for the Celtics were put on sale at 3:30 p.m. to prevent the cutting of classes.

I feel this is the most fair time for all so I decided to change the time of sale of last Resort tickets to 3:30 p.m. also. I feel it rather informal, it has been used in the past and is used in some areas of the country. This term would maintain tradition.

Marie J. Hebert

Biblical Terminology Noted

Dear Editor:

The terms "freshman" and "upperclassmen" may be often used, but they are not sexist. The suffix "man" as used in both of these words is a universal term applying to mankind in kind. It does not refer to specific gender of mankind. Phrases such as "upperclassmen men" or "freshman women" would designate a specific gender.

Mike Edward

Upperclassmen Man

No Identity Problem Here

Dear Editor:

I was reading a recent letter in The Cowl that there are still many people who are being treated with a lack of identity. I never minded being called "freshman." I certainly prefer to be called "freshperson.

A "womperson" is cumbersome. "Genderless" is a misnomer and girl's, of course, is employed only by the older generation. "Females" is an atrocity to both sexes.

No matter whether I am called (with a few reservations) there is no doubt of my man or anyone else's mind, as to my gender.

Counseling Center Notes

Business interview styles vary widely among employers. But overall there are five types of job interviews, the biographical and the focus-selection.

The biographical interview normally opens with the famous "Tell me about yourself." In answering this question the candidate must always bring the subject back to the here and now. In effect, the interviewer is really asking three questions.

What's your background?

Why did you go to PC?

What motivates you to be here today interviewing for this job with this organization?

Your motivation and your background can tell the interviewer a lot about you. Your socialization may have over-protected you, or disposed you toward distorted concepts about the interviewer's industry. In medicine, law, teaching, and government, for instance, you learn your field by studying. In business, however, you learn by doing.

The interviewer leaves it up to you to weave your "doing" record into your performance on jobs, your initiative in structuring your leisure time, your leadership, the quality of your peer interactions, your ability to define goals and produce results.

A student often raves about how "nice" the interviewer was and how easy it went. The interviewer, on the other hand, often comments: "Nice kid. But doesn't have much to say for himself. No focus. No goals. Has a lot of growing up to do before he ever understands the reality of work.

If you have a sincere desire for the job and focus your goal you will do well. Blindly taking interviews does not work.

The Focus-Selection Interview

The interviewer focuses on a certain desired strength.

On Tuesday, New England people of all races, colors and creeds, joined to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. After all, there's a little bit of Irish in all of us. Providence sponsored St. Patrick's Day parade last Saturday afternoon. The streets were packed with clapping, jumping, cheering, joyous throngs, little children blowing horns, the usual balloons and blow-up toys as well as Irish step-dancers, various bands and the usual balloons. Gus Cote 'Roasted' by Providence

Last Friday night, in '64 Hall, Providence College honored one of its greatest business professors, Gustave C. Cote. A member of the business department since 1952, Cote served as department chairman from 1972-1978. Cote has been active in student affairs while at PC and was recently nominated for Person of the Year by Student Congress for helping that organization establish Store 101. The event, entitled "An Evening to Roast Gus Cote," brought together many of his old friends, colleagues, and students for a night filled with laughter and praise. The dia that did the "roasting" consisted of: Dr. Ronald P. Cervone, current chairman of the business department; Thomas M. Heskin, director of the Humanities Program; Dr. Roger L. Pearson, dean of the School of Continuing Education; Francis L. Deasy, director of the Institute of Public Relations and another member of the economics department; Michael F. Filippelli, a former PC business professor; and now a member of the Bryant College administration; Francis Malafodt, executive with the Internal Revenue Service; Mary Ellen Woodnancy, '79, a former PC student; and Stephen E. Sylvia, former editor of the Cowl and a member of the Class of 1983.

The evening began with proclamations from both the Governor's Office and the Mayor's Office making March 13, Gus Cote Day in both Rhode Island and the city of Providence respectively. This was followed by each member of the dia giving their "story" of Gus Cote. Through these "informative" presentations, the audience learned about Gus Cote's experience in the PC phone book or that unending list of Mc's in Providence.

The Competition

By Barry Hutchinson

Paul Dietrich and Heidi Schonower are in a competition for a lucrative piano award. They're also lovers.

Richard Dreyfuss plays Paul, a pianist who's tired of relying on his parents' financial support. Instead of entering more musical contests, he's a frequent finalist but never a winner. Paul is thinking of getting a job. He should — he's 30 years old.

In addition to this incredible situation, Paul is paired with 21-year-old Heidi. Dreyfuss' reeling hairline emphasizes his age difference and makes it difficult for the audience to become enthusiastic about his relationship with Heidi.

They are pitted against four other contestants vying for a $20,000 prize and a guarantee of two years of concert bookings. The outcome of the contest will determine Paul's future.

There is really only one performance, however, that garners attention. Amy Irving, as Heidi. Her calm manner contrasts with Paul's anxiety. Yet Miss Irving, unlike Deyfus, shows her character's range of emotions.

In the climactic scene, her body movements and facial expressions match the frenzied piano piece that she has chosen. Miss Irving's hands move frantically as she thrusts her whole body into the performance. Upon completion, she sits back with her mouth agape and suppresses a desire to both laugh and cry.

For under $20 these three outfits are great wardrobe expanders. They'll take the contemporary young man from morning to night in style. New easy-care fabric combinations are perfect for sport and leisure activities as well as for school and work.

DO AMERICA’S VALUES DETERMINE HER FOREIGN POLICY?
As spring rolls around so too does a new season of sports at Providence College. With exciting events such as volleyball, lacrosse, rugby, baseball, and softball plus a complete schedule of intramural events the season looks to be enjoyable for all. Covering all these events will be a demanding job—but with reporters such as John Brandon (who gave us such excellent hockey coverage all year, thanks John!) The Cowl promises to give the same quality reporting that it has in the past.

Netmen Begin Spring Workout

The men's tennis team began its spring season Wednesday with workouts which included many old and new faces. Among the new members is the up and coming freshman sensation, Lou Bermuda. Coach Jack Faulise believes that with Bermuda his squad is up for the many challenges the racquetiers will face in the future weeks. "They've been working out all winter, both on the courts and in the nautilus room. The nucleus should be very strong by the time our first match rolls around. Howard was impressed," referring to Howard Sands.

Coach Faulise went on to add that he felt the freshman have played an integral part in the program, "It's very rewarding to see all those freshmen out on the courts putting out 110 percent towards the total team effort. I can't find any fault with their service." Referring to the Florida workout in April Faulise stated, "The competition we will face in Palm should be very beneficial; teams such as Fort and Boco should help us to get into top condition. Following this swing to sunny Florida (playing the likes of Southern Florida and the University of Miami) P.C. will head home to face some crucial duels.

And with that, the E.C.A.C. Division II Champions begin what should be another successful campaign for spring '81.

Now you can take it in 2 years, too.

If you missed taking Army ROTC in your first two years of college, you may not have missed out. Because of the Army ROTC Two-Year program, you'll have to attend a special six-week camp the summer before your junior year. But you'll be well paid for it.

And altogether, you'll earn a total of about $2,900 to help you through your last two years of college. Then you'll earn a commission as an officer at the same time you earn a college degree.

Season Looks Bright for PC Hurlers

By Richard Testa

Since baseball won't become the focus of attention here in the North for a while yet, PC will be heading south to Florida to begin the intercollegiate schedule there. Leaving this Friday, PC will play an 11-game schedule against the likes of Toledo, South Florida, Harvard and the Red Sox Minor League teams. (All but the latter count toward PC's season record.)

With tri-captains George Sousa, Steve Delloposter and Denny Lagasse, coach Donald Mazzanote is looking at the beginning of an excellent season. Finishing only 17-17 last year and completing only one playoff game, the Friars have plenty of room to improve. Returning are the likes of outfielders John Tierne and Blaine Carroll, and infielders Keith Quinn, Joe Perkola and Bob O'cearan. Along with Lagasse, the pitching crew includes seniors Paul Whitehead and John Conte, junior Scott Corliss and Charles Leibo and sophomore/Chemia Lacrosse. With this lineup the Friars are in the running for the playoffs.

Walk-ons and freshmen will be trying to work themselves into the roster as the season progresses; but for now the scene is Florida. PC won't return until April 3 when they meet Holy Cross. Probably the most important part of the season is now because Florida isn't just spring training. "Watching a spring training game is as exciting as watching a tree form its annual ring." Jerry Izenburg.

Flexing their muscles for the first time this year may show what PC will be doing for the rest of the season.

Kurt Kleinendorst was awarded Most Valuable Player in a post game awards ceremony. Kleinendorst had five goals and two assists in the Friars' three playoff games. Also each dressing member of the squad was introduced and given E.C.A.C. watches. Finally the championship trophy was presented to P.C. for the first time in 16 years.

When coach Lamoriello switched goaltiers to give his team a rest with about a minute left, the people who remained figured it was all over, except the team “Give up!” questioned a surprised sophomore Dan Miele (who later folded in the tying goal). “We never did. It’s 5-4 and all you can do is pull tighter together and hope for a break.”

In that last minute, the Friars looked like a completely different team. They would dump the puck into the Golden Knight end and force quickly. With that, just 33 seconds left in regulation, Scott Kleindentor drilled a slapshot by goalie Don Sylvester to pull the team within one. It still looked as if a miracle would be needed. A few seconds later, Paul Staszak threw a long pass up to Gates Orlando who just made it over the blue-line to avoid an off-side call. Orlando took a quick shot which hit off Sylvester’s pads. Goody, Dan Miele took the loose puck, flipped it high in the net, and hit the goal light. The Providence team cleared the bench in joy as they realized the miracle had arrived with only 25 seconds left in the game. The score was tied.

Overtime followed to the amazement of the fans and players. Clarkson, led by ECAC player of the year Ed Small, was openly defeated. PC, on the other hand, found new life. Miele commented, “There’s nothing you can say. You don’t have to get the boys psyched. You know they’re psyched.”

The first five minutes of overtime saw Providence sending the puck into the Knight zone and checking effectively. It was this aggressive type of play that set up more scoring opportunities for the Friars than they had gotten all season. At 4:38 after some tough minutes, Steve Anderson popped the puck into the top left corner of the net to put the icing on the cake of an amazing comeback and send PC to the ECAC title.

The first two periods were. “I was pleasantly surprised Clarkson definitely controlled the tempo. Tenacious checking by forward Hum Armstrong and Pat Harris kept Providence in their zone. Breaking passes were frequently intercepted by the fast skating PC Topples Top Seeded Clarkson, 4-3...

CHAMPS!...Then Captures Division Title From Cornell, 8-4

PC Topples Top Seeded Clarkson, 4-3...

The Providence College Friars, led by tournament MVP Kurt Kleinderstor’s three goals, punched their ticket to the ECAC Championships. It was only the second banner ever won by the Friars, their history of varsity hockey. With this championship, PC gained an automatic home hockey berth in the NCAA’s against the number four ranked Providence at a post game press conference, “we wanted to beat Cornell bad. They’ve been a good hockey team, give them their credit, but give us a little more credit for what we’ve done all year.”

PC Topples Top Seeded Clarkson, 4-3...

The Friars had advanced to the ECAC finals. Earlier this season, the Big Red fought again from behind to top Providence at Schneider. M.V.P. Kurt Kleinderstor explained, “the only difference between those games and this one (the final) was that this time we were ready for them. We knew we had to be. This was a first for us so it was huge.”

In the first period, PC took a 2-0 lead in a span of 20 seconds. Kurt Kleinderstor backhanded a power play goal at 9:18 after scoring from the point shot past Cornell goalie Brian Hayward for the first score of the game. At 11:40 after some tough minutes, Steve Anderson enjoyed a 6-1 advantage going into the last 20 minutes of play. Gates Orlando whipped the rebound of Randy Valadeau’s point shot past Cornell goalie Brian Hayward for the first score of the second period. That tally came only 13 seconds later when John Sullivan put up yet another rebound shot.

Kleindentor flipped it high in the net, and lit the Garden on fire. The Friars upset second seeded Clarkson, the Friars were more disappointing as many as Sylvestri. His play kept the Friars at striking distance which the Knights would find fatal in the third period. Standing outside the Providence locker room after the game, a one clever reporter asked coach Lamoriello if we was supersitious. He explained to the coach that the last minute of play happened, at 11:12 midnight, the beginning of a new day, and the end of Friday, the 13th. Could it have been superstition? Coach Lamoriello just smiled and laughed. "He knew deep inside that the answer to that mysterious game was in the hearts of his players. "We just want to get in style," commented senior Steve Evangelista. "Just want to bring that banner back to Providence."

A Commentary:

An Unexpected Title

By John Brandolino

The Friars upset second seeded Clarkson, the Friars were more disappointing as many as Sylvestri. His play kept the Friars at striking distance which the Knights would find fatal in the third period. Standing outside the Providence locker room after the game, a one clever reporter asked coach Lamoriello if we was supersitious. He explained to the coach that the last minute of play happened, at 11:12 midnight, the beginning of a new day, and the end of Friday, the 13th. Could it have been superstition? Coach Lamoriello just smiled and laughed. "He knew deep inside that the answer to that mysterious game was in the hearts of his players. "We just want to get in style," commented senior Steve Evangelista. "Just want to bring that banner back to Providence."

The Friars had advanced to the ECAC finals. Earlier this season, the Providence Friars were expected to be number one in the East; maybe number one in the nation. But early on in the season, after a few tough losses, PC was locked upon as just barely an average team. In fact the ECAC playoff program infera that Providence was "the biggest disappointment of the season." According to the program, the Friars were more disappointing than the Colonials of Vermont, who faced with a record of 5-10-0. Providence entered the tourney seeded seventh. They weren’t expected to go very far. After all, they had stepped into playoff berths by beating New Hampshire 3-1 in overtime in the last game of the regular season. When the Friars upset second seeded Boston College in the quarterfinals, most people considered it to be simply a matter of luck. Yet, even The Boston Globe, that bastion of sports journalism, inferred that Providence was the team that "can never win the big game."

The Friars had advanced to the ECAC final four teams. The scene was most of a goal lead. Mario colors for much bigger when stopping 25 shots — almost twice as many as Sylvester. His play kept the Friars at striking distance which the Knights would find fatal in the third period. Standing outside the Providence locker room after the game, a one clever reporter asked coach Lamoriello if we was supersitious. He explained to the coach that the last minute of play happened, at 11:12 midnight, the beginning of a new day, and the end of Friday, the 13th. Could it have been superstition? Coach Lamoriello just smiled and laughed. "He knew deep inside that the answer to that mysterious game was in the hearts of his players. "We just want to get in style," commented senior Steve Evangelista. "Just want to bring that banner back to Providence."
