Fieldhouse Well Underway

By Nancy O'Neil

In touring the rapidly developing fieldhouse last week with James Cunningham, physical plant director, it is obvious that the structure is taking form.

According to Cunningham, construction is proceeding "very well" despite the weather in January. February's good weather has aided construction and the project is on schedule.

In addition to the new construction, extensive renovations are being made on Alumni Hall. The present entrance to the building will be eliminated and the structure will be made accessible only through the main lobby of the fieldhouse. Cunningham gave a thorough tour of the new corridors being constructed and the new passenger elevator being installed in the building.

PC women will have much to gain by these renovations. The women's facilities are undergoing a major overhaul and women's athletic director. It will be equipped with a dance floor, a weight room, aerobics room, and a tennis court.

The present women's exercise room will be converted to a ballet, gymnastics, aerobics, and karate oriented room, explained Helen Bert, women's athletic director. It will have mirrored walls, a hardwood floor and will be put together to be a gymnasium.

Male and female training rooms have been built in Alumni Hall where the former training and equipment rooms were located. Furnished with medical supplies, whirlpools, and advanced equipment, these rooms will be used for physical therapy.

Furthermore, a rehabilitation room, comparable to a hospital physical therapy unit, is also scheduled to open in September.

Financial Aid Forum: Next Year's Picture Looks Dim

Providence College Financial Aid Director J. D'Arcy enlightened a small crowd of concerned PC students about President Reagan's proposed cut in the Financial Aid Forum on campus last Thursday, April 6.

According to D'Arcy, the cut will affect two programs: the Guaranteed Student Loan and the Basic Grant.

Currently, over 2,000 PC students have a Guaranteed Student Loan. If the proposals are passed, students will either have to pay the difference in these loans or attend school with the compounded sum after graduation.

D'Arcy noted that if a student borrowed $2,500 every year for four years as much as $7,600 in interest could be accumulated.

Reagan also hopes to restrict borrowing under this program to those who can show financial need. D'Arcy estimated that an income "cap" of $30,000 or less might determine the eligibility for this loan.

The Basic Grant, now called the Pell Grant, might be subjected to a 12.5 to 25 percent reduction. Under the proposal, the typical PC student should lose between $330 and $840.

Eligibility for this grant would be limited to those from a family income of $12,500 or less. Also, no adjustments to the formula for courtesy due to inflation would be made.

Although unfinished, it appears to be an excellently designed facility.

Award Winning Poet to Read in Aquinas Lounge

In two weeks, the walls of Aquinas Lounge will reverberate with the musical works of Charles Simic.

Simic, an award-winning poet and translator, currently teaches at the University of New Hampshire.

The Yugoslavian native is the author of eight volumes of poetry and five volumes of poetry in translation.

His translations include those of French, Russian, and Yugoslavian works.

The success of Simic’s career is evident by awards received from the American Academy of Arts and Letters and the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

He has also received a PEN International Award for translation, the Edgar Allen Poe Award, as well as a Guggenheim Foundation Fellowship.

The 67-year-old poet was recently chosen by the poetry Society of America, as the winner of the 1980 Castagnola Award, for his most recent book, Classic Ballroom Dances.

David Ignatow wrote of Simic in The New York Times. “His poems echo and re-echo in the mind, as memories of lives, impulses and cataclysms long since buried within us...He draws us into a complex of perceptions and feelings that have been lying beneath the surface of our conventional defenses, to be penetrated by just this act of revelation, awakening us once more to an awareness of our true lives.”

The PC community will have the opportunity to witness Simic’s talents on April 23 at 8 p.m. in Aquinas Lounge.

The reading is being sponsored by the Department of English, in the Providence College Poetry and Fiction series.

The final reading in the series will be held on Thursday, April 30, featuring the works of contributors to The Alembic. All are welcome to attend.

The new secretary is Brian Fox, ’82, a marketing major from East Greenwich, R.I.

PC’s Marketing Club is a chapter of the American Marketing Association. TheAMA began in 1937 with the consolidation of the American Marketing Society and the National Association of Marketing Teachers. Its members now include marketing practitioners, teachers, and students. Every AMA collegiate chapter is supported by the national association, which provides its chapters with career brochures, speakers’ lists, and conferences. New vice-president Ray Boucher commented that the Marketing Club will try to “continues to serve the students and to give them knowledge outside of the classroom.”

Through the club, members are provided with information on career opportunities in the marketing profession.

Seniors Revive 50-50-81 Raffle

The Class of 1981, here at Providence College, has announced a raffle entitled the 50-50-81 Raffle. The profits from this raffle will go entirely to the 1981 class gift.

The emphasis of the class gift will be a gift to the parents of the seven girls who died in the Aquinas Hall fire that were members of the Class of 1981. It is hoped that enough money will be raised to be able to afford medals for each ofset of parents, emblazoned with the Class of ‘81 ring design. The committee asks for your help in this most worthy effort.

The raffle committee is headed by Mary Ellen Gilroy, president of the class and Ken McGunagle, former treasurer of ’81, and also includes Barbara Cotrim, Teresa Paiva, Liz Oleksak, Sarah Williams and Steve Sylvia.

California Trip

By Karen MacGillivray

Rev. Thomas R. Peterson, O.F.S., along with William Nero, assistant vice-president for development, has been in California during the past week to encourage donations from alumni to the College Loyalty Fund.

Father Peterson has been visiting the West Coast’s alumni annually for the past three years. This year he stopped in separate parts of the state in order to meet with alumni at social gatherings, which were then followed by fundraising activities.

Saturday, March 28, involved a field day and cookout sponsored by Gordy Holmes, Class of ’81, at Yosemite Linda, in southern California. The next day was spent in Los Angeles, where a cocktail reception was held at the Ambassador Hotel. Saturday, April 4, was spent in Tiberium, Ca., outside of San Francisco, at a cocktail reception sponsored by Mike Barrett, ’82.

Following these social events alumni volunteers called other alumni in the area for contributions to the Alumni Loyalty Fund. The total goal for this year, $500,000, is expected to be met and possibly exceed that figure.

These fundraising events serve two purposes. One is to raise money for the College, and to bring the alumni in different parts of the country together at social functions.

There are two programs of study at PC, of which very few students are aware.

Labor relations and public administration are offered as minor courses of study to students of various concentrations.

Frank O'Brien of the communications department noted, "Labor relations is a multi-disciplinary study. The objective is to give interested students additional skills to serve as a supplement to their concentration. It is beneficial in the areas of personal labor relations, human resources, and administration."

The program has been in effect for about 25 students who are currently enrolled. "Two of the courses included in the program are, business management and industrial sociology. Students with virtually any concentration can partake in the program."

Also available is public administration. Dr. William Hudson of the political science department commented, "The public administration program is a nice option for a liberal arts major who wants to remain a liberal arts major, while obtaining some preprofessional training. The public administration program provides preprofessional training while reinforcing the College's liberal arts objectives."

The program is particularly beneficial in preparing students for a career in government. It is also essential for students who will be seeking graduate training in public administration.

Good Luck Gary Welcome Back Joe

This past season was an unusual one for the basketball program here at Providence College. Beginning with the introduction of the "Lone Friar" and ending with a triumphant performance in the Big East Tournament, it was filled with numerous ups and downs that left many of the team's supporters longing for the glory of past seasons.

Caught in this "Catch-22" was a great basketball coach, Gary Walters. He provided the much needed discipline and leadership required for a well balanced team. Unfortunately, the fans weren't looking for balance, they were looking for wins. To them, PC should be number one, so being in the cellar just didn't sit well.

This situation forced Walters to work twice as hard to get top-notch recruits. This past week's resignation of Gary Walters therefore was not a total surprise. It is hard to ask an individual to keep up with this type of situation. In reply, the Editorial Board of The Cowl feels that Gary should be commended for his effort to help PC basketball. His potential was unfortunately never realized.

Walters' resignation, incredibly brings back the glory that eluded him on the court. That "glory" comes in the form of Joe Mullaney who was responsible for PC's rise to national prominence in basketball during the late '50s and '60s.

The announcement that Mullaney will again head PC's basketball team adds new life to this program. While he faces an uphill battle with a young, growing team, The Cowl hopes PC's fans will give him the support he will need to return the college to the top of the standings.

It is a great challenge to work twice as hard if anyone can do it, Joe Mullaney can. The Cowl welcomes him back and wishes him well. Good luck, Coach!

Notes from MBH

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself as the new Cowl editor, and familiarize you with my feelings about the 1981-1982 Cowl, as well as inform you with some of the changes in focus I would like for the students to understand.

The Cowl is a student-based organization—it is produced by a group of students for the benefit of the entire student body. Thus I feel that the basic goals of the contents of The Cowl should be to inform, entertain, and be desired by the student body. During my time as Editor-in-Chief, I would like to see The Cowl grow into a student publication with the same issues as on articles and other items that truly interest the student body.

The Editorial Board of The Cowl recognizes the benefits of both these programs and encourages interested students to contact Frank O'Brien in the Communications Department or Dr. William Hudson of political science for further information.

For this reason I have included a small space on page five for you to express your suggestions. Just drop off through campus mail or at The Cowl office. We want to make The Cowl the students' paper as we encourage the fulfillment of your demands.

The Cowl has a long tradition of good journalism. This coming year's Editorial Board, reporting staff, and copy staff are very talented and dedicated to this tradition. I anticipate a very successful year and am honored to assist in the coordination and publication of Volume XXXIV of The Cowl.

The Editorial Board of The Cowl also urges the students to express their voices heard in Washington. The only way we'll ever know if we can make any impact is by trying.
Dear Editor:
The time has come to follow the footsteps of Marco Polo and Dick Nixon. Now we must recognize the importance of eastern civilization.

The present Western Civilization program is one step behind the government and two steps behind the times. Now is the time to consider leaping into the present to help mold the future. We are naturally afraid of the unknown. The less unknown and better understood these "foreigners" are, the better we will be able to deal with and help keep the peace.

Let's stop wasting time admiring the newly painted picture of the western world's greatness and take the time to consider and compare all cultures of the world.

The Official Preppy Lecturer Comes to PC

Can you imagine a former Brown student attracting a standing-room-only crowd in 14 Hall? Although it sounds impossible, it happened last Thursday afternoon when Lisa Birnbach, editor of The Official Preppy Handbook, lectured on what it takes to be a "preppy." In her speech, Birnbach covered the many facets of the preppy lifestyle. Of course, most PC students already had a general knowledge of the topic as evidenced by the large number of Dean's sweaters, Levi's, button-downs and alligators in the audience.

On the subject of studying (or lack of), she mentioned the fact that most preppies wait until the day before it's due. "If it's a term paper, then will later marry other preps. Preppy women, however, are not supposed to show any interest in sex. (A fact well known to PC males.)"

Preppy clothing is currently the biggest trend in the fashion industry. Button-downs, grey flannels, shetland sweaters and anything LaCoste are just part of the wardrobe essentials. Birnbach brought along slides to show the audience the do's and don'ts of preppy dressing. She mentioned that many bargains are available if you shop for them. One tip was for women to shop in the boy's department for unisex clothing such as button-down shirts.

On the subject of finances, she addressed the fact that preppies love to "be in debt." "Plastic money" is favored over cash among preppies. They also like to borrow money or be "treated" by their friends.

Throughout the lecture, Birnbach displayed a wit and sarcasm that was generally well received by the PC student body. Since she is a rookie on the lecture circuit she was pleased with the outcome of the lecture. She later stated, "I was surprised by the book's success. We (Birnbach and the other authors) never expected the tremendous response.

The Official Preppy Handbook is currently in the process of spawning a whole industry. An entire line of products are planned to be marketed in the near future. Also in the works is a 1982 calendar which will give a day by day history of being "preppy."

Lisa Birnbach is proof that if you have an idea it can become reality. Less than a year ago, The Official Preppy Handbook was just a dream.

The Perfect Vintage

On Thursday, April 2, PC students gathered at the Last Resort for a nice alternative to the typical "beer blast." "...a classical wine tasting and cheese party."

The event, held for its second consecutive year, was organized by the fine arts committee of the BOG and proved to be a success. Those who attended were treated to six different California wines which ranged from dry white dinner wines to sweeter reds.

Upon arriving, people were greeted by wine expert Jim Bartel from Towne Wine and Spirits Bartel, who has taught wine tasting courses at Brown, URI and Harrington, suggested that tasters start with "wine number one." Parducci French Colombard, a dry white wine bottled in 1979 ($4.95). While pouring the first glass, Bartel clued students in on how to purr, sniff and taste the wine to allow for its maximum enjoyment.

After finishing the first glass, wine tasters were presented with Raymond Chenin Blanc, 1978. This wine, slightly sweeter than the first, had a sparkle to it similar to that of champagne. Chenin Blanc was also presented as being the American counterpart to the French Bouvroll, a similar imported wine costing twice the price. Chenin Blanc costs $5.99 per bottle.

Next, students were treated to a third white dinner wine, Beaujolais Chardonnay (1978). The most expensive wine on hand, Chardonnay sold for $6.99 and was one of the more popular wines served.

Two popular domestic red wines were served next, Stag's Leap Gamay Beaujolais (1979. $5.25) and Morris Zinfandel (1979 $5.95). Both were evaluated by students as "sweet," "fruity," while one person said, "I'd rather drink beer."

Finally, saving the best till last, Bartel served up a sweet and fruity white wine that was as lively as his own personality. Number six, Pinotage Johnnishburg, was bottled in 1978 and sold for a fairly moderate $6.79.

As tasters came back to refill their glasses with Firestone, Mr. Bartel explained that by leaving the grapes on the vines longer, wine makers could produce a sweeter wine rich in natural sugars." He compared this particular wine to a similar German wine. Trickenbeer-nausenee, a select wine picked from dried grapes, said Bartel, "I'm sure that's what's on tap in heaven."

After the first round of wine tasting, Mr. Bartel gathered the crowd together to discuss some techniques of professional tasting. He explained that each wine "kind of like people, has its own personality. The important thing is that you realize where of tastes lie." He also suggested that as a person grows older, his tastes "gravitate to more serious wines."

Those who participated found the party to be both informative and enjoyable. Co-chairpersons Cheryl Carenomoll and Sue Trauner described the event as something "social as well as cultural." Mike Joyce, a PC senior said, "I feel as if I've learned something when I leave." As for myself, my roommate and I went out and bought a bottle of MD 20-20 (Mad Dog) this weekend. Maybe I have a little more to learn about wine tasting!

The Official Preppy Lecturer Comes to PC

Can you imagine a former Brown student attracting a standing-room-only crowd in 14 Hall? Although it sounds impossible, it happened last Thursday afternoon when Lisa Birnbach, editor of The Official Preppy Handbook, lectured on what it takes to be a "preppy." In her speech, Birnbach covered the many facets of the preppy lifestyle. Of course, most PC students already had a general knowledge of the topic as evidenced by the large number of Dean's sweaters, Levi's, button-downs and alligators in the audience.

On the subject of studying (or lack of), she mentioned the fact that most preppies wait until the day before it's due. "If it's a term paper, then will later marry other preps. Preppy women, however, are not supposed to show any interest in sex. (A fact well known to PC males.)"

Preppy clothing is currently the biggest trend in the fashion industry. Button-downs, grey flannels, shetland sweaters and anything LaCoste are just part of the wardrobe essentials. Birnbach brought along slides to show the audience the do's and don'ts of preppy dressing. She mentioned that many bargains are available if you shop for them. One tip was for women to shop in the boy's department for unisex clothing such as button-down shirts.

On the subject of finances, she addressed the fact that preppies love to "be in debt." "Plastic money" is favored over cash among preppies. They also like to borrow money or be "treated" by their friends.

Throughout the lecture, Birnbach displayed a wit and sarcasm that was generally well received by the PC student body. Since she is a rookie on the lecture circuit she was pleased with the outcome of the lecture. She later stated, "I was surprised by the book's success. We (Birnbach and the other authors) never expected the tremendous response.

The Official Preppy Handbook is currently in the process of spawning a whole industry. An entire line of products are planned to be marketed in the near future. Also in the works is a 1982 calendar which will give a day by day history of being "preppy."

Lisa Birnbach is proof that if you have an idea it can become reality. Less than a year ago, The Official Preppy Handbook was just a dream.

The Perfect Vintage

On Thursday, April 2, PC students gathered at the Last Resort for a nice alternative to the typical "beer blast." "...a classical wine tasting and cheese party."

The event, held for its second consecutive year, was organized by the fine arts committee of the BOG and proved to be a success. Those who attended were treated to six different California wines which ranged from dry white dinner wines to sweeter reds.

Upon arriving, people were greeted by wine expert Jim Bartel from Towne Wine and Spirits Bartel, who has taught wine tasting courses at Brown, URI and Harrington, suggested that tasters start with "wine number one." Parducci French Colombard, a dry white wine bottled in 1979 ($4.95). While pouring the first glass, Bartel clued students in on how to purr, sniff and taste the wine to allow for its maximum enjoyment.

After finishing the first glass, wine tasters were presented with Raymond Chenin Blanc, 1978. This wine, slightly sweeter than the first, had a sparkle to it similar to that of champagne. Chenin Blanc was also presented as being the American counterpart to the French Bouvroll, a similar imported wine costing twice the price. Chenin Blanc costs $5.99 per bottle.

Next, students were treated to a third white dinner wine, Beaujolais Chardonnay (1978). The most expensive wine on hand, Chardonnay sold for $6.99 and was one of the more popular wines served.

Two popular domestic red wines were served next, Stag's Leap Gamay Beaujolais (1979. $5.25) and Morris Zinfandel (1979 $5.95). Both were evaluated by students as "sweet," "fruity," while one person said, "I'd rather drink beer."

Finally, saving the best till last, Bartel served up a sweet and fruity white wine that was as lively as his own personality. Number six, Pinotage Johnnishburg, was bottled in 1978 and sold for a fairly moderate $6.79.

As tasters came back to refill their glasses with Firestone, Mr. Bartel explained that by leaving the grapes on the vines longer, wine makers could produce a sweeter wine rich in natural sugars." He compared this particular wine to a similar German wine. Trickenbeer-nausenee, a select wine picked from dried grapes, said Bartel, "I'm sure that's what's on tap in heaven."

Fribourg Folies

Greetings from Fribourg, Switzerland. As we all prepare for traveling abroad this summer in Europe, our attention should begin to disappear. Tab with the present begins to diminish, we have found the Louise's Braids, and Greiner's of Fribourg rolled into one at the Chemin de Fer and we have all settled into the only thing that plagues us is: have they found change, change and is June in jail? Now we would like to fill you in on what is going on here.

JRW Preview: Countdown Begins

By Judy McNamara

Junior Ring Weekend seems far away to most members of the Class of 14. However, the committee has been working diligently since October, and to them, the days keep flying by. Did you know that there are only 25 days left until Ring Weekend?

Mary Ellen, Batchelor, chairwoman of the committee, stated in a recent interview that the weekend is almost finalized. The committee has maintained the traditional format to provide a good time for everyone with a splash of variety. The weekend itself begins on Friday, November 19, will be the semi-formal with a ring ceremony. This event will be held at the Venus DiMilo in Swains, Mass., Friday night, 6:30-9:00 p.m. The committee decided with much student input, that a casual evening would allow for a closer, more relaxed atmosphere. The setting will provide a venue for networking on the Pawtuxet. A ring-a-long slideshow will be the entertainment highlight of the night. Open bar and wine will be the surcharge for the event. Tickets have been taken already. Spring Week and the DWC party are two more events that the committee hopes to create a springy spring night lifted many spirits.

Colonel DelCorso, Fr. Dore: An Integral Part of ROTC

By Kevin Burke

What is the ROTC? For a select few at Providence College it is a foundation, a stepping stone towards a desired career. As for the majority of the student body, the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) means little or nothing at all. Still, the fact remains that it is the only program offered at PC by which the student may earn a commission within the framework of his or her studies.

In 1951 the Military Science Department was established as a Transportation Corps unit with the basic course being compulsory for all qualified students. It was designated "Generals' Military Science" in 1954 and became elective in 1957. Today enrollment in the ROTC is entirely voluntary. However, considering the threats that face our society, the necessity of maintaining large military forces to deter these threats, and the resulting demands on American youth, participation in the program is greatly encouraged.

Lt. Colonel Andrew DelCorso, former professor of Military Science at Providence, and now the College’s assistant director of residence, speaks of the ROTC program as one that is misunderstood and overlooked by today’s generation. "Every young man or woman should at least look into ROTC. Besides providing you with more experiences and management, you are given a chance to serve your country in a manner befitting your college education and abilities," stated the Colonel. DelCorso, at 65 years of age, entered the army in 1940 as a private. For his performance on the battlefield during war, he was soon promoted to the rank of lieutenant. During the Korean War, DelCorso was an advisor to a Turkish brigade that was fighting in Korea. He came to Providence in August of 1954 and taught Military Science until 1959, when he left for Germany for a two-year tour of duty. From 1961 to 1964, DelCorso worked in the Pentagon as a Plans and Operations officer. Finally, he returned to PC for the fall of 1964 and remained until his retirement in 1966.

The Very Reverend Vincent C. Dore, who has been a great supporter of the program down through the years, speaks of the ROTC program as "highly beneficial to the individual in producing traits of leadership and self-confidence found in a well developed college graduate." At this year’s Military Ball, Father Dore stated — "Not only has it provided an excellent means by which our students can prepare for their military obligation, it brings considerable prestige to Providence College through its various activities. The ROTC courses are instructed by one major, three captains, two sergeant majors, one master sergeant, and one lieutenant colonel, Robert Stippeck. Colonel Stippeck and his staff do an excellent job in preparing the students for the military. In these students who do not even know what ROTC stands for are ones most encouraged to look into the program.

The Very Reverend Vincent C. Dore, O.P.—ROTC supporter for 30 years.

K of C Catholic Awareness Night

The Friar Council Knights of Columbus is a Catholic fraternal organization which has one of its objectives the upholding and spreading of the Catholic faith. One of the ways through which the Knights have attempted to accomplish this is by sponsoring an event they call Catholic Awareness Night. The purpose of this event is to explain both the religious and moral responsibilities of young Catholic men and women.

The reason this program was started was due to the fact that several students confronted the Knights of Columbus, Chaplain Rev. John A. McMahon, O.P., claiming that the Sunday sermons did not adequately indicate what is expected of us as Catholic men and women. Topics discussed in the past have included the church's position on pre-marital sex, abortion, divorce, and importance of the sacraments, as well as many others.

If interested, please join Father McMahon and the Knights of Columbus on Wednesday night at 7 p.m. in Room 103 Slavin.

Procedures for Registration

Beginning April 23rd will be as follows: All students will obtain their registration cards from the Department of their concentration. This card will indicate time and day of registration. The student will confer with his or her advisor and complete the card listing the student may earn a commission within the framework of his or her studies.

All cards must be signed by their advisor.

Students will proceed to Slavin 110 for formal registration.

If all courses are available, the cards for each course will be pulled from the bins and checked with the student at which time he or she will leave if all is correct. Should a student desire to over-enroll in a particular course, he or she must obtain an over-enrollment form with the proper signature from the department in question. The student will retain the pink copy and deliver the white copy to the Office of the Registrar any time during registration and for a period extending one week later, ending May 5th. Should the student be denied approval for over-enrollment, any further changes to his or her schedule will be completed at the adjustment period, Sept. 3-10.

A last reminder that Faculty will not be present at the Registration site and all problems are to be attended to at department area.

"How I Got That Story," a small-cast, minimal-set, play with an epic sweep by Amlin Gray, will open in the downstairs playhouse of the Trinity Square Repertory Company on Friday, April 3, 1981.

Gray’s play, seen previously only off-Broadway and met with widespread critical acclaim during its limited run in December of 1980, is being produced at Trinity Square Rep. Mr. Gray’s play has been seen only by off-Broadway audiences, and its production here will be a first for audiences in Rhode Island.

The Times Magazine reviewer wrote, "And in Vietnam lives in Gray’s nightmarishly funny vaudeville... How I Got That Story’ makes splendid use of that precious theatrical asset, the playwright’s imagination."

Larry Arrick is directing with Robert D. Soule, John F. Custer and William Lane designing the set, lights and costumes. The featured actors are Peter Gerety and newcomer to the Rep Tim McDonough.

There will be eight performances a week through May 10, 1981. For exact playing schedule and ticket information and reservations, playgoers should call (401) 351-4242 or stop in at the box office located in the lobby of the theatre at 201 Washington Street in downtown Providence.

3 Student Athletes

By "Franz"

Each year an award is given to a student-athlete who achieves the highest grade point average for his four years at PC. This year's award was presented to Peter Chenette. The GPA's of all the athletes are gathered and usually each team has one or two players who are in the top 10. However, this year one of the teams has placed three seniors in the top four positions. No, it is not the basketball team but the Providence College soccer team. The soccer team captured the first, third, and fourth positions in this year's tally. Seniors Chris Garrahan, Bill Lawrence, and Peter Chenette took each position respectfully. This is quite a feat for a team with only four seniors.

Chris Garrahan is a psychology major and would eventually like to open his own practice. Bill Lawrence would like to get into a field of sportswriting and Pete Chenette hopes to continue in his schoolwork. This year starts a new beginning for the PC soccer team. In the past, the team has been referred to as "the team with best looking guys" or "the guys with the best bods." Well, it's time that we stood up and let you know that we do have brains, girls. Now we can be known as "the smartest team on campus." Thanks Chris, Billy, and Pete for liberating us.

Basketball Coach: A Time For Change

By John Brandolino

After a three-year reign, Gary Walters formally resigned as Providence College head basketball coach. The announcement was made on Monday, April 6th, though Walters had made the final decision weeks ago. The 35-year-old Walters said he was stepping down from that position because of personal reasons and to pursue other opportunities in either the private sector or athletics. Replacing him will be Brown coach Joe Mullaney who for many years coached at PC between 1971 and 1981.

During a formal press conference on Monday, Walters expressed his personal, unforeseen reasons for stepping down and the support he’s received from the administration and the fans.

"The decision was a difficult one for me because I'm a very intense person. I set certain standards and I felt I couldn't attain these standards," Mullaney said.

The Friars ended this season with an overall record of 16-14, but came on strong towards the end of the year as the Big East regular season champion over Georgetown, St. John’s, and Villanova. The Friars finished 15-6-3 upset over top-seeded Boston College in the opening game of the conference tournament.

"I'm very happy to return to a school I was so fond of," commented Mullaney. "There have been many changes since I last coached here but I'm still ready to put my entire energies into getting the job done."

"Dave and Father Peterson had fewer defeats (16) than any other coach in the last two years," said Gavitt. "I couldn't have asked for a better time. Gavitt, who refused to comment on Walters' future, said, "There is no one I could have been more sympathetic," and added the conversion for a 6-3 penalty kick by Duffy Finan. PC maintained this lead until late in the second half when URI scored and added the conversion for a 6-3 lead. The Rams played good defense and stopped the PC attack, while scoring another try to preserve their lead.

The Ruggers were given a try late in the game and won the consolation championship. Many of the PC Ruggers had played both previous games which became a detrimental factor for PC.

By Paul Shannon

The Providence College Rugby Club travelled to URI last Thursday night. The Friars were very confident going into the match due to an 8-0 victory over URI earlier in the season. However, the Rams were well prepared and defeated the Friars 15-8 before a vocal crowd.

The Friars took a 10-6 lead on a penalty kick by Daffy Finan, PC maintained this lead until late in the second half when URI scored and added the conversion for a 6-3 lead. The Rams played good defense and stopped the PC attack, while scoring another try to preserve their lead.

Friars Down U-Mass Eye Playoffs

By Jay Sheldon

Saturday was a day of fireworks for Providence College. Providence defeated the University of Massachusetts in a two out of three game match 15-8 and 15-5. This ended the season with a winning record, 7-5, a first in the team’s history. The Friars also earned a berth in the New England College Volleyball League playoffs, another first. In the first game the Friars jumped out to an early lead and never looked back. Through consistent serve from LaLonde, Rochette and junior Andy Kushner and strong hitting by Rick Pagan the Friars were able to do away with a lesser talented UMass squad.

In the final game, the Friars were sparked by the blocks of middle-batter Pete Drawins who completely shut down a late UMass surge. Drawins was named the Miller High Life Player of the Day for that game. When asked about UMass performance and the upcoming playoffs, Coach O’Shea said, "We kept our concentration all day and didn’t lose our confidence in the final stages."

"I think everyone in the RFCA is going to surprise a lot of people in the playoffs. We have the talent to do well in the play-offs but they sometimes lack the ability to "go for the jugular" when they have teams down. Perhaps this win against U Mass will gear the Friars for the playoffs.
