Mike Wallace receives his honorary degree from Bishop Gelineau and Very Rev. Thomas Peterson, president of the college.

1074 Degrees Conferred at 63rd Commencement

Providence College conferred 1,074 degrees during its 63rd commencement exercises held on Monday, May 18. Of the 787 undergraduates, 47 percent were women marking the tenth anniversary of PC becoming a co-educational institution.

Mike Wallace, CBS News Correspondent and co-editor of the network's top-rated news magazine show "60 Minutes" delivered the keynote address. The veteran broadcaster was awarded an honorary Doctor of Journalism degree.

In his speech, Wallace assured the graduates that even though "unemployment may hover above 7 percent, the serious and persistent will probably be able to find a job."

Comparing PC to "60 Minutes" Wallace told the graduates, "You illuminate, and so do we. At least we try. And you stimulate, you provoke thought. And we try like the dickens to do that, too."

Commencement means a beginning, continued Wallace.

"the beginning of undertaking a new adult responsibility" and he advised that with determination, "chances are you'll be able to make your way."

Others who received honorary degrees were the very Rev. Edward R. Daly, O.P., Provincial of the Dominican Fathers and Brothers of the Province of Saint Joseph, and chairman of the Providence College Corporation; Joseph P. Kerwin, first physician-astronaut to probe the frontiers of space and NASA's Head of Operation Missions; Harry Kizirian, postmaster of the U.S. Post Office in Providence; Molly Luce, internationally acclaimed artist of Little Compton, RI, who in 1934 became the second living American woman to enter the permanent collection at the Metropolitan Museum; and Donald T. Corrigan, a rear admiral of the United States Navy, and a 1952 graduate of PC. His son, Mike, is a member of this year's graduating class.

The exercises began with the traditional playing of Pomp and Circumstance and the procession of the Class of 1981. Proud parents and friends beamed and a few tears were shed. As the class was seated, Rev. Thomas Erle, O.P., chaplain of PC gave the invocation. They were welcomed to the Civic Center by Rev. Thomas R. Peterson, O.P., Governor J. Joseph Garrahy, and Providence Mayor Vincent A. Cianci, Jr.

Applause filled the Civic Center when all of the recent graduates held their diplomas in their hands. It was a celebration of personal, spiritual and intellectual achievement.

As in the past years, the most popular major chosen by undergraduates was business, which drew 40 percent of the bachelor's degrees. It was followed by political science (8 percent), general social studies and psychology (each drawing 5 percent) and education (4.5 percent.)

Micro-Computers Installed

As of June 30, the H-P 2000F BASIC timesharing computer system will be retired.

In its place will be Apple microcomputers outfitted with black-white and color monitors and some printers. These micros will all have the capability for BASIC and some will have the capability to handle PASCAL. The introduction on microcomputers for academic computing needs is a new adventure for the Providence College community.

According to Dr. John J. Mandelare, director of the academic computing center, the transition to a new computer system will take some time but the adventure is worthwhile as micros seem to be the wave of the future.

Sessions to assist new users will be held during summer session and in the fall. A copy of some of the differences is posted in Lib. 118 and a copy can be obtained from the secretary in Lib. 119.

McGreevy Named V.P. Student Services

Providence, RI — Rev. John G. McGreevy, O.P., administrative assistant to the president at Providence College, has been named vice president for student services, it was announced today by the Very Reverend Thomas R. Peterson, O.P., president.

As vice president for student services, the New York City native will be responsible for overseeing the resident offices, the student service office and the athletic department. Fr. McGreevy succeeds Rev. Francis C. Duffy, O.P., who resigned from that office earlier this year for reasons of health. Father McGreevy was educated in the Dominican Houses at Winona, Mn., River Forest, Ill., and Dubuque, Ia., and was ordained a Dominican priest in 1964. He continued his studies at Catholic University and Loyola of Chicago, and in 1968 he received his Masters degree in Education from Fordham University.

Beginning in 1968, Father McGreevy served in numerous administrative positions at Fenwick High School, Oak Park, Ill., including assistant principal (1968-1979). Following a one-year sabbatical (August, 1979-September, 1980), Father McGreevy joined the Providence College staff as assistant to the president and special lecturer in Education.

He has served as president of the Illinois Association of Catholic Secondary School Principals and as a board member of the Illinois State Committee of the North Central Association of Colleges & Schools.

Trotto Appointed Personnel Director

Providence, RI — Michael J. Trotto, a resident of Falmouth, Massachusetts, has been named Director of Personnel at Providence College. In this capacity, Trotto is responsible for administration of the college personnel program, which includes recruiting all secretarial, office and technical personnel and administering the wage classification plan for the clerical, secretarial staff. In addition, he will be responsible for maintenance of personnel records and administration of the college's fringe benefit program, including retirement, health insurance, vacation, sick leave, etc.

Prior to coming to Providence College, Trotto served as Director of Personnel for the Boston Housing Authority where he was responsible for directing the personnel and labor relations functions of the Authority, as well as administering all activities related to recruitment, promotion, transfer and separation of employees. A 1956 graduate of Upsala College, East Orange, New Jersey, he is a member of the American Society for Personnel Administration.

PC Site of Historic Dominican Conclave

Providence College made a contribution to history as the site of the first general assembly of the entire membership of the Dominican Province of St. Joseph. June 2 through 5 marked the first conclave in its 176 year history.

The program was designed to give the men a chance to meet each other and to explore the future of their order, the Rev. J.

Stuart McPhail, O.P., subprior at PC said.

Fr. McPhail said he did not expect that the conference would result in major changes in the order.

He said PC was chosen for the conference because of its central location in the St. Joseph Province of the Order of Preachers. The province, which extends south to Virginia and west to Kentucky, is one of four American regions maintained by the order.

The Dominican Fathers have been in the Diocese of Providence since 1911 when Bishop Matthew Harkins invited them to establish St. Raymond's Parish on North Main Street.

Presiding over the assembly was the Very Rev. Edward Daley, O.P., Provincial of the Province of St. Joseph. Fr. Daley, who was a member of St. Raymond's parish before entering the priesthood, said he called the assembly, the first in 106 years, to help the members come again to the sense of "belonging to one another as members of one family."

During the conference, the Fathers and Brothers of the Province discussed the current status of the work of the Order in the Church and the specific apostolates of the Province of St. Joseph. The Master of the Order, the Most Rev. Vincent de Cuesmongle, O.P., came to Providence from Rome to participate in the meeting and be principal concelebrant for one of the community Masses held at St. Pius Church.

The assembly concluded with the ordinations to the priesthood of the Dominican students from the Dominican House of Studies in Washington, D.C., by Bishop Louis E. Gelineau at the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul in Providence.

Karen Silveira: AED Award Winner

By Maureen Diggins
(AED Reporter)

The 1981 winner of the Rhode Island Alpha Chapter of the AED's Freshman Biology Major of the Year Award is Karen M. Silveira. This prestigious award was presented to her at a dinner at Conrad's Banquet Hall, following the induction of new members.

Karen has demonstrated outstanding academic achievement, even while taking up to three difficult science courses a semester. She also works at several part-time jobs, as a Biology lab assistant and as a hospital aide at St. Anne's Hospital, Fall River. Karen is also involved in activities around Providence College. She is the newly elected secretary of AED. Also she is employed on campus, during the summer, by the Biology Department.

Freshmen Off-Campus Again

By Jim O'Connor

Again this year there are many incoming freshman and transfer students who will be looking for off-campus apartments due to a lack of space in the dorms. The College is attempting to assist this group by setting up the off campus housing office. This office will maintain records of available apartments and will attempt to help the students deal with the often frustrating process of locating apartments and dealing with landlords.

The office is under the direction of Fr. Paul Bernardin who has been appointed as Director of Off-Campus Housing Procurement. According to Fr. Walter Heath, Director of Residence, the new office will continue as a permanent position throughout the school year. The office will aid all off-campus students by maintaining complete records of all off-campus apartments. The office will also be able to refer students to the lawyer that the Student Congress hires every

Fieldhouse Nearly Complete: Cowl's Faith in Construction Work Restored

The Editorial Board of the Bowl would like to congratulate the designers, the architects, the planners, the administrators, and the construction company and its employees for the excellent progress made on the fieldhouse.

The construction of the fieldhouse is nearly complete. For those who are away for the summer months the return to campus in September will be shocking. The new fieldhouse will almost be ready for their use.

The fieldhouse was designed by architects Robinson, Green and Beretta and construction was done by the Bailey Construction Company.

The new facility is joined with Alumni Hall and has one main entrance. There are five interchangeable courts for tennis, basketball, volleyball and other sports. The track is 220 yards and four lanes wide; the pool is 25 meters long and has six lanes. The entire floor will be surfaced with a rubberized material by the Mondo Rubber Company, who also did the supplying to the 1976 and 1980 Olympic complexes.

The Editorial Board of the Cowl strongly commends all those who participated in the actualization of the fieldhouse. The Cowl believes that this facility will be a true asset to Providence College, and as the entire community and the entire community awaiting its opening.

I'm not just another "Athletic Supporter!"

On numerous occasions The Cowl has published articles urging student support for athletics. Last year's Cowl Editorial Board asked for your support in attending women's athletic events and for your support of the Friar's basketball team.

This year will probably be no different. Every school year there is usually a team that is not enjoying a good winning season, and thus their attendance drops. Although this effect should be expected, it is a bit ironic. Shouldn't student support be increased when a team is in a rut? No one can conclusively prove that the home town advantage is an unequivocal theory. But dammit, PC teams do fare better, and win more, when students are there urging them on. Ask the Athletic Department. Their statistics will tell.

What team will it be this season? Football? Ladies

Lacrosse? Hockey? Ladies Tennis? Or will it be basketball? My initial hunch was that it might be basketball. Now I doubt it.

You see, I began thinking of everything that could go wrong with the basketball coaching staff. Could Joe Mullaney's coaching style be adapted to by old players that have become used to Walters? Could he really make us the team that he once did? What's the story with this new assistant coach? What are his strategies?

Then I began to ponder the player situation. Who was Mullaney recruiting? Why? Could they find a decent, consistent center? Who was going to be scoring the points? Aren't we too young a team? Will Otis Thorpe break his leg? At this point I was beginning to become frantic.

Then I began thinking about the games. What does the schedule look like? Do we have many home games? Will the tickets sell out? Will we at least beat URI? Will there be more cheerleaders next year? What about the Lone Friar? Will he be coming back? Did they put Hi Ho Silver to pasture? Now I was frantic.

And then a voice from above (perhaps Mr. Cutty or Fr. Begley) said to me "Calm down! The Friar teams have overcome bigger obstacles, they have surpassed the best of teams, and they will again. What they need is your confidence, and your fellow students' support."

That's when I sat down to write this article.

Signed,

From the Editor's Desk...

Dear Reader,

Ordinarily, most student organizations have covered all typewriters and locked all doors in the beginning of May in order to prepare for final exams, Commencement Week, and treks home to Hartford, Westchester County, Hyannis and Asbury Park.

But alas, The Cowl staff is different. Perhaps we are the most dedicated student organization or, perhaps we are simply the craziest. In any case, one weekend in June this summer, the 1981-82 Cowl staff reunited to produce the summer edition. We thought that one more issue would give us a chance to cover the key news events of May and early June. We also thought that our summer edition could offer freshmen some perspective of PC not presented during the orientation sessions. The entire Features section of this edition is prepared for freshmen. The rest is for everyone.

To the Class of 1981, I would like to offer congratulations and best wishes in all future endeavors. Please consider keeping in touch with the college by subscribing to The Cowl.

To the Class of 1985, I would like to say, welcome to Providence College.

And, finally, '85, learn more about the college and become involved by joining The Cowl staff. You see, The Cowl has a place for everyone. If it is not on the alumni subscription list, then it is on the freshman general assignment staff.

Have a pleasant summer.

Counseling Center Notes

Located in Slavin Center

Here at PC we have an excellent Counseling & Career Planning Center which provides services in self-improvement, college transition, and lending an ear to those in need.

Unlike high school guidance counseling, there are no assigned counselors at P.C. All services are voluntary and you may go anytime you feel the need to talk to someone. It is important to remember that there are times in everyone's life when it really helps to get an objective perspective from a person trained to listen.

Besides one to one services, the Counseling Center also offers group workshops on such diverse themes as time management, choosing a major and assertiveness.

All services are confidential and are open to the entire student body. The center is located in Slavin 210. Feel free to drop by just to get acquainted.

Letters Work Study Student Upset

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter in defense of all college work study students at the College. I have had the most degrading experience this summer. I work at the college as a Summer Work Study Student, but I feel more like a "Summer Work Study Criminal."

Let me tell you about the general nature of a summer work study job. You work five days a week from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in an office or department on campus. Most offices and departments on campus need a student in the summer to answer the phones, do some typing and filing, and be there to answer the questions of visitors to the College. Some other students may do research for professors.

Summer work study job are usually not very demanding and students get paid accordingly, $3.35 to $3.50 per hour. Most of the work study money comes from the government, and a small percentage of every dollar is paid out by the college. Most places are not very busy during the summer months. This is due mostly to the fact that the student body has gone home for the summer.

A few weeks ago, some students were found goofing off on the job. As a result, all of the summer work study students seem to have come under suspicion.

A Parting Thought

Promise yourself to be strong enough that nothing can disturb your peace of mind. To talk health, happiness and prosperity to every person you meet. To make all your friends feel that there is something in them. To look at the sunny side of everything and make your optimism come true. To think only of the best, to work only for the best and expect only the best. To be just as enthusiastic about the success of others as you are about your own. To forget the mistakes of the past and press on to the greater achievements of the future. To wear a cheerful countenance at all times and give every living creature you meet a smile. To give so much time to the improvement of yourself that you have no time to criticize others. To be too large for worry, too noble for anger, too strong for fear and too happy to permit the presence of trouble.

Calligraphy by Thom McManimon '81

Column by Richard Meisler to Become Regular Cowl Feature in Fall:

This Learning World No More Forgotten People

By Dr. Richard Meisler

The Karamojong are 12 wandering tribes in northern Uganda, numbering about 360,000 people.

As a result of drought and political chaos 20,000 have starved. Malnutrition, cholera and diarrhea are common among them.

Most other Ugandans think of the Karamojong as backward, and they don't care about them. We might say that the Karamojong are, for us, forgotten people, but we never really knew enough about them to forget.

You go to a political science class and your professor, a true scholar, tells you how to punch boring data into computer cards. Later, the computer will blurt out generalizations that nobody cares about.

East Timor has been part of Indonesia since it was invaded in 1975 by Indonesian forces equipped with American arms.

East Timor has a brief period of independence, before which it was ruled by Portugal. Neglect, exploitation, military repression and bad weather have produced famine in East Timor. The people starve. Their situation is comparable to that of the Cambodians, about whom we've heard much more than the inhabitants of East Timor are, or us, forgotten people, but actually we never knew of them.

In your English class your professor teaches you to write a grammatical, well-reasoned essay on a topic neither of you care about.

Thirty-five million kids under the age of six in Latin America do not have the basic nutritional necessities. Each year about one million of them die before reaching their fourth birthdays, a death rate 10 times as high as that of the same age group in Sweden.

Many children who survive are brain-damaged. Those children are, for us, forgotten people.

You go to psychology class and are told, in intricate detail, how a hungry pigeon can be taught to peck at a blue bar instead of a red one.

The Ramokogpas are a tribe in South Africa of about 50,000 people. Like two million blacks in the last 25 years, they are about to be moved from their native lands to a distant, dry, crowded, poor area.

Their culture is attuned to their place, and they will have fewer means to cope with the arid new land.

They will leave behind homes, gravesites, fields, shrines. This is called "black spot removal" under the Group Areas Act of 1948. The idea is to create large and separate regions of blacks and whites.

This racist policy, you will not be surprised, is always implemented to maximize the wealth, comfort, security and political power of the whites. To us the Ramokogpas are forgotten people.

In your philosophy class the professor spends an inordinate amount of time waxing eloquent on the difference between "if" and "only if."

Tuberculosis, bronchitis, malaria and dysentery are common among the 1.3 million refugees from the Ogaden region of Ethiopia. Hundreds of thousands of them lie in wretched camps in Somalia.

In 1977 Somali ethnics, the region's dominant group, seized control of the Ogaden from Ethiopia. In 1978 Ethiopian and Cuban troops using Soviet equipment took the region back. In the process they raped, poisoned wells and shot livestock.

The Ogaden refugees are a largest group of refugees in the world. They are, for us, forgotten people.

In your literature class you learn about the complex symbolism of a novel you couldn't get yourself to read.

Our educational system does not remind us of the people we've forgotten or never known. It ignores suffering. It pretends that the whole world is affluent and that only the academic disciplines are important. It is smug, insular, comfortable.

Some educators and philosophers have believed that education might broaden a person's view of the world. One way to do that is to deal with the size and diversity of the human race and the full range of problems it faces.

We are naturally loyal to and empathic with members of our local communities, our neighbors and even fellow citizens of a large nation. We cannot broaden our concerns to other segments of humanity if we don't even know of their existence or of the circumstances in which they live.

Perhaps we should urge a new motto on our educator, one that would have more heart and sense than the current "Back to the basics." It might be "No more forgotten people."

If idealistic visions of a concerned human family do not appeal to you, there are some pragmatic issues you might want to consider.

In recent decades the poor non-white majority of the world has gained new levels of economic and political power. One reason, but only one, is that the technological apparatus of industrial society is dependent upon materials and markets all over the world.

Our attention is increasingly being forced to focus on remote peoples and regions.

If we try to carry on as we have been, if we do our best to ignore them, they will read us of their existence. They may do so harshly. These are things to think about as we plan the future of our educational institutions.

PC Welcomes Class of '85

By Judy McNamara

The Class of 1985 will make their debut as Providence College freshmen this September. For these future Friars, as for all of us, high school is an adventure of the past with its many sentimental memories to be remembered and cherished. There are learning experiences, friendships and hopes that can all be carried into the future. The summer months are breezing away and fall semester will be here before Labor Day. By the way, school does commence before Labor Day this year so you better start working on a golden tan now!

What is PC? Why have I chosen this fine institution of higher learning? What do I want to pursue? Freshmen, do not be upset if questions such as these can not be answered with ease. Many upper classmen still do not know the answers.

In all seriousness, PC is a place to keep on growing, learning and pursuing. It is a new chapter in your favorite novel... MY LIFE STORY. It is a great place for beginnings; a testing ground where one can develop all abilities, preferences and facets of personality. PC is the place to decide what path to take.

Robert Frost once spoke about "A Road Not Taken" and a path less traveled by. As a member of the Class of 1985 or any other class at PC, you have chosen your path. We all take a few wrong turns along the way and hit many bumpy forks in the road. The important thing is to keep on going. There are various branches shooting every which way. Open-mindedness is the key. Coming to PC and being yourself is the best thing any individual can offer. There are so many special people here that reach out to others for four years and stay with you for the rest of your life.

Many times college helps you to "cultivate your palate" and find that the rewards of getting involved are delicious. There are various activities. The Student Congress, The Board of Governments, The Athletic Board, Intramurals, various business clubs, recreational clubs and charity clubs, the Big Brothers and Sisters, of course The Cowl and the list goes on — So get involved!

When one enters PC, there are many questions to ask, many adjustments to make and best of all, lots of people to help you along the way. At PC, friends come in all shapes and sizes; faculty, administration and peers alike.

College is a choice that you have made for yourself, and without being partial, PC is a great choice. With the help of parents, relatives and summer jobs, you're going to swing it. It's time to pursue. Maybe even on graduation day you will graduate Summa Cum Laude. Well, that might be pushing it but why not shoot for the stars.

PC can offer you whatever you offer yourself. Why not be generous and have the best four years of your life!

necessary and all student input is greatly appreciated.

The Cowl is run by students with the advice of Father John McMahon O.P., Vice President of Student Affairs at PC. Positions are open for all majors because of the diversity of talent needed. Photographers are also desired for the fall semester.

The structure of the paper is divided into four sections: news, features, sports and editorials. The news staff is responsible for covering all important news events on and around the campus. Staff members cover major College events, interview various personalities and gain experience in newswriting.

The features department delves into such areas as creative writing, reviews, human interest stories and the summer orientation program.

The sports staff has the responsibility of covering the various varsity teams at PC; male and female, as well as the intramural program sponsored by the Athletic Board.

The editorial pages include cartoons, editorials, letters to the editor, satires, and a means of voicing one's opinion to the entire student body, faculty and administration.

Prior to being sent to the printer, all copy is proofread to insure correctness in grammar, spelling and headlining. The Cowl staff puts in a lot of time and work to provide a special service to the PC community.

Drop in Slavin 109 in September and join The Cowl. It's an extra-curricular activity that is not only a learning experience but also a lot of fun. Marybeth Holland leads the way as Editor-in-Chief. Karen Ryder is right behind her as Editorial editor while Dori Popilio holds the position of News Editor. Liz O'Donnell acts as Managing Editor and Judy McNamara is Features editor. Jim Spilliseley is Advertising Manager and Beth Leonard acts as Business Manager with Tim Farrell as Assistant Business Manager. They are all awaiting a staff increase so why not join The Cowl.

Student Congress Why Not Give It A Try?

The Student Congress of Providence College is the official student representation group at PC. The Student Congress consists of an Executive Board with a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer. Each class elects four officers and five representatives. The President of the Board of Governors, the President of the Athletic Board, the Student Rep. to the Committee on Administration and various other student leadership members are part of Student Congress.

Elected members work to voice student opinion to the voice administration as well as to raise money for class events like Ring Weekend and Commencement. Running for Congress is a great way to meet people and get involved. Politics at PC starts with a friendly smile and posters. If you want to get involved why not be President.

Dillon Club Seeks Commuter Involvement

The Dillon Club is Providence College's answer to the needs of the commuter students. Its main objective is to foster a unity between the commuters and the rest of the College. Its organization in 1966 came about in order to more fully represent this large body of PC students who until this time felt that their needs were often neglected.

This objective of representation was achieved by placing a club member on Student Congress as well as on the Board of Governors. In view of its goal to unite the student body, the club sponsors a variety of social events among which are mixers and bus trips. In addition, the club's profits from these events are often used to support local charity organizations.

The Dillon Club also organizes low-cost travel packages for the students during the year. Easter vacation trips to such exciting places as Florida and Bermuda are always well-received.

The Dillon Club will be led this year by Jane Silveira. Meetings are held every week which enables members to discuss upcoming activities, form committees to plan their events and report on club progress.

Any student interested in joining this fine organization can do so by signing up in the office located in Lower Slavin Center (Room 120.)

The Dillon Club drives on.

Pastoral Council Needs Your Help

The Pastoral Council was established in 1974 to assist the Chaplain's Office with its many responsibilities. They are a group of Christian students who attempt to heighten the religious awareness of the Providence College community.

Among the many activities sponsored are the Cut-a-thon, Faculty Student Family Day, and the special Advent and Lenten services.

One of the main purposes of the Council is to raise money for charities throughout the world. During the 1978-79 academic year, close to $3,000 was raised for various charities.

Presently, the Council has over 50 members representative of all four classes. Its office is in Slavin room 115. There will be a notice in students' mailboxes in September announcing the first meeting for new members.

Knight's of Columbus Serve PC

The Providence College Friar Council Knights of Columbus has been cited as the fastest-growing student organization on the campus of this Dominican-run institution. More than 200 undergraduates, faculty members, and administrators are now members of Friar Council No. 5787, which was revived in the spring of 1976 through the efforts of the Rev. John A. McMahon, O.P., (now Chaplain of the Council), James Rafferty, and Henry Krause.

This Catholic group has been honored with numerous membership and achievement awards for their activities and has received as many as six of these awards in a single year. These include the State Council Award for increased membership and major involvement in charitable programs, the Century Club Award for a membership increase of more than 100 persons in a one year span, and other membership awards designed exclusively for college councils. Providence College has ranked as high as 10th among over 45 active college councils in its efforts to maintain an active council designed to promote its many charitable works.

The list of activities that the Knights have sponsored is varied — all in keeping with the principles of charity, unity, fraternity, and patriotism that the Knights exemplify. These have included fund-raising talent shows, CCD Christian education programs, and other community related activities. On campus the Friar Council is actively participating with the Chaplin's Office in assisting at Mass as altar servers, and has recently promoted a program designed to increase knowledge of the Faith by sponsoring a Catholic Awareness Night. The Knights are also responsible for many of the blood drives that are held on campus. The upcoming year hopes to see the initiation of a regular program of hospital and nursing home visitation.

The council has planned a full schedule of events for this academic year. A new addition to the regular bi-weekly meetings will be the inclusion of guest lecturers to speak on such interesting topics as drug abuse, alcohol awareness, and local problems that Friar Council can become involved with. Local talent will also be a welcome addition to enhance the social aspect of the council.

By combining social, religious and community activities the council offers something for everyone. The ladies' auxiliary is associated with the Knights and offers women an opportunity to get involved in these worthwhile activities.

Friar Council invites men 18 years or older who are participating Catholics to join this Catholic fraternity. Selection is based on the results of interviews in which the candidates are judged on enthusiasm, personality, and Catholic awareness. All interested may receive more information by contacting Jim Hornstein, the newly appointed membership director, or by attending a meeting for all interested candidates to be held this September. Hope to see you there!

BOG Events: A Tradition of Success

Springweek begins

Quad Party Instigates Hangovers

Spring Week

The Providence College Board of Governors is the seat of social, cultural and recreational activity on campus. Its purpose is not only to provide social events but also to complement the academic growth of the student. The BOG is run by four officers and a group of committee chairpeople. The committees consist of films, social, fine arts, concerts, Last Resort, programmer, coffee house, lecture, travel, video, publicity and ticket office. The Board of Governors not only provides a great service for the student body, but it also allows many students to exercise their talents on the various committees.

Recently the BOG sponsored its annual Springweek. This week is packed with action and fun-filled events that ends the year with a bang before spring finals. The photos give one a taste of what life at PC is all about.

Ready, Set, Fall!

Sway Away the Day

Fun Facts for Frosh

1. Don't plan on going home every weekend because you will miss an important part of PC. The social life on the weekends is great.
2. There are three sets of doors that lead to Raymond Cafe. The center doors are ALWAYS locked, so don't even try to get in through them.
3. The Rat is the on-campus bar. It is located on the lower level of Slavin Center and is open seven nights a week. A word to the wise: don't go every day.
4. Bring a long slicker, high boots and an umbrella and you will be all set for Providence weather.
5. Volunteering your services is a great way to get involved and to meet people. The Cow, the BOG, Pastoral Council, Veritas, Big Brothers and Sisters and the different majors' clubs (marketing, art, economics, etc.) are some of the organizations that need your help. Another thing, if you join now you may find yourself an editor, chairperson or president by the time you are a junior or senior!
6. Everyone has a mailbox. Check it every day.
7. If you want one of those thick, cold drinks made with ice cream and milk like the ones served at an ice-cream parlor, ask for a "frappe" (pronounced "frap"). Rhode Islanders don't make milkshakes like the rest of the country.
8. The Last Resort should not be last on your list of places to go.
9. Freshman year is not easy. Get used to spending at least three or four hours each night studying somewhere. (Please believe us. We're not joking.)
10. Don't expect your roommates to be your best friends. You may get along very well, but if you don't there are approximately 3,500 other people in this school with whom you can associate. You're bound to like some of them.
11. Civ tapes are great in an emergency, but you can't always get the tape you want when you want it. You will find that going to Civ class is more comfortable and less of a hassle. It also takes less time.
12. Intramural sports are a good way to get involved and work off tensions (or extra pounds).
13. If you don't like beer, don't let ignorant people pressure you into swallowing it. After all, you wouldn't make them drink Kapectate if they didn't want to, right?
14. Skipping meals at Raymond Cafe doesn't pay off. Ordering out for pizza every night can get expensive, especially when you have to buy all new clothes, two sizes larger.
15. If you want to look like a freshman, the first questions you ask new acquaintances should be:
 - A. "Do you go here?"
 - B. "What's your major?"
 - C. "What year are you in?"
 - D. "Where are you from?"
 If you give it a little thought, you can come up with better, more imaginative "ice breakers" than these.
16. Meagher Hall is pronounced "mar," or if you are a local, "mah."
17. If you are hungry and you don't want pizza, Park Place is a new restaurant that will deliver almost anything, from a hot omelette and toast to a grinder. Check it out.
18. If you've got a "bone to pick," chances are that you're eating a Raymond Cafe hamburger.
19. Mural Lounge, downstairs in Raymond Hall, has grinders, ice cream and all sorts of munchies after 7:00 p.m. The Silver Truck parks on Huxley Avenue, in front of Dore Hall at night, and also has grinders and munchies.
20. For a male to enter a women's dorm, give his name, the name of the woman he would like to see, and if he can think of it, the phone number. The attendant at the desk then calls and asks the woman if the young man's presence is desired. If so, he is free to proceed.
21. For a female to enter a male dorm, she must place her hand on the doorknob, pull open the door, then ambulate up the stairs to her desired destination.
22. Free ice-skating for students is available at Schneider Arena (on campus) around noon-time on weekdays.
23. The Financial Aid Office has listings for on- and off-campus jobs for those who didn't qualify for work-study.
24. The drinking age in Rhode Island has been raised to 20 as of July, 1980.
25. That is bad news to Connecticut residents, but nothing new for 18 and 19 year-olds coming from Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, etc.
26. When attending off-campus parties, beware of punch with no alcoholic taste. Grain alcohol tends to creep up on you.
27. If you need a tutor, you can get one, free of charge, from the Tutorial Center in Guzman Hall. They can really help.
28. Be careful when you sneak food or beverages into the library. Big Brother may not be watching, but security might be.
29. The library tends to be one of the top weeknight social spots, a sort of mixer without beer. If you want privacy, pick a remote corner and don't tell your friends where you are sitting. And if you really want to be left alone, hang your coat on the back of your chair.
30. If you keep a jar filled with change, you won't have to scrounge from your roommates and friends when you run out of clean socks or when you get a "venting machine" attack.
31. Gloria Vanderbilt and Calvin Klein are not PC students, but allegations are swamping the campus.
32. Don't forget to study. It can do wonders for your cum.
33. Free buses are supplied to basketball games and to some away hockey games.
34. The Chaplain's Office is always ready to lend a helping hand or a sympathetic ear.
35. Grotto beach doesn't have any water or sand, but you can catch the last few rays of summer sun there. It is on the side of Aquinas, in front of the Grotto.
36. Brad's and Louie's are nearby bars that are within walking (or crawling) distance and which usually contain a sea of familiar faces. A note of caution to the unsuspecting: Annie Street lawn parties are strongly objected to by the Annie Street residents.
37. Mondo (mon' doe) n. a species of homo sapiens which inhabits Club Fantasy on the weekends and has, on occasion, been sighted in Alumni Cafe.
38. BOG is not short for "bogos." It is a worthwhile organization, so volunteer to work for it!
39. Don't eat the yellow crust that forms on the top of the mayonnaise in Raymond Cafe.
40. When dining in afore-mentioned cafeteria, beware of loose caps on salt, pepper and sugar containers.
41. Find out who your advisor is and get to know him or her. Advisors can be valuable when planning schedules and, if they can recognize your face, it will be easier for them to write a good recommendation come senior year.
42. "Raymond Cafe Slezaburgers." Ingredients: Vulcanized rubber beef flattened to perfection in our own kitchens by industrial steam rollers and served lukewarm on a sesame seedless bun.
43. Season hockey and basketball tickets are a good buy.
44. If you want to know what's happening, read The Cow. We don't miss a thing.

Out of uniform Friars: Maryanne, Kelly, and Moss.

Friar Club Promotes PC

The Friars Club was originally formed for the purpose of welcoming visiting athletic teams. It was based on a similar organization at Dartmouth College called the Coren Key Club. Over the many years since its formation in 1928, the club's duties have been changed to include many other activities. The Friars Club today acts as a service organization for our college community.

One of the important functions of the club and its members is to give prospective members and their parents a tour of the campus and promote the positive aspects of obtaining a post-secondary education at PC. Other functions of the Friars Club include assisting at registration and graduation, ushering home hockey games, and organizing the Oktoberfest, Parent's Weekend, and Alumni Weekend.

The club also works in conjunction with the Chaplain's Office and the Admission's Office.

As a non-profit organization budgeted by the College the Friars Club holds several functions each year for the benefit of charity organizations.

There are 55 members in the club, with 54 percent being seniors, 32 percent juniors, and 14 percent sophomores.

WDOM: On the Radio

A challenging and rewarding activity on the PC campus is WDOM, the student operated radio station. Unlike many other campus activities, WDOM reaches well beyond the campus.

The station is licensed to serve the Providence community, and provides quality programming in many different areas. WDOM has assembled one of the more diverse schedules in the Providence area. Among the special broadcasts aired this past year were sport broadcasts, music recitals, and speeches.

The opportunities are endless," says last year's Program Manager Frank Fox. "We offer daily programs of classical music, rock, news, and public affairs shows. There are openings in each of these areas, and new people are always needed."

The General Manager of WDOM, Mike McCormack has announced that the first general meeting of the year will be in September. Anyone interested in learning more about WDOM is urged to attend. The studios and offices are located in Joseph Hall, and any interested newcomers are welcome to stop in.

We would like to welcome all incoming freshmen to the Providence College Sports Scene. Besides studying or socializing sports is an exciting way to get involved with your peers.

Sports and Providence College are like hot dogs and mustard, without one the other would be no good. We depend on your involvement to continue the successful tradition of Sports and Providence College.

Be you large or small, slim or hefty, adept or slightly clumsy, Providence College has a team sport you can join or tryout for. Believe us, Sports at PC are not limited to Olympic contenders! Your average or even below average skater is welcome to join

Ice Hockey intramural teams providing that he or she can tolerate a few bruises. In short, there is a sport for everyone at PC, and this will become more evident with the opening of the new fieldhouse.

Again, welcome to Providence College, and we urge you to become athletically active. After all, who wants to return home in December with the dreaded freshmen ten?

Enjoy the remainder of your summer.

A good solution to the problem would be for work study coordinators to go to each office and find out what the responsibilities of the summer work study student or students are. Then it is also important to know whether or not the faculty and/or administration are satisfied with the student's performance. If so, no more check ups on that student. If the employers are not happy, why not try talking to the student? Student's don't bite, we're actually very nice and always open to come constructive criticism.

It is not fair to judge a person without knowing what his job requires. Get the facts straight and then begin some constructive and beneficial investigating.

I do a good job here, and I don't like being thought of otherwise. I do as I'm told and I don't take this job lightly. I enjoy my summer job and would like to keep it that way.

Most people will do a full day's work for a full day's pay. Why must I be persecuted due to the foolishness of a few other people's mistakes?

Sincerely,

THE BIG EAST CONFERENCE

Bill Donlon Namd New Assistant Basketball Coach

Bill Donlon, the head basketball coach at Methuen (Mass.) High School the past three years, has been named assistant basketball coach at Providence College, completing new coach Joe Mullane's staff.

Donlon joins Steve Hocker as an aide under Mullane. Hocker has been at PC the past two years, under former coach Gary Walters, and was retained by Mullane as his Top Assistant.

"We're pleased Bill Donlon has decided to join our program," said Mullane. "He came to us with a lot of experience, a lot of knowledge of the game and tremendous enthusiasm. He also has a lot of experience working at summer camps and knows many high school coaches throughout the East which should benefit our recruiting efforts."

Donlon, a native of Sunnyside, L.I., N.Y., graduated from Mount St. Charles Academy in Mount

Assistant Coach Bill Donlon

Woonsocket, where he captained the basketball team as a senior in 1963, was the second leading scorer in the state and was an All-Stater. He was also a football co-captain at the Mount.

He graduated from Virginia Commonwealth University in 1967 and was a two-year basketball starter there.

Prior to taking over the basketball program at Methuen High in 1978, Donlon coached at St. John Villa Academy in Staten Island, N.Y., and Maria Regina High in Uniondale, N.Y., where his teams posted a 44-16 record over three years.

Donlon's teams at Methuen the last three years went 49-16; 18-4 and 18-5 the past two seasons and qualifying for the state tournament each year, the first and only two seasons in the long history of the school it reached the Massachusetts state tournament in basketball.

1980-81 Friar Hockey: A Season to Savor

Skip the rhetoric, forget about all the stats, and the pre-season polls and the polls during the season, forget, for a moment, who did what and when and where. Go right to the bottom line, and at the same time take a peek into the trophy case in the lobby of Schneider Arena.

When you talk about the 1980-81 Providence College hockey team, you have to get to the bottom line—and the trophy case—quickly. In the books the record will read 17-15-1, 12-9-1 in ECAC regular season play. But, most importantly, the record books and THE CUP (in the Schneider trophy case) will read: 1981 ECAC Champion—PROVIDENCE COLLEGE.

Through the good times and the bad, the many, many hours of practice and the long road trips; after many injuries, and a season which was like riding on a roller coaster, it was the bottom line at the end that counted the most—as it should—and the bottom line showed the hockey Friars were the champions of the East. The very best of all 17 Division 1 teams in the East.

At the end, when it counted the most and the chips were on the they beat Cornell to win it all in the Boston Garden.

The very fact Providence brought home THE CUP, or the ECAC Championship, probably wasn't a surprise to a lot of people. But the way the Friars had to fight for it was really a surprise. To talk about the significance of it all, one must go back to October, before the wild and crazy year even began.

Coming into the season, the Friars were picked No. 1 in the East in most polls—even No. 1 in the country in one. After all, they were coming off their winningest year ever (21-11) and had lost only four players from that team which, after an 0-4 start, never lost two games in a row the rest of the way.

The season started off promisingly enough with wins at home over Merrimack and U.S. International and then, at the time a very big 3-1 win on the road up in Burlington, in noisy Guttersen Field House against Vermont.

Then came a swoon, back-to-back one goal losses up there in the Iron Range country which is Minnesota-Duluth, not to mention a 10-hour trip just to get there.

Various Friar Athletes Selected to Compete in National Sports Festival

The National Sports Festival will take place next week in Syracuse, N.Y., where competitions in thirty-three athletic events will be held. This competition will be the first step for many athletes in making their way to the 1984 Olympic games.

Three such athletes happen to be Providence College's own Friar Hockey teammates, and one Providence recruit hopeful. They are Kurt Kleindorfer, Steve Taylor, Rich Costello, and hopeful Bob Carpenter. These three or four players will be trying to win spots on the 1984 Olympic team and will hopefully perform another "Miracle on Ice."

Carpenter, an eighteen year old player from Peabody, Mass., is considering enrolling at PC, yet is also considering signing with the Washington Capitals. His ultimate decision should be made in the near future. Carpenter was the third player to be chosen for the team, and has been called "the best hockey player ever born in the United States."

Chosen for the basketball team, was Ron Jackson of Roxbury who is a recruit from Roxbury Community College.

The Providence College Cowl staff salutes these outstanding athletes and wishes them the best of luck in these most difficult and prestigious competitions.

Frosh: Intramurals Can Be Fun!

Intramurals and recreation at Providence College offer students its individual and team competition as well as recreational opportunities to occupy leisure time. The program is self-governing, run by an athletic board of seven students. Freshmen interested in becoming active board members can sign up at the intramural office when school begins.

Activities offered this past year included football, basketball, volleyball, hockey, softball, handball, platform tennis, swimming, physical fitness, CPR, Judo and self-defense, road races, weight-lifting, Supersports Competition, slminastics, and dance programs.

The Athletic Board is administered by five officers, of which the president and vice-president are elected. Students seeking one of the other three seats of secretary, treasurer, and coordinator must fill out an application at the Athletic Board Office. They are then appointed to these posts.

Captain: Friar Unity!

line, the Friars finished by beating first Boston College, then Clarkson and finally old nemesis Cornell in the ECAC playoffs. Ranked seventh in the eight-team playoff field, PC took the title by upsetting the Nos. 1-2-4 seeds in the tournament.

The fact Providence bowed to Michigan Tech at home in two straight games in the NCAA quarterfinals should not take away from what ended up being a very fine season, for just getting into the NCAA tournament, and hosting the team from the West, was merely frosting on the cake—or gravy—for winning the title in the East.

"After all," said one Friar fan, still smiling despite the final loss to Michigan Tech, "we won the ECAC title. There is only one winner a year and this year it is us. No one can ever take that away. Years from now, even next year, people won't notice the fact we lost in the NCAA quarterfinals as much as the fact we were the Eastern champions. No one can ever replace the memories our kids, and our coaches, had when

There were a few minor team infractions on the trip and the Friars returned home and went to Boston to face BU minus several key players. It was a wipeout, a 8-1 Terrier win.

Back home came the Friars and, now at full strength, PC battled BC to a 3-3 tie, then lost 6-4, four days later to Northeastern. So, the record stood at 3-4-1 and what was ahead was a stretch of 44 days without a home game. A trip to Princeton, another trip to Minnesota to play the powerful Gophers twice, then long trips on the bus to such exotic hot spots as Orono, Hamilton, Canton and Potsdam (with a successful trip to Cambridge and Harvard sandwiched in) all during vacation when things were serene on campus and social life was boring most of the time.

After an 8-3 whipping at Clarkson, the Friars came home with a 6-9-1 record and there were many in hockey circles wondering just what was wrong with the Friars. After all, weren't they supposed to be No. 1 in the East?
